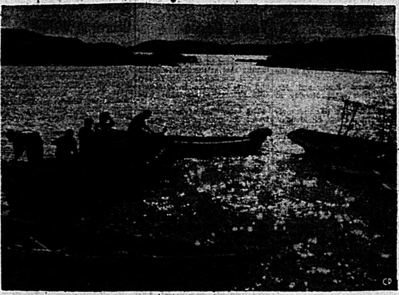
CAUTIOUS BROKER

VANCOUVER (CP) — A stock broker here likes to stress caution on his clients. Tom Boden, the broker, said chances of finding an oil field yielding 1,000,000 barrels are about 43 to one, and displays a sign saying "there are 16,500 dry holes in the United States."

TUNA RUN STARTS



Commercial tuna fishing is fast becoming a major industry for an expanding group of Nova Scotia fishermen. In St. Margaret's Bay, near Halifax, 200 fishermen are engaged in the run which continues until mid-October. One Halifax exporter said: "We can take from 1,000,000 to 2,000,000 pounds. The market is ulimited. Fishermen are shown hauling up traps and spillers with their catch of tuna. (CP Photo).

TUNA FOR EXPORT

Although tuna fishing is regarded as a famous sport at such places as Soldier's Rip, near Wedgeport, N. S., the fighting fish also is sought by commercial fishermen as a profitable industry. United States takes the lion's share of the catch. Tuna is exported to Maine, New York and Boston and other coastal centres. Prices this year average six cents a pound for the big bluefins. (CP Photo).

Commercial Tuna Fishing Becoming Major Industry in Nova Scotia

HALIFAX (CP) — Commercial tuna fishing is fast becoming a major industry for an expanding group of Nova Scotia fishermen.

At nearby St. Margaret's Bay, some 200 fishermen are busy. The tuna run has started and will continue until the middle of October.

Said one Halifax exporter: "We can take from 1,000,000 to 2,000,000 pounds. The market is unlimited."

Ten years ago, however, fishermen regarded the battling bluefins as a nuisance. They ripped up nets and ate tons of herring and mackerel.

But during the war years, when Japan's tuna export trade to North America was cut, Canadian and United States canneries began looking to their coastal waters.

Tuna Tournament

Evidence showed they were abundant. Near Wedgeport, N.S., a tide-tortured strip of water called Soldier's Rip was already famous as the "world's best angling spot for tuna." Each September it is the scene of the international tuna tournament.

The United States takes the lion's share of the catch. Tuna caught in the St. Margaret's Bay area are sent to Maine in refrigerated trucks. Fishermen southward along the coast send their fish to Digby, where they are shipped to New York and Boston.

The 1949 catch of 868,000 pounds was worth $75,000 but prices have declined. Fishermen were offered six cents a pound this year. Although a good haul can net them as high as $240 daily, a fisherman's average earning for the three-month season is $1,200.

Few Harpooned

Tuna are caught by a trap and spiller method. Few are harpooned. The trap consists of a regular herring or mackerel net set with one end open. When tuna are caught, a spiller—heavy net with a six-inch mesh—is dropped and scooped under the fish.

Six or seven boats draw the spiller to the surface, where the fish usually smother if it is full. But if the catch is meagre, then the thrashing tuna are killed by axes.

When the run is heavy, 40 to 50 large tuna have been caught in one haul, and often 200 smaller ones.

The bluefins, which reach a weight of 1,500 pounds, make their annual trip to the Nova Scotia coast, but nobody knows where they spawn. Although taken for centuries, notably in the Mediterranean, they have kept their secret.

Brassiere-Clad Girl Found Dead in Sand

CHEBOYGAN, Mich. (CP)—Albert Byrne, 41, was taken to nearby East Lansing today to face a lie-detector test after the almost nude body of his 14-year-old daughter was found in a lover's lane gravel pit.

Her body, clad only in a brassiere, was found yesterday half-buried under sand and brush. Two children playing saw the toes protruding from a mound.

Police said the girl died as the result of a crushing blow on the chest. It was not known whether she had been raped.

The father, a factory worker, was questioned at the state police post here throughout the night. He agreed to the test.

Large Crowd Attends W.I. Dinner In Aid of Moira Cemetery Fund

Moira—Over 300 people attended the dinner held on August 4th at Moira Church in aid of the cemetery fund sponsored by the Women's Institute.

Friends came from far and near to enjoy the excellent fare provided by the women of Fuller community as well as of Moira.

Mr. Stewart of Lakefield, a former pastor capably acted as chairman for the afternoon program which, because of the inclement weather, was held in the church.

Mr. Fred Ketcheson, whose vigorous old age attests to his wisdom in choosing to remain a citizen of Moira all his life, first spoke a few words of welcome and Mrs. J. F. Herity welcomed the guests on behalf of the Institute.

Tribute to Departed Friends

Two minutes of prayer and silence honored those who since the last meeting have passed on: Clarence Mullett, Thomas Elliott, Alex Dunlop, Mrs. Herb Deline, Mrs. Florence Stewart, Harry Foster, Edgar Foster and Sonnie Fox.

Mr. Harry Kerr, of Toronto, who had not previously revisited his boyhood home spoke of his pleasure in attending this meeting.

Roscoe Robson, M.P.P., mentioned how willingly people came on each Moira invitation and complimented the Institute on the work accomplished at the cemetery, hoping that this would become an annual gathering.

Col. R. Vanderwater brought before the gathering the serious thought of how precious liberty should be to everyone.

Mr. George Foster and his sister Mrs. Hudson, of Belleville, told of their happy memories of Moira.

Mrs. Roscoe Robson, district president of East Hastings Institute, brought greetings wishing the Moira branch every success and mentioning that in 1953 Canada will entertain the World Federation of Institutes.

Mr. Herbert Burke gave an inspiring talk on the forefathers who gave the country such a grand heritage of faith and discipline. He was followed by Mr. Bert Poste who had delayed his return trip to California in order to attend the meeting. Mr. Poste told how his early training and later conversion had held him back from the temptations of the California coast life.

Mr. Elmer Woods, reeve of Huntingdon, mentioned improvements planned for Moira Road. Mr. Elmer Post and Mr. Arthur Wilson brought greetings from West Huntingdon.

Mrs. Earl Morrow, who has on many occasions showed special kindnesses to her former home of Moira rendered a piano solo. Donna Sharpe of Campbellford accompanied by Iona Sharpe delighted the gathering with several solos. Carol Welsh and Pauline Holbert sang two duets accompanied by Evelyn Emerson.

Mrs. Nelson Welsh presented the financial statement for the year and announced that the proceeds of this year's dinner were $227 with donations of $159 to date.

Mrs. Gilbert Thompson, president, thanked all those who had helped to make the day such a success. She gave the audience a chance to express their wishes on such a day next year. Their enthusiastic desire to return was very gratifying and she has promised that in spite of the many difficulties everything will be done to carry on this good work.

Mr. Cleworth Foster of Toronto attended also, but had to leave before the program began.

Charged With Murder

Buffalo, N.Y. (AP) — What police termed "a middle, aged love triangle" was ended last night when a blast from a 12-guage shotgun took the life of a steelworker as he sat alongside a 51-year-old widow. The victim was identified as Pasquale Trocchia, 50. Police arrested Frank J. Druzbik, 60, manager of a rooming house owned by Mrs. Apolonia Berner, the widowed mother of three children. He was charged with murder. Mrs. Berner said Druzbik had proposed to her, but that she had turned him down because of his excessive drinking.

U.S. Questions Britain's Policies Toward Iran

Presses for Radical Change To Avert Threat of Reds

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is prepared to press for a radical change in Britain's policies toward Iran if it appears such a step would help avert the danger of Communist seizure of Iran from the inside.

American officials, facing a new round of consultations with the British on the Iranian situation this week, appeared uncertain today whether political conditions in Iran would offer opportunity for effective action by the western powers. They were hopeful, however, that some steps could be taken fairly quickly.

Informants said that intensive talks to date have produced an understanding between Washington and London that the best bet for blocking the intrigues of the Communist Tudeh party and of others who might play into Communist hands is to strengthen, if possible, the position of Premier Mohammed Mossadegh.

Relax Blockade

American officials privately suggest that if Britain could find a way to relax its economic blockade of Iran and permit Iranian oil to be sold to the outside world Mossadegh's anti-communist influence in his badly split country would be reinforced.

Furthermore, Mossadegh is such an unpredictable person and the forces around him are so explosive that authorities said it is difficult to tell whether any effective steps could be taken. Two events contributed to this latest outburst of worry over the future of Iran:

1. On Friday the British government received a proposal from Mossadegh to reopen negotiations for a settlement of the British-Iranian oil dispute. But the conditions were described by authorities here as wholly unacceptable from either the British or the American viewpoint.

Suggest New Proposal

American officials indicated they would suggest to the British in consultations here this week that while rejecting Mossadegh's offer the British government should make some counter-proposal or otherwise seek to get negotiations started up again.

2. On Saturday the Iranian senate—a parliamentary body which usually exercises little more power than Britain's House of Lords—suddenly asserted its constitutional rights and blocked, for the time being at least, a bill to grant dictatorial powers to Mossadegh for six months.

Apparently the western powers had hoped Mossadegh would get his temporary grant of authority. They have felt for some time that only an iron hand could restore order to the country and crush the spreading influence of the Communists.

Iran's Senate Votes Mossadegh Unlimited Powers

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Iran's Senate in a complete about-face today voted Premier Mohammed Mossadegh unlimited powers to govern the country for the next six months.

The upper house gave final approval to the sweeping grant of power which on Saturday it had refused to adopt without further study.

The Majlis (lower house) already had approved the measure, which now is law. It gives the Premier the right to govern by decree in nearly every phase of Iranian life.

The Senate, after refusing the final action on Saturday, had sent a delegation to the aged Nationalist leader asking for more information about his plans and asking also that he modify his demand for power.

Mossadegh, however, refused to scale down his request for the sweeping authority, which he contended was necessary to save the near-bankrupt country from economic ruin.

The Premier got a setback yesterday, however, in the Majlis. The lower house refused his request for extension of the martial law he clamped on the country last March.

Duke of Windsor Much Improved After Illness

MONTECATINI, Italy (AP) — The Duke of Windsor, recovering from an attack of gastro-enteritis, began his day today with a Scotch and soda.

His wife, the Duchess of Windsor, and Dr. Dante Pisani, who has been attending him, later joined him in the garden for a brief chat. The group then entered the restaurant, where the Duke ate heartily.

Sir Daniel Davis, royal physician who flew from London to treat the former monarch, left for home early today.

The physicians have prescribed a general diet of milk and boiled foods for the Duke's ailment — an inflammation of the stomach and intestinal lining.

A.L. Woodrow Acting President Of Liberal Assoc.

OTTAWA (CP)—Allan L. Woodrow of Toronto, honorary treasurer of the National Liberal Federation of Canada, has been appointed its acting president on a temporary basis.

H.E. Kidd, general secretary of the federation, announced today that Mr. Woodrow will hold office until the advisory council meets Oct. 27-28 when new officers will be elected.

Mr. Woodrow succeeds the late Senator J. Gordon Fogo who died suddenly at Murray Bay, Que., July 6.

Mr. Woodrow has been honorary treasurer of the Liberal federation since 1946 and was chairman of the finance committee of the 1948 national Liberal convention.

He is a well-known bank executive and retired from the Bank of Nova Scotia after extensive experience managing branches in the larger centres of the United States, the Maritimes, Quebec and Ontario.

Since his retirement he has been intimately associated with Liberal party affairs as a member of the national executive committee.

Ridgway Says Threat of War Great As Ever, Serious Weakness in Buildup

PARIS (AP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway said today the threat of war is still as great as ever, and there are serious weaknesses in the west's buildup to meet this threat.

The supreme commander of Allied forces in Europe told a press conference there is doubt whether the western Allies can reach their 1952 goal of 50 divisions—25 active and 25 in reserve—and 4,000 planes.

Ridgway also said he favors two year's military service — something European nations are to discuss in Paris tomorrow amid indications they will not adopt it.

Protest Draft Term

Belgium has already been hit by strikes protesting her two-year draft term.

The most serious deficiency to date Ridgway said, is the S.H.A.P.E. buildup in the logistic field.

The problem of building warehouses, troop installations and air fields is broad and complex, he said, and "I haven't had time to go into the almost innumerable details of that program."

"There is no reliable evidence known to me," he said, "that the threat of aggression against the west had diminished. In preparing the defence against such a threat, he said, there were "serious inadequacies in several vital categories," but all the S.H.A.P.E. organization is trying its best to meet these deficiencies.

SCHUMAN PLAN'S EXECUTIVE STARTS WORK ON PROGRAM

To Give Europe Guns, Butter, Political Unity

LUXEMBOURG (AP)—The Schuman Plan's nine-man high authority began work today on a program to give Western Europe both guns and butter, and perhaps eventual political unity as well.

The executive arm of the six-nation coal-steel pool held its first working session under its chairman, French economic expert Jean Monnet, the plan's chief architect.

The authority will meet here regularly for the time being, pending French-German negotiations which may allow for internationalization of the Saar and location of all the Schuman Plan activities there.

Monnet and his eight colleagues from West Germany, Italy, The Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg and France took office yesterday.

Remove Barriers

In his "inaugural address" as chairman, Monnet said the authority would quickly remove the barriers to free trade of steel and coal throughout the six nations, thus paving the way to increased production and higher living standards.

Western statesmen already have hailed the Schuman organization, named for French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman who first conceived it, as the initial step toward a political federation of Western Europe.

The authority expects to have the common coal-steel market operating in about eight months.

Monnet did not mention defence needs specifically but the guns-and-butter promise was implied in his statement that the pool's operations would contribute both to Europe's prosperity and peace.

Mass Production

With a free, single market, Monnet said, "it will be possible to develop mass production, which is the only way to obtain lower costs, an expanded market and greater production."

The six-nation area now produces about 40,000,000 tons of steel and 230,000,000 tons of coal a year.

Monnet pledged quick action to dovetail the British steel and coal industry with the continental community, an item of top priority for the authority.

The nine members of the executive severed all official connection with their own governments and with any separate coal and steel concerns. They will have full diplomatic status. Their tax-free salaries will be around $10,000 or $12,000 a year.

Canal Bridge Likely to Open This Week-end

HAMILTON (CP) — "If we can possibly do so at all, we very much want to get the new Burlington Canal bridge open for traffic this weekend," a spokesman of the district engineer's office, federal Department of Public works, said today in Toronto.

He also announced that discussions were going forward with the federal department of Transport concerning the installation of an additional signal system for navigation.

R.C.M.P. 'Musical Ride' Features Opening of Fair, County Wardens Officiate

Favored by weather which could not have been improved, Belleville marked the opening of its 104th annual exhibition today in a brief grandstand ceremony prior to the presentation of the grandstand entertainment which featured the famed Royal Canadian Mounted Police "Musical Ride". Large crowds began to gather in the grounds shortly after noon.

Officiating at the opening of the Exhibition were two county wardens, Lee Grills, of Hastings County, and Calvin Hughes, of Prince Edward County.

Not waiting for the exhibition to be officially declared open, Ken Bird, Belleville school teacher, began judging school exhibits, one hour before opening time. One hour later, judges began their selection of the winner of the Baby Contest which boasted record number of entries.

Despite lack of rain during the growing season, the flower and vegetable displays were described as excellent. Judging commenced at two o'clock with Sam Munnings, Belleville horticulturist, in charge of judging.

Domestic science exhibits, along with fine arts and handicraft, were judged today by Mrs. A. E. Webster, of Oakwood. Ladies' handiwork, including sewing, was judged by Mrs. F. H. Henderson, of Napanee.

Arriving by train from Ottawa Sunday morning, 36 horses—four of them spares—in Mountie's Musical Ride, went through a try-out on the baseball diamond in front of the grandstand but the ground made greasy by the downpour, resulted in the horses being held to a trot. Today, instead of searching for a criminal, the Mounties sought a horseshoe which had been thrown yesterday from one of the horses taking part in the rehearsal. Like getting their man, the Mounties retrieved the shoe.

While the Musical Ride will take the spotlight at today's opening in the grandstand enclosure, the feature attraction for the remainder of the exhibition will be Bill Garden's Show with a cast of more than 40 performers. Today, the Belleville Municipal Band provided the band music for the Musical Ride. The grandstand attraction will be marked with a fireworks display at 11 o'clock each evening.

Meat and Wheat Industries Reaching Delicate Stage With Markets, Transport Problems

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canada's economy is currently throbbing with unprecedented activity but is gradually reaching a delicate and perhaps critical stage in two important billion-dollar industries—meat and wheat.

The meat market, in spite of the United States embargo on Canadian exports, has been comparatively strong, bolstered by federal government price support and by the tripartite Canada-United Kingdom-New Zealand agreement to move some surplus Canadian beef to Britain.

But under the agreement, Britain will take from Canada only the amount New Zealand can divert to the United States market. At one time, it was thought New Zealand might have 80,000,000 pounds for the American market this year. The figure now has been trimmed to 60,000,000.

Bought 45,000,000

The Canadian government already has bought 45,000,000 pounds and that leaves only another 15,000,000 it can purchase for shipment to the U.K.

Normally the heaviest marketings of Canadian beef are in the fall months when summer grass-fed cattle are ready for the dinner table. Unless the American market is opened, there likely will be a lot more than 15,000,000 pounds of beef surplus to Canadian demands.

Just how the government will handle this surplus will be a matter for some skilful planning. It already has committed itself to maintain a price-support program until the American market opens and that means it likely will buy up all surplus beef offered by the producers.

Prices Below Cost

Other countries besides the U.K. have indicated a desire for Canadian meat, but it is understood the prices they have offered are far below cost and would mean sharp losses to the federal treasury if taken up.

Meanwhile, the chances of an early reopening of the American market, closed because of foot-and-mouth disease in Canada, are growing more and more remote. There had been some hope it would be reopened 60 days after the federal government officially declares Canada free of the disease on Aug. 19. Now there is a feeling that the doors will remain closed perhaps until early next spring.

In the case of wheat, the critical questions are transportation and weather. Canada may have a record crop this year, higher than the 566,000,000-bushel record crop of 1928. In addition, she likely will have a large carry-over of wheat from the last crop year. The crop is early this year and farmers will be ready to move their grain earlier than usual.

Iron Ore Demands

But the Great Lakes shipping fleet is striving to make up for the lag in iron ore shipments caused by the American steel strike. The ships are trying to get enough ore to the Canadian steel mills before the freeze-up to keep them going through the winter months.

Both ore and wheat will be bidding against each other for shipping. The Canadian Federation of Agriculture, for one, feels this may cause a shipping bottleneck such as developed last year. It feels the longer it takes to move the grain from the fields, the more opportunity there will be for fickle weather to change suddenly and threaten a harvest which otherwise would spell prosperity for a big segment of the Canadian population.

Official Greeter Of United Nations Ready for Work

By FRANCIS W. CARPENTER

His annual battle with the tea cup and cocktail set will come during the seventh General Assembly next fall. As chief protocol officer here, he is the official greeter for the U.N. and the man who coordinates the social doings of this international capital.

De Noue once guided President Truman about the U.N. and won presidential congratulations for introducing to the President every chief U.N. delegate without missing a name.

De Noue, 45, was born in Normandy. He taught languages at Rollings College, Winter Park, Fla., and lectured at Middlebury (Vt.) College before becoming liaison officer with the United States and Britain during the war. He also is a veteran of the evacuation of Dunkerque.

EGYPT TO CHOOSE NEW GOVERNMENT NEXT FEBRUARY

Censorship on Press Dispatches Abolished

CAIRO (Reuters)—Egypt will go to the polls next February to choose a new government, Gen. Mohammed Naguib announced today.

The announcement that an election would be held early next year came from the commander-in-chief's headquarters soon after political groups had been warned to purge their ranks if they did not want the army to "deal with them in another way."

Naguib also authorized an announcement that censorship on outgoing and incoming press dispatches would be abolished from noon today. It has been in effect since May, 1948.

Army Begins Manoeuvres

The army, dominant factor in Egyptian life since it ended the rule of King Farouk, emphasized its key position by announcing that its units will carry out manoeuvres in the Cairo area during the next week. Mechanized forces began clanking through the streets at dawn today.

The army said in its statement that it has "declared war against corruption." It also demanded immediate reforms to better the life of Egypt's poverty-stricken masses.

"We are pledged to the Egyptian nation that nothing shall stand in the way of constitutional life," it said.

Egypt has been without a parliament since last January, when it was dissolved by Farouk following bloody riots in Cairo. At the time it was dominated by the Wafd party, now jockeying to regain its former position. The present emergency government is headed by Aly Maher, an independent chosen by Naguib to be premier.

Reform or Disappear

Last night in a broadcast Maher headed scorn on Egypt's political parties, and told them they must reform themselves "or disappear."

He said that as a result of party politics "our public life is cursed with sterility and paralysis."

Naguib in a communique today said the army wants legislation to limit ownership of arable land and wants the government to abstain from "indirect taxes whose burden falls on the poor more than on the rich." He cited new customs duties on tobacco, put in force last week with a resultant rise in the prices of cigarets and tobacco.

The Premier said he would keep Egypt under martial law for the time being since the situation is "exceedingly delicate and dangerous."

PICTON MEN MOVE IN

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. — (CP) —Army anti-aircraft units and men from Picton moved into this area last night to take part in "Operation Mallard Duck."

During the six-week training scheme the heavy guns and radar equipment will be used to detect and battle RCAF "enemy" raiders.

DROWNED WHILE FISHING

Searchers Sift Debris of Mountain Home for More Than $50,000 Treasure

SOMERSET, Pa. (AP)—The search of an isolated home occupied by a wealthy man—who even in death was armed with a gun and a fierce pack of dogs—is almost completed today but unsolved are the questions:

Why did Samuel Jackson King live in such conditions while worth at least $68,000? and how did he save so much?

Treasure hunters who have probed the debris-littered mountain farmhouse where King lived have come up with nearly $18,000 in negotiable bonds, old currency, gold and silver coins in addition to bank books, safe deposit vault keys and real estate deeds indicating an estate worth approximately $50,000. These were tucked away in such places as a sofa, cookie jar and a woman's corset.

The whole thing started 10 days ago when 73-year-old King was found dead in a field on his farm. Nearby lay King's favorite dog, "Israel." Death was apparently caused by a heart attack.

Then Sheriff Karl I. Hare and his deputies went to the house.

Inside was an old sofa where "Israel" apparently slept. When it was moved, out dropped a false bottom revealing a sheaf of $1,000 bonds, with not a coupon clipped since 1934. Some $430 in $20 and $10 gold coins were found in a canvas sack. A rumpled roll of old large-sized currency contained hundreds of dollars in bills ranging up to $50.

One man found a woman's corset and was about to throw it away when a wallet dropped from a secret pocket stitched in the lining. It contained $130 in bills.

The corset is believed to have been the property of King's sister, Amanda, who died 18 years ago.

Two wills were discovered. The most recent gave the farm and everything on it to a neighbor, Earl Gray, who worked for years as a part-time hired hand for King.

150 Planes Take Part In Concentrated Attack

SEOUL (AP)—Allied fighter-bombers today turned a big North Korean chemical plant into a mass of raging flames in a concentrated attack with high explosives and fire bombs.

The Fifth Air Force said 150 planes heaped destruction on the chemical plant near Namsok, which is about 30 miles northwest of the battered east coast port of Wonsan.

Returning pilots said great clouds of black smoke hung over the building area, which covers a mountain side.

In the ground war Chinese Communists dug in on "Siberia Hill" on the Korean western front under a terrific day-long assault by U.N. fighter-bombers and pressure from U.S. marines.

Thieves Steal Valued Pen From Earl Alexander

LONDON (Reuters)—Thieves got away with a fountain pen given to Earl Alexander by Dwight Eisenhower when they raided the Defence Minister's apartment during the weekend, it was disclosed today

The former Governor-General of Canada spent part of today checking to see if they stole any medals, orders or souvenirs he brought back with him from Canada.

He discovered the robbery when he returned to his apartment in exclusive Belgrave Place, in the west end, last night after a weekend in the country.

Detectives today photographed the disordered rooms and looked for fingerprints. They believe the thief or thieves entered the apartment with a skeleton key.

Renegade Chief Being Blasted Out of Stronghold

MANILA (AP)—Philippines' planes and artillery today sent rockets and explosives crashing into the Jolo Island strongholds of Datu Kamlon, Moro renegade chieftain who welched on his unconditional surrender.

Some 1,500 Filipino troops with tanks and man-hunting dogs drove through vine-laced undergrowth toward the defence points of Kamlon and his 300 followers.

Less than three weeks ago Kamlon surrendered and told Defence Minister Ramon Magsaysay he would help the army in its campaign to collect firearms from Moros on the jungle island in the Sulu archipelago of the southern Philippines. He apparently changed his mind and now President Elpidio Quirino has given the signal for the all-out drive on the Moros.

Panmunjom Talks Fail to Produce Any Solution

MUNSAN, Korea (AP)—The Communists today accused the United Nations Command of attempting to bury Korean armistice negotiations by stepping up air attacks on North Korea and repeatedly requesting recesses in the truce talks.

The 35-minute session at Panmunjom—first in a week—failed to produce any solution in the truce-blocking deadlock over war-prisoner exchange.

Despite their protests, the Communists agreed to another recess until Aug. 19.

Gen. Nam Il, senior Red delegate, complained of U.N. air assaults and declared that "any so-called military pressure on your side will only invite you to miserable defeat."

Criticizes Allies

He accused the Allies of obstructing peace with repeated recesses—the latest one is the third week-long layoff in a row—and said the U.N. "is attempting to bury these armistice negotiations and is designing to extend the war."

Maj.-Gen. William K. Harrison, senior U.N. delegate, curtly told Nam Il that the Allies will repatriate only 83,000 captured Reds. The Reds demand return of 116,000 Communist soldiers but the U.N. refuses to force any prisoner to return to Red control. About 100,000 Allied-held prisoners and civilian internees have said in screenings that they will resist repatriation.

Eden to Marry Churchill's Niece

LONDON (Reuters) — Foreign secretary Anthony Eden will soon marry Miss Clarissa Spencer-Churchill, niece of Prime Minister Winston Churchill, the Foreign Office announced today.

Eden's first marriage was dissolved in June, 1950, on grounds of desertion by his wife, the former Miss Beatrice Helen Beckett, who had lived in the United States for two years.

Eden is 55; his fiancee 32.

Ash-blonde, fair-complexioned with periwinkle-blue eyes, Miss Spencer-Churchill was hailed as the most beautiful debutant of 1938. She has studied drawing, written on ballet, the theatre, books and films, and taken university courses in philosophy, English and French literature.

In the last war she worked in Britain for the English newspaper produced for the Russians in Kuibishev. For a time she was at the Foreign Office.

Catapulted over the handlebars of his bicycle when it collided headon with an auto at the foot of Bridge St. Hill, Francis Calbury, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexis Calbury, St. Paul Street, Sunday night suffered a broken arm and lacerations to his face and scalp.

The accident took place at the intersection of Bridge and James Street. The Calbury boy and two other lads were riding their bikes down Bridge Street Hill. Douglas Cronkright, Moira St., was westbound following a bus and was turning left onto James Street when the lad on the bicycle sailed into the right front of his car. The front of the bike was completely demolished.

Bleeding from cuts about his scalp and face, the boy was carried across the street to the office of Dr. W. C. Morgan and was later taken to hospital where his condition today was reported favorable. According to the doctor X-rays showed no sign of skull fracture.

Driverless Car Causes Excitement On Front Street

A runaway auto which had been left on Boyce's service station lot while its owner went to the show caused a bit of excitement on Front Street Saturday night when unattended it rolled off the lot and across Front Street, coming to rest against a parking meter standard.

Percy J. Ray, Halloway, had parked his car on the service station lot. During his absence the brake failed to hold allowing the car to roll forward and across the street.

Despite the fact Front Street was busy with traffic at the time, the unattended auto made a safe crossing and eased to a stop against the meter standard with no damage of any nature resulting.

Father of Three Risks Life To Save Man From Drowning In Treacherous Lake Undertow

TRENTON (Special) — A father of three risked his life to save Alfred Woodcox, 45, of Trenton from drowning in the treacherous undertow off the west beach at Presqu'Ile Point and then disappeared in a crowd of swimmers without mentioning his name.

Woodcox, a paper mill worker, out on a picnic with his family attempted to wade to the Bluffs about a mile offshore. We was within a quarter-of-a-mile of the island, when he was caught by a strong current and carried out into the deep water of the channel. A non-swimmer he went under twice and then cried for help as he was going down for the third time. "I had heard a drowning man keeps his eyes closed but I remember seeing my wife and brother on shore as I struggled to keep on top, he recalled later. I felt a strong hand grab my arm as I seemed to lose all my strength."

The unknown hero dragged Woodcox to shallow water where a friend Clifford Cake of Hamilton and a brother Buster Woodcox of Oshawa were waiting to carry him the rest of the way. Young Cake who ran out into the water wearing his pants and shoes figured he could not have reached the drowning man in time. "A big fellow I never saw before or afterwards dashed out from the side and grabbed my friend from under the water,' he recounted.

Mrs. Woodcox who has a weak heart fainted on the beach when she heard her husband yell and watched him slide beneath the surface. She heard that the man who rescued her husband had a wife and three children and lived in the district. She has been trying to find him to offer her appreciation.

COLLIDES WITH CAR

Young Walter English was treated at the Trenton Memorial Hospital on Saturday for injuries he suffered when his bicycle collided with a car on Dundas Street East. P. W. Donnelly of Trenton, driver of the car, was making a left turn into Gould's Service Station just west of the pumps. The front of the car was across the sidewalk when the collision occurred at the right rear fender. The nine-year-old boy received slight abrasions to the left hip. Dr. E. W. Dow attended the youth at the hospital and he was allowed to go home. The weather was clear and the pavement was dry at the time of the accident.

Break-ins Net Night Operators Total of $17.20

TRENTON (Special) — A series of break-ins all along the same pattern netted night operators a total of $17.20 and cigarettes from three places of business during the weekend. Entry in all three places was gained either by breaking or raising windows.

Handy's Stand on Byron Street, was robbed of $6 in cash and cigarettes, while thieves got $11 in cash and tobacco at Maple Lunch at West and Bocage Street. At McCroden's service station on Dundas East cigarettes and $1.20 in cash were taken.

Last week a thief entered the home of Jack Orrill on Elgin Street during the owner's absence and took $35.50 out of a cigar box. Mr. Orrill was eating lunch at a nearby cafe when the house was entered with the use of a key.

Slippery Pavements Cause of Accidents

Cigarette Butt Possible Cause Of Fire in Car

A carelessly thrown cigarette butt is blamed for a blaze which Saturday afternoon completely destroyed an early model car driven by Ross Maxwell of Bancroft.

Maxwell was proceeding along the Madoc road about two miles north of Foxboro when he suddenly realized that the rear seat of his car was afire. He immediately stopped the vehicle but could do nothing to stop the progress of the flames and the auto was completely burned out, even the tires being destroyed.

Maxwell was unable to give police any clue as to the origin of the blaze, but admitted a cigarette butt blown into the back seat may have been the cause.

Two Men Injured, One Critically, When Overhead Beam Collapses

One man is in critical condition at Belleville General Hospital today and another has been released after receiving emergency treatment following an accident at the Lo'ns Stone Works Limited plant on Everett Street this morning.

Hospital authorities report Vernal Prindle of 136 Albert St. was admitted with undetermined head injuries. X-rays will be taken later on in the day to determine the full extent of his injuries. The second man, Albert Gill of 193 James Street, suffered minor head abrasions and bruises. He was released after treatment at hospital.

The accident occurred around 10:00 a.m. this morning. Manager of the plant, William Lowen, explained an overhead hoist beam collapsed and struck both men. Prindle apparently received full force of the beam on his skull.

The Stone Works Company are manufacturers of monuments and have only been located in the city for a short time.

In a closely contested yacht race held Sunday afternoon round a triangular course in Big Bay, "Dorian" sailed by Commodore J. J. Morch, won the Mikel Trophy for the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club by defeating "Cassawappy" owned by Ebon James of the Trenton Yacht Club.

Elwood Wickerson won the Wills Trophy presented for annual competition by the sea cadets, by being first on corrected time.

The six-metre yacht, 'Question' sailed by Mrs. J. W. Jenkins, proved to be a fast addition to the fleet and crossed the finish line in third position to finish fourth on corrected time.

Wet weather failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the sailors or of the visitors in the spectator fleet.

The fleet of nine yachts got off to a fine start at 3:25 p.m. Dorian opened up a big lead on the first leg of the race, a spinnaker run in the direction of Northport.

"Joka", sailed by John Haggis and Bill Wills, won the Green Trophy by being the first to finish in Division II.

The order of finish on elapsed time was as follows: Dorian, 1.30; Cygnet 1.40; Question 1.44; Cassawappy 1.45; Windrift I 1.50; Windrift II 2.00; Viking 2.02; Joka 2.15; Dinghy 2.35.

The order of finish on corrected time, for Division I boats in competition for the Wills trophy was, Cygnet 1.22; Windrift I 1.26; Dorian 1.30; Question 1.36; Viking 1.40; Windrift II 1.41.

French Communist Party Still Strong at the Polls But Strength Declining

By BORIS KIDEL

PARIS (Reuters)—The French Communist party can still put 5,000,000 votes at the polls but it isn't as strong as it looks.

A by-election in central Paris at the beginning of July showed clearly that Communist leaders could still count on solid support at the polls.

But other events showed that Red sympathizers were disinclined to strike for political motives or go out into the streets to demonstrate against Gen. Matthew Ridgway, new supreme Allied commander, dubbed "the germ general" by the Reds.

Influence Weakened

All independent observers here agree that the general influence of the Communists throughout the country has weakened in spite of their unimpaired voting strength.

One of the most outstanding pointers has been the slump in the sale of Communist newspapers. The circulation of the national party organ "Humanite" dropped from 400,000 in 1947 to about 190,000 in June of this year.

A number of Communist weeklies, including "Action," the peace partisans' organ, "Ecran Francais," a film weekly, and "Tous les Arts," an artistic weekly, have recently suspended publication owing to financial difficulties.

The paradox that more than 5,000,000 Frenchmen still send Communist deputies to the Legislature although unwilling to support their party's campaigns is mainly due to a general indifference towards the purely political aspects of the party.

A survey published by the independent monthly "Realists" said that the bulk of Communist voters "are 'labor,' of British left-winger Aneurin Bevan's hue, and the party for which they vote represents for them what the British Labor party, supported by its trade unions; represents for the British worker."

A poll carried out among Communist voters by the independent Institute of Public Opinion showed that a vote for the Communists in France did not imply all-out support for the Soviet Union.

French workers, according to this poll, sponsored by "Realites," vote communist principally because they want better wages decreased cost of living, and a redistribution of the national wealth.

Political observers here agree that the absence of another virile left-wing party has driven the mass of French workers to vote Communist.

The Socialist party, after winning a powerful position in the immediate post-war period, has since become mainly the party of civil servants.

"SLUMS"
A STORY

Some years ago before the First Great War I was asked to make a survey to determine the area of that part of a township lot covered with timber and to report upon the amount and quality of timber available.

The lot was situated in an older part of Ontario settled about 130 years ago.

At the time the area was first opened up it was thickly covered with beautiful pine. The township became fully settled and the farmers were prosperous. There was plenty of the best timber and the land provided quick and luxurious growth.

As time went on however and the timber was all removed and the land mostly under cultivation a strange and cruel but natural thing occurred.

The winds slowly but surely blew up the sand subsoil, the surface loam or humus being very shallow, and large areas of the township became nothing but blowing sand dunes or sand flats.

On the particular lot that I was to survey stood an old frame farm house. It had been a good substantial, large and roomy home in its day with plenty of outbuildings for grain, stock and equipment. A very old couple owned and occupied the remains of the farm house. They had been reasonably prosperous in their day, and being attached to the old homestead had continued on at the farm after the family they had raised had left for greener fields.

Other farmers had sold out or abandoned their farms to the devouring sands but the old pioneering couple remained and not a living soul for miles around.

The land had long since become unproductive and to exist the old couple sold the timber comprising the outbuildings and a large part of the old farm house. For firewood they burned up the fencing.

About 10 acres of the stand of pine remained in the rear of the lot which they had carefully husbanded. They were now selling off this only thing of value remaining of the once beautiful 100 acre farm and home.

But you ask what has this to do with slums?

Well, you or I would now refer to the old couple eking out an existence in the old frame shack as living in a slum condition.

Long since they had given up fruitless efforts to keep sand from blowing and sifting in through the ever multiplying cracks and crevices. Everywhere and in everything was sand. Sand was even ground into every wrinkle in the exposed parts of the bodies of the old couple. Their faces had taken on an appearance similar to the sand weathered boards of the shack. No animals could exist in this spot, not even a cat or dog. The well which I was told had once watered the stock had long since been filled in by the moving sands and some distant neighbors hauled drinking water down to the old couple. They had become so poor they could not afford to move away.

Slums are not confined to central areas in large cities. For various reasons slum conditions may develop and exist anywhere.

SWIMMERS WARNED

HAMILTON (CP)—Dr. L. A. Clarke, medical officer of health, warned yesterday that swimmers using Hamilton Bay face the danger of contracting typhoid fever and other infections. He said industrial wastes and sewage are dumped into the bay and it has been prohibited as a swimming place for years.

Wholesale Gas Prices Reduced in Manitob

WINNIPEG (CP)—Imperial Oi Company today reduced its wholesale prices of gasoline to dealer of light fuel oils by amounts ranging from one-fifth to 2½ cents gallon at 185 of its 195 distribution points in Manitoba.

Officials said the reductions reflected net savings in transportation costs made possible by the agreed charges on freight rates offered by the railways and approved by the Board of Transport Commissioners. They vary according to freight charges from company refineries.

There was no change at Winnipeg where rail transportation was not a factor.

SPECIAL JOBS SEEK SPECIALISTS

In a two-paragraph item appearing in the "City and istrict" news column of this paper last week it was re- orted that 150 able-bodied but unskilled laborers were oking for jobs. While this grouped looked for jobs, jobs r skilled workers remained unfilled. Facts revealed in hat short news story should carry sufficient wallop to de- er students from quitting school and entering an unskil- ed trade. For the remainder of their lives they will be orry.

It has often be said that the current age is an age of specialists." By some, it has been taken to mean that a octor, rather than continue practise as a general prac- itioner, should specialize in one branch of medicine. Sim- larly, after graduating from law school, many lawyers re- lize that their best success depends on specializing on ome branch of law, whether it be criminal law, corpora- ion law or civil law.

When members of professions realize that to achieve op success they must become "specialists" within a very pecial group, it behooves those who are unskilled to think wice before divorcing themselves of life's, opportunities. Those who are fortunate should avail themselves of all the cademic education it is possible for them to receive. The ess fortunate, who for reasons best known to themselves, hould be urged to learn a trade and become skilled.

The days of the jack-of-all-trades is finished. Proof positive of this transition may be found at the unemployment office here where 150 men seek jobs—any job requiring no particular skill—while jobs are waiting for 18 men skilled in some trade.

THEY HAVE NO POLICE

Down in La Salle, a small community in Essex County near Windsor, they have no police force.

The police chief resigned in indignation after he had received instructions, so he said, to cease prosecuting bootleggers. The two gendarmes who constituted his force resigned along with him.

It is possible that the police chief really received instructions from a municipal councillor to ignore bootleggers, as he claimed. It is also possible that the police chief merely resented taking orders from the municipal councillors.

It is more than likely that the La Salle police chief and his two aides did not anticipate that their resignations would be accepted. They were probably disagreeably surprised when the council decided to get along, temporarily at least, without any police force.

What is now Essex county and the adjacent part of Michigan were an old French settlement which antedated the British conquest of Canada. It seems that the people of La Salle are aware that their ancestors got along all right for generations without any police force.

It is not often in these days that a municipal council stands its ground when a responsible city official threatens to resign. Perhaps this La Salle incident marks the beginning of a trend.

THERE'S STILL UNEMPLOYMENT

During last winter, the people of this country were told with monotonous frequency, that all the unemployment there was was purely seasonal and would vanish with the advent of spring.

Well, spring has come and gone and it is now midsummer, but the unemployed are still with us. There were 52,000 of them in the province of Quebec alone at the end of June. We have not at hand the figures for the entire country, but it is probable that there are as many in the rest of the country as there are in Quebec in proportion to population.

Furthermore, those 52,000 unemployed Quebecois are only those who are registered at the unemployment insurance offices and are eligible for unemployment insurance. There are large numbers of persons who are not eligible for unemployment insurance and who are therefore not listed as unemployed at the unemployment insurance offices. There are also at least some unemployed people who are eligible for unemployment insurance but who, for reasons of their own, do not apply for it.

In Montreal, Canada's largest city, 40 per cent of the unemployed are immigrants. Whether the percentage of immigrants among the unemployed is as high elsewhere as it is in Montreal we do not know, but the chances are that it is about the same.

Everyone who reads a newspaper knows that immigrants are still being imported into this country by the boatload, although the minister in charge did say the other day that it was the government's intention to reduce the influx next winter.

These people are being brought here, so we are told, to increase this country's labor force. But if as many as 40 per cent of the unemployed in Canada's largest city are immigrants, it looks as if the result of all this immigration is to increase the number of idle people as well as the number of workers.

It may be wise and proper for Canada to continue importing large numbers of people for whom there is no work and who must be supported, either directly or indirectly, by the taxpayers, but somehow or other it does not seem right or sensible; at least, it does not seem right or sensible to the Canadian equivalent of him whom the late Franklin Delano Roosevelt was fond of referring to, patronizingly, as "the common man."

MOTHER'S BIRTHDAY

Yesterday we used to say
To mother year by year
In love's devoted, simple way:
"A happy birthday, dear!"

And when her gifts were on display,
"Though beautiful they are You've been extravagant" she'd say.
"You've spent too much by

The 14th of July came again!
But missing her are we.
And though we would, 'twere all in vain
Extravagant to be

But we remember on the day
As though she still were here.
We think of her and softly say:
"A happy birthday, dear."

Stocks of fuel for the coming fall and winter season are low and the situation is serious. His Worship is also endeavoring to secure a supply of hard wood to be sold to citizens at a reasonable price. Mayor Hanna's activity in this matter is much appreciated by citizens.

The 100 ft. barn on the Orser estate, one mile from the little swamp on the Picton-Belleville road, was struck by lightning on Sunday and the building together with the drive shed was destroyed by fire. No stock was in the barn at the time.

August 11th, 1902

The temperature took a drop last night to dangerously near the freezing point.

Capt. A. W. Weese of Rossmore threshed 336 bushels of fall wheat for Mr. W. W. Anderson of that district. The wheat, which was grown on six acres of land, yielded an average of 56 bushels to the acre. This sounds like old times and is a phenomenally high yield even for so grand a farming county as is Prince Edward. Even the great wheat fields of Manitoba could hardly show better returns than this, if they could show as good.

Mrs. George Irwin and son, George, have returned home from Hamilton where they visited friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Alford have returned home after spending some time at the 1000 Islands.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

BELIEVE IN OTHERS

No one will dispute the fact that it is very important for a man to believe in himself—or a woman for that matter—but the world is in a very unhealthy and unhappy state because there are not enough people who believe in others. If all the nations of the earth believed and trusted one another, there would be no wars, rumors of war, or even any excuse to merely think of wars.

It is distrust that upsets people and nations, creating confusion, and the harboring of hates, misrepresentations, and untruths. Any person, or peoples, can get along with one another, peaceably and happily, if they trust one another. Belief in others is something that could change the world!

You can go a long distance with one whom you trust. When the United Nations was organized and started on its way at San Francisco, the spirit of millions of people all over the world rose to a new high because they felt that here was an ideal that would outlaw war, as it should. It hasn't taken long, however, to discover that there are nations that do not trust one another. Their people want nothing of war. Put to a universal honest vote, the people would vote overwhelmingly against all war and for trusting other people as they would like to be trusted.

What a waste in material and human life there is because a selfish few refuse to obey the wish and prayer of millions of people whose very earnings are being taken from them ruthlessly to satisfy their greed and grasp for power over others, rather than belief in them. Benjamin Franklin was right when he uttered over a hundred years ago that "there never was a good war or a bad peace." Imagine what a spiritual revolution there would be if the same efforts devoted to the preparation for war were turned to preparations for peace!

People with their pockets full of loaded pistols are not safe folks to trust. Such individuals are usually locked up to preserve the peace. It would be a good thing if we could apply this procedure to nations who are armed to kill.

Three Motor Cars Of Same Family In One Accident

ONEIDA, N.Y. (CP)—Three automobiles, all driven by members of the same family, were involved in an accident yesterday.

Lewis Eaton Sr. halted his automobile on a county highway near here. A car driven by his daughter, Bertha, crashed into the rear of Eaton's.

Minutes later a third car, driven by son Lewis Eaton Jr., banged into the rear of Miss Eaton's automobile.

Eaton suffered chest injuries. The son and daughter were not hurt.

How The Diesel Does It

By E. J. FEASEY

In Canadian National Magazine

There was a time when Dad could take Junior down to the trains and without too much difficulty explain what happens inside a steam locomotive. Times, however, have changed. The new triple-unit diesel locomotive has captured Junior's fancy and unless today's Dad is a trained technician he is at a loss to explain what makes it tick.

In the brief period of 27 years the diesel locomotive has progressed from an experimental power unit to the established prime mover on North American railways. Each year its ascendancy over the steam locomotive becomes more evident in yard and mainline operations. And in view of the Canadian National's own interest in dieselization, it's only natural that C. N. R. employees should have a lively curiosity about the operating ABC's of this kind of motive power. Here, then, is a closeup of the diesel locomotive and how it works.

Because it uses a diesel engine one might be led to assume that the locomotive runs on oil. Actually it is driven by electricity in somewhat the same manner as a vacuum cleaner, refrigerator, or any electrical appliance. However, unlike the vacuum cleaner, a diesel cannot draw its power from a wall outlet and therefore must manufacture its own energy.

Essentially, the modern diesel is a locomotive which propels itself by producing and consuming its own electrical energy. Like ancient Gaul, it can be divided into three basic parts. These are an oil-fueled diesel engine, an electric generator and a set of traction motors.

Electrical energy is produced by the action of the diesel engine driving the generator connected to it. This energy consumed when it passes from the generator to the traction motors, which, geared to the axles, drive the locomotive. A system of complicated electrical controls bridges the gap between the motors and the generator.

The diesel engine is the heart of the locomotive. First promoted by Dr. Rudolph Diesel in 1897, it is unique among the prime movers of our mechanical age. It gets more power out of a pound of fuel than any other engine and at the same time can be fitted into the limits of a railway car and still be powerful enough to perform the work required in modern railroading.

Tests have shown that for every 100 tons of fuel burned by the diesel engine approximately 30 tons of that goes to turning the wheels, whereas for every 100 tons of coal the steam locomotive burns in its firebox only 7 tons of that goes to useful work in turning the locomotive wheels.

In addition to this big saving, diesels are preferred because they have greater availability than the steam locomotive. This means that they can be run more hours of the day and cover much longer distances without being serviced. They require fuel and water less frequently and fire cleaning and greasing are unnecessary on the run. Further, they can start heavier trains and climb steeper grades without assistance. The sum total of all these advantages means that diesels give more useful miles of revenue operation per day than steam locomotives.

Anyone familiar with an automobile engine will find many similarities between it and the diesel engine. A diesel, however, has no spark plugs or carburetor. In an automobile engine gasoline and air are exploded under pressure in the cylinders by means of a spark. In a diesel engine the explosion of the fuel is accomplished by means of the hot compressed air.

This system is known as compression ignition and is based on the principle that air under pressure becomes heated. To apply this principle to the diesel, air is fed into its cylinders through valves or ports. These close trapping the air. The pistons go up compressing the air to one-sixteenth its original volume. Under such pressure it becomes almost five times hotter than boiling water and at this point pumps exerting high pressure force oil in a misty spray into the super-heated air in the cylinders. The resulting explosions force the pistons down and the engine starts to run.

This, fundamentally, is all there is to the modern diesel locomotive. However, in addition to creating the power to haul a train, the diesel engine is used to perform other services as well. It operates an air pump supplying compressed air for the brake system and a steam generator which heats the train.

The vast array of working parts that are fitted into the relatively small space of the locomotive's interior make it a masterpiece of the designer's art. There is not a square inch of waste space from the nose which houses the apparatus for the locomotive and train brakes to the engine room which, in addition to the diesel engine, contains the generator, air compressor, and a considerable section of the cooling system. In addition there is an electrical control panel which is the nerve centre for many miles of wire and cable.

Everything about the diesel is functional. Take, for example, the long grille work running along the outside of the body, near the top. This is by no means just trimming; it's put there to deflect the snow and prevent it from getting into the engine and generator compartment. These grilles conceal a number of air filters which keep dust and dirt out of the engine parts and electrical equipment.

The development of power by the diesel engine and the work done by axles creates a tremendous amount of heat which, if not controlled would destroy the entire unit. To arrest this heat and maintain it at a safe, temperature, engineers had to design an intricate cooling system which would draw air into the locomotive, clean it, and to some extent dry it, and direct it to the heat producing areas.

When working at full power, each unit requires a volume of air per minute that would fill 29 of our standard box cars. This air is drawn through filters hidden between the grille work running along the length of the locomotive body near the top. At times, especially in wintertime, air is drawn directly through the roof.

The electrically driven fans in the roof of the locomotive force a tremendous volume of air per minute, through the radiators to cool the engine circulating water, and the electrically driven air blowers on the floor of the locomotive force another volun air into the traction motors to keep them from over-heating.

The diesel locomotive, while based on principles that may be found in High School Physics, is nevertheless a complex entity and a full knowledge of its every detail may be acquired only by those who diligently study its intricacies. The locomotive, taken in its entirety, is a monument to the talent of the designer, to the efficiency of the maintenance men who keep it rolling the day round and to the skill of the engineers in whose hands the controls are placed.

Child Found Unconscious In Ice Box

HANOVER, N.H. (AP)—Three-year-old Gary Smith was still in a coma today, four days after he was found unconscious in an abandoned ice box with his pet kitten clutched in his arms.

Doctors are giving him oxygen in an effort to help him overcome asphyxia, a deficiency of oxygen.

The boy was locked in the ice box for about seven hours last Thursday. He is believed to have pulled the door shut after crawling in the ice chest in a shed in the backyard of his parents' home. The kitten lived.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WHAT PRICE FAITH?

A young Korean told me the other day what had happened to his people when the Japanese garrisoned his country. The invader was determined to stamp out Christianity; so he crowded all Christians into their churches and then gave them an opportunity to recant either their faith or to be burned alive. This young man told me how tens of thousands of his people bravely defied the Japanese tyrant and met horrible deaths, with their children, when the Japanese set fire to the crowded churches.

We little appreciate today what some people have suffered for their faith. If communism ever gets the upper hand, our children or grandchildren may have to suffer in like fashion. The trouble with human affairs is not just that man is mistaken in his reasoning; he is diabolically urged on to do evil things in promotion of his willful projects. There is a spirit of evil behind the whole of the world's wrongdoing.

I asked a taxi driver, after hearing this story about the Korean burnings, what he thought the Americans would do in such a situation. He said—and I agreed with him—that modern Americans would die for their faith as bravely as did the Koreans. But in the midst of our comforts today we sometimes fail to realize at what great cost some people have to purchase and maintain their faiths.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed Letters, Not More Than One Page, or 100 Words Long, Pertaining to Personal Health and Hygiene, Not to Disease, Diagnosis or Treatment, Will be Answered by Dr. Brady if a Stamped, Self-Addressed Envelope is Enclosed. Etc.

APOLOGY TO A MILLION READERS

In the piece submitted for publication in this column Thursday May 29, I, Brady, said:

"By some dispensation beyond the comprehension of this writer, packs or dens of Cub Scouts can be out all hours of the night attending exhibitions of chicanery, brutality and bad sportsmanship, even on the eve of schooldays."

This comment has brought some stern protests from Scout leaders, Scout organization officers and parents of Boy Scouts or Cub Scouts, especially Den Mothers, Cubmasters. Some of these demand an apology for my slandering remarks and others threaten to have me suppressed for my un-American conduct.

Come, come, now, folks, let's agree that I am widely recognized as a stinker but among my less reprehensible traits is a feeling of respect and admiration for the great Scout organization of the country and particularly for the Cub Scout organization and its principles and teachings.

Several readers who challenged me to substantiate the insinuation that Packs or Dens of Cub Scouts attend such exhibitions live in a State that prohibits admission of children to such exhibitions.

I live in a State that does not prohibit admission of children of that age to professional wrestling shows. My comment was inspired by the presence of children at such shows long after the proper bedtime of young children.

I do apologize to readers who live in a State where the welfare of children is a responsibility of the public. But I still think the Cub Scout organization should endeavor to correct this abuse in California, at any rate. More vigorous educational and disciplinary standards for the cherished badges should achieve the purpose.

Up to the age of 14 a child requires not less than 10 hours of sleep. That means the child must be abed by 9 p.m., if he or she is to get up at 7. If the child is allowed to be out attending a wrestling match or any other kind of show or entertainment after 9, he or she is robbed of the sleep which is so essential for health, nutrition, growth and alertness.

I am glad to learn that this sort of exploitation of the young is prohibited by law in at least one State. I hope it is prohibited in other States or Provinces. I humbly apologize to all readers in States or Provinces where children get a better break in welfare. To the people of California I say Shame! Shame on you for such utter indifference.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Nutritional Sufficiency

Thank you with all my heart for recommending. . . Please tell us what vitamins and minerals you recommend persons whose diet is not restricted to take daily to maintain good nutrition. —(C.P.)

Answer — Calcium, phosphorus, iodin, thiamin, riboflavin and vitamin D. Best way to take these essentials to supplement the average diet is described in the pamphlet Young Folks and Old Folks, for which send stamped, self-addressed envelope. Vite is what you should have, but it is hard to get from the average refined American diet.

Allergy

Your "pipe dream" of calcium and allergy saved our young son a lot of misery. He had suffered so much from hives, but soon after we began feeding him ca and D as suggested in your pamphlet the hives ceased to appear and have not recurred in the past 2 1-2 years. . .Please have some more "pipe dreams" for the good of your grateful followers.—R. S. H.)

Answer—Thank you, sir. For pamphlet Relief for Allergy, send stamped, self-addressed envelope. If you would like also the booklet The Calcium Shortage inclose 25c for it.

Pile Pamphlet

Kindly send in the stamped, self-addressed envelope inclosed the pamphlet titled "It is Stupid to Suffer From Piles". At our house the last word on any health question is yours.—W.S.)

Answer—Delighted—but sh-h-h! Some readers get so mad about the stupid part of it is that they refuse to ask for the pamphlet. So we'll have to change the title to "Why Have Piles?" or something equally polite.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Some Canadians in hotel, restaurant and similar lines of business are not collecting the exchange on American money from our guests from over the border. The number of these is probably about equal to the number of Americans, who, in past years, did not collect the exchange on their money when it was in their favor.

There is apparently little real unpleasantness over the exchange situation. Canadians have long been used to having their money looked upon with suspicion and even disdain over the border. It must be a new and rather distressing experience for Americans to discover that their money is of less value than some other. Most of them are taking it in good part, even though scandalized. It will be good for Canadians, and good for Americans too, to have this world-wonder talked about all over the United States this fall, when the tourists go back home and relate their experiences. Maybe we will be able to get the odd dollar changed over there, from now on.

Noel Barbour, a well-known Canadian advertising man, landed in La Guardia airport few months go without a cent of anything but Canadian money. He was anxious to do two things: one, to visit the gent's toilet, and two, to have a coke or other soft drink. For either, he required a dime. So he proceeded to try and change a Canadian dollar, since he had not even a Canadian dime that might have served in either slot machine.

He asked at the desk, he asked the porters, he asked a couple of strangers who looked as if they might be Canadians who would sympathize with him. None would change his dollar. They looked at the bill and politely declined.

"Think! A week from today, we'll be on our honeymoon in Niagara Falls!"

Barbour pounced. He asked whether they were going to the Canadian or American side. Canadian, said the girl. So Barbour showed them a Canadian dollar, as a sample of the money they would be using in only one week. And after considerable palaver and doubt, the expectant bride persuaded her happy beau to take the risk. The dollar was changed, and Barbour was saved.

Weddings

TAYLOR—STORMS

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Storms, Ameliasburg, Ont., on Saturday, August 2nd, at 3:00 o'clock, when their daughter, Eleanor Fern Storms, became the bride of Stanley Townsend Taylor, of Courtice, Ont., son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Taylor. The Rev. H. H. Hillis officiated.

Miss Maureen Neal provided the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Miss Yvonne Poste, who sang, "I Love You Truly".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attractively gowned in an ankle-length bridal dress of white Chantilly lace over taffeta with matching lace cape. She wore a nylon veil with coronet headdress of seed pearls and brilliants, nylon mitts, and carried a shower bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Miss Joyce Storms, of Ameliasburg, only sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, wearing an ankle-length gown of powder blue nylon net over taffeta with matching mitts and bonnet. She carried a nosegay of pink Delight roses and white gladioli florets.

Mr. Alvin Taylor, of Courtice, attended the bridegroom.

At the buffet luncheon, the bride's mother received, attired in a navy sheer dress with navy and white accessories; she was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore navy crepe with white accessories.

The bride's table, beautifully adorned with a cascade of pink and white streamers and wedding bells was centred by a three-tiered wedding cake.

For travelling to Orillia, North Bay and points west, the bride chose a grey gabardine ensemble with navy and white accessories. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor will reside at Courtice, Ontario.

Out-of-town guests were present from Taunton, Oshawa, Toronto, Courtice, Belleville, Detroit, Mich.; Picton, Wellington, Newcastle, and Victoria Harbor.

Britain's No. 1 Bachelor Girl, Princess Margaret in No Hurry To Plunge Into Matrimony

By DON SCHWIND

LONDON (AP)—Princess Margaret, Britain's No. 1 bachelor girl, will be 22 years old Aug. 21 and apparently in no hurry to plunge or be pushed into matrimony.

But the hesitancy of the dainty and lively princess, while her list of eligibles shrivels, is worrying lawmakers who hold her purse strings and taxpayers who foot her bills.

The latest name struck off Margaret's once long list of "possibles" was the Earl of Dalkeith. He announced his engagement this week to Jane McNeill, daughter of a Hong Kong lawyer.

In the House of Commons a member asked bluntly: "Who is Princess Margaret going to marry?"

Margaret's 22nd birthday is set for a week from Thursday but not even the hint of a date is set for the altar. Her mother, Queen Mother Elizabeth, married when she was 22. Her sister, the Queen married the Duke of Edinburgh when she was 21.

Her friends say Margaret will marry when she falls in love and not until then.

Riviera Rumor

The tabloid Sunday Pictorial has already appealed to Buckingham palace to stamp out a Riviera-born rumor that Margaret might wed Prince Nicholas of Yugoslavia.

The society worriers have nothing against the 24-year-old nephew of the Duchess of Kent, it's just that he's not British.

Margaret has the widest freedom to choose her escorts but court usage dictates that her escorts must be financially well-heeled, come from the best or better families if not from foreign royalty, be morally beyond reproach and young.

Most important, Margaret has to like 'em.

Margaret, who now gets from Parliament an allowance of £6,000 a year, will get £15,000 a year when she marries.

One of the leading eligibles is Billy Wallace, 25, stepson of Herbert Agar, former editor of the Louisville, Ky., Courier-Journal.

But what worries Britons these days is how fast marriage is depopulating the group of eligible males.

Besides the Duke of Dalkeith, seven others have married or are about to be married.

Wedding List

Julian Amery married society's Catherine MacMillan in 1950.

Lord Ogilvy, 25, and heir to the Earl of Airlie, became engaged to United States heiress Virginia Fortune Ryan last month.

David Somerset bowed out of the running with Lady Caroline Thynne in July, 1950.

At the snooty Hurlingham Club recently, Margaret's most frequent partners were Billy Wallace and Tom Egerton. The latter is a 33-year-old former guards officer who has taken Margaret to the races and is one of her pet dancing partners.

Lord Porchester, Henry George Reginald Molyneux, is the son of the Earl of Carnarvon and fast being rated as "near probable" by match-makers.

Women's Institute

UNIONDALE W.I.

The August meeting of Uniondale Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. George Brown, 5th concession of Sidney. The meeting was opened in the usual manner with a fair attendance.

Plans were made to serve at Belleville Fair, August 13, was the chosen date for Uniondale W.I. Committees were set up to look after buying and serving of dinner and supper.

Mrs. H. Morrow thanked the members who remembered her while in Belleville Hospital.

The bus trip was partly planned for Toronto, where they will visit Ice Follies also the "Happy Gang".

Mrs. Morley Sine gave an outline of the new "Home and Country". She selected paragraphs and sentences, also pictures which seemed to be most interesting and told about them in an understanding manner.

October 1st, has been set for the joint meeting with Wallbridge, to be entertained by a guest speaker from the department, topic being "Cultural Activities". Uniondale is to serve the luncheon as it is an all day meeting.

Miss Lorena Sine, Reg.N., gave an educational talk on "Health", stressing mental disturbances. The mental ability starts the day one is born and the personality is governed by which way one adjusts herself or himself when problems arise. Often mental disorders can be lessened by correction rather than medicines. If there are emotional disorders in the home, sooner or later, this gets you down. Try and have self control and be ready for any disturbance that may arise in your life.

Miss Sine's address was well given and enjoyed by all.

A demonstration on a "First Sewing Lesson" was given by Mrs. H. Frost.

Mrs. M. Grills thanked all who took part in the meeting. Refreshments were served.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Pure inertia keeps some people frustrated and unhappy

Maybe I am a little hard-hearted, but, after spending so many years reading the life stories of innumerable embittered and frustrated people, I find myself inclined to believe that many of them would rather remain frustrated and embittered than make the effort to pull themselves together and do something about it. Some of this kind of inertia, of course, can be done to plain confusion of mind. The person may want desperately to help himself but be honestly unable to figure out what to do.

But a great deal of it, I'm afraid, is due to sheer lack of initiative; of willingness to go to the trouble of taking definite action.

I'm wondering if this could be the case with the woman whose letter I am about to set down here. No doubt her life has been just as miserable as she says, and she has suffered both mental and phsyical damage. But I find it hard to believe she has to remain that way.

Here is her statement about her situation:

"Five years after I was married, which was 20 years ago, my husband began drinking heavily, and since then my life has been a nightmare. We have three daughters, and because my husband has given me very little money, two of them left school at an early age and went to work. Both of them are married now, and I have only my youngest at home, who is 13. Finally, my husband became so irresponsible and vile, both in speech and manner, that because of my young daughter I could no longer tolerate him, and he finally went to live with his mother. He gives me $25 a week, and out of this I pay all bills. He spends more than this in two days on drinking and gambling, and he never offers one extra penny for the youngest girl's expenses at school, her clothes, dental work, medical care or anything else. This youngest daughter is a precious child, always helping me with everything and asking for nothing, and I am desolate because I can give her nothing but the barest necessities. I cannot go out to work myself because I am a physical wreck and cannot afford medical treatment. Among other things, I need glasses, have bad feet and am without teeth.

"Because of my husband's having become such a loathsome creature, I have been his wife in name only in the past five years, even before he went to live with his mother, so now he says I would gain nothing by taking him to court because I have forfeited all claims on him by refusing to do my duty by him as his wife.

"Can you advise me?"

Now, in these days, when every big city and most small towns have free clinics for people unable to pay for medical care, I can see no reason why this woman has to remain a "physical wreck". If she will summon up the spunk to take the definite step of going to a social welfare organization, I am confident that she will be put in touch with some clinic where she can get the medical treatment she needs. Such organizations know the right places, too, to send her for free dental care and eye treatment. She lives close to the largest city in the country, where all these benefits are available. Yet she seems to be sitting back doing nothing to help herself, on the ground that she is a "physical wreck" and incapable of action.

Unless she is actually in such serious condition that no doctor can do much for her, I venture to say that she could be put in plenty good enough health to go out and get herself some kind of work that would ease her circumstances financially and also do wonders for her mental state.

The best advice I can give this woman is that she seek this sort of help immediately. If she does not know where to go for it, I will be glad to tell her if she will drop me a note and tell me she wants this information and intends to follow it up.

Food for Thought

It Pays to Make Your Own Pickles

By Mary Moore

My duty is to housewives. I make this obvious remark because I am going to try to persuade you to make your own pickles if you want to save grocery money.

The bare facts are that the cost of a jar of commercially packed pickles is about three times as much as you would pay for them if you made them yourself.

I'm told it's a good cucumber year. I haven't wandered in a cucumber patch myself this year, but for the sake of you doubters I want you to know I've grown cucumbers myself, from spading, raking, planting, cultivating to picking them at the right stage of growth and pickling them. At one time I was the only pickle eater in the family, but of late years Pete has joined me.

Note—I'm going to ask a favor of you girls. Please do not wait to write to me about your pickle troubles after you've bought the cucumbers or other vegetables and they are awaiting (in the basement) for my reply. It takes too long for your letters to reach me and for my reply to reach you. Give me a fair chance because I want to help you. Write to me now if I have not given you the recipes you want to make up. If you want a quick, return reply enclose stamped self-addressed envelope.

BREAD AND BUTTER PICKLES

One gallon sliced pickles (4 quarts), 8 small white onions sliced, 2 green peppers shredded, 5 cups sugar, 1 1-2 teaspoons turmeric, 1-2 teaspoon cloves, 2 teaspoons mustard seed, 1 teaspoon celery seed, 5 cups vinegar, 1-2 cup coarse salt. Slice cucumbers and onions wafer thin. (The careful slicing of these vegetables is important and knife must be kept razor sharp. Of course you peel the onions, but do not pare the cucumbers, which should be well-washed and dried.) Mix sliced cucumbers, onions, shredded peppers and salt. Cover with ice water in which there are some cubes of ice, and let stand three hours, covered. Drain very well. Bring to the boiling point the vinegar and spices, add the vegetable, reduce heat and simmer three minutes. Pack at once in hot sterilized jars and seal.

Note 2—Some of you will be wanting recipe for sweet pickles and mixed sweet pickles. I would like to give you the proper method of curing or brining cucumbers for sweet and other pickles for this is the method used by commercial picklers. It is a long method and requires five weeks so let me know if you want to see it in this column.

DIXIE RELISH

One quart chopped green cabbage, 1 pint (2 1-2 cups) each sweet red pepper and green pepper and white onions, 4 tablespoons salt, 3-4 cup sugar, 4 tablespoons mustard seed, 2 tablespoons celery seed, 1 quart vinegar. Soak the whole peppers 24 hours in a brine made of 1 cup salt to 1 quart water. Drain and cover with clear, cold water and let stand for 2 hours. Drain well, then remove seeds and coarse white ribs and chop and measure the peppers. Add the chopped cabbage, onions, then place in crock or large enamel basin. Mix spices, sugar, and vinegar and pour over vegetables and let stand overnight. Pack into pint or quart sterile jars, seal to within 1-4 turn of tight and process in water to come to within 2 inches of top of jars, covered, at simmering point for 15 minutes. Tighten seal at once.

Note 3—Send your requests for pickle recipes to Mary Moore, care of this newspaper.

Fashion Flashes

THE SHEEN of pure silk satin is one of the delights of a bridal gown. It is used for a new and beautiful wedding dress made with a snug bodice that dips to a point at the waist, and that is trimmed with three pointed fan inserts of pearl studded lace, also used as collar banding. At the hip is pointed cartridge pleating for side fullness.

A TIP TOP seller atop the prettiest heads is the shell, which is coming back for fall and is here for late summer selling. This shape is very pretty in felt, one model appliqued all over with tiny French knots to give a textured interest.

EVENING PARTNERS, in the form of new separates, go in for much black and black with white. A pleated nylon skirt over taffeta and a sleeveless blouse with deep, scalloped neckline in velvet, adds up to a charming all black yet youthful outfit.

THE SPOTS still intact, leopard returns to favor especially for daytime coats. New and beautiful is a full length coat of Somali leopard in a shirred-back, cardigan coat style that the designer says is borrowed from an old-fashioned night shirt.

GOOD MANNERS

How fiancee and fiance tell their relatives of their engagement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What is the correct thing for us to do? Bob and I have just become engaged; engagement not announced yet and won't be for several weeks. Is it up to me to take Bob to my relatives to tell them the news and for Bob to take me to his relatives? (We both have many relatives who live here or hereabouts.)—Wilma R.

The engaged girl takes her fiance to see all her available relatives and to chat with them about the Happy News. But with the fiance's relatives, it's just the reverse. . . so Bob's relatives should come to see you, as soon as possible after they know the news. If distance prevents this personal call, the fiance's relatives should write the engaged girl a letter to welcome her into the family and to tell her of their happiness in the engagement. And if they are people "given to hospitality", they will invite her to come to visit them. All this pleasant, thoughtful procedure happily establishes the so-important relationship between the two families.

A gesture of friendship. . . .to "cover" misunderstanding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I spent the Fourth of July weekend at a friend's house at the shore, and when I arrived home I discovered that I had left a sleep-shade there that I had specially made of a very light-material. I wrote to my friend telling her I was sorry to cause her inconvenience but would she please send this to me. She did, and in my note of thanks to her, I enclosed the amount of the postage I had observed on the package. My sister spent last weekend with her, and she told my sister this was an "insulting" thing for me to do. Was it? If so, is there anything I can do about this now?—Frances B.

If you wrote her a fine, sincere note of thanks, I'm sure the sincerity of this would indicate that your returning the postage was also a completely sincere gesture, even though it was not necessary for such a small sum. However, now, if I were you, I'd forget what your sister told you your friend said, never make any reference to it, and quite soon write her another newsy letter . . .and with this you might, if you wish, send her a gift, perhaps something you've made for her. . .a handkerchief embroidered with her initials or first name, or a kind of candy that is your specialty or a specialty of your community, or a copy of a book you have enjoyed lately. Something to turn the trend of thought from the postage-returned to a pleasure-shared!

Man should rise when he is introduced to another man

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I know that of course a man rises when he is introduced to a woman. My cousin says that he also should rise when he is introduced to another man. True or false?—S. L.

True!

BEAUTY

Don't let time take you by the throat

Every beauty-minded woman who has slipped past her fortieth birthday should keep a weather eye on her neck. No matter how pleasing its appearance may be, she should not place confidence in it. It can go back on her over night, look older than anything. This calamity can be avoided by fastidious care.

Complexion neglect is something that just doesn't happen these days. At bedtime the contents of the massage cream jar get into action. Lubricating and light friction are a great team for keeping the skin in form, texture fine, coloring good, wrinkle free. If the neck received the same tender care, it would also remain attractive through the years. If it doesn't, the young-looking countenance may be upheld by an old looking pillar.

One isn't old at forty these days, but neither is one young. It is that betwixt-and-between period when a woman desires to deceive the eye of the beholder, not betray birthdays. The neck must be kept firm if it is not to fall into a state of semi-dissolution. Once sagging starts there is bound to be trouble.

In order not to overlook your beautifying duties start creaming along the line of the collar bones. Do circles along these hidden shelves. Keep on moving upward while working from side to side.

Hold your head on the level, do up and down strokes with flattened fingers. The muscles must not be tense. Unless they are relaxed the treatment will not be effective. Place your fingertips together in the centre of the throat, sweep upward toward the ear lobes. Follow with light hammering to start the blood streams speeding. Let the cream remain on, dip a wash cloth in ice cold water, bind around your neck, cover with a dry towel, say prayers and go to bed.

A common cause of softened tissues in that area is the habit of keeping the chin lowered. With that pose, muscles have no work to do, so go soft and flabby and in time fiddle strings will appear. Keep your head on the level.

Neck exercises help to strengthen muscles. Clasp your hands behind your head, turn the head from side to side without moving your hands.

Played on Stage For Seven Years Although Blind

NEW YORK (AP)—Michael (Mike) Sachs, 62, who continued as a burlesque comedian for seven and a half years after going totally blind, died of a stroke early today.

His wife, who had been his stage partner for 19 years, said he was "so very happy" last night at the thought that they were going to play the season's opening Aug. 23 at the Old Howard, Boston burlesque house.

He lost the sight of his right eye at the age of 8 when a blank cartridge exploded while he was at play. He lost the sight of the other eye in 1945.

His wife, the former Alice Kennedy, said the veteran of a half century on the stage "never made a false step" while playing his comic burlesque roles in his years of blindness. He knew the stages well, and she gave him cues.

They were married in June, 1951.

Canadians to Get Look at Latest In Jet Aircraft

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadians attending the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto will get a look at the latest in jet and naval aircraft.

Part of the armed forces display at the exhibition, Aug. 22 to Sept. 6, will be flights over the Toronto lakefront with 12 Sabre jets, a CF-100 and a T-33 jet trainer by the R.C.A.F. Avenger and Sea Fury aircraft of the Royal Canadian Navy will atack a target representing a submarine offshore in Lake Ontario.

The army is considering a drop of paratroopers into the lake near the shore. A para-jump training display, popular at previous exhibitions, will be a feature of the army's display inside the C.N.E. grounds.

The armed forces plan to set up a wide range of models and equipment on public display. They include a 40-foot model of the Tribal class destroyer, such as those taking part in the Korean campaign, a new Centurion tank and an F-86% Sabre jet.

Service Displays

Surrounding these displays will be an exhibit of the part each service plays in home defence and abroad. Captured uniforms and weapons of Chinese Communist and North Korean troops will be in a special section. The Canadian role in the United Nations command also will be depicted.

To add a touch of realism to the Bailey bridge spanning the main area and the para-jump training section, battle signs and road markets used in the Korean theatre will be posted.

Cleveland Indians Fail to Gain Ground in American League Race

Former Tribesman, Fred Marsh Blasts a Three-Run Homer For Browns to Score 6-3 Win

By RALPH RODEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Bill Veeck, owner of St. Louis Browns, is enjoying a laugh at the expense of his old pal Hank Greenberg, general manager of Cleveland Indians.

Greenberg's lament became a reality yesterday as the lowly Browns beat the pennant-hungry tribe and Bob Lemon 6-3.

Lost Ground

A victory would have moved the Indians to within a game of the pace-setting New York Yankees but by losing the Indians dropped two games back. The Yanks and third-place Boston were rained out.

In other American League games, Philadelphia and Washington swapped 4-2 decisions and Chicago captured a doubleheader from Detroit, 3-1 and 5-4.

Rain curtailed action in the National League.

In the games played, Chicago swept a doubleheader from Pittsburgh's tail-end Pirates, 9-5 and 4-3, and St. Louis and Cincinnati divided a twin-bill. The Cards won the opener 3-2 and the Reds the nightcap 4-2.

Bitter Defeat

Cleveland's defeat was doubly bitter as a former Tribesman, Fred Marsh, accounted for the deciding runs with a three-run homer in the fourth inning.

The Senators got 10 hits off Shantz, who was gunning for his seventh straight victory and 21st of the season. The athletics managed to collect only five safeties off Marrero's "nothing ball."

The Cubs spoiled the major league debut of Ron Neccial in the opener at Pittsburgh. Neccial, who astouned the baseball world by striking out 27 batters last May while pitching a no-hitter for Bristol, Tenn., in the class D Appalachian League, was rocked for seven runs and 11 hits in six innings.

DEADLINE CHANGED

VANCOUVER (CP)—Deadline for shipment of about $17,500,000 worth of British Columbia lumber to the United Kingdom has been extended from Sept. 15 to Oct. 31, McMillan and Bloedel Ltd. announced last night. The change was on condition operators accept a loss of $10 a thousand feet on delayed shipments.

Montreal Royals Take to Road With Long Lead

By THE ASSOCIATTED PRESS

If the second-place Syracuse Chiefs or the third-place Rochester Red Wings have any ideas about catching the International League-leading Montreal Royals, they had better play top-flight baseball the rest of this month.

As of today the Royals go on the road until Aug 28 and then they are home until the season ends Sept. 7. Neither the Chiefs nor the Wings are faced with such an extended road trip. But being 10 and 10½ games off the pace, respectively, will have to go some in the stretch run.

Rain Washes Out Game

Rain washed out the Sunday single contest between Montreal and Ottawa, but only the Wings were able to take advantage of the Royals' idleness. The Wings downed the Buffalo Bisons 7-4 before rain curtailed the second game of a twinbill after a scoreless first inning.

The Chiefs salvaged a split with Baltimore Orioles with a 1-0 nightcap victory after the Orioles had taken the opener, 7-5. In the day's only other action, Toronto Maple Leafs beat Springfield Cubs 5-3, and then trailed by the same score when the Toronto curfew halted the afterpiece with only one out in the seventh to make it an incomplete contest.

The second game came to an enforced halt with Toronto rallying. As it stands now with the game expected to be completed today, the Leafs have the tying runs on base but two are out in the seventh and final frame.

Marlene Stewart Wins Closed Golf Title With 12 Under Par Score; Starts Open Today

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP) — A young golfer, whose increasing prominence has astounded even the most optimistic forecasters, tees off today in her second major title defence in less than a week.

Marlene Stewart, the likeable 18-year-old from Fonthill, Ont., won her second straight Canadian women's close crown Saturday. Today she goes against a field of about 120 in the qualifying round of the Canadian women's open, which she won last year at Laval-sur-le-Lac, Que.

Eight Under Par

Miss Stewart blistered the Edmonton Mayfair layout in the close with an eight-under-par 54-hole medal score of 72-78-79—229 to retain the title and chop 12 strokes from the tournament record set in 1949 by Babs Davies on her home course in Vancouver.

Miss Stewart went into the third round three strokes ahead of her nearest opponent and finished with a 15-stroke margin over second-place Mary Gay of Kitchener.

The 20-year-old Ontario champion, Miss Gay, scored 77-76-91—244 for second and a four-stroke lead over third place Rae Milligan, 18, of Jasper, Alta., who carded 86-fourth with 82-87-85—254.

Bracketed at 257 were Mrs. J.H. Todd of Victoria, Mrs. J.C. White-Graeme Pyke of Montreal and Ada Mackenzie of Toronto. Dorothy Herbertson, an 18-year-old from Esquimalt, B.C., was ninth with 258.

Mrs. J.K.A Brown of Winnipeg and Mrs. N.J. Carlson of Toronto had 260s and Daintry Chisholm of Montreal tied with Anne Sharpe of Fonthill with 261. Joanne Goulet of Regina and Mrs. A.K. Snell of Edmonton carded 262s.

Miss Stewart's seven-under-par first round 72 gave here a five-stroke lead over Miss Gay and the Ontario champion whose steady golf in the first two rounds brought her 77 and 76, couldn't match pace with the winner.

Miss Gay fell apart in the final round with a 12-over-par 91 but Miss Stewart held to a par 79 to win easily. A 10 on the par-five 14th hole gave Miss Gay no chance in the final 18.

Miss Stewart's scores for the 54 holes gave her another record. None before ever had consecutive scores in the 70s in close play.

Mrs. C.H. Ivey of London, Ont., Sunday was named president of the Canadian Ladies' Golf Union.

The 1953 championships will be staged at London on two courses—the close at the Sunningdale Golf Club and the open at London Hunt.

CONNAUGHT RIFLE RANGES, South March, Ont. (CP)—Some 600 top-ranking riflemen from Canada and Britain spread across these ranges today in the opening matches of the 84th annual Dominion of Canada Rifle Association prize meet.

The Tilton and Connaught matches, both of which count in scoring for the grand aggregate competition, are scheduled for today. The Tyro match will also be held for riflemen not ranking in the first 150 in the grand aggregate for the last 10 D.C.R.A. meets.

During the week-long shoot, top aggregate standings are added to scores posted in the final stage of the Governor-General's match and from these are chosen Canada's 18-man team to represent Canada at Bisley, England, next year.

Major Prize

The big climax to the six-day meet is the Governor-General's gold medal competition, which was won last year by Harold Gunter, 20-year-old Saint John, N.B., cadet officer.

Britain is represented by two teams—a crack 14-member senior team and a 14-member cadet team: Members of the senior team posted high scores at the Ontario Rifle Association's four-day shoot last week at Long Branch, Ont.

Another prize award is the King's Medal, which will be up for competition Thursday won in the last two years by Lieut. Gilmour Boa, 27, of Toronto, a member of this year's Bisley team who represented Canada at the Olympics at Helsinki.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Batting: Fred Marsh, Browns—clouted three-run homer, first of the season, to provide St. Louis with its margin of victory in 6-3 decision over Cleveland.

Pitching: Con Marrero, Senators—allowed only five hits in pitching Washington to 4-2 triumph over 20-game winner Bobby Shantz and Philadelphia Athletics in opener of twin bill.

Canada Has High Hopes Of Taking Davis Cup Match From United States Team

By MAX McMAHON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Canada has lost its North American Davis Cup zone final to the United States but it has high hopes of scoring a win in one of the two remaining singles matches today.

The Americans won the final Saturday, defeating Canada in the doubles after sweeping Friday's two opening singles tests. Last time Canada won a Davis Cup match from the U.S. was in 1931 when Marcel Rainville downed Sidney Wood.

Macken Canada's Hope

Canada's hopes of a win rest with seven-time Davis Cupper Brendan Macken who takes on Bob Perry in the first singles match, scheduled for 2:30 p.m., EDT. Henri Rochon meets Vic Seixas, American playing-captain in the second match.

The matches were to have been played yesterday, but were postponed because of rain.

Macken has a good service, a powerful forehand, a lot of depth and authority, and outstanding touch and control, particularly in volleys.

The lanky 19-year-old Perry has little experience on grass courts, where the bounce is far different than on cement, on which he was brought up, and on clay on which he has been playing recently.

Beaten by Main

Lorne Main, second on the Canadian team, defeated him recently in straight sets in a tournament in the eastern U.S.

Rochon isn't given too much hope against the powerful Seixas, ranked No. 1 in the U.S.

The team of Herb Flam and Seixas Saturday downed Macken and Main 6-3, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3. Friday Flam downed Rochon 6-1, 8-6, 6-1 and Seixas defeated Main 6-2, 6-3, 6-4.

The United States next takes on the winner of an India-Italy tie for the right to challenge Australia, cup holders.

Middlecoff and Boros Tie For Top Golf Prize in 'World' Contest at Chicago; To Play Off

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP)—National open champ Julius Boros and golf's biggest money-winner of 1952, Cary Middlecoff, meet today in an 18-hole playoff for golf's biggest prize, the $25,000 top payoff of the "world" meet.

The showdown will resolve the deadlock Middlecoff and Boros created by finishing the $90,000 Tam O'Shanter show yesterday with identical 276s, 12 under par.

Some sharp bickering marked the high-pressured chase for Promoter George S. May's rich endowment, which includes a $12,500 second-spot bundle for the loser of today's playoff.

Protest Delay

Three players—Dave Douglas, Jack Burke and Ed Furgol, who shared lesser loot—complained that Middlecoff slowed up proceedings 45 minutes to accommodate televising of the finish. This trio protested that the delay, ordered by meet sponsors, cooled off their games as they stood around leaning on their clubs.

They claimed that Middlecoff, plus Chick Harbert and Bill Ogden in the same threesome, should have been penalized two strokes. But both meet and P.G.A. officials said the slow-up was the privilege of the sponsor.

Douglas wound up at 279 in a fifth-place tie with pre-meet favorite Sammy Snead, to collect $2,350. Douglas shot a closing 68.

Two Tie for Third

Third spot, a stroke behind the deadlocked Middlecoff and Boros, was shared by Argentina's Roberto de Vicenzo and the 36-hole leader, Jim Ferrier, who each pocketed $4,000 for their 277s.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver put together rounds of 69-76-74-73 for a total of 292. Pat Fletcher of Saskatoon, the other Canadian entry, withdrew after rounds of 75-81-75.

Middlecoff, who has won $15,239 this year, shot a phenomenal round of 31-33—64 yesterday, the best since Lloyd Mangrum fired a Tam record-making 32-31—63 in 1948.

Boros fashioned a 32-35—67.

Wants to Get Home

LONDON (CP)—Mrs. Wilma Hedden, 35, today spent her fourth day trying to get a seat on a plane for Canada, where her nine-year-old son is reported seriously ill.

Mrs. Hedden was in Bremen, Germany last week attending her mother's funeral. While there she received word her son was ill in Preston, Ont. She reached London last Friday and since then has waited at London airport, hoping to get a seat on a Canada-bound plane.

Airport officials said there is an "outside chance" Mrs. Hedden may get a passage to New York today.

SETS FASTING RECORD

PALERMO, Sicily, (AP)—An Indian fakir, Burmah, left his glass cage last night and claimed to have set a fasting record of 71 days, three hours nd three minutes without food. Burmah said he had entered the cage on May 31. He lost 64 pounds. The old starvation record, he said, was 67 days, 16 hours and six minutes, held by a Tunisian named Raykan.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

of the most remarkable players of our nominee for manager of the years is Lou Boudreau of the Boston Red Sox, who has more imagination than all the rest of them put together.

We picked Cleveland to win the American League pennant (again!) but those who follow the club every day are coming to the regretful conclusion that Al Lopez' infield isn't quite good enough.

Must not Eddie Joost, the A's ball-hammering shortstop, be one of the most remarkable player of the modern crop when you consider he was sent down the minors in 1947, presumably washed up after only a so-so big league career?

The hottest news in shooting circles, we are informed, is that a Dutch company has perfected an all-plastic shotgun shell which is transparent, impervious to rain and almost too pretty to shoot.

Just when we thought our house guest from London had baseball down pretty good after several television sessions, he stopped us with "I say, how many times can he strike at it before he has to run?"

No Penalty

Jim (Dusty) Rhodes, the home-run-hitting rookie who breathed new life into the Giants, almost wasn't brought up from Nashville because his record indicated he couldn't hit for distance.

Did you know that, by the official rules, a golfer who fears lightning may break off play and leave the course without penalty anytime the sky starts acting up?

We are asked by an Australian promoter friend to inquire if any of our Olympic sprinters would be interested in turning professional and going out there to run in their big-money meets this coming winter.

Florida, determined to take over Tennis laurels long held by its great friend California, plans to provide expert instruction for more than 8,000 high school boys and girls this year under a program underwritten by the Optimists Club.

And it might be a good idea to make a note that the St. Louis Cardinals are closer to the National League top than the Giants were a year ago today, and that they have a new pitcher named Mike Clark up from Houston who looks rough.

Reid's Peewees Ties Motel Team In Extra Innings

Bryson Reid's pee wees, who came from last place in the league standings to first place in the league playoffs, came from behind again Saturday night to tie Paul's Motel team 4-4 in extra innings in the second game of their best-of-five series for the city championship. Reids lead the series by one game.

Paul's Motel erected a 3-0 lead in the first five innings only to have it melt away as Reids hammered over three runs in the sixth.

Paul's came back in their half of the sixth to score a single run but Reids tied the score again in the seventh.

The teams played an extra inning but were unable to break the deadlock and the game was called because of darkness.

The third game will be played tonight at 6.15 on the Prince Charles School grounds.

Motor Car Edges Northern 5-4, Trail Series 2-1

By JACK BRETT

Belleville Motor Car stopped Northern Electric from copping the Belleville and District Softball League's AA Championship in three straight games as they defeated the Electrics 5-4 in the third game of their best-of-five series Saturday night at the Alemite Field.

It was Northern who started the scoring in the third frame as DeRushie aboard third on a triple off Jones' triple.

In the fourth, Northern made it 3-0 as Mulvihill hit a triple and scored on a fly ball.

In the fifth, B.M.C. started to click, Semark singled, gained second on a wild throw, took third on an error and was forced in on a walk for the 3-1 score. Walsh and James tied it up as they scored on an error and a fielder's choice respectively.

Mulvihill's home run put Northern ahead 4-3 in the sixth.

Semark tied the score again as he doubled and scored on Garvin's single.

Walsh scored the winning run for B.M.C. as he gained first on an error, and scored on Semark's double.

Reid went the route for B.M.C. He struck out six, walked one, and gave up 11 hits for four runs.

Leclerc started for the losers. He walked two and struck out none. He gave up one hit for one run. Holmes took over in the fifth. He walked two, struck out two, and was charged with the loss. Holmes was relieved by Day in the ninth. Day struck out none and walked none.

Urges Heavier Penalties For Game Hogs, And Others Who Break Laws

You know? You can't help being amazed sometimes at how leniently the law of this province treats some "sportsmen" who have been guilty of offences against our game regulations. The example we're going to quote took place away back in June, but it typifies the type of thing that is going on in various areas almost constantly. This happened up North Bay way, and and we heard at the time that the Fish and Game Protective Association was going to make an issue of it, but so far we haven't heard any more about it. Another one of those glaring offences against our game laws has been written off, this time with a fine which was ridiculously small in the light of the crime.

It has not been, at any time, our policy to criticize at long range the policies of others whose duty it is to mete out punishment for game offences, we can't help sounding off in this instance. For one thing, we think that the magistrates should have some instruction on the values of our game and fish, of the monetary value in our economy of every single game animal.

Slaughter of Fish

Here's what happened. Five Americans killed one hundred and fifty-two pickerel, thirteen pike and thirty eight perch, all taken from Lake Nipissing. We submit that this haul would have been regarded as a fine catch if distributed equally among any 50 other tourists! There's little to support the evidence that the offenders didn't know the limits, as we've no reason to think they were illiterate, and there's no reason they could believe that the money they paid for licences would permit them to unlimited game fish, when the law specifically states that the number to be exported is one day's legal catch.

After the initial shock of such a disgraceful massacre, the first question that comes to mind is what can five people do with that many fish? Or for that matter, what could five people do with the legal limit of 60? We'll hazard a guess that the greater portion of them would be left in a box to rot. We've seen too many instances of that type of thing.

Another problem is presented by the question of where these people were staying. If they were at a resort, then the owner is in a measure responsible for the actions of his guests. If you don't want to call it a responsibility, then at least there's a moral obligation to discourage such practices. And what about their guide presuming they had one. Did he conspire to help these people break the game and fisheries laws? And were the conservation officers in their report supported by the magistrate? The conservation officers have a tough enough time bringing evidence to support their charges, without having to stand in ridicule of the very people who are sworn to support them.

Game Hogs Not Wanted

Some people would think, we suppose, that it would not be in the best interest of the tourist trade to levy the maximum fine in such an instance. We don't think this holds water at all. Ontario cannot afford to cater to game hogs any more than it can afford to harbor any other type of law-breaker, whether he comes in the guise of a tourist or not. We in Ontario heartily welcome the right kind of sportmen, and the anglers and hunters of this province are glad to share the fruits of their conservation efforts with others, but they will not countenance wilfull disregard of the law and wanton destruction of our natural resources. And this applies to visitors and citizens in equal degree . . .

These five poor sportsmen are not welcome here. Nor will they be welcomed ever again, for they have contributed no mean amount to the undercurrent of ill will that such acts promote, and no leniency by any magistrate is going to allay it. As we said above, fifty other visitors to Canada would have considered their holiday well spent if they'd had a total catch anything like the slaughter perpetrated at North Bay. And. from our experience, most of these fifty would be the type we welcome back again and again.

Nearly two hundred fish were killed, and will no longer provide the sporting thrill that every honest angler loves. Too, two hundred parent fish (speaking potentially) have been destroyed, fish that would provide almost a quarter of a million first generation fry or fingerlings, and millions in the second generation. For this the magistrate fined these five $177. How far would this paltry sum go toward replacing these fish through normal hatchery means?

True sportsmen cannot condone wanton destruction of our fish, and neither can they condone the ineffectuality of those who are trusted to punish offenders. Think about it friends, and as you do, remember a slogan we've often featured in this Korner—Take Only What You Can Use!

BODIES FOUND IN GLACIER

TRENTI, Italy, (AP)—Newspapers reported today that a retreating Alpine glacier has disclosed the bodies of five Italian soldiers who died in the First World War. The bodies with their uniforms and rifles appeared in a perfect state of preservation.

Olympic Showing Reasonably Good Says President

MONTREAL (CP)—James Worrall of Toronto, president of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, in a statement yesterday said the performance of Canada's team at the Olympic Games in Helsinki "on the whole was very good."

In an accompanying statement, President A. Sidney Dawes of the Canadian Olympic Association urged a training centre be set up, through federal government action, where Canadian coaches could undergo intensive courses.

Worrall said that while 1952 results were not quite as good as in 1948, as far as Canada finishing within the first six places in events was concerned, "nevertheless our athletes individually excelled the performance of the 1948 team in the same events."

"COOL CONTROL"
POINTS ON THE SERVICE

1 Make sure ball is thrown up in a straight line. This is essential for control and stroke power. Ball should be thrown high enough to allow fully extended swing. Body stands sideways to net, shoulders turned in direction of serve.

2 To reach maximum height for downsweep, raise body on left toe. Extra height allows you to hit down on ball instead of hitting out flatly. Body-weight leans forward as ball is hit and follow-through begins, letting arm and racket come down across body.

3 Practise the throw. Throwing too high or too low may rob your shot of proper impact. Shots thrown too high are often hit on the wood or top of strings; shots thrown too low are usually hit on top of ball and go into net. Practise regularly for control.
Yes, it's control that counts, in tennis as in every sport—control which brings the extraordinary quality that sets one performer above the other. In the ability to approach things coolly, to control every move and moment, lies the answer to better results.

Take off your overcalls and you lose your pantological glamor in bidding. One of the most colorful bids in bridge is an overcall in opponent suit. It works for either side.

Defensively it may go like this: South bids a heart and west says two hearts. The immediate overcall in opponent suit is game-forcing, shows tricks enough for a game, guarantees no heart losers.

With opener's pair it may go like this: South bids a heart and west bids a spade and north says two spades. This immediate overcall in opponent suit forces, shows trick for game, no spade losers.

Thus, an opponent-suit-overcall means the same no matter which side enmploys it. There is, however, a difference in the number of tricks shown by the player who uses it.

A defender may use it with nine tricks, expecting his unheard from partner to produce two. Used by partner of opener it shows the tricks that would make game with what opener has promised. Used by opener it shows enough for game with what responder promised.

Some expert players have been known to use this signal at any stage of the bidding. But rule says the signal is in effect only if overcall in opponent suit is made at the first opportunity.

Take a hand like this:

♠A K 9
♥None
♦K Q 7 4 2
♣J 7 6 3 2

If south opens a heart, west lacks enough for an opponent-suit-overcall of two hearts with such a hand. He counts a total of only seven tricks. Defender should not use it with less than nine.

If east opens a diamond and south defends with a heart, west has enough for an opponent-suit-overcall of two hearts with such a hand. With what east has shown, west has more than enough to help make a game.

It all depends on where you sit.

Charged With Murder

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) —Kosaburo Masuda, 56-year-old handyman, yesterday was charged with the murder in the shotgun slaying of his 17-year-old daughter, Mrs. Lily Bing, in her bedroom.

Mrs. Bing was fatally wounded in her bed yesterday by a killer who smashed out her bedroom window with an ax and blasted three times with a shotgun.

John Bing, the girl's husband, escaped injury. Their three-week old son was staying overnight with relatives.

No motive for the slaying has been advanced by police.

Glen Roys Down Kingston Alcans In Exhibition

Glen Roy Juniors avenged their worst defeat of the season Saturday night when they downed Kingston Alcans 5-4 in a nine inning thriller under the lights at Alemite Field.

The Juniors, who dropped a 7-1 verdict to the Alcans in Kingston a week ago, had a 3-0 lead going into the ninth inning when the Alcans exploded a four-run rally using two of their four hits, two walks and two errors to crack the Juniors' hitherto impregnable defence.

It looked like a sad ending for Bob Green, who had fired two hit ball for eight innings while he struck out 17 men and walked seven.

However, the Juniors stormed back into the win column in their half of the ninth scoring two runs on three Alcan errors.

The Glens took the lead in the third frame scoring three runs.

Bob Green started the rally with a double to right field and rode home on Barclay's home run to right. Carr walked, and then, after Hull popped up to third, came all the way home on an error at short on Batchelor's smash.

There was no further scoring until the ninth when Ball led off with a walk. Dolliszny forced ball at second, and then moved to third on singles by Holland and G. Simmonette. Reddy, batting for Deasy, was safe on an error at short. Nourry was out at second and Harris was safe on an error at 2nd as runs scored.

Curron walked and C. Simmonette was out at second to end the inning.

Barclay opened the ninth for the Glens by taking first on an error at first. Carr got a life on an error to the catcher and scored the winning run as Batchelor was safe on an error at second.

Bob Green went the route for the Glens walking seven, striking out 17 and holding the Alcans to four hits.

Deasy pitched the first eight frames for Kingston walking three, striking out 10 and giving up five hits for three runs. Dolliszny pitched the final inning and was charged with the loss.

Lineup:

Kingston Alcans: Nourry 1b; Harris lf; Curran cf; C. Simmonette c; Ball ss; Dolliszny 3b, p in 9th; Holland 2b; G. Simmonette rf; Deasy p, replaced by Reddy, rf, in 9th.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Johnny Downs, who was a has-been at the age of 13, is starting his third movie career at the age of 38.

Johnny is the fellow who bounced through many a musical back in the '30s. But his movie career started long before that.

"I got into pictures when I was nine," he recalled. "It was back in 1923 and I played a kid in a series of pictures Jack Dempsey was doing on the old Universal lot. I did some other films and then got into the Our Gang comedies. I was in them for a couple of years and then found myself washed up at the age of 13."

Johnny went into vaudeville with another Our Gang graduate, Mary Kornman. In the '30s he returned to pictures and was the enthusiastic sophomore in countless college pictures.

Heads East

Eight years ago, the parts started getting scarce, so Downs pulled up his family and went east.

"I had one hit show on Broadway, 'Are You With It?' " he recalled. "I stayed in the east and did another show, this time a flop, and summer theatres and television."

Two years ago, he returned to Hollywood with his wife and four children. He did a daily TV show, performing new dance numbers every day.

His film career didn't ignite until a few weeks ago. He played a sailor in "Pleasure Island." Now he's playing a cavalry officer in "Column South." And many other film parts are looming.

Capsule Review

"The World in His Arms" puts Gregory Peck at sea again, and he helms a frail script into port with his usual skill. Peck is the Boston man who has bedeviled the Russians in the Seal Islands of Alaska. Ann Blyth is the Russian countess whose fiance spirits her away from San Francisco. Peck chases her to the cold country, and an international alliance finally results. It all adds up to exciting and colorful stuff, with no strain on the thinking matter.

Eva Peron Buried With Presidential Pomp, Ceremony

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Eva Peron was buried yesterday with full presidential pomp. The elaborate burial ceremonies, in which her husband, President Juan Peron participated, climaxed an unparalleled period of national grief and mourning which began with Eva's death two weeks ago.

Her body rests temporarily in the central hall of the six-million-member General Confederation of Labor, a power which Peron built and which his wife ruled the last years of her life.

The burial hall will be closed to the public for a year while embalmers seek to give the body "corporeal permanence." Ultimately it will be placed on view in a huge monument to be built for her in the center of Buenos Aires. Money for the structure will be raised by popular subscription, including a day's pay from all workers.

Mrs. Peron's body was carried from the National Congress building to the labor confederation hall yesterday along a 27-block route packed with hundreds of thousands of mourning Argentines. A 21-gun salute sounded as she was laid to rest while the mourners, jammed into all nearby streets, stood motionless.

15 Days Mourning

The funeral ended a 15-day period of national mourning. All activities halted for three days following her death July 26 and for the two days of final tribute.

Peron, dressed in a general's uniform, walked with the nation's great behind a high gun carriage bearing his wife's coffin. Workers drew the carriage, and an honor guard of cadets, workers and nurses marched beside it while air force planes roared overhead.

Peron announced he will take over personally the duties his 30-year-old wife handled before her last illness. His new work schedule, announced to start today, devotes four afternoons each week to his wife's social welfare and labor duties.

POLICY MAKERS TO MEET

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (CP)—Policy-makers of the American Federation of Labor meet today to write the annual report for the A.F.L. national convention in New York Sept. 15. At least one of the closed sessions will consider whether the 8,000,000-member A.F.L. will break precedent and support a presidential candidate in the November U.S. election.

DAMAGE CUT DOWN

WASHINGTON. (AP) — The forest service says two preventive measures—better organization and a co-operative public—cut down forest fire damage last year. From 1950 to 1951 the number of forest fires in the United States dropped 21 per cent. The area burned declined from 15,518,540 acres in 1950 to 10,781,039 in 1951.

"Show Boat"

Complications force Ava Gardner, leading lady aboard Captain Joe E. Brown's show boat, the Cotton Blossom, to withdraw from the cast, and Brown gives his daughter, Kathryn Grayson, her long-sought chance as a replacement. Her leading man is Howward Keel, a river gambler down on his luck. Together they score a hit, fall in love and marry, and Keel takes his bride to Chicago to live. But his luck continues poor, they run out of funds and Keel leaves rather than cause Kathryn further unhappiness. She returns to the show boat and — unknown to Keel — has a baby. Then Ava, now singing aboard a packet boat, encounters Keel; he learns he is a father, and he and Kathryn are reunited aboard the Cotton Blossom.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Tuesday, Aug. 12, 1952.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Dealing in essential commodities, mass production, merchandise, supplies for farms, and home highly favored. Shipping, travel for business, and charities sponsored.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Be your clever, keen self and you can make fine headway, mostly in essential activities. However, do not be mixed up in schemes, questionable propositions.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Don't get yourself boxed up in undertakings you should have bypassed. A little relaxing helps, increases thinking ability, final results.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Look over chores carefully before embarking on decisive action. Future may be better than outward appearances; you could go places if you check carefully first.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Build your personality, your ability to sell with a smile. Plenty of opportunity here but you will have to dig for it, it will not all show easily.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—You can really hit a high mark today. Get quickly into swing of things, but know what is needed before starting. Don't give up because things may see hard.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Most practical issues, industry, essential merchandising and building on favored side, with sound reservations. Don't go recklessly out on the limb; be on conservative side.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Aspects favorable on whole, but no mere easy time. Many general business and farm activities can advance. Personal affairs need special watching.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—No need to slacken effort or lose ground. Practical endeavors can be made more successful. Be patient, study and analyze carefully before acting.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—It is wisely said, "A hard fought failure is no shame." Today you may have opportunity to test this. Keep trying, and you will eventually make a higher grade.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Concentrate on your fine qualities, and you can make excellent progress. May not be gains in oactual money now, but in matters of more worth.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Influences predict most encouraging possibilities. Look for help from unexpected sources. Heart interests generous.

You Born Today: Generally lean toward leadership. At times conservative but are usually active and have great reserve vitality and will to achieve. You love home life, children. Make able executive, doctor, teacher, military personnel. Birthdate of: Geo. Bellows, noted artist; Cecil Blount DeMille, screen producer.

STRANGE LIGHTS

NEW YORK (AP)—If you see strange lights in the sky during the next few nights, don't think they are flying saucers. More likely they will be meteor particles, also known as shooting stars. Robert R. Coles, chairman of the Hayden planetarium of the American Museum of Natural history, said last night. The display will be visible until Aug. 13.

20 Accidental Deaths Reported During Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There were 20 accidental deaths reported in Eastern Canada this week-end.

A Canadian Press survey early today showed 14 persons killed in Ontario. Rain added to driving hazards. Slippery roads and poor visibility brought the number of traffic deaths to eight. Three persons were drowned, two were fatally injured in falls and a 16-month-old boy was drowned when he tumbled into a tub of water on his farm home.

Quebec counted five fatal accidents, one in traffic and three persons from drowning. A Montreal man was killed when he fell on the pavement near his home.

A woman was killed in a motor car collision in Nova Scotia.

Last week-end—Civic Holiday—28 persons were killed in the six eastern provinces.

Ontario Deaths

Killed in Ontario traffic accidents: Austin McRostie, 72, at Metcalfe, near Ottawa; William Smythe, 42, of Orillia, his wife Marie, 32, and Willard Marshall, 29, of Hamilton at Dundas; George Doucett, 60, at Blind River; Stanley J Ptaszek, 32, of Pelham Centre at Welland, and Adrian White, 30, of Ohsweken at Hagersville.

Drowned were: Tommy Kehl, 4, of Hespeler in the Speed River, eight miles north of Galt; Leslie Viktorian, 43, of Toronto in Lake Erie at Port Colborne, and Robert Barr, 30, of Toronto in Lake Katchiwanooka, 13 miles north of Peterborough.

Glen Llemke, 16 months, was drowned at his farm home near Pembroke when he fell into a tub of water; Gus Cancilla, 61, was fatally injured in a two-storey fall in Toronto, and Mrs. Wilfrid Burns, 46, died soon after she fell down a flight of cement steps at Arthur, 24 miles north of Guelph.

Missionaries Welcome Home Flying Bishop

FORT RESOLUTION, N.W.T. (CP)—Missionaries of the Oblate order and their friends in the scattered settlements of the northland this week are welcoming home their "flying bishop" and celebrating the 50th anniversary of consecration as bishop apostolic of the Mackenzie and Yukon districts.

Archbishop Gabriel Breynat, O.M.I., nearly 85 years old, left his native France where he has been 10 years in retirement, and flew back to the north country for the reunion.

Mother and Son Missing After Home Flooded

YAKIMA, Wash. (AP)—A mother and her small son were missing today in the wake of a freak summer storm and flash flood that made boiling rivers of two small creeks in the Wenas valley 15 miles north of here. Four persons were injured.

Deputy Sherriff Gene Pomeroy said he was told a wall of water 50-75 feet high rolled down Wenas Creek, dislodging houses, uprooting trees and flooding low-lying farmland as a rain of near-cloudburst proportions poured down Wenas Valley.

Missing were Mrs. Norman Winchell, 37, and her son, Floyd, 5, occupants of one of the seven houses uprooted and tossed into the flooding creeks.

Siberia Hill Changes Hands 5 Times in 2 Days

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—Chinese Communists today dug in on Siberia hill on the Korean western front under a terrific day-long assault by U.N. fighter-bombers and pressure from U.S. marines.

The low, shell-scarred knob east of the Panmunjom truce site has exchanged hands five times in two days. The Reds first seized it from First Marine Division troops before dawn Saturday.

U.N. planes flew more than 150 sorties against the hill with flaming machine-gun fire.

Hand-to-Hand Battles

Fighting has closed to hand-to-hand battles several times since the Reds first captured the hill. The chinese last recaptured it at 5 a.m. today.

Sibera Hill—source of the soldiers' nickname for the height is obscure—is the latest in a series of scattered and violent battles for lonely outposts.

A front-line battalion officer called the fights the "creeping offensive of the Communists."

Red Strategy

He said the Red strategy seems to be—make a quick thrust to win a hill and then quickly fortify it to make its recapture difficult and costly.

An Eighth Army staff officer said Communists casualties for ground actions between Aug. 1-7 included 1,245 killed, 1,268 wounded and seven prisoners.

About 150 air force and attached marine fighter-bombers hit a North Korean chemical plant and troop concentration at noon today.

Twin Disasters Of Drought, Flood Hit Bihar State

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — The twin disasters of drought and flood have hit Bihar state, northeast India, at the same time, affecting 13,000,000 people in an area of 19,000 square miles, it was reported in Parliament today.

While the Kosi River has overflowed, "seriously affecting" 500,000 people in north Bihar, widespread drought has affected 12,500,000 in the south.

It is too early to estimate total damage but there is no doubt fall crops have been seriously damaged in the flood-stricken areas, M.V. Krishnappa, parliamentary secretary to the food minister, said.

Experiment Pays Off at Forest Hill Collegiate

Last September a new system of independent study was introduced for Grade 13 pupils. Attendance was voluntary, homework was left to the student's initiative and no note from home was necessary to explain absence from class.

As a result students made the best showing in the school's history in June departmental examinations. Figures released Saturday show the 121 students wrote 842 papers and 94.2 per cent passed the provincial exams.

CHAPTER I

"Tired, Mother?" Louise Bentley, stepping back to look at her canvas, became suddenly conscious of her model's patient expression. "I've kept at it rather long this afternoon, haven't I? We'd better stop now."

"How do I look?" Mrs. Bentley, stretching a little cautiously, rose and moved across the room to look at her portrait. "Well, I'm sure you're doing very well, my dear. It really begins to look a little like me, I think. Now hurry and tidy up. You know Harry is coming for supper."

"As if I'd forget that!"

Louise gave her mother a hug, then started cleaning her palette. She hummed a tune softly because she was so happy. Of course it was too bad her mother couldn't seem to understand her art work. Perhaps all old people were like that. Louise used to feel hurt by her mother's stupid criticisms, but she had gradually come to realize that her mother just did not know anything about art and never would understand. Louise sighed. It was hard sometimes not to have anybody around to take an intelligent interest in this absorbing work. Perhaps Harry—

At the thought of him she smiled and began wondering if he'd like her in the new dress she had made for this evening. There had been a song in her heart as she took each stitch, she was so very much in love. The dress seemed in keeping with her feelings, for it was covered gaily with roses.

She hoped Harry would not think it loud. She certainly had made it prettily, and it was becoming. Harry ought to be pleased that she could sew so cleverly. Did men notice such things, she wondered, or were they only concerned with—other things?

Men of this day, the day of the horseless carriage, gas lights and so many modern improvements, didn't seem to notice pretty things.

She put her easel and other art materials into their closet, then went upstairs to begin the ceremony of dressing.

She slipped into the new dress and looked in the mirror with anxious questioning. Then she smiled at the lovely girl who faced her there. She was glad at the way she looked. She knew it was love that had brought the sparkle to her eyes, the soft flush to her cheeks, the eager, trembling smile to her lips. For love had been gradually transforming her life, giving her a new joy, a deeper purpose, a wiser outlook on the art of living.

The sound of the parlor clock striking six made Louise realize suddenly that she had work to do. She fastened her girdle of soft green satin around her waist, patted her curly chestnut hair, picked up her prettiest handkerchief, and ran downstairs.

In the dining room the table was already set.

"If I don't light the candles now, I'll surely forget them," Louise murmured, going to the mantelpiece for a match.

In the kitchen she found her mother in the act of opening the oven door. The delicious odor of browning biscuits filled the air.

"Oh, mother, I was going to make the biscuits!" Louise felt a shock of disappointment. "I wanted Harry to know how well I can cook."

"Well you've done almost everything else, my dear," Mrs. Bentley said placidly. "You musn't get all heated up, bending over the stove at the last minute. You just see if the table's all right and then sit down and rest till Harry gets here."

"Do I look nice?" Louise continually needed reassurance on that point.

Mrs. Bentley's eyes rested fondly on her daughter, but all she said was, "I guess you'll do."

Louise perched herself on a high stool and watched her mother puttering cheerfully about the big bright kitchen. She loved the warmth of the range, the delicious smell of the biscuits, the purring of the kettle. She wondered whether she could ever become a real artist when she loved simple, domestic things so much. Just to be within the walls of the house was a joy and comfort to her. All the simple homely tasks of housekeeping had for her a charm and beauty all their own.

Then the doorbell rang, and a happy excitement set her heart fluttering as she ran upstairs to greet Harry.

Who else but Louise would think of having candles on the supper table for just an ordinary occasion? Harry Weston thought with a sudden feeling of pride.

Everything about the table was beautiful and dainty, and yet the food was good and substantial. Louise knew how to make a man comfortable, all right. He looked across the table at her and smiled to express his complete satisfaction. He was so deep in his own thoughts he had given only a divided attention to the conversation.

Louise was talking happily about that art school of hers.

"And today," she was saying eagerly, "my teacher said that my painting showed real talent, and that if I kept on and worked hard, I'd reach the Acadmey some day."

How lovely Louise looked when she was excited! But what a fool that teacher was, urging the girl on keeping her at her lessons. Women didn't ever reach the Academy—or hardly ever. He didn't know much about these things. What was Mrs. Bentley saying?

"That was very nice of him, I'm sure, my dear; but I guess he didn't know you're going to be married so soon. There won't be much time for painting when the babies have to be looked after."

"Oh, but mother!" Louise looked at her in dismay, shocked by the brutal, matter-of-fact calmness of the old. "Why, mother, I've got to go on with my painting! You know how much it means to me! Harry, I won't have to give it up, will I? You think I have talent, don't you?"

She looked at him appealingly.

"Of course you have talent, Louise dear. I don't know that that teacher chap was right about the Academy. I don't suppose women have pictures accepted there—but it's great to think he likes your work."

Could he say less when her eyes were starry with tears? Besides, everything would work out all right. Once they were married, she wouldn't care about anything but her house—and him. She'd find enough to do to make her husband comfortable. He smiled very kindly at her.

Harry didn't know any other girls who would care about such things as art lessons. A girl was made for love and babies and homekeeping. Louise had appealed to him because she was so different from most girls, but he was sure she wasn't too different.

He took it as a matter of course that once she had been initiated into the mysteries of holy wedlock, she would prove as docile a wife as he could wish. So he put himself out a little to be kind to her and to show his affection for her which was sincere and deep.

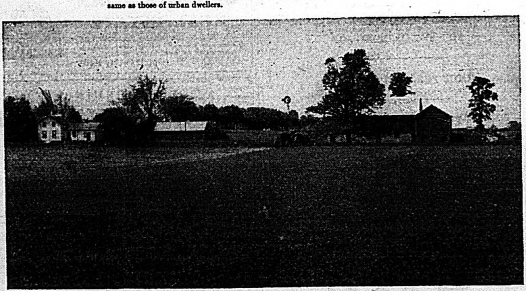
every Canadian benefits when farmers are prosperous

■ Farmers and their families constitute one-fifth of the home market for all the various goods and services produced by Canadian workers in factories, mills, mines, railways, stores and offices. The 1951 census showed a total of 2,827,732 people in Canada whose entire income is derived from farming . . . more than the combined populations of Quebec City, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina, Edmonton and Vancouver. Their needs and "wants" are exactly the same as those of urban dwellers.



■ When farmers are prosperous, these 2,827,732 people have money in their pockets to buy the things they want. They spend freely, in country stores, city stores, mail order houses. The stores, in turn, step up their orders for new supplies, which keeps factories humming, keeps trains and trucks rolling, creates new jobs, fills pay envelopes. Anything that affects the buying power of these 2,827,732 farm people, favorably or unfavorably, is quickly reflected in every other industry.

Massey-Harris presents these points for consideration by urban people in their appraisal of plans and programmes which are aimed to promote the welfare and advancement of Canadian agriculture. Good crops, good markets, and prices that yield a fair return, are essential to continuing prosperity . . . not only of farm people but of every Canadian from coast to coast.

Mentally-Ill King Talal I Dethroned by Parliament

AMMAN, Jordan (AP)—The Middle East Kingdom of Jordan prepared today to welcome its third King in just over a year and awaited his arrival to settle the future of his royal father and of the country's government.

In Lausanne, a Swiss official said the royal family will leave for Amman on Sunday.

Government sources said the new King and his mother could decide the future of Talal, who is reported suffering from Schizophrenia (split personality). The 41-year-old deposed monarch meanwhile is living here in Basman Palace.

Following Hussein's return, Premier Tewfik Abul Huda is expected to submit his resignation in accordance with custom, but it appeared certain he would be asked to form a new cabinet. The Premier has endeared himself to the new King and his mother by fighting to maintain the boy's rights to the throne against intrigues which have plagued the divided royal family.

Hussein, a student at England's famed Harrow school, will not exercise the royal powers until his 18th birthday next spring. Until then, a regency council will act for him.

LONDON (AP)—The Russians say the dethronement of Jordan's King Talal is a British triumph over the United States in the "imperialist struggle for control of Jordan."

Moscow radio today broadcast a message of Tass, the official Russian news agency, from Beirut saying Britain had the skids under Talal by the beginning of June, "when a regency council was formed under the pretext that Talal cannot rule because of his nervous complaint."

The Soviet broadcast called Talal a supporter of "American imperialism" and said that in contrast, the new King Hussein was educated in Britain.

State Department Promises Action In Finding Man

WASHINGTON (AP)—The parents of John Hvasta, a war veteran reported to have escaped from a Communist prison in Czechoslovakia, today had a state department promise of "definite action" to try to get more information about their son.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hvasta and their son Steve, 22, came here from Hillside, N.J., yesterday to ask state department aid in determining the fate of their elder son John.

The Czech government reported last Monday that John Hvasta escaped from a Communist prison near Bratislava Jan. 2. He was serving a 10-year sentence on charges, denounced by the U.S. government as baseless, that he was an American spy.

No word has been heard from him since. Yesterday, however, a Czech refugee named Jaroslav Burec said in Munich, Germany, that Hvasta escaped with him and four other prisoners, and that he was confident Hvasta is hiding in Czechoslovakia.

Greek Secretary Says 28,000 Children Abducted

MONTREAL (CP)—Michel A. Pesmazoglu, former Greek secretary of state, said in an interview yesterday that more than 28,000 Greek children had been abducted by Balkan Communists and only 500 returned to their homes—"one of the blackest crimes that has cursed civilization."

"It is now four years since a resolution was passed by the International Red Cross urging return of these children," he said. "The purpose undoubtedly is to educate and train these children in Communism."

Mr. Pesmazoglu was chief Greek delegate at the recent meetings in Toronto of the International Red Cross. He is en route home.

The Toronto meetings were "most constructive."

"There was one fly in the ointment. That was the efforts of the Communist representatives to drag politics into the discussions. The conference showed overwhelmingly that it refused to allow such tactics to succeed."

Death Leap Averted By Toronto Constable

TORONTO (CP)—A 27-year-old war veteran early today stood silhouetted against police searchlights atop a three-storey northeast Toronto home and threatened to jump.

Constable Ronald Byron removed his shoes and stockings and climbed a fire department ladder to the roof top. There, for five minutes, he talked with the veteran and offered him a cigaret. Then the man, a one-time mental patient at Sunnybrook Military Hospital burst into tears and shouted: "I haven't got the nerve. . .no nerve."

In police station he was charged with causing a disturbance.

Police said they will recommend he undergo a mental examination.

Name of the man, spotted by passers-by as he stood on the edge of the roof, was not released by police.

BARN, LIVESTOCK BURN

GUELPH (CP)—Damage estimated at $10,000 was caused by fire which swept a large barn on the farm of Walker Meyer in Guelph township early today. Twenty-six pigs and two calves were lost in the blaze.

Other livestock was driven from the building by neighbors who awakened Mr. Meyer and assisted him in rescuing several animals.

Justice Rules Ambulance Has Certain Rights

MONTREAL (CP)—Mr. Justice George S. Challies, in a Superior Court judgment yesterday, ruled that an ambulance on an emergency mission was justified in going through a red traffic light.

His lordship granted the claim of Alexandra hospital for $1,373.61 damages to its ambulance as the result of a collision with a truck.

Medical evidence showed a three-month-old child, patient in Children's Memorial hospital, was in need of oxygen treatment and the child's transfer to Alexandra hospital for this purpose had to be made as fast as possible.

His lordship ruled that the ambulance was on a life-saving mission and ordinary traffic regulations were suspended.

Royal Treasure of Louis XVI Sought In Quicksand of Seine Estuary

LE HAVRE, France (Reuters)—A French salvage firm is preparing to dredge from the mud and quicksand of the Seine estuary a fabulous treasure—virtually the entire fortune of France's King Louis XVI and his Queen Marie Antoinette.

The royal treasure, said to include a $280,000 diamond necklace gift to Marie, was aboard the 130-ton brig, Telemaque, when she was swallowed up by a storm only 200 yards off the fishing village of Wuilleboeuf in 1790.

Unsuccessful attempts to find the brig were made the same year and in 1818, 1837, 1843 and 1938.

Spurred by the 162-year-old story of the treasure board, reputed worth more than $20,000,000, the French company will make another try this summer using every modern salvage device, including diving bells weighing 100 tons.

Dull-witted Louis and his beautiful and pleasure-loving wife were being held prisoner in their Paris palace when the telemaque was given orders to sail the fortune to England for safety.

On the night of Jan. 1, the Telemaque slipped out of Rouen with its treasure hidden in barrels of tar. Two days later the small vessel sank into the Seine estuary's quicksand.

Including the fortune were golden holy vessels, gold and silver bullion, priceless silverplate and jewels.

CANADA'S EXPORTS $2,100,000,000 IN SIX MONTHS

Marked Expansion In Shipments to U.K.

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's exports climbed to a peak $2,100,000,000 during the first six months of 1952.

They were pushed ahead, the bureau of statistics reported yesterday, by a marked expansion in shipments to the United Kingdom, Latin America and most European markets.

While these markets provided the main impetus for a 20-per-cent jump over last year's comparative six months total of $1,760,000,000, shipments to the United States also were slightly higher, passing the billion-dollar mark for the second successive year.

In spite of her dollar troubles, Britain's purchases in Canada reached a peacetime high of $395,000,000, up more than $140,000,000 from last year's $254,000,000. Shipments to Latin America almost doubled to $148,300,000 from $79,700,000.

Most of the general increase was due to expanded volume which swelled by some 17 per cent.

June's exports maintained the accelerated pace, climbing to $375,000,000, up more than $60,000,000 from $313,000,000 last year and just slightly below the all-time monthly high of $381,000,000 reached during May.

Newsprint and wheat sparked the big 1952 advance. Wheat, which had been riding in fourth place among the export leaders, jumped back into the second slot, climbing to $64,000,000 during June from $40,600,000 last year and shooting up to $263,244,000 from $148,631,000 in the six-month period.

Newsprint shipments climbed to $48,338,000 from $39,214,000 during June and maintained the six-month lead at $283,244,000 up from $248,500,000 in the first six months of 1951.

Truman Meets Stevenson For Election Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman and Adlai E. Stevenson meet today for historic talks during which the Illinois governor may ask Truman not to steal his thunder in the presidential campaign ahead.

Stevenson's packed six-hour visit to the capital—particularly his private talk with Truman—is certain to be a sharp test of his diplomacy.

Whistle-Stop Tour

The President wants to make a whistle-stop campaign tour lambasting the Republicans and plugging for the Democratic candidates. But he has said he will do what Stevenson wants him to do.

The Illinois governor is expected to tell the President he will be glad to have to help—but not to such a degree that his own campaign efforts will be forced to secondary play in the press.

Aside from that, there is another important angle: Stevenson already is trying to brush off charges of some Republicans that he is a "captive candidate" of the Truman administration. He wants to run on his own.

On the Republican front, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower scheduled a conference today with Allen Kline, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation. It is another of a series of talks on agricultural matters. He already has conferred with eight Republican members on congressional agricultural committees.

Third Largest Crop in U.S. History Forecast; Plentiful Supplies Despite Drought

WASHINGTON (AP)—Plentiful supplies of food appear to be in store for the United States during the year ahead, despite last month's damaging drought in the south and northeast.

In its latest measurement of production prospects, the U.S. agriculture department predicted late yesterday that the combined volume of all crops this year will be larger than in any year except 1948 and 1949.

Although the indicated output is larger than last year, it will be less evenly distributed because of heavy losses in southern states. The south will need to ship in more feed than usual if it is to avert a serious setback in the production of meat, dairy and poultry products.

Enough Elsewhere

Elsewhere, there appeared to be sufficient corn, oats, hay and other feed materials to foster a further expansion in production of beef, pork, milk, eggs and poultry.

The U.S. is harvesting its second-largest wheat crop on record, far in excess of expected needs. Only in the case of potatoes and sweet potatoes are supplies likely to become tight before new crops are harvested in 1953.

Meanwhile, the department moved to provide financial aid to more financially-distressed farmers in drought areas. It put all New Hampshire, 10 additional counties in Oklahoma and seven in Illinois in the "disaster" classification. Farmers in such areas may obtain loans to carry on operations.

The department previously had designated all of Maine, Massachusetts, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas and parts of Missouri as drought disaster areas.

Canada Grants Political Asylum To Iron Curtain Diplomat After 'Appropriate Research' Made

OTTAWA (CP)—For the first time and after what officials described as "appropriate research," Canada has granted political asylum to an Iron Curtain diplomat who came here as a Communist and worked for a Red government for a number of years.

He is Dr. Jiri (Georges) Mares, 43-year-old lawyer-diplomat who yesterday resigned as Czechoslovakian consul-general in Montreal and was given permission by the government to remain in Canada with his wife and three children. It has been decided, officials said, that they would be good immigrants.

Changed Thinking

Dr. Mares later told a press conference he was a Communist in 1948 when he came to Montreal but that he has completely changed his thinking in Canada, mainly starting with the Korean war. He said he made up his mind to quit the Czech foreign service when Prague suggested he should come home on vacation and bring his three daughters.

He quit because that "would mean putting the children in a state-directed institute which would systematically eradicate the democratic and Christian education which they received in Canada." Another reason was that it has become obvious "it would be impossible to continue working for the present Czech government."

Eighth Czech

Dr. Mares is believed to be the first ex-Communist among the lengthening list of foreign diplomats who have been granted political asylum here since the war. He is the eighth Czech to be given sanctuary since the Red Coup in 1948.

The external affairs department said he first approached the immigration department some time ago and that "appropriate research" into his background and reliability preceded yesterday's decision. The R.C.M.P. were involved in the check.

Dr. Mares and family were given a six-months entry permit, the normal prelude to full admission in such a case. Dr. Mares said he still doesn't know what he's going to do for a living.

Husbands Face Criminal Action After Elopements

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Two 13-year-old girls faced indignant parents and marriage annulments today and their youthful husbands of one day faced possible criminal action as the aftermath of a joint week-end elopment.

In Nogales, Ariz., the justice of the peace who married them said he "told the kids they didn't look old enough."

Judge Fred Allen said the couples signed sworn affidavits that they were over the state legal minimum of 16 and 18.

For the girls, their return was an unhappy one. One sobbed as her 17-year-old husband was arraigned on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

All four sets of parents said the double marriage would be annulled immediately. But the girls' parents signed criminal complaints against the boys, one a sailor.

NEW CONSTITUTION

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP)—Emperor Haile Selassie yesterday signed a document ratifying the new constitution for Eritrea, former Italian colony. The United Nations, after the Second World War, ordered the federation of Eritrea with Ethiopia by Sept. 15 of this year.

Parham Man Must Face Charge Of Manslaughter

Bruce Wagar, of Parham, was committed for trial on a manslaughter charge at the conclusion of the preliminary hearing held Monday at Madoc, before Magistrate R. C. Jackson.

Wagar was charged with manslaughter in the death of Donald Snider, also of Parham, who last May 5th was drowned in a ditch alongside No. 7 highway east of Marmora, after the car in which the two were riding struck a train. Wagar was the driver of the vehicle.

The preliminary hearing opened at Madoc on July 21st, when the Crown presented its technical evidence. Called as Crown witnesses were Dr. Smith, professor at Toronto University; Dr. H. Lucke, pathologist at Belleville General Hospital, and a Marmora doctor, as well as crew members of the train and Cpl. Jack Hatch, of the O.P.P. at Madoc.

When all evidence was not taken on the first day the hearing was adjourned until yesterday. The Crown's case was presented by Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, assisted by Louis Maraskas. Mr. J. D. O'Flynn appeared for Wagar.

U.S. MARINES BURN, BLAST REDS OFF SIBERIA HILL

Bunker Hill Ridge Also Captured

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—Flame-throwing tanks and riflemen of the United States Marines last night burned and blasted Chinese Communists off Siberia Hill and today captured Bunker Ridge, dominating the sector on the Korean western front.

A Marine spokesman said that by mid-afternoon the entire Siberia area was "quiet as a church-mouse."

Since Saturday the fighting for the nob east of the Panmunjom truce-talks site had been bitter. The Chinese made their first bid to win the hill Saturday. It changed hands six times before the Marines finally secured it.

Vessels Hit

The navy announced that Communist shore batteries hit the American destroyer J. R. Pierce and Barton and the British frigate Mounts Bay in separate actions in the last week. One American and one British sailor were killed and 14 sailors wounded. None of the warships was seriously damaged.

U.S. B-29 superforts and B-26 light bombers last night hit the area north of Wonsan, which had been razed earlier in the day by a 150-plane fighter-bomber attack.

The U.S. Far East air force said the superforts smashed a metal fabricating plant turning out ordnance supplies. The B-26s mopped up on a chemical plant and troop area.

Planes Strike

Fifth air force planes hit the Chinese in the Siberia sector with rockets, bombs, and flaming gasoline prior to the Marine assault.

Flame-throwing tanks thundered to within 20 yards of the crest of Siberia and sprayed the hill. Riflemen, five yards behind the tanks, picked off the Reds who escaped the flames.

AP correspondent Sam Summerlin, at the front, said Siberia Hill is so beaten with shell, bullets, and fire "that it looks like a big mound of face powder."

Diversionary Action

The atack on Siberia Hill was a diversionary action to throw the Reds off guard for the main assault on bunker hill, long held by Reds and named because of its stout fortifications.

A U.S. eighth army staff officer said: "The diversion was a success. The Chinese were completely fooled and badly confused."

Chinese and U.N. artillery pounded into the inferno but in 90 minutes the Marines held the ridge. Between then and dawn a small group of Reds was wiped out in a saddle of the ridge.

The eighth army staff officer said there were no live Reds on the ridge, but Summerlin reported that early this afternoon a small bunker—perhaps only one or two Chinese—still harassed the Marines with machine-gun and sniper fire.

THE WEATHER

Cancer Varies in Different Countries Under Different Conditions Is Claim

WASHINGTON (AP)—The prevalence of cancer varies in different countries and under different conditions, the 17th international geographical congress was told today.

For example, the delegates were told, cancer of the lung does not exist in Iceland or Korea; stomach cancer is not as common in England as on the continent of Europe; primary cancer of the liver is relatively more common in Africa, Indo-China, India, Malaya, Indonesia and the Philippine Islands than elsewhere in the world; and cancer of the base of the tongue is relatively frequent in certain communities in India.

The cancer facts were a highlight of the first report of the "commission on medical geography" of the International Geographical Union—a commission making a world-wide study of the possible relationships between the distribution of diseases and the environments in which they develop.

Dr. Jacques May of New York, director of medical studies of the American Geographical Society, said the commission's first aim is to "map" the distribution of all diseases throughout the world.

He said that once such information is pinned down on a world-wide basis it may be possible to determine why one person becomes afflicted and another does not.

Gunman Escapes After Running Battle With Police

Harrow District Scene Of Grim Morning Chase

HARROW (CP)—A gunman who escaped in a stolen automobile after a running gun battle with a Provincial Police constable was being sought in the Harrow district today.

Constable Stanley Grabb spotted the automobile early today speeding along the main street of this Essex county town. He took off in pursuit in his cruiser and the battle began with both quarry and pursuer firing shot after shot.

The chase followed a twisting course for 15 miles along darkened sideroads before Constable Grabb lost sight of the gunman's car.

Police at Windsor, 15 miles north identified the stolen automobile as that in which Arthur Calibaba, 21, and Alice Chaput, 18, were briefly abducted August 4. The car was recovered at Blenheim, Ontario, after the abduction and stolen again in Windsor last night.

Forest Management Canada's Aim in Future Says Winters

OTTAWA (CP)—Resources Minister Winters Mon., said Canada's interest in perpetuating and properly managing her forest resources is based on economic considerations "of the greatest importance."

In an address prepared for delivery at the opening of the sixth British Commonwealth forestry conference, Mr. Winters said Canada has made great strides since the second conference met here in 1923.

Some Distance to Go

But, he said, "we have some distance to go before our over-all forest management will be satisfactory, or the protection of our forests against fire and other natural enemies will be adequate."

Representatives of 18 Commonwealth countries are attending the conference, designed to exchange information and technical data on forest resources and products.

During the conference, delegates will visit Ontario and Quebec forest operations, resuming sessions here early in September. Later, some delegates will tour Western Canada.

Mr. Winters said Canada is aiming "at nothing short of the type of forest management that will result in sustained yield. Those of us who have responsibilities in the field here must see to it that our forests will be capable of yielding at their present or even increased rates in perpetuity for oncoming generations."

Sixty per cent of the land area of the 10 provinces is covered by forests. Ninety per cent of this is owned by the Crown, most of it in the right of the provinces.

"For many years the growth of our forest industries was based almost entirely upon the softwood portion of the forest but more recently increased attention has been given to the utilization of hardwoods."

BODY FORWARDED HOME

HALIFAX (CP) — The body of Able Seaman Robert McMillan, 19, of Hamilton, found in Halifax harbor Sunday, was forwarded to his home today.

Police are investigating the drowning. Although an autopsy revealed no signs of violence, a metal shackle was attached to the rating's left leg.

MAJOR CRIME INCREASES

NEW YORK (AP) — New York City had 132 homicides and 22,005 burglaries in the first six months of 1952, the police department reports. The figures compare with 116 homicides and 14,961 burglaries in the comparable period of 1951. Police figures showed yesterday that majoor crimes in every category increased sharply for the six-month period.

Spring Grain Yield Average In Ontario

TORONTO (CP)—Threshing of spring grain is nearing completion in southern Ontario with yields average or slightly below average, the Ontario Agriculture Department said today in its weekly crop report. Quality generally has been excellent.

Halton county reports the yield will average 26 bushels to the acre with some areas yielding 50 bushels. Average yields of spring grain are reported in Northern Ontario.

Lambton county reports the corn, sugar beet and soybean crops never looked better. Root crops generally look excellent throughout the province. A few areas including Haldimand still need more rain, though heavy rains have slowed haying operations in some areas.

Simcoe county's tobacco harvest is well under way and the crop promises to be one of the best ever.

Late summer and fall pastures are expected to be good as a result of recent rains which have been general throughout the province. The potato crop generally looks good, but fields in Ontario county show signs of sun scald and hopper burn.

Sudbury Business Block Damaged

SUDBURY (CP)—Fire which swept the downtown Huron building last night burned out the law offices of George Collins and the clothing store owned by Fashion Craft Shop Limited.

Fourteen other firms and 11 apartments suffered smoke and water damage.

No one was injured. Owners of the firms said they have not yet estimated damage.

McCullagh Executors Give No Information

TORONTO (CP)—Executors of the estate of George McCullagh, publisher of the Toronto Telegram and Toronto Globe and Mail who died Aug. 5, said today in a brief statement that application for probate of the will "will be made in due course."

The announcement gave no information as to the amount of Mr. McCullagh's estate or its disposition.

The statement said:

"Announcement has been made today that application for probate of the will of the late George McCullagh will be made in due course by the executors, J. Maitland Macintosh, Q.C., John S.D. Tory, Q.C., Harry G. Kimber and Chartered Trust Company."

Mr. Macintosh was Mr. McCullagh's counsel in respect to the Globe and Mail, Mr. Tory his counsel in respect to the Telegram, and Mr. Kimber acting publisher of the Globe and Mail.

Both boys are pupils of Mr. Jack Green, Salvation Army bandmaster.

FAIR PROVES MOST INTERESTING TO 7-YEAR-OLD BOY

The fair can prove an interesting attraction for a seven-year-old boy. So much so in fact that one seven-year-old lad spent nearly 12 hours at the grounds and even forgot to go home for supper.

A Sidney township lad living in "Irish Town" went to the fairgrounds directly after the noon hour. He didn't come home for supper, nor did he show up at eight o'clock, nine or ten.

After supper the mother got uneasy and searched the fair grounds to no avail. Finally at 11 o'clock, she called the police station. A few minutes later Paul Mercier brought the lad to the police station. He had found the boy still wandering about the grounds at 11:30 p.m.

INJURED MAN BETTER

Vernal Prindle, employee of the Lo'ns Stone Works, who was struck on the head yesterday by a falling hoist beam while at work is reported to be in a much improved condition today at Belleville General Hospital. X-rays at the hospital indicated there was no fracture of the skull.

Following the accident, Mr. Prindle was unconscious for several hours.

Fire Department Doing Full Time Duty at Fair

Working on the principle that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, members of the Belleville Fire Department are on full time duty at the fair grounds during the four days of the fair this week.

One of the department's pumpers has been stationed at the fair grounds and is manned continually by two firemen who stand ready for any emergency. Also "off" duty firemen are standing by on the grounds.

Yesterday the precaution paid off and was the means of saving one of the larger exhibition tents from possible destruction by fire. In some manner fire caught in the roof of the tent but was fortunately noticed before the flames spread. Firemen ran over with a fire extinguisher and put out the blaze. A carelessly tossed cigarette butt was blamed for the fire.

Corn and Potato Prices Continue At High Level

Corn continues to join caviar and potatoes as a luxury item, farmers on the market here charging 50 cents per dozen for first quality corn. Other corn, somewhat the worse for corn borer, was being sold for 30 cents per dozen on the market today.

A slight drop in the price of tomatoes was apparent, 60 cents buying a six-quart basket. This compares to 65 cents charged at the market close Saturday.

Potatoes continued to crowd the $5 per bushel mark. Prospects of a high price for potatoes continuing for some time is almost assured, some farmers agreed. Purchased by the peck, potatoes were selling for $1.35.

After selling for $2 for six-quart baskets, blueberries jumped to $2.50 today as supplies began their seasonal tapering-off.

Blue raspberries were offered at 50 cents.

Prevailing prices on other farm produce was as follows: cucumbers five cents; beans 20 cents per quart; local watermelon (small) 15 to 25 cents; green peppers, five cents; pumpkin, 25-50 cents; hubbard squash, 35 cents; carrots and beets, three bunches for 25 cents; apples 75 cents per basket; cabbage, five, 10 and 15 cents. Eggs, in limited supply, sold at 60 cents per doz.

Thomas J. Lynch Served 47 Years With Railway

Close to 47 years as a railroader were concluded yesterday by Thomas J. Lynch, 363 Bleecker Ave., when he stepped down from the cab of his passenger locomotive at the north station.

For the past 13 years he has been pulling the throttle on No.'s 9 and 10 between Belleville and Toronto.

A native of Blackville, N. B., Mr. Lynch went railroading with the Halifax and South Western Railway, now merged into the C. N. R. In 1913 he was "classed" as engineer and since that time has worked out of Ottawa, Toronto, and for the past 18 years, out of Belleville.

An ardent fisherman, Mr. Lynch says now he will have more time to devote to his favorite pastime. He has no favorite angling places and is willing to cast a line for any type of fish, anywhere. He is a member of the local Anglers' club and in his younger years took enjoyment out of an annual trek to the north with hunting parties. He is also a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

Mr. and Mrs. Lynch are members of the local Lutheran Mission. They intend to continue to reside in the city.

Several Requests For Beaver Filled By Dept. Officers

Tweed—Local conservation officers are still dealing with numerous requests to open beaver dams and remove "nuisance" colonies.

Taking quick action on a request for live beaver from Meaford, Officer Shields of Renfrew, shipped nine of the animals and very shortly received a telegram back saying, "No more beaver please." This seems to express the general sentiment of a number of farmers whose lands are being flooded in Lanark County and who claim the contest for ownership was never keener than it is in 1952.

According to Fish and Wildlife Inspector R. G. Sheppard, if there are any lazy beaver in the colonies, they must indeed be scarce. The amazing industry of these furbearers always prompts admiration. It is however, a quality born of necessity. The beaver is a slow moving fellow, and on land an easy prey to predators. His enormous capacity for the bark of trees requires the movement of numerous logs and limbs. Both for protection and easier transportation he builds convenient dams which are repeatedly raised to spread the water over a still wider area.

"Abandoned dams", stated Mr. Sheppard, "are not always the result of molestation, but quite possibly occurred when the beaver and his family found that more food, could not be reached by raising the water higher."

HOLD PLANT DISPLAY

TORONTO. (CP) —Gladiolus growers from Guelph to Bowmanville were on hand recently for the Toronto District Gladiolus Society show at the home of J. H. L. Morgan in nearby Port Credit. More than 500 blooms were laid out in geometric patterns on the lawns.

Success of Fair Fine Example Of Co-operation Says Warden Grills in Opening '52 Edition

The success of Belleville Fair, now over 100 years old, is a fine example of co-operation between the people of the rural municipalities of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties and the city of Belleville.

This was stated yesterday by Warden Lee Grills, of Hastings County as he officially opened the Belleville Fair in the presence of close to five thousand fair-goers. Sharing the honor of officially opening the fair was Warden Calvin Hughes of Prince Edward County, while Mayor A. M. Haig welcomed visitors to the city.

Warden Grills said that the example of the people of three municipalities working together showed what co-operation could do. "Only because of this co-operation could the Belleville Fair be the success it was,' he said.

With the opening day attendance swelled by the attraction of the RCMP Musical Ride, a big crowd was on hand as fair president Harry Rollins introduced the members of his fair board to commence the opening ceremonies. Seated on the bandstand across the track from the main grandstand were vice president Dr. J. Russell Scott and treasurer Ben Bleecker. Former fair president Elmer "Sandy" Sandercock, M. L. A. for Hastings West, and Frank S. Follwell, M. P. for Hastings South, were also on hand.

Board Congratulated

Mayor Haig congratulated members of the local fair board in getting the RCMP Musical Ride as the opening day attraction. He noted that the only other Ontario centre where the famous musical ride would show this year was Toronto.

Mayor Haig welcomed visitors to the city for what he termed the 'largest four day fair in Eastern Ontario' and wished the fair every success.

Warden Hughes from Picton brought greetings from his county of Prince Edward and also wished the fair every success.

The Belleville Municipal Band was on hand and played several selections prior to the official opening.

Just as popular as ever after many, many appearances at the Belleville Fair, Bill Garden with a troupe of over 40 stage performers, is putting on the grandstand performance which will be given each afternoon and evening of the fair. The show, literally sparkling with talent, takes just over two hours to run through, and judging by the applause, the grandstand patrons enjoy every minute of it.

Something for Everyone

There is something for everyone in the show. First there are the Stevens Brothers trampoline artists who make a rather difficult act seem amazingly simple as they bounce themselves around on the taut canvas. Then there is the Nickling Brothers on the horizontal bar and The Great Roland on the high sway pole.

Murray's dogs and ponies, a clever animal act, has something for the kiddies as well as the grown-ups, while Claire Rouse, the musical vagabond surprises even himself as he coaxes music out of the strangest contrivances.

Jerry Plaisance is an equallibrist and hand balancer deluxe and can do upside down what most of us would find difficult working under only normal handicaps. Johnny Dash, the juggling unicyclist is another gent who has a level head on his shoulders and does almost unbelievable stunts atop his one-wheeled "bike."

Buddy Arden has a puppet show that also is a delight to both young and old, while "Flash" the dancing stallion proves that dumb animals are not all "dumb." Flash is handled by Ian Garden, son of the show manager.

Providing further variety for a well balanced stage show are the Circusettes, a chorus of six dancing girls. Phil Moore's band provides snappy background music for the performance.

Conklin's midway is on hand with more rides and games than you can shake a stick at. For the kiddies there are rides of almost every conceivable nature, including the ever-popular ferris wheel, plane rides and others. Sideshows include a daredevil motorcycle riding act and the "smallest mother and baby in the world."

To make a full day and evening more complete fifteen minutes of fireworks follow the grandstand show every night.

City's Industrial Potential Dominates Exhibits In Manufacturers' Building

Biggest space buyers in the building and occupying one-half of the centre island, the Big "A" Company Limited, wholesale and retail outlet for Stewart-Warner products, devoted their booth to a presentation of radio, television and record players, ranging from five to 10 tubes in portable, console and table models. TV sets in the exhibit featured screens 17, 19 and 21 inches. In charge of the booth was W. S. Prentice, of the Big "A" Company.

One of Belleville's oldest manufacturing plants, the Belleville Lock Company had a large range of locks on display. To demonstrate what happens inside a lock, a transparent cut-away lock was on view showed what happens when a key is inserted into the mechanism. Together with the locks, a plaque was also exhibited to show the firm's ability to cast bronze for ornamental and monumental purposes. R. Soaft, H. Patrick and R. Ashley relayed as attendants at the Bellevill Lock booth.

Building Supplies

The multi-uses of plywood in construction featured the exhibit of the Houston Company Limited, one of the city's largest building supply firms. Also on exhibit were many asbestos and concrete products used for exterior finish of buildings. Canadian Gypsum Lime products were also on display. In charge of the exhibit was J. P. Howe, manager, assisted by R. Bland, sales manager, Dorland Houston, Howard Pethick and Vince Downey.

Believed to be the largest-screened television set in Canada, a Crosley TV set with a screen measuring 30 inches was displayed by Vandusen Brothers Limited, 329 Front Street. At the conclusion of the exhibition here, the set will be displayed in Toronto at the Canadian National Exhibition. Along with Crosley products, the Vandusen Brothers exhibit contained a wide range of Servel refrigerators, Fess oil burners, Finlay refrigerator and heating units and Servis washing machines. Those attending the booth included A. F. Daw, manager, Tom Wilkinson, Bruce Wilson, Wally Martin, Tom Smith, John Wood, Al. Cornish and Jim Logan.

An out-of-town exhibitor, the Acme Construction Company of Stirling, offered an exhibit of perma stone used in the exterior finish of walls and buildings. This exhibit was in charge of Roy W. Brooks and Gerald Rouse.

Another contractor, Arthur A. Sills of Belleville displayed flooring materials along with hardware used in construction. Harry Sweetman attended the exhibit.

Westinghouse Appliances

A well-known Belleville retailer, David's Electric occupied a large booth in the Manufacturers' Building. Here was to be seen a complete range of Westinghouse electric products, including the latest Westinghouse "Frost-Free" refrigerator. Other Westinghouse products included stoves, automatic washers and driers and appliances.

Philips products were also displayed and these included television sets, radios and combination radio-phonographs. Deep freezers Coleman space heaters and floor furnaces together with Beatty automatic washers and ironers completed the display.

Leather Goods

Leather and leather products dominated the Leslie Shoe Store exhibit. These exhibits included shoes, trunks, brief cases, overnight bags, luggage and wallets. Don Leslie was in charge of the exhibit, assisted by A. L. Hill.

Demonstrating the Timken silent automatic wall flame, oil burner, Dobbs Plumbing and Heating Limited had working models on display showing how flames, forced to heat the wall surface of the furnace, increase the heat output over similar flames burning in the centre of the combustion chamber.

The John Lewis Company featured Pyrofax gas service in their display. Also exhibited were Coleman heaters and Gurney stoves. Attending the exhibit were Bill Doyle, Jr., George Simmons, Arnold Morfitt, Walter Bellis and John Lewis.

It takes 18 months to grow oranges in this climate but it only takes a few second to pick them off a tree. Mrs. W. M. Tonton, an exhibitor at the fair found out Monday.

For 18 months, she nursed and reared three oranges from blossom to fruit stage on a tree at her home. When the day of the fair came along, she put tree and oranges on display so others might see how oranges grow.

Unfortunately Mrs. Tonton hadn't counted on the hungry crowds at the fair. At five p.m. yesterday there were three oranges on the tree. When Mrs. Tonton looked at nine last night, there was only one.

The exhibitor is a little disappointed, she had planned to keep the fruit on display all through the fair and now they are gone.

British Forces Gain New Success Against Reds

SINGAPORE (Reuters)—British security forces yesterday announced new successes in their Malayan jungle battle against Communist terrorists, including the killing of six women terrorists.

One of the women was Yap Ching, a 28-year-old local terrorist committee member with a dead or alive price of $200 on her head.

Fifty terrorists have been killed or captured so far this month and 13 of their food dumps have been discovered. Security forces also destroyed 10 terrorist camps in Pahang state, long considered the guerrillas' stronghold.

Rebel Leader Offers Reward in Reverse

RANGOON, Burma (AP)—A Karen rebel leader named Saw Seaplane, on whose head the government placed a reward of $2,500, has retaliated by posting on the Rangoon-Prome highway a poster offering:

25 cents for delivery of Premier U Nu to him.

25 cents for President Ba U.

50 cents for cabinet ministers or military policemen.

$2 for army officers.

Seaplane was reported killed in action recently, but showed up again in a skirmish with government forces later.

Merchants Display Interesting, Well-Appointed Exhibits

Many of the city's leading merchants moved in to set up shop in the Merchants' Building at the Belleville Exhibition Grounds yesterday, where several agreed that business was better than usual.

Made up for the most part of exhibits by well-known local businessmen, the displays attracted hundreds of city and district first-day visitors who swarmed the gate entrances as the opening hour neared.

Booth Radio and Television commanded a large display space at the north end of the building, where three Admiral television sets of latest design attracted dozens of viewers. Besides the television sets, the Booth Radio display also presented a full range of Northern Electric Company products, together with washers and refrigerators and other electrical appliances of known manufacture.

Commenting on the interest in his firm's exhibit, Howard Booth, sales manager, expressed amazement at the interest evidenced in television during the summer months when, surveys prove, the interest in radio reaches its lowest ebb. The salesmanager expressed the view that a budget plan of financing television entertainment which permits prospective buyers to pay at the rate of twenty-five cents per hour for their entertainment, acted as an incentive to television set purchases.

Blind Have Booth

Making their first appearance as exhibitors at the Belleville Exhibition, the National Institute for the Blind presented a display of leather goods—including fine purses—aprons, knitted wear, crochet and other handicraft made by blind persons living in Hastings County.

In charge of the Institute display was Rose Munroe, blind since childhood, who instructs the Hastings County blind people. At the exhibit she was assisted by Mrs. R. S. Martin, her vehicle driver, and Mrs. J. Mattis of Belleville. Besides selling the articles on display, orders were being taken for baskets and brooms made by blind people.

B. B. Farrar, Belleville Limited, had the largest exhibit in the Merchants' Building, occupying the entire east section of the enclosure. Divided into two displays, one featured sectional living room furniture manufactured by Snyder. Barrymore carpets featured the second section in a exhibit made impressive by its restraint. In charge of the Farrar display was John Tomaso, assisted by Mrs. B. B Farrar who spent most of the opening day arranging floral displays in the booth.

A reminder of the cold winter months ahead was evidenced by the number of displays featuring home heating. Included in these displays was an exhibit by Moira Heating which stressed Esso and Toridheet oil burners, furnaces and space heaters.

Large Exhibits

Bill Deline, Limited, of Belleville, Brockville and Kingston, exhibited Duo-Therm space heaters in one of his two booths. A second booth emphasized Moffat gas ranges, Firestone, Gibson, Coranada and Philco refrigerators and Inglis washers. The booth was in charge of Bud Deline, a brother of the owner, and James Ross.

Although featuring Moffat gas stoves, a display presented by the Quinte Appliances gave considerable space to presenting the Duo-Therm oil space heater. Jack Ireland, manager of the Appliance store, was on hand to answer questions voiced by dozens who thronged his exhibit. Other products displayed by the Quinte Appliances included Kelvinator refrigerators and Beatty electric washers.

The Clare Jewel heavy duty electric range, with push-button heat controls, featured Mason's Appliance display. Other appliances displayed by the Front Street firm included Deepfreeze refrigerators and home freezers, Norge washers and Fawcett oil ranges. Alan McKenna was in charge of the display.

"Abbott of England" offering a complete line of kitchen ware, including a wide variety of knives, biscuit markers and cookie cutters capable of cutting 500 cookies per minute, occupied a large booth in the building. The display was in charge of Rolland Alty, assisted by Robin Parkinson, both direct from England and enthusiastic about a carving knife which, they claim, requires no sharpening.

Free Novelties

Attracted by free novelties, including bridge pads and rulers, many visitors viewed a display of shocker pictures in the booth of Lorne McDougall, well-known Belleville Insurance dealer. George Ward, an employee, passed out the novelties to a steady stream of people, most of them children.

Blocking more traffic than a truck stalled on Front Street, the Roluf's Music Centre provided a moving picture entertainment. The pictures featured cartoons along with a film prepared by the RCA Victor "Command Performance" showing how phonograph records were made. The Music Centre featured musical instruments, photographic supplies and record players in their exhibit.

Attracting men together with women, "Your Sewing Centre", of the Singer Sewing Machine Company, staged an exhibition of table and cabinet model sewing machines of current design. These machines, equipped with the latest gadgets and capable of making button holes, appeared to be able to do everything except meet budget payments. In charge of the display was Rudy Rohre, manager of Your Sewing Centre.

Sanitation received major billing in the Merchants' Building. The Filter Queen Health and Cleaning Unit was demonstrated by N. Montgomery and T. Gardner, local distributors.

For those who send out their rugs, drapes and furniture for a cleaning, Tip Top Upholstery and Rug Cleaners, of 192 Pine Street, in Belleville, had a display of "before and after" cleaning on demonstration.

Demonstrating that a change of adjustment on jets on any gas range would make it possible for the range to use propane cooking gas, Jack Smith, salesman for the Superior Propane Cooking Gas, displayed a number of stoves, refrigerators and water tanks which may be operated with his product.

A Large Display

Like their display window in their Front Srteet Store except larger, Goodman's Men's Wear had a large display of men's clothing, along with Hudson's Bay blankets. Jaeger hose and sweaters and Progress Brand clothing in their exhibit. The manager, Walter Harden, assisted by Roy Hinchey, were in charge of the booth.

A modern bath room was exhibited by the Buy Rite Supply Company, 49 Station Street, wholesale and retail plumbing suppliers. The exhibit was in charge of Sid Spiegel, manager.

Livestock Show Best in Years

As has been the case in other years, it is the horseman's day at Belleville Fair with the showing of heavy draught horses, Hackneys and Roadsters topping the livestock exhibit.

All Monday aftrenoon horse breeders from a wide section of the province continued to bring in show animals and by night time practically all available stall space in the horse barns was taken.

In the heavy draught class the Wilson Lumber Company from Cannington and Peterborough was on hand with six of their handsome Clydesdales, while O'Keefe's Breweries were also expected to show in the heavy class.

Light Horses in Quantity

The light horse classes were particularly well represented with Allan Mann, Peterborough, John Sheridan of Stirling and George Atkinson of Bloomfield and A. D. Webber of Kitchener showing in the Hackney or Roadster classes as well as in the pony classes. Cameron Bunnett also is showing in the pony class as is Miles Benedict, Foxboro Road, and Carman Downey, Crookston.

Other horse exhibitors included Roy Philp with a saddle horse, W. H. Lindsay of Campbellcroft, Gar Robinson of Cavan and Verney Heath, Stirling.

Judging of the various horse classes got underway Monday afternoon and will be continued today and Wednesday.

—Elmer Wood of Crookston is again on hand with his fine herd of Ayrshire cattle, while Lorne Jarrell, Cannifton, has 17 head of Jerseys. Other exhibitors expected in this class are Garnet Kerr, Campbellford, and F. Aylesworth of Cataraqui.

Guernseys Heaviest Class

Guernseys are particularly well represented with this breed having possibly the finest exhibit of any class at the fair. Showing in the Guernsey classes is Bell Alpha Farms of 2nd concession Thurlow owned by W. A. Palmateer. Mr. Palmateer has about 18 head on show.

Ralph Sills of Halloway, Geo. Burkitt and Son of Frankford, are also on hand, while other breeders entered are Alex Vandervoort of Trenton, and Dr. Robertson of Cobourg.

The sheep and swine exhibit was a bit disappointing to fair officials, but it was expected Tuesday would bring additional entries in these classes. John Jones of Demorestville had several pens of swine on exhibit Monday.

Huge Exhibit Farm Machinery Featured at Fair

Machines, machines for everything on the farm might well be the motto of farm machinery dealers who are this week exhibiting their wares at the Belleville Fair being held daily until Thursday.

To the casual observers it might seem that machines must have taken much of the drudgery out of farm life, but any true son of the soil will tell you there are still many hours of hard work for those who wrest a living from the soil.

But it has been made easier, all will admit.

For instance the advent of the combine has done away with much of the previous binding of grain and threshing chores. Now a big 10-foot combine moves into the field and in a few hours the harvesting is completed with the grain in the barn.

But for those who are still interested, machinery dealers still stock grain binders and also threshing machines. They admit, however, that sales are not as brisk as they once were.

Another labor saver on the farm is the forage harvester through the use of which cattlemen are able to feed green feed throughout the winter. It also puts hay harvesting outside the realm of weather and rain no longer holds up haying.

For those who prefer baling their hay there are balers, both for roll and square type bales, and elevators are built to hoist the heavy bales into the mow, again doing away wtih manual labor.

All at Fair

All these machines, and more too, are on display at the fair and agricultural minded fair-goers have to go no further in quest of machines to make their work lighter.

Truck and Farm Supply have a complete line of machinery on exhibit with emphasis being placed on their tractors and International trucks. Also they have balers, forage equipment and combines on display.

Another dealer showing a wide variety of farm equipment is Trudeau Motors Ltd., with their Allis-Chalmers tractors and Fargo trucks, and forage harvesters and combines.

Elliott's Farm Equipment had Case tractors, bales elevators and forage harvesters, as well as a complete line of GMC trucks.

The Ferguson tractors and tillage equipment were displayed by Morton's Garage. Of particular interest was a gasoline motor driven pressure pump with attached fire hose.

Oliver tractors were shown by Ward and Son who also are subdealers for deep freezers and chain saw equipment.

Ivan May had a good display of John Deere equipment, including forage harvesters, balers, manure spreaders, cultivators and sub-soilers. A crawler tractor and a front end loader were also displayed, also DeLaval equipment.

Turns Down $120,000

VIENNA (Reuters)—Newspapers reported today that an Austrian woman who claims to have the oldest postage stamp in the world has turned down an offer of $120,000 for it because it was not enough.

The woman refuses to disclose her name or how she got the stamp.

Experts who examined the stamp claim it is authentic, issued in the year 1830—10 years before the British "penny black," hithero acclaimed as the first official government-backed postage stamp.

Blind Vendors Robbed of $500

Horticultural Building a Bower Of Lovely Flowers, Ferns, Cacti

The aromatic fragrance of red cedars, the colorful display of pendant Union Jacks and the beautiful arrangement of cut flowers, and potted plants lent a delightful atmosphere to the horticulture building with its exhibits of amateur art, fancy needlework, fruits, vegetables and home cooking, with the added attractions of canned fruits, preserves, jams and jellies.

Among the flowers, the lovely gladioli held sway in riotous shades of salmon pink; crimson, deep red that was almost black; scarlet; pale cream touched with red; deep pink; yellow tipped with orange; snowy white with crimson centres, and mauve, while some were of deep pink changing to an orange red.

Magnificent Collection

One outstanding basket contained a magnificent collection of ten spikes ranging in color from deep cream tipped with orange; deep velvety red; cerise; white touched with pink; deep pink; flame red, orange; salmon pink; pale orchid-pink and white.

The perennial phlox was also of fine quality, with long, well-foliaged stems, and ranged in color from pink; deep red, white, mauve and white with red centres. Zinnias, though not as tall as last year, were of pleasing quality in shades of yellow, red, pink and mauvy-pink.

Several baskets of flowers of different kinds were most lovely, among these was an eyecatching basket of light and darker blue delphiniums, pink and white gladioli interspersed with touches of Queen Anne's lace and spikes of fragrant ambrosia.

Sprays, Centrepieces, Corsages

There were sprays of gladioli florets in arrangements of snow-white backed with spicy cedar, while others were of red and white, and purple and yellow. The centrepieces showed gladioli blooms, blue cornflowers, and pink rosette roses mingled with white baby's breath; while corsages were of extra quality showing sweetpeas and gladioli florets.

A few roses were shown, mostly of the rambler variety, and the little potted variety. The purple and white Monkshood, yellow and brown; deep, mauvy-blue pansies; petunias, in shades of blue, white-tipped with red, and deep red, as well as the Rosy Morn, so well adapted to the window-box, and the double petunia, in all colors, made a fine display.

Other flowers included the old fashioned tiger lilies, yellow Calendulas and their cousins, the velvety, pungent French marigolds, cosmos, gallardia, the red heart of France asters, African violets, clarkia and corn flowers, the silver-edged Lantana, red and gold Japanese hops, ice plant, one orange tree with three oranges, the Amaryllis lily and pink, glowering ivy geraniums.

Among the potted plants were samples of gorgeous begonias, lovely Gloxinia, speckled and white, and white with red heart, the drooping, grey-green crasula arborescence, the stately sansivaria, the spikey Euphorbin, silver-edged sweet-scented geraniums and the artillery plant.

The ferns showed the feathery Boston Compactor, the age-old favorite, the sword fern and the fine, asparagus fern. The foliages were colorful and most rich in foliage, while the left and right begonias and the graceful aspidistra completed a fine collection.

Cacti Exhibit

One of the show exhibits of the plant collection was that of the Cactus garden at the entrance to the horticulture building exhibited by Mr. Hugh Brown of Albert College. Here, one was intrigued with the various varieties on view, the rose-like Aeonium from the Canary Islands, the Echeveria Hoffmanaii, from Mexico, the well-known elephant's ear, the prickley Golden Barrel, the Cow's horns, and the graceful Agave. Many, many more were shown, as well as a box of tiny seedlings, growing in straight rows, a fitting ending to a splendid exhibit.

Pleated Crepe Dress

By VERA WINSTON

NOTICE how pleating and tucking are staging a come-back, right along with the crepe dress? Here is a good example, a summer-into-fall style done on straight, slimming lines without being severe. The scooped neckline makes it dressy enough for dinner wear. It is pleated from yoke to hem, the pleats stitched down on the skirt. The elasticized waistline matches the fabric, as do the buttons that parade down the side closing. The neck band is plain as are the bracelet length sleeves.

Marilyn Dolores Reddick, Agincourt, Miss Canada

HAMILTON (CP)—An 18-year-old blonde band vocalist was named Miss Canada 1952 last night.

Marilyn Dolores Reddick of Agincourt, near Toronto, was one of 13 entrants—12 of them from Ontario—judged on appearance, poise, talent and intelligence.

While a panel of eight judges, including a Hollywood actor and actress, dramatists and producers, and a former beauty queen, pondered for almost three hours the young ladies posed — in evening gowns—sang, danced and went through an intelligence test.

$1,000 Scholarship

Miss Canada this year receives a $1,000 scholarship, a trip to Atlantic City, N.J., to represent Canada in the Miss America contest and a trip to London for the coronation next June.

Miss Reddick's figure—bust 34, waist 24, hips 36—was judged best in a private afternoon exhibition for the judges. The contestants appeared in shorts and sun suits.

A bit of a flurry was created when one of the judges, Leighton Brill, Toronto musical comedy producer, withdrew from the panel upon learning the girls would not appear in bathing suits. He was promptly deluged with "a flood of telegrams and phone-calls." Mr. Brill said: "Only one of them called me a dirty-minded old man."

Miss Reddick, whose father, Harvard Reddick, is a member of a Toronto musical group known as the Commodores, said she has not decided what to do with the $1,000 scholarship but she would like to continue with her singing and modelling. Her next engagement is at the Hotel Frontenac in Quebec with Norman Harris' band.

Vancouver Entry

Only entrant in the contest from outside Ontario was Olga Romanik, 25, of Vancouver. She failed to place amongst the five finalists.

The talent test, one facet of the contest sponsored by S. Radcliffe Weaver, Hamilton hairdresser, included a rendition of the song "I'm too old to cut the mustard any more" by Dexell Ann Kingston, 18, of Chatham.

More Teachers Higher Calibre Needed Claim

WINNIPEG (CP)—More teachers of a higher calibre, longer training and greater experience are needed in Canada, Tom Parker of Halifax, president of the Canadian Teachers' Federation, said last night at the opening session of the federation convention.

The teacher supply situation was "grim" throughout Canada, but the kind of person attracted to the profession was an even more important problem.

"We need men and women who are mature and stable and can provide their pupils with the security and understanding which so many children find nowhere but in school."

Peterborough Woman Heads Council of Blind

CALGARY (CP)—Appointment of Nora Hughes of Peterborough as secretary-general of the Canadian Council of the Blind was announced yesterday at the opening session of the council's four-day convention here. Thirty delegates from nine provinces are attending.

The post of secretary-general was created this year to take care of the rapid growth of council activities across Canada.

An increase in the blindness allowance from the present $40 a month to $50 and elimination of the means test was urged by delegates.

Under existing legislation, a blind person is eligible for the $40 allowance providing the pension plus his earnings do not exceed $840 annually for a single person and $1,320 a year for a married person with a sighted wife or husband.

Twenty-three ladies of Trinity United Church, Madoc, motored out to the home of Mrs. Ford Tumelty, on Wednesday evening, for their W.M.S. August meeting. Miss A. Holmes, president, asked Miss Alma Keene to take charge of the worship service.

The 96th Psalm was read. The subject chosen was bearing on vacation time, with two readings, Mrs. F. J. Lane reading "Vacation Days", and Miss Keene reading, "Between Ourselves".

Miss Holmes took charge of the business period. Minutes, treasurer's report, communications received, and different conveners' reports received. Mrs. Bert Devolin and her daughter, Marlyn, were appointed delegates to attend the School of Leaders to be held at Whitby Ladies College, during the latter part of August.

Miss Holmes was in charge of the remainder of the program. Mrs. A. Empey, Stewardship convener, read a letter "Newfoundland Journey", by Miss Nancy Edwards, missionary, concluding her reading with a prayer for Miss Edwards. Mrs. Empey also gave a reading "Post Mark Flin-Flon".

Others taking part were, Mrs. Frank Phillips, reading "Peace Is Hard to Find"; Mrs. Tumelty, "As Sails Are to a Ship"; "What Life Has Taught Him," by E. C. Douglas and read by Miss Holmes. "Color Does Not Matter", by Mrs. B. Tanner. The program was interspersed by a sing-song of bright hymns and a closing prayer by the leader.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

She'll be happier if she doesn't concentrate on remarriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a 49-year-old widow. My husband died about a year and a half ago, and six months after his death a man came to my house selling furnaces. I bought one, and subsequently he started coming to my house and taking me out. He would also call me up every day.

Then I went away for a week, he took me to the station and kissed me goodbye. But when I returned I found him completely changed. He said he didn't want to see me any more, and if I call him up, or if I do ever see him, all he does is to fight with me, although he will still kiss me. I asked him if he had another girl friend and he said he didn't want to discuss anything like that. He asked me if I had a boy friend and I said no, so then he said he didn't want anyone either.

I really love him very much, so I wonder if you could tell me how I can find out if he loves me or even cares for me. Do you think I have a chance with him? He is 67 years old.—A. M.

Dear A.M.:

If this man has told you that he doesn't want to see you any more, can't you draw your own conclusions? Do you need anyone to point out to you that if he cared for you he would never say anything like that?

Under such circumstances, I think you make a big mistake in pursuing him by calling him on the telephone, or, perhaps, trying to create opportunities to see him.

I can understand very well indeed, that as a widow, you are lonely, and that you would like to be married again. But perhaps if you didn't concentrate so hard on this one aim, you could find ways of overcoming your loneliness. As I have said many times in this column, the world is full of things to do today through which anyone can make new friends and find new interests. Once a person has made a beginning, one friend always leads to another, and before long life becomes full of activities that leave no time for brooding and loneliness. Look around your town and find some of these activities. If you don't know where to look, ask someone. You are far more likely to make a good life for yourself—which is essentially what everyone is after—if you will follow out this sort of plan than if you look for one one thing, marriage.

You can refrain from petting if you really want to

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For the past year I have been going steady, and my problem is that I now find myself petting, which I have never done before with any body, because I thought it was terrible. But we just can't seem to help ourselves. I am 17 and he is 19.

What should I do?—H. B.

Dear H.B.:

I get a little tired of having people tell me—which they often do in their letters—that they "just can't seem to help" doing unwise or even definitely wrong things. Would you think it an adequate excuse for a burglar to say that he just couldn't seem to help stealing?

Of course you can help yourselves if you really want to.

It is far more true that the person who steals is unlikely to be able to help himself because he probably has something psychologically wrong with him which he does not understand and so cannot control. But unless you want me to think there is something psychologically wrong with you which you cannot control, the only other way of looking at your remark is that you just don't sufficiently want to stop petting.

If you do sincerely want to, there certainly are things you can do to avoid it. One is for you and this boy not to spend whole evenings by yourselves in places where it is easy to let yourselves go without anyone knowing it. Another is not to permit yourselves to embrace each other. A third is, not to linger unduly over a goodnight kiss, but make your goodnights brief. If you will try out these suggestions, and be with the crowd much more often than you go out by yourselves, I think you will find your problem pretty well takes care of itself.

Food for Thought

Good Vegetable Cooks Are Rare

By Mary Moore

If you give it much thought you realize that vegetables form the bulk of our food. Yet cooks abuse them.

Some of us rest on our laurels if we can make, good pies and cakes and roast meat, but in a restaurant or a home where you are served beautifully cooked vegetables you know there is a master cook at the helm.

Let's discuss keeping green vegetables bright green for a minute—not olive green, after they are cooked. Chlorophyll is the pigment in vegetables which is responsible for their green coloring. When this is subjected to heat for any length of time it readily turns brown. Another factor causing brownness is the presence in the vegetables of acid.

To make this story short and to the point: To retain the green color in green vegetables cook them as short a time as possible—actually undercook them. Start trying them for doneness when they are half-finished—then try them every two minutes. Cook only in water to barely cover but cook them uncovered. You do this for two reasons: to allow acid to escape in steam and two dilute acid in water. You sacrifice some nutrients in water but well-informed cooks conserve vegetable waters by using them in gravies and soups.

All of the above points apply to the commonest vegetables we eat —green beans, cabbage, peas, broccoli, Brussels sprouts, asparagus, green peppers. Spinach requires no more water than clings to the leaves from washing. Spinach should be turned over twice during a 6-minute cooking period, uncovered.

MEAT-STUFFED GREEN PEPPERS

Select 6 large green peppers with flat bottoms. Cut off tops and remove seeds and ribs; wash, dredge with salt and turn upside down to drain. Mix together 1 lb. ground beef or hamburg, 2 tablespoons grated onion, 1-4 teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, 1 cup soft breadcrumbs and 1 beaten egg, and 1-2 can condensed tomato or cream of mushroom soup. Mix this well and use as stuffing for peppers. Place in flat-bottomed pot so that they stand up. Add 1 1-2 inches boiling water and boil uncovered for 35 minutes or bake in 1 inch of water for 45 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr. Heat remaining 1-2 can condensed tomato or cream of mushroom soup and serve as sauce over peppers. A pretty platter may be made up by piling fluffy cooked rice in centre and making a border of the baked stuffed peppers.

SPICED SHOESTRING BEETS

Wash and pare raw beets, shred on medium shredder until you have 3 1-2 cups. To them add 1 tablespoon vinegar, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, 1-8 teaspoon nutmeg and 3 tablespoons butter or margarine or salad oil and 1 cup hot water. These may be simmered, covered for 50 minutes or cooked in covered double boiler 70 minutes or baked covered in over of 350 deg. Fah. for 60 minutes.

FRESH LIMA AND CORN CASSEROLE

One-quarter cup butter or margarine, 1-4 cup flour, 1 1-2 cups milk, 1-4 cup grated old cheese, 3-4 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teapepper, 1-4 cup cut up canned pimiento (or fresh if available), 2 cups small fresh (or frozen) limas, 2 cups fresh kernel corn just cut from cobs, 1-2 cup green small onion tops or chives, 2 cups soft breadcrumbs, 3 tablespoons melted butter. Make a white sauce by melting the 1-4 cup butter, blending in flour and stirring in milk until thick. Add cheese, salt, pepper and pimientos and gently simmer 2 minutes. Mix this sauce with beans and corn and onion tops. Pour into buttered baking dish, sprinkle top with crumbs, dot with the melted butter and bake 30 minutes at 375 deg. Fahr. or until limas are tender. If top is not brown in that time raise it in oven and brown under broiler. To make this a main supper dish one cup ground leftover meat such as ham or pork or chicken or veal may be added without changing other proportions.

GOOD MANNERS

By CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The husband watches the pie. . . the wife watches the calories!

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please settle an argument between my husband and me. He is a pie enthusiast and he's so enthusiastic about it that many of our friends make a special point of having pie for dessert (generally the hostess herself makes it). He eats the crust as well as the 'filling'. Me, I'm a gal who has to watch the calories, and so I usually eat only the filling. My husband insists that this is rude, that I hurt the feelings of the hostess, particularly when the hostess is also cook. What to do, Mrs. Beeckman?—Margaret S.

Today's hostess and a woman guest understand, woman-to-woman, the stern demands of calorie-counting, and no hostess should be so super-sensitive about her hospitality and/or her cooking as to criticize a guest for not eating pie crust. An understanding hostess knows it's "noble" self-denial on your part. . . does not give it a thought as to criticism. As a matter of fact, she's probably so delighted with your husband's pie enthusiasm that she won't much notice (or at least shouldn't show she notices) that you are an enthusiast for the filling only.

When a married woman introduces her brother

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

For the last two weeks of August my husband and I are taking a small cottage at the seashore. My brother is living this summer at a club in the same place. When I introduce him, should I mention only "this is my brother, Ken", or should I add his last name? (My husband and I were married last June, and many of his relatives and friends do not know my brother.)—Clarita M.

Yes, be sure to give your brother's last name in your introductions. . . "Mrs. Hill, this is my brother, Kenneth Davidson". (It is always the way of wisdom to provide each person in an introduction with the name-information necessary: (1) to add the name to the introduction-acknowledgment, "How do you do, Mr. Davidson," and (2) to use during the conversation following the introduction.)

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I know that at my wedding reception I dance the first dance with my bridegroom. Then what is the sequence?—Bride-to-be?

After that first most romantic dance with your bridegroom, you dance next with your father. . . then with your bridegroom's father. . . then with the best man . . . then with the ushers (first with the head usher, if a head usher has been appointed). Then you can "play the field", dancing probably first with your relatives who claim priority, and with other guests.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it ever correct for a married woman to sign her name (that is, as her signature) Mrs. John Smith?—Reader.

This form. . . .Mrs. John Smith. . . is not correct for a married woman to sign to a letter of any kind to anyone. But there are certain circumstances when a woman signs "Mrs. John Smith": for example, when she signs a hotel register, or a receipt for a telegram or a package addressed to "Mrs. John Smith".

You Protect Skin From Sun; Why Not Protect Hair, Too

By HELEN FOLLETT

EVERY girl with sense in her head protects her skin from sunburn. She lives a little golden glow, but doesn't go in for the nut-brown effect. But every girl does not realize that her hair also can become sunburned.

If she is a blonde, the sun may make her hair take on darker streaks here and there, a sort of bronze color. If she is a brunette, the top of her dome may become lighter than the rest of her mop. Streaky hair just isn't pretty. Girls who bleach a little strand or two just for fun like the excitement of attracting attention. But they soon get tired of that stepchild tress.

Cover Your Hair

The best way to protect the hair from sunlight is to cover it, of course. But who wants to do that when flitting around the summery outdoors? The next best thing is to give it a rousing brushing every night. This grooming will stimulate the sebaceous glands that will distribute their exudations the length of the shaft. If the hair is unusually dry, a little cream or a special hair preparation should be put on the bristles of the brush. Dry hair burns more quickly than hair that is naturally oily.

When the damage has been done, one should give oneself frequent hot oil treatments. They serve several purposes, having a favorable effect on growth, removing any dead skin scales that may be on the scalp, and tending to bring about a uniform color.

Give the treatment the night before the shampoo. Brush the hair, strand by strand, holding each one away from the head, using a rolling motion of the brush. Groom from the crown down to the front, sides and back.

Applying Hot Oil

Make various partings, apply the hot oil with a square of cotton, a small brush or a medicine dropper. The dropper makes the best distribution. When the scalp has been completely lubricated spread your fingers and thumbs over your head and massage with rotary movements of the thumbs. Cover your head with a towel, say your prayers and go to bed. In the morning give yourself a rousing shampoo.

A home permanent is another good bet for summer, especially if your curls come undone after a swim. There's a new trio of home permanents on the market that are just in time for the season. They're designed to make the job easier because each on is designed for a particular hair type. There's one permanent for normal-to-wave hair, one for hard-to-wave hair and one that's very gentle for especially easy-to-wave hair.

The Belleville and District Softball League executive will gather this evening in the council chambers at the city hall to hear another protest. This time Northern Electric claim that a ground rule double should not let a man score from first base, while Belleville Motor Car claim that when a fielder touches a ball it is in play and good for as many bases as the runner can take. The issue in ebate is the Motors 5-4 victory over the Electrics in the third game of their best-of-five series to decide the league's intermediate AA champion, the league representative in the provincial playdowns and the zone winner—all in one package. Northern leads the series 2-1 as things stand now. No matter what decision is rendered ie. a replay if the protest is upheld, or the fourth game if the protest is rejected—the series will resume Thursday night at the Alemite Field.

Glen Roy Juniors, who have established a remarkable record in taking the league pennant in their first season continue to limber up for their OASA provincial playoffs by taking on Bloomfield Sun-Joys in an exhibition game at the Alemite Field under the lights tonight. The Juniors, who have lost only three games in scheduled and non-scheduled contests this season, losses which they reversed in later meetings, open the provincial series against Brockville this Saturday evening at the Alemite Field at 6.00 p. m. The Sun-Joys, league leaders in the Prince Edward Softball League dropped a 10-3 decision to the Juniors in Picton last week and are out for revenge.

Two of the toughest wrestlers inside a ring anywhere will be at one another's eyeballs and larynxes again this week as Lord Athol Layton and Yukon Eric have been rematched in the feature event of the local wrestling show. No time limit has been set for the bout so that the fans will be assured of a verdict. Last week these two powerful grapplers fought to a draw before the largest crowd of the season—most of whom were hoping that the Alaska lumberjack would rend asunder the villanous Lord. Well, if anyone can crush Layton, Yukon Eric would seem to be the man. No angel himself, the Yuke will be the people's cheerce, to coin a phrase, when the two square off Friday night.

Johnny Barend has been pitted against Jim "The Bull" Wright, in the main preliminary while Tiger Tasker will be baring his fangs at Pat Flanagan in the opener.

Being busy as a beaver has its drawbacks according to reports from the Department of Lands and Forests. One of the officers of the Department shipped nine pairs of beaver from Meaford to Renfrew on request. Now Renfrew is coping with the results. Two roads were flooded and the dams had to be broken to restore order. Beaver also flooded pastures in Hartingdon area preventing removal of feed for winter stock, and in Lanark the farmers are finding their fields flooded as nature's chief engineer goes busily about being a beaver.

ROUNDUP:

When a boxing manager throws in the towel, does he do it so that his fighter can wipe away the tears of a raw decision, such as the jobbing Ezzard "The Gizzard" Charles received in Utah last week? Or do fight managers have built in broadcasting systems that blast "we wuz robbed" every time their fighter loses? Proposed additions to the Olympic games whereby the Russians could be assured of picking up the points necessary to win an unofficial team championship include: the heel-and-toe walk-out, hurling the invective, putting the germ, the running high dudgeon, the running broad charge, and the diplomatic hurdle. The Russ could no doubt sweep these events and then by reversing the scoring rules to allow 15 points for a first, 10 for a second, and nine for a third, would win any competition. Will Bitsy Bobby Shantz (pronounced Shunts) lead the A's to the American League pennant, or will he just sidetrack New York, and Cleveland and let Boston slip through to a pennant they dearly deserve? And why does nobody pay any attention to righthander Robin Roberts who has chalked up 17 victories for the Phillies and who seems certain to have another 20-game season. Roberts is the most consistent winner in the majors today in addition to being possibly one of the strongest and best pitchers to grace either league in the last 20 years. And what has become of Ned Garver, the Brownie ace who seems to have been trumped this season? Are the Toronto papers building Winnipeg into a big gate attraction for next Saturday's exhibition tilt with the Argos because both teams need scads of dough to meet the payrolls, or has Winnipeg actually got a good team this season and not just another western tackling dummy for the big bad boys of the east.

The sportsman of the day is undoubtedly the principal of Forest Hill Collegiate in Toronto who gave his high school students a chance to behave like men and women and was rewarded when 121 of them wrote the upper school examinations and set a school passing record by having 94.2 percent of 842 papers passed. If you missed the RCMP Musical Ride you missed the best attraction the Belleville Fair has ever presented before the grandstand.

Dodgers and Durocher's Men Open Three-Game Series With Giants Strictly on Spot

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

The time is now for the little miracle of 1952.

Dawn of this fateful day—Aug. 12—again finds the bewildered New York Giants far behind the front-running Brooklyn Dodgers in the National Baseball League.

Nine games back—instead of 13 or 13½ as they were last year—the Giants show no signs of an August-September drive such as thrilled the sports world in '51.

But there was little hope a year ago, either. No signs that the Giants were about to take off on a 16-game win streak.

Meet Tonight

A freak of the schedule brings the Giants to Brooklyn tonight for a three-game series. A sweep for the Giants is almost a must. Two out of three by the Brooks would open up a 10-game lead with less than 50 to go.

The Brooks come into the big series with all guns booming. Gil Hodges, Roy Campanella and Jack Robinson hammered home runs last night in a big six-run rally in the sixth inning at Philadelphia to earn an even break for the night.

Robin Roberts pitched the Phils to a 7-2 victory in the first half of a twi-night doubleheader. The Phils were out front in the second game on Bill Nicholson's three-run homer in the fifth until the Dodger homer barrage started. When it was over, Brooklyn had the second game in the bag, 9-5.

Double Disaster

Double disaster was the story for the Giants in Boston, where they followed two shutout defeats with a doubleheader loss to the sixth-place Braves, 11-10 and 4-2.

Shoddy relief pitching lost the first for New York, blowing a 10-7 lead while the Braves rallied for four in the eighth. Lew Burdette held the Giants to five hits in the second game.

St. Louis also lost ground to Brooklyn, absorbing a 10-2 pasting by Chicago Cubs. Chicago's Hank Sauer slammed his 29th and 30th home runs to bring his runs-batted-in total to 96.

Reynolds Wins 150th

Allie Reynolds' two-hit shutout and 150th major-league victory was the big news in the American League as New York Yankees blanked Boston 7-0, opening up a 2½-game led on idle Cleveland. Mickey Mantle hit his 17th and 18th homers plus a double in the attack on Sid Hudson and 2 successors.

Washington split two with Philadelphia, the Senators taking the first 6-5 on pinch-hitter Frank Campos' fly ball with the bases loaded in the ninth. The Athletics won the second, 2-1.

Cincinnati drove Pittsburgh even deeper into the National League cellar with a 10-4 romp.

Al Adams Leads Diesels to 7-1 Win With Four-Hitter

Al Adams, who has been called upon all season to haul the CNR Diesels out of tough situations, came to the rescue in great style last evening as he hurled a masterful four hitter to lead the Diesels to a 7-1 victory over the Point Anne Cementmen in the third game of their best-of-five series. Point Anne hold a 2-1 edge in the series which resumes Wednesday night in Point Anne.

Adams was in trouble only in the eighth inning when the Pointers scored their only run. In going an abbreviated eight inning distance because of darkness, Al walked two, struck out two, and gave up four hits for one run.

Diesels opened the scoring in the first frame scoring three runs on an error, a sacrifice, a double by Sword, a triple by Vern Goyer and a single by Glen Young. Buck Rogers led off the fourth for the Diesels with a home run to right field to make the score 4-0.

Vern Goyer slammed a line drive home run to the fence in centrefield to start the seventh frame for the Diesels. Leo Goyer drew a free pass, was sacrificed to second by Glen Young, stole third, and scored on Don Adams' clean single to centre.

Point Anne scored their only run in the eighth inning. With one out Mike Whalen, batting for Burshaw, walked. Jack Elliott then slammed a tremendous blast along the left field line that looked like a sure home run. However umpire Young ruled that the relay from Adams- to-Goyer-to-Glen Young nailed Elliott sliding at the plate. It was a tough decision and Point Anne kicked like steers.

Art Genereaux dropped a bloop triple into right field but died on base as Leo Goyer made a nice running catch of Wood's blast to centrefield.

The Diesels finished their scoring in the eighth with a two base error at short putting Corbett on second with one out. Sword flied to left but Vern Goyer tripled to right to score Corbett. Goyer died on third as Leo Goyer popped out to the third baseman.

In the second inning the Point's Murney Green slammed a line drive down the left field line that looked like a home run but an Adams-to-Leo Goyer-to-Glen Young relay nailed him at the plate.

Buck Burshaw pitched seven innings for Point Anne walking four, striking out one, and being tagged for 10 hits and six runs. Pat Maracle pitched the eighth inning, walking none, striking out none, and giving up one hit for one run.

Vern Goyer was the heaviest hitter of the night with two triples and a home run in four official appearances. Fitzpatrick had two singles as every man but Corbett hit safely.

Lineup:

Point Anne: Elliott c; Genereaux cf; Wood 2b; Mallory ss, replaced by Maracle in 7th, ss, p in 8th; Green lf; Buchanan 1b; Horwood 3b; Whalen rf, replaced by Bradshaw in 8th; Burshaw p, replaced by M. Whalen in 8th.

Julius Boros Beats Middlecoff For 'World' Golf Title

CHICAGO (AP)—Golf's golden August visit by Santa Claus in the person of Promoter George S. May could be bigger and better next year than his $120,000 Tam O'Shanter show just closed.

That should be good news to the likes of U.S. Open champion Julius Boros and the golfing dentist, Cary Middlecoff, who yesterday settled for a record $25,000 and $12,500 respectively in a playoff for May's "world championship of golf."

May said he has dates reserved with the Professional Golfers' Association next year for his annual Tam O'Shanter carnival and has in mind an even greater jackpot han he paid in the dove-tailed $30,000 all-American and $90,000 "world" in the past two weeks.

May plans to increase the $25,000 world first prize and the $3,420 top melon in the all-American. He may even arrange regional playoffs to bring a larger field to the combined meets.

There were reports that Boros, who rallied furiously for his two-stroke, four-under-par 68 playoff victory, and the vanquished Middlecoff with 70 had an under-the-table deal to split the world $25,000 first and $12,500 second prizee.

That would have given each $18,750 and the word was out that they had arranged to settle the taxes on the entire $37,500 swag.

But the two players and the P.G.A. denied such a manouver. The P.G.A.'s freshest money-winning list had Boros in front with $34,332, based on a $25,000 first "world" prize, and Middlecoff second with $27,739, pegged on second "world" money of $12,500.

The two had finished the 72-hole "world" event Sunday with identical 276s, 12 under par.

United States Downs Canada 4-1 in Davis Cup Play

By MAX McMAHON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — "I'd hate to play Bob Perry in two years time."

That's what a dog-tired Brendan Macken said after he had defeated the 19-year-old Perry yesterday to become the first Canadian to win a match in Davis Cup tennis play against the Americans since Marcel Rainville turned the trick against Sidney Wood in 1931.

The United States team won the best-of-five North American zone final 4-1 with two singles victories Friday, a doubles win Saturday and one singles triumph yesterday.

Flam Beats Main

Macken downed Perry 6-3, 11-13, 6-4, 6-4 after Herb Flam had made it four-straight for the United States, defeating Lorne Main 6-2, 6-3, 6-3.

Commenting on Perry's performance particularly in the marathon second set which he won when he broke Macken's serve in the 24th game, Bren said:

"A lot of people might think that Perry is the weak member of the team—he's only a year out of junior play—but it just isn't so. I'd hate to meet him in two years' time."

It was Macken's experience gained in seven years in Davis Cup play that defeated Perry.

When the two were belting it out from the baselines, with neither man winning, it was Macken who was able to vary his game, using drop-shots and cross-court placements close to the net to good effect.

Impatience Costly

The only time he lost was when he became impatient, slamming the ball right out of the club ground at one point, and Main broke through his service momentarily.

But Flam settled down to tactics the Americans used all through the series—keep the ball going until your opponent errs.

Flam Friday defeated Rochon 6-2, 8-6, 6-2, and Vic Seixas defeated Main 6-2, 6-3, 6-4. Flam and Seixas joined forces Saturday to down Macken and Main 6-3, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4 in doubles.

The United States now takes on the winner of an Italy-India series for the right to challange Australia, present holders of the cup.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Yankees would not be what they are in the baseball world if they did not have an extremely smart and efficient front office, but we sometimes get to thinking that they are shot with luck, too.

What we have in mind at the moment, is the amazing performance of a previously undistinguished outfielder named Gene Woodling. It is hard to explain unless we accept at least partially the widespread feeling among rival American League clubs that there is some minor deity who can't stand to see Casey Stengel suffer.

This was the year the Bombers had to come up with a replacement for Joe DiMaggio or hit the skids. Several rival managers, holding back the tears manfully, confided to us in the spring that Mickey Mantle might some day fill the great void, but certainly not this season. There was no other possibility. Hank Bauer, Jackie Jensen, Bob Cerv—they simply were not cast in the Dimaggio mold.

Nobody thought to mention Woodling, a 30-year-old who had been bouncing around in and out of the big leagues for going on a decade and seldom had his name anywhere except near the bottom of a box score.

Well Over .300

So what do we find now? Only that Woodling is smashing the ball at a steady clip well over 300, threatening the American League lead and fielding like an angel.

During the Bombers' recent western trip, he slugged .351 in 21 games. In their last five games at Washington, he was on base 14 out of 18 times up.

As recently as last year Stengel permited Woodling to appear in only 120 games, as a pinch-hitter and as an alternate for Bauer and others when the opposition had a righthander on the hill.

The irony of it all is that Woodling first came up with Cleveland, the club the Yanks usually have to beat. The Tribe gave up on him and his .188 batting average and traded him to Pittsburgh in the winter of '46.

From there it was Newark for a year, and then San Francisco for another. A .385 average with the Seals in '48 was what induced the Yanks to give him another try at the big time.

The point is that Woodling was not a product of the Yankee farm system, nor was he a player purchased for a large sum or obtained in an important exchange of talent. He simply was picked up as an extra outfielder because he chanced to be available and knew the way out to Yankee stadium on the subway.

Mel Embree, United States negro end with Calgary Stampeders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union last season flew to Hamilton yesterday looking for work with the Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Embree received his release from Calgary last week following a court action in which he charged Coach Les Lear and Line Coach Ed Champagne with assaulting him because he refused to sign a contract. Lear and Champagne were acquitted.

Winnipeg coach George Trafton would not say whether Embree will work with the Bombers against Hamilton Tiger Cats here Wednesday in an exhibition game.

Pairing in the United States amateur golf championships, to be held at Seattle Aug. 18-23, were announced yesterday at New York. The eight Canadian entriees include Gerry Kesselring of Kitchener, Ontario amateur and open champion, Phil Farley of Toronto and Nick Weslock of Windsor.

The pairing and tee-off times for Aug. 18 include:

Kesselring vs. Jerry F. Fehr, Seatle, 12:36 p.m.; Weslock vs. P. T. Taylor, Huntington, W.V.a., 2:54 p.m. Farley drew a bye.

Frank Sedgman of Australia was upset yesterday in the finals of the United States eastern grass courts tennis championships at South Orange, N.J., by fellow countryman Ken McGregor.

McGregor, the Australian champion, won, 6-3, 6-4. Doris Hart of Coral Gables, Fla., easily won the women's singles over Shirley Fry, Akron, Ohio, 6-1, 6-3.

The United States' senior tennis players, 45 and over, will defend the Gordon trophy against Canada at Brookline, Mass, Aug. 15-16.

The trophy is contested annually between veterans of the two countries. This is the fourth year of competition. The U.S. team has won the three previous meetings.

Timbermen Move Into First-Place Tie in League

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Peterborough Timbermen last night moved into a tie for first place in the Ontario Lacrosse Association's senior loop with Mimico Mountaineers by defeating Hamilton Tigers 11-5.

Jack Mason and Russ Slater were the top marksmen for Peterborough each neeting three. Merv McKenzie was the top Hamilton scorer with two.

In the only other game of the night, Mimico squeezed out a win over St. Catharines athletics on a goal by Fred Sandford with only 38 seconds to go.

Sandford's winning tally was his sixth of the night. Bert Barager scored five for the mountaineers. Jim McMahon notched four for St. Catharines and Al Frick and John Dewer three each.

NASSAU, Bahamas (CP)—The Legislature last night passed a bill approving sale of Billy Butlin's bankrupt vacation village to an American distiller. William Dunn of Chicago is purchasing the resort and indications are that he plans to convert it into a high-priced tourist mecca.

Rochester Wings In Second Place Of International

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With Montreal a runaway leader in the International League, attention centres on the battle for second place.

Rochester moved into the No. 2 spot last night, a half game ahead of Syracuse, by taking a rain-abbreviated 3-0 victory from Buffalo. Play was halted in the top of the sixth.

In other games, Ottawa ended Montreal's 10-game winning streak, 3-2, and Toronto swept two from Springfield, 5-2 and 8-2.

A two-run homer by Rip Repulski and a solo shot by Lou Ortiz carried Rochester to victory over Buffalo. Jack Faszholz didn't have to work long for this 13th win. The only one he had trouble with was Frank Carswell, who made the Bisons only two hits.

5 Runs in Second

At Syracuse, the Chiefs lost out when Baltimore shelled Arnie Landeck for five runs in the second. After that, the home town boys never came close. Big noise for the winners was Marv Rackley, with three for five and three RBI's.

Ottawa's John Metkovich ended Montreal's win streak by belting a home run in the seventh inning. That snapped a 2-2 tie and gave Marion Fricano his 13th victory. Gill Mills was the loser.

At Toronto, the Leafs won the opener from Springfield on Hal Keller's two-run triple in the fourth. In all, Charlie Keller's kid brother knocked in three runs, to help Vic Lombardi to his ninth victory.

In the nightcap, the Leafs sewed it up by scoring three runs in the fourth and fifth innings. Ed Stevens smacked a two-run homer in the fifth, and wound up the game with four RBI's.

Galt Terriers Win 3rd Straight In Intercounty

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Galt Terriers, fighting for a playoff spot in the senior Intercounty Baseball League, last night won their third straight game edging Waterloo 3-2.

Two other scheduled games, St. Thomas at Guelph and Brantford at London, were rained out.

The victory entrenched Galt firmly in fourth place in the seven-team loop, one game ahead of the fifth-place London Majors and 4½ games off the pace being set by Kitchener.

The winning run was scored in the 10th inning when Irv Schupp rapped out a single that brought in Andy Garbas from third base.

No games are scheduled tonight but Wednesday St. Thomas is at Kitchener, London meets Galt and Waterloo plays Brantford.

Three Juniors Carry Canada's Hopes in Women's Open Golf

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP)—The Canadian women's open golf championship today moves into the first round with three junior stars bearing Canada's hopes of keeping the title at home.

Mary Gay, 20-year-old Ontario champion from Kitchener, yesterday matched pace with Edean Anderson of Helena, Mont., to top more than 120 who started in the qualifying round. Both shot one-under par 78s over the Edmonton Mayfair's rolling fairways.

The 18-year-old defending champion, Marlene Stewart of Fonthill, Ont., and Alberta champion Rae Milligan, 18, of Jasper, tied for third with 80s to give Canada three of the top four placings. United States players dominated the open from 1947 to 1951.

Three Americans

Three Americans were among the top 10 qualifiers. Grace Lenczyk of Hartford, Conn., runner-up last year, placed fifth with Mrs. Graeme Pyke of Montreal. Both had 82s.

Polly Martin of St. Clairsville, Ohio, was bracketed at 83 with Mrs. J. H. Todd of Victoria, Mrs. N. J. Carlson of Toronto, Mrs. J.C. Whitelaw of Montreal, and Babs Davies of Vancouver. Anne Sharp of Fonthill shot an 84.

Miss Gay brought in her sub-par 78 with a first-nine par 39 and a one-under 39 on the back nine. She birdied six holes and went one-over par on five.

Short Second Shots

Short second shots slowed Miss Stewart's pace over the front nine and she came in with a 41. On the second half she hit them long and hard and carded a one-under 39.

A playoff resulted when eight players carded 90s to qualify. Two were eliminated to cut the championship flight to 32. They were Geraldine Evans and Mrs. W. H. Barclay, both of Saskatoon.

Canadian Ladies' Golf Union officials were awaiting word from Toronto headquarters before staging a playoff between Misses Gay and Anderson. Miss Gay won the Ella Murray rose bowl for low Canadian gross in the ground, but it was not ascertained if a playoff would be necessary to determine straight low gross.

Gonsalves Stages Brilliant Rally To Gain Draw

BOSTON (AP)—Durable young Johnny Gonsalves of Oakland, Calif., last night staged a brilliant rally to gain a draw with highly-regarded Georgie Araujo of Providence, R.I., in a furious 10-round bout.

The 21-year-old lightweight took a terrific pasting in the first and second rounds but fought back gamely in a windmill finish.

Araujo weighed 135½ and Gonsalves 134.

The bout drew a gross gate of $10,156.

"COOL CONTROL"
PITCHING: THE BASIC GRIP
1 Ball should be gripped along or across the seams. A short-fingered hand should grip ball across the seams at the narrowest point; long-fingered hand holds ball across seams at widest point. Grip across the seams gives better control.
2 Grip always should be firm, but never tight. Tips of index and second finger and joint of thumb should be your pressure points. Wrist action and way of releasing ball on pitch will give control to standard throws.
3 Gripping ball along the seams usually makes it harder to control. The raised stitches, when held across, help give 'spin' to the ball as the seams rotate towards the batter for more air resistance and rise. Sidearm and underarm pitchers use grip along the seam for fast 'sinkers.'
Yes, it's control that counts, in baseball as in every sport—control which brings the extra-ordinary quality that sets one performer above the other. In the ability to approach things coolly, to control every move and moment, lies the answer to better results.
This is one of a series designed to increase the pleasure of Canadians who participate in sports.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—There can be no doubt that Ethel Merman is back at work in the movies after a 12-year absence. Her voice can be heard all over the 20th-Century-Fox lot.

That's when she's speaking of course. When she's singing, it's reported she can be heard in Santa Monica.

On the stage where she was testing for the screen version of her Broadway hit, "Call Me Madam," about two dozen well-paid workers were ready to make a test of her hairdo.

More Merman Movies

"I'm certainly happy they saw fit to let me do it," she remarked. "I think it's going to be a lot of fun. The cast (George Sanders, Vera-Ellen, Donald O'Connor) is great, and the director, Walter Lang, is my dream boy."

Will this mean more movies for Merman?

"Could be. About seven months ago I was offered a Broadway show for the spring of 1953. I turned it down because I couldn't see that far into the future. I don't know what I'll be doing next."

Her film producer, Sol Siegel, predicts she'll open a whole new career for herself in the movies.

The selection of Merman for the role was something of a novelty, by Hollywood standards. Her long list of hit musicals has always fallen to other stars for the film versions. For instance, Ann Sothern appeared in "Panama Hattie" and Betty Hutton drew "Annie Get Your Gun."

Few Cuts

Siegel talked about the topical aspects of "Call Me Madam." The show was obviously based on the diplomatic career of Perle Mesta and contained many allusions to present-day Washington.

"We've cut out most of the topical references," the producer said. "The 'I like Ike' number has been taken out, since the picture won't appear until after the election.

"We've also eliminated the Dean Acheson character. It wasn't just because he might no longer be secretary of state; his part wasn't needed in the film version. But we left in the phone calls to Harry Truman and the remarks about Margaret's singing voice."

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In the movie business, a star isn't judged by the size of his roles or salary. It's how big and elaborate the dressing room is.

When unknown players are signed at a studio, they have virtually no place to hang their hats. If they succeed in becoming featured players, they are assigned rooms in a building with their colleagues. If they make the climb to stardom, they are moved into a swank building with other stars and given fancy suites.

Dressing rooms at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star factory are the particular headache of Miss Eli Benneche.

She said the economy wave in Hollywood has cut down the lavishness of stars' dressing rooms. "In the old days, we might re-do a star's room every two or three years," she said. "That doesn't happen any more."

She looked back rather wistfully to the days when the M-G-M queens vied for supremacy. Top gal was Norma Shearer, Montreal-born actress who had a suite in expensive modern design. Joan Crawford had an elaborate English 18th Century affair. Marion Davies held court in her own building, a two-storey Spanish house. When she got mad at the studio and left, she moved the building off the lot.

Hedy a Headache

Hedy Lamarr was a headache, Miss Benneche said. Hedy was overly particular and also wanted to change things. The designer almost gave up on Judy Garland, who wanted black and white decor.

"Katharine Hepburn's room was terrible," the decorator exclaimed. "Why, she wouldn't allow anything but striped mattress ticking on the bed. She had some ratty curtains on the window and droopy cartoons hung on the walls. She didn't want anything fancier."

Dressing rooms for present M-G-M stars are elegant but restrained. Greer Garson leans to turquoise with dark green and white. Lana Turner's room is mostly white with pale pink and blue. Elizabeth Taylor's is peach and white. Esther Williams has early American design with blue and red predominating.

Some men, such as Red Skelton and Fred Astair, never make requests, Miss Benneche remarked, but most actors are just as particular as the women. Most of the men prefer red and blue.

Japanese Government May Be Toppled from Office By Incident Over U.K. Soldiers

TOKYO (Reuters)—The Japanese government is in a tight spot today with speculation mounting that it may even be toppled from office — all because two British sailors were jailed for stealing $4 from a taxi driver and driving off in his cab.

The two were sentenced to 2½-year jail terms by a Japanese court Aug. 5.

Since then British and American diplomats have steadily increased pressure for the release of the men contending they should have been tried by British military authorities.

Claim Too Severe

Britain sent an official protest note last week claiming the sentence was far too severe.

The western protests are thought to be backed by the Japanese Foreign Affairs Department which feels that it is stupid to jeopardize the country's foreign relations for the sake of $4.

But the Justice Department contends that Japanese law courts should be outside the intervention of foreign powers, and a split has developed in Premier Shigeru Yoshida's cabinet, high sources say.

An authoritative source said today that the American ambassador Robert Murphy, on instructions from Washington, had told Yoshida that the U. S. fully supported the British demand for the men's release.

Since the Japanese peace treaty was signed earlier this year only American forces have jurisdiction over their own troops in civil cases — other troops must go before a Japanese court. Negotiations have been going on over this since Japan secured her independence.

Japanese newspapers have been headlining the case since it first began. Public opinion has mounted to the point now where it would be political suicide for Yoshida to try to release the Englishmen.

A possible solution may lie in appeals entered by the sailors' lawyers today. If the appeal court freed the men it would save face for Yoshida and presumably satisfy the British.

Public Hearing On Water Levels At Washington

WASHINGTON (AP)—The International Joint Commission is planning a public hearing Sept. 4 at Watertown, N.Y., on the issue of Lake Ontario water levels.

J. B. Ellis, commission secretary, said the hearing will cover the whole issue of the lake level which has been in dispute between the United States and Canada in recent months.

A final hearing on the issue is to be held at a later date in Washington. Ellis said the date has not yet been set. Other hearings have already been held in Rochester and Toronto.

The commission also has scheduled a hearing for Sept. 2 at Albany on the St. Lawrence power project.

Additional public hearings are to be held in Canada on the lake level and power issues, but the time and place have not been set, Ellis said.

The cadets arrived Sunday on the last leg of a United States tour. They arrived in Washington July 28 for a three-day visit after which each group visited a separate state.

The Kibitzer

Bridge abounds with no-trump hounds who do not seem to give a hoot for contracts that belong in suit. Rules aver such players err. But fall down flat convincing those who come out smelling like a rose.

From a recent tournament comes the deal shown here:

NORTH
♠K 9 3
♥10 9 5
♣Q J 9 3

WEST
♠7 5 2
♦8 6 5 4
♣10 7 6 5

EAST
♥J 8 4
♦A J 10 7
♣A K 8 4

SOUTH
♠Q 10 6 4 3
♥A K Q 7 3

Correct bidding is as follows:

South	North
1 S	2 C
2 H	2 S
4 S	Pass

No one can question the fact that south should start with a bid in one of his major suits. But some may prefer an early reply of no-trump in the north hand because of his balanced distribution.

Nevertheless, rule dictates the advisability of showing a new suit in preference to a no-trump bid. Since it is forcing for one round, there is no reason for north to avoid this even here.

Some players might think the second bid of two spades by the north player is too weak. But rule says an assist is preferred to no-trump. So, from rule standpoint, the assist is correct.

In some cases, east doubled for penalty when opponents four spade bid seemed too high. But all east got was a club, a diamond, and one trump. Top on the board came to the south players there.

By the time rule reaches four spades it is too late for the no-trump showing. However, some norths avoided suit and persisted to three no-trump, which south passed. South should prefer it in a major suit.

Ordinarily, three no-trump should be defeated. And it would be, if west were on lead. But with north as declarer at no-trump, the lead must come from east and a no-trump game or more will make.

So, these no-trumpers still think they are right.

Civilization Proves Fatal To Polar Bear

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP)—Civilization proved fatal to the fully-grown polar bear that wandered into this Hudson Bay port last Friday.

While crossing the railway tracks, it met a young woman. With marked unsociability, she scrambled to the top of the nearest box-car.

The bear ambled toward the whaling station on the bank of the Churchill River. A group of youngsters gave chase—at a distance—and bruin began to run. Then it met Aginook and his rifle.

The Eskimo and his family now are enjoying polar bear steak.

Labor Endorses Program All-Out Armament

LONDON (Reuters)—The executive of the Labor party yesterday endorsed a program of all-out rearmament "within the limits of our power to find the means."

The statement was issued in advance of the party's annual convention next month, at which the rate of rearmament is expected to provoke lively argument and possibly a clash over leadership.

Librarians Fight Losing Battle To Save Books

OTTAWA (CP)—Librarians are fighting a nip-and-tuck battle against mold and mildew threatening thousands of valuable water-damaged books from Canada's parliamentary library.

They were winning for a while with the aid of four big humidifiers drying the books water-soaked when firemen fought a blaze in the library dome a week ago.

But during the week-end a 14-hour downpour of rain hit the capital. It increased the humidity in which mold and mildew thrive. Also more water seeped into the library again through its damaged dome.

As a result, library officials said last night they could not estimate what the final cost may be of rehabilitating Canada's most valuable book collection, one that was to be the nucleus for a national library.

R. M. Hamilton, assistant librarian, said the "mold just keeps growing and increasing the damage." It may mean the rebinding of many books otherwise not seriously damaged in the fire.

"If you figure $4 a binding for several thousand books—I just haven't any idea how many—that runs into a lot of money," he said.

HMPH! IT WAS HARDLY WORTH HIS GOING HOME TO BED
BUT IT'S NOW FIVE AFTER NINE, AND HE'S LATE! I SUPPOSE BECAUSE HE WORKED LATE LAST NIGHT HE THINKS HE CAN BREEZE IN ANY TIME THIS MORNING
AH, SHADDUP!!
YOU'LL HAVE TO EXCUSE MAC. HE'S A TERRIBLE GROUCH UNTIL HE HAS HIS MORNING COFFEE

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR WED. AUG 13, 1952

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Promising influences, especially where keen judgment, good planning are needed and used. Authors, scientists, secretaries, industrial trades favored.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Could be pleasant if not extravagantly successful day. You should advance some, but don't reach for impossible heights or insist upon immediate money returns.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Excellent Mercury vibrations. This is your day not to fail the capable, ambitious you. Investigate, study, research! Brain workers and most physical tasks sponsored.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Should be profitable, progressive period for iron work, plumbing, building, handling vehicles, tools, etc. Artistic matters less stimulated but can achieve.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Your Sun advises caution in hazardous work and dealings with superiors. Don't seek favors unless you feel all are receptive or will not be imposed upon.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Happy, prosperous outlook. Be equal to reasonable demands, take advantage of new, good offerings. Venture some when you can add to income, security, family happiness.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Work hard to further wise aims and objectives. Day not overexacting nor too auspicious, but benefic influences prevail and you can glean their good. Don't overdo.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Slightly restricting influences since yesterday only tend to make this a better day for brain work, conferences, industry.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Friendly aspects going to very benefic ones after midnight. Without trying to force results, use your best effort. Gains, advancement to be had.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—A day for stimulating accomplishment, making new, valuable contacts, and finishing tasks. Brain work, physical prowess both favored.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Today responsive to sincere endeavors, especially where smart thinking and planning back it. The unusual in management can bring fresh gain.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Another fine planetary day in this should-be progressive Pisces-month. No matter how difficult the job, or the day's general demands, you can make advancement.

YOU BORN TODAY: Strong character, innately brave, honorable, ambitious, sensitive, above pettiness. Curb tendency to domineer, or to be impatient at suggestions. Keep your naturally sunny disposition out front; pray when troubled or in doubt. Don't heed flatterers. Birthdate: Sir Geo. Grove, noted writer on music; Alfred J. Hitchcock, motion picture director.

ASKS REPORT

WINDSOR (CP)—Gordon Fraser announced yesterday he has asked the Essex County Medical Association to inspect and report on the 350-bed East Windsor hospital for Incurables. Mr. Fraser heads an Ontario government inquiry into the hospital's affairs, which has entered its 12th week.

HOUSE BURNS

KINCARDINE (CP) — Loss of $10,000 was caused by fire of unknown origin at the home of Clifford Munro in Kincardine Township yesterday. Mr. Munro only recently completed construction of the building. He and his wife were working in the fields when the fire started.

Polio in Canada Has Hit Hardest At Manitoba

(By The Canadian Press)

Poliomyelitis in Canada this year has hit hardest at Manitoba.

A Canadian Press survey today showed that the western province to date has had 142 cases. There have been five deaths.

Alberta's death toll has been higher, although that province has had fewer reported cases than Manitoba. The Alberta toll yesterday stood at 10 deaths among 121 cases. Two of the ten deaths were reported last night.

Ontario follows with 89 cases and two deaths. In British Columbia 61 persons have been ill with the disease. Eight have died.

At Toronto, officials of the Ontario Department of Health say that the disease is unpredictable. Weather doesn't seem to affect it, because cases have been reported even in the Arctic.

Last year in Ontario, the outbreak occurred earlier and by this time there were 371 cases with 13 deaths. In all, the province had 1,699 cases last year with 78 deaths. However officials said last year's total cases were still below the 3,000 figure of 1937.

Canadian Union Group in Moscow

LONDON (CP) —A Canadian trade union delegation arrived in Moscow yesterday, Tass, official Russian news agency, reported.

Tass said the delegation is headed by Bruce Magnussen of Port Arthur, Ont., and is visiting Russia at the invitation of the Soviet Trade Union Council.

Truce Talks May End In No Solution

By SAM SUMMERLIN

MUNSAN, Korea (AP) — The Korean truce talks may be on their deathbed.

They seem paralyzed. They show symptoms of dying a slow, distressing death—on the doorstep to success.

After one year of negotiating, war prisoner exchange is the only issue blocking the path to peace. But there seems no solution to this question which can satisfy both belligerents.

The U.N. and Communist delegates have met only twice in two weeks. They have talked only 84 minutes in the last 17 days.

Today, the negotiators called another week-long recess. For seven more days, the truce teams will bide their time at Munsan and Kaesong as the war flames on.

Maj.-Gen. William K. Harrison, top U.N. delegate, today told the Communists: "There seems nothing to discuss."

"There is no way," Harrison explained, "in which we can change our position." And, he added, the Allied stand "cannot be reconciled" with the Communist demands.

House Defeats Proposal By Ben-Gurion

JERUSALEM (AP)—Israel's parliament, defeating a proposal by Premier David Ben-Gurion, last night designated the World Zionist Organization the "representative organization of all the Jewish people."

The measure, adopted by a vote of 31 to 7, provides that the Zionist organization "shall continue to work, for the development and colonization of the country (Israel)."

Ben-Gurion had proposed that the Zionist body be recognized only as the "authorized agency" for developing the country.

Imposing Parade Highlights Decoration Day Ceremonies

MARMORA.—Rain showers of the day marred the attendance of civilians at the annual Decoration Day ceremonies held by Marmora Branch No. 237 Canadian Legion on Sunday afternoon, but augmented by comrades of the Campbellford and Frankford branches and members of the Ladies' Auxiliary, the Legionnaires took part in an imposing parade to the town hall and thence to the two local cemeteries and Memorial Hall.

Parade

The parade was in charge of Zone Commander, Capt. Percy Gray. The color party in which colors of Campbellford Branch 103 and its Ladies' Auxiliary and Frankford Branch, besides those of Marmora Branch No. 237 were carried, was in charge of Comrade Albert Bartlett.

Hastings and Prince Edward Trumpet Band, under Lieut. Armund Duffy, led the parade. Trumpeter Glenn Cornell, sounded the Last Post and Reveille at each cemetery, as well as at the Memorial Hall.

The service at the town hall was conducted by W. J. Cottrell, chaplain of the Marmora Branch. Mrs. A. F. Fraser was pianist. Following the singing of "Fight the Good Fight", the chaplain took the Scripture reading from Rev. 7, wherein is described the countless multitude of souls before the Throne of God, and also offered the invocation prayer.

Christian Soldiers

The Rev. Kenneth J. Crawford, B.A., B.D., gave the address, referring to St. Paul's observations of the Roman soldier, his injunctions to the Christian soldiers and his (Paul's) own personal exemplification of the life of a true soldier. Prayers having been offered by Canon J. M. Brownlie, the hymn, "O God Our Help in Ages Past", was sung, followed by the National Anthem. The benediction was pronounced by Canon Brownlie.

Sacred Heart Cemetery

At Sacred Heart Cemetery, the Rev. Father J. A. O'Neill read the list of veterans interred there, and in other cemeteries in Canada and overseas. Flowers were deposited by Legionnaires around a white wooden cross. A comrade was stationed at each grave, where a special marker had been placed.

Father O'Neill in his address, paid tribute to the Legion for carrying on this annual ceremony, and to the thought in each comrade's heart as he remembered the sacrifices he had shared with those gone before.

"We all think of the soldier with pride and joy", he declared. He also spoke of the life produced by the soil to serve other life until eventually the greatest life that God created—man, with a soul having a spark of Divinity—was served. Following his address he offered prayers.

Protestant Cemetery

At the Protestant Cemetery, the same form of decoration was followed, the chaplain reading the list of departed comrades.

At the Memorial Hall, a poppy wreath was laid before the Memorial tablets by Comrade Stanley Kerr, president of the Marmora Branch.

Upon return to the Legion Hall those taking part in the parade were thanked by Zone Commander Gray.

Health Minister Predicts Safe Year for Polio

TORONTO (CP)—Health Minister Phillips of Ontario last night predicted this would be a comparatively safe polio year for the province. Incidence of polio is less than one-quarter as high as last year.

There have been roughly one-sixth as many cases resulting in paralysis and only one-ninth as many deaths, Dr. Phillips said.

General A. Nye Commissioner For High Post

LONDON (CP)—Lt.-Gen. Sir Archibald Nye, soldier-diplomat, sails for Montreal today to take over the post of United Kingdom high commissioner in Canada.

With Sir Archibald will be Lady Nye, daughter of Sir Harry and Lady Knox, their young daughter, Harriet, and 23-year-old Sheila Stevenson, Lady Nye's daughter by her first marriage.

Prior to his new appointment, Sir Archibald was Britain's high commissioner in India and earlier governor of Madras. From 1941 to 1946 he was vice-chief of the imperial general staff with particular accent on liaison between air and ground forces.

A native of Dublin, Sir Archibald joined the British army as "Private Ted Nye" in 1914 and won a commission within a year. His first regiment, the now-defunct Leinsters, had a remote link with Canada.

This was an Irish force which was also called the "royal Canadians" because it fought at Niagara in the 19th century.

Halted by Crash 120 Spend Night In Raging Gale

LLANBERIS, Wales (Reuters)—About 120 people, marooned by a plane crash which blocked a mountain railway line, spent last night in a raging gale at the summit of 3,560-foot Mount Snowdon.

Some stayed in a chalet on the peak, the highest in Wales. Others stayed in the trains.

The line was blocked for several hours when an R.A.F. bomber crashed on the track, killing the crew of three. By the time it was cleared the howling wind made it unsafe for two trains, held up by the crash, to proceed along the steep mountain railway.

Social Credit Gains Another Seat in Alberta

EDMONTON (AP)—Social Credit gained another seat in the Alberta Legislature last night with the re-election of Peter Chaba on the third count of ballots in the Redwater riding. It was the first time a third count was necessary in the Aug. 5 election anywhere except in Edmonton and Calgary.

Crashes Into Truck

OSHAWA (CP)—A police cruiser carrying 16-year-old Lois Parr of Brooklin to hospital early today crashed into a truck, snapped off a telegraph pole and overturned in a ditch.

The girl received bruises and minor cuts. Her brother, Glen, 14, also is in hospital with cuts and head injuries.

Police Identification of Criminals Aided by Photographer's Process

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Police departments all over the United States are taking their hats off to Frank Reeves' hats-on method of criminal identification.

"The most progressive step in police identification procedure in 50 years," is the way some experts describe it.

Reeves, a professional photographer here, has invented a method of putting hats on police photographs of suspects, that makes it easier for witnesses, in some cases, to make positive identification.

The police departments of Camden, N.J., Huntington W. Va., and Cleveland, are among 42 others throughout the country that use his method of criminal identification.

Reeves became fascinated with the scientific identification section of police work some 20 years ago when he worked as a police reporter for a newspaper in Lexington, Ky.

"Time and again," he said, "I'd see witnesses hesitate over a photograph of a suspect. They'd say that they thought he was the man but they couldn't be certain because he was wearing a hat when they saw him."

Considerable Study

This is the way it works:

Front and profile pictures of more than 120 styles of hats caps, tams and other headgear are mounted on a large sheet of transparent plexiglass.

Reeves' hobby is photographing policemen. His "Gallery of Louisville Police" contains photos of more than 500 local policemen, F.B.I. agents, U.S. marshals and private detectives.

The photographer built up his album by offering to make free portraits of law enforcement officers. When an officer comes in for his free photograph, Reeves makes an extra print for his own "gallery."

Reeves' offer is made on a small card which he hands out. On it is a small photo of himself and this inscription:

"Wanted! Frank Reeves.

This man has 'shot' over 300 policemen."

You can do more than fell and buck trees with a McCulloch chain saw. You can limb, slab, cut cordwood and posts. But here's one of the most important things you can do—you can pick up your McCulloch in one hand, and carry it easily to the next cut. Try that with any other big-timber saw.

Orderly Tries To Eject Doctors In Operating Room

TORONTO (CP)—A hospital orderly who stumbled drunkenly into an operating room and tried to eject doctors who were performing an operation was fined $10 yesterday. He also lost his job.

Doctors testified that Vacys Andrrulsis, 34-year-old orderly at East General Hospital, burst into the room and ordered every one to get out. Two doctors and a nurse forced him out.

Police told the court that the orderly was in a drunken condition and fighting with doctors who were in the midst of an operation.

Andrrulsis pleaded guilty.

Underneath The Bough

By Edna G. Robins

Although it was rather late when Harry Weston left, Louise Bentley did not go straight to bed.

She sat down on the floor and pressed her face against the smooth coldness of her hope chest. It was a beautiful cedar chest that had served her mother, too, when mother was a bride.

"I don't care how late it is," Louise muttered. "I'm going to look at my things."

She pulled the chest out a little way from the wall, just as her mother's voice called to her from the front room.

"Don't stay up too late, dear. It's after 11 o'clock, you know."

"Yes, I'll go to bed soon, mother."

She tiptoed to the door and closed it softly, so that the light would not disturb her mother. Then she returned to the hope chest and almost reverently lifted the lid. She stared down at the soft, neat piles of linen.

Louise knelt down beside the chest and began to touch her treasures lovingly. She had a goodly store of fine linen sheets and pillow cases which she had embroidered with her initials and edged with crocheted lace. Her table linen, too, was embroidered. She drew out set after set of doilies and teacloths with varying designs worked in gay colors.

"I don't know," she murmured. "The holly pattern is pretty dark for a white background. And yet it is striking—with red candles—and the red tea service of mother's that she said she would give me—I guess it will be all right."

She laid the set aside and drew out another.

"I'm sorry I put so much yellow into this set. It's the finest one I have. I didn't know when I embroidered it that yellow does not wash so well. I thought it looked bright and cheerful. Perhaps if I wash all these myself, the yellow won't run."

One after another she drew out her doilies, some embroidered, others edged deep with lace.

"How did I ever find time to do so much," she wondered. "But my goodness, I suppose it's 10 years since I began to work for my hope chest."

She looked back almost wistfully to the little girl of 12 who had put away her dolls and started so innocently to prepare for the duties of her womanhood.

Underneath the table linen was her fine nainsook underwear. This had been made by hand. Patiently and lovingly she had made the French seams and sewed on the lace—a row of insertion, a row of beading, and a row of edging. Through the beading she had run white satin ribbon. She had used white for each dainty set. Some grils were using pink or blue ribbon that showed through their fine white batiste blouses, but this Louise did not like—calling attention to their underwear. It offended her modesty.

Slowly she began to lay the things back in the chest. She was conscious of a feeling of depression and hurried to put them away, trying not to think any more about the future. At least the chest was full and she snapped the lock with a smile that ended strangely in a sob. She threw her arms across the chest and tenderly kissed the polished wood.

"I won't open you again," she whispered, "until I'm—a wife."

In the sunny parlor of her new house, after she became a wife, Louise was entertaining friends at tea. She was at home on Thursdays. She sat primly on a stiffly upholstered chair near the window and exchanged commonplaces with two other brides.

They were all very dignified, feeling keenly the importance and responsibility of their position as young matrons. After they had gossiped for a while, Louise invited them into the back parlor for refreshments. Over the delicious tea and cake their still exuberant girlishness could no longer bear the restraints of company manners, and the three brides began to exchange confidences about their housekeeping problems.

"You know, Cecile has a maid" said Josie Brown, "and she does not get up in the morning. She has a tray in bed. I don't think that's right. I wouldn t think it was fair to my husband to be so lazy, even if I had a maid."

"Well, Cecile's mother was French," Louise said. "They do that sort of thing over there, of course."

"I don't suppose you'll have time for your art work now, Louise, will you?" Sadie Gibson's question was mildly spiteful.

She had always thought Louise was very stuck-up about that old art school of hers. How any nice girl could want to mess around with a lot of horrid, smelly, sticky paints, she didn't see. She had run in to see Louise one day before her mariage and had found her in a big apron all covered with daubs of paint. She was putting more daubs of paint on a canvas and making the awfullest most meaningless mess out of it all. And Louise was so wrapped up in it, she had hardly paid any attention to Sadie and had showed in just the rudest way that she wished Sadie would go away and leave her to her painting.

"Yes, your housework will take up all your time, I guess, won't it. Louise?" This was from Josie.

Josie was quite unaware of the malicious pleasure Sadie was taking from the situation, but Louise sensed it instantly.

Here is the handwriting of the born salesman, at ease with people and always 'on the go.' The open right slant of the writing reveals his extroverted personality and there is energy and drive in the heavy pressure and speed with which the words are written. The large capital 'I' shows an over-sensitive pride. It also suggests a touch of showmanship.

You will usually find this type of writer in the centre of social gatherings, talking to everyone and making everyone feel at home, but the sharp points of the capital 'M' show that advantage can't be taken of this person.

Moslems to Oppose West Talks While U.K. Retains Hold

Leader Announces Stand When Committees Formed

CAIRO (AP)—The chief of Egypt's Moslem Brotherhood today warned that his powerful political organization would oppose any defence talks with the west while Britain retains her hold on the neighboring Sudan and the Suez Canal Zone.

The brotherhood's "Supreme Guide," Hassan el Hodeiby, announced this stand in an interview shortly after the Egyptian cabinet set up seven committees armed with sweeping powers to clean up public corruption dating as far back as 1939.

Crack-Down By Naguib

The latest government action was viewed by informed sources as the results of pressure for a swift crack-down from Egypt's military power, Gen. Mohammed Naguib, and the army. Premier Aly Maher had suggested that political parties be given time to purge their own ranks, but so far the powerful Wafd party—expected to be a chief target of the graft clean-up—has kicked out only six minor party members.

The government also issued a decree setting progressive income tax rates that reach as high as 80 per cent on incomes of £50,000 Egyptian ($144,000). The new rates become effective next January on incomes earned during 1952.

Hodeiby indicated that the brotherhood, which claims millions of supporters and is reported to have a strong following among leaders of the army coup d'etat that ousted King Farouk, wants social reforms and the political clean-up given top priority among the country's problems.

Must Have Free Choice

The Moslem leader declared that even if Britain withdraws from the Canal Zone and the Sudan, "Egypt must be given a free choice on whether she wants to join the west or prefers to take a stand of complete neutrality."

Last October, Egypt cancelled the 1936 treaty giving Britain the right to garrison the Canal Zone. At the same time she demanded annexation of the Sudan, which she has ruled jointly with Britain.

Britain maintains that the Sudanese people should determine their own future. It also refuses to quit the Suez. The dispute has held up negotiations on a western-proposed Middle East defence pact modeled after the Atlantic Pact.

At the same time as he announced the new taxation program, Premier Aly Maher doubled the meagre pay of Egyptian Army enlisted men, raising their monthly wage from £1 five shillings to £2.

Income tax will range from eight per cent on the first £1,000 to 80 per cent on incomes exceeding £50,000.

Harry G. Kimber New Publisher Of Globe & Mail

TORONTO (CP)—Harry G. Kimber, assistant publisher of the Globe and Mail for several years, today succeeded the late George McCullagh as president of that newspaper and of the Toronto Telegram which Mr. McCullagh also owned.

Mr. Kimber also becomes publisher of the Globe and Mail and acting publisher of the Telegram, also in succession to Mr. McCullagh who died Aug. 5 of a heart attack at his home in suburban Thornhill.

Announcement of Mr. Kimber's new appointment at the Globe and Mail was made only in the newspaper's masthead. Until this morning he was listed there as assistant publisher. Today he is listed as president and publisher.

Assistant Publisher

The masthead also contains announcement that editor-in-chief Oakley Dalgleish has been appointed assistant publisher.

The Telegram, announcing Mr. Kimber's new post with that paper said Henry E. Langford, general manager of Chartered Trust Company, has become a new Telegram director.

Chartered trust is one of the executors of Mr. McCullagh's estate. Other executors are Mr. Kimber J. Maitland Macintosh, Q.C., Mr. McCullagh's counsel in respect to the Globe and Mail; and John S.D. Tory, Q.C., his counsel in respect to the Telegram.

Yesterday the executors announced application for probate of the McCullagh will "will be made in due course." Their statement gave no indication of the amount of the estate or its disposition.

Reds Accused Of Endangering Lives of Soldiers

MUNSAN, Korea (AP)—The United Nations today accused the Communists of endangering the lives of U.N. soldiers in North Korean prison camps by failing to pinpoint camp sites.

The U.N. asked the Communists to furnish the information "without further delay."

The request was in a letter from Maj.-Gen. William K. Harrison, chief U.N. truce delegate, handed to North Korean Gen. Nam Il, top Red negotiator, at a liaison officers' meeting this afternoon at Panmunjom. The main delegations are in recess until Tuesday.

Col. Charles W. McCarthy, chief U.N. liaison officer, today handed the Reds two other letters answering their protests that U.N. artillery shells landed in the Panmunjom neutral circle on Aug. 3 and that Allied planes flew over the zone on Aug. 4, 10 and 11.

McCarthy said an investigation showed Allied guns were firing south of the Panmunjom site on Aug. 3. He said "it is entirely possible" some fragments fell inside the zone.

McCarthy said investigation failed to show Allied planes went over Panmunjom on Aug. 4. But on Aug. 10 and 11, planes did fly over, the U.N. recognized the possibility they may have been U.N. aircraft, and regretted the incidents.

The Red liaison officer, Col. Chang Chun, accepted the letters and lodged a protest that U.N. planes flew over Panmunjom again yesterday.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: Pleasant sunny weather in southern Ontario but cloudiness with widely scattered showers in Northern Ontario is the general picture for Wednesday and Thursday's weather in Ontario.

South to southwest winds are expected to set in overnight and will bring generaly warmer air to the province.

BIGGER AIRPORT

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—Unofficial reports say this city is to get a long-sought extension to its airport. Following a visit by Transport Minister Chevrier, it was reported a new mile-lone runway will be built to handle the largest aircraft.

$16 Million Highway Project For Ontario to Ease Congestion

TORONTO (CP)—Highways Minister Doucett of Ontario yesterday announced a $18,000,000 highway projejct designed to eliminate traffic congestion at seven bottlenecks in Ontario.

"Immediate start will be made by the department on the projects which have been chosen as most urgently in need of attention," said Mr. Doucett. "There are, unfortunately, many others which will be given immediate attention as rapidly as finances and materials will permit."

Included in the "removal-bottleneck" operation of the department are the following projects:

1. Construction of a controlled access highway for 20 miles from Eastwood on highway 2 and running south of Woodstock to intersection with highway 4, approximately midway between London and St. Thomas. This road, when completed will form part of the new Windsor-Toronto highway, and make it possible for through traffic to avoid the heavily populated urban centres of London, Ingersoll and Woodstock. It also will help divert a portion of the through traffic around St. Thomas and Tillsonburg.

2. Construction of a 16-mile diversion to connect highway 35 with highway 28 south of Peterborough. This new road will relieve pressure of traffic on No. 2 highway from Newcastle to Port Hope by diverting traffic from highways 7 and 28 at Peterborough to highway 2-A now nearly completed to Newcastle.

3. The grading of a controlled access highway to the north of Kingston from Cataraqui easterly as a part of the eventual Toronto-Montreal road. Steel for the structures on this line will be ordered and bridges proceeded with as soon as steel is received.

4. The building of an express route on highway 11, from Crown Hill to a point north of Orillia, including the Orillia by-pass, to relieve congestion which is particularly pressing in summer.

5. Completion of highway 69 from Parry Sound to Burwash to shorten the route between Toronto and Sudbury, and to relieve pressure of traffic on highway 11.

UNION, PACKERS AGREE ON 7-CENT WAGE BOOST

Price of Meat Will Likely be Increased

TORONTO (CP)—An agreement has been reached between the United Packinghouse Workers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) and the big three of the industry which is expected to set a pattern for the industry.

The agreement, announced last night, between the union and Canada Packers, Swifts and Burns and Company affects 10,000 workers. The proposed contract now goes before the union membership for ratification.

The agreement provides for a seven-cent hourly wage increase retroactive to Aug. 1. This increase—five per cent—brings the starting rate to about $1.33 an hour and the average rate to $1.57. The agreement also provides for 1½ cents an hour in other benefits.

Work Week Reduced

The work week is reduced from 42 to 40 hours. Previously only Swifts had a 40-hour week. The cost-of-living formula has been abandoned by the union on the basis of a two-year agreement, which can be reopened Aug. 1, 1953.

W. R. Carroll, general superintendent of Canada Packers, said the increase would add more than $1,000,000 to the company's wage bill. This, he said, would have to be included in the price of meat to the public.

The agreement was reached without aid of conciliation services.

Talks Probably Solved Some Campaign Worries

WASHINGTON (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson's visit with President Truman may have both helped and hurt his presidential cause.

It probably solved some campaign worries—such as Truman's agreement to take orders in the battle ahead—but it gave Dwight D. Eisenhower ammunition which the Republican candidate promptly fired at his Democratic opponent.

Stevenson made a flying visit to Washington yesterday for talks with the President, his cabinet and top military leaders, and returned to Springfield, Ill., with a firmer grip on his campaign command.

From now on, it is up to Stevenson to decide what Truman will do in the campaign—and when.

Ike Blasts Administration

Eisenhower, in a statement issued in Denver, said the White House visit shows the Truman administration is determined to continue its policies through a handpicked successor. He said these "implications" were raised:

1. That the President is thinking of using federal government resources to influence voters in the election.

2. An implied decision to involve non-political military and national-security personnel in a political campaign "in which they have no part."

3. That the Democratic party would not change its policies if given another four years "to control our destinies."

CONSUL TO STAY

Dr. Georges Mares, 43, former Czecnoslovakian consul-general in Montreal, has resigned his diplomatic post after four years to seek refuge in Canada for himself, his wife and daughters Helen, 16, Hanna, 8, and Marguerite, 10. Dr. Mares, a former Communist, said he hopes to live permanently in Canada and become a Canadian citizen.

CHALK RIVER, Ont. (CP)—It's several years since he went away but handsome Bruno Pontecorvo remains the big man of mystery at Canada's Chalk River atomic plant.

Not that his name is often mentioned now. One senior scientist recently called Pontecorvo a forgotten man at Chalk River.

But the men who worked with him here for several years and liked and trusted him still find it hard to believe that he is working on Russian production of the atomic and possibly the hydrogen bomb, hard to believe that he stands with Nunn, May and Fuchs as a tragic trinity of traitors against the west. But they know, too, that it must be true.

Said Key Man

Some news dispatches have credited the dashing 42-year-old Italian physicist with being the key man in Russia's drive to produce an H-bomb. But the same stories also credited Pontecorvo with being the chief designer of Chalk River's own unique heavy-water atom-splitting reactor and that's wrong, so the people here don't know what to believe.

It's accepted now, though, that he is in Russia and that he must be working on the Soviet's atomic program. Why he went there, whether he was a secret Communist while here from roughly 1945 to 1948, whether he was feeding the Russians secrets in Canada—all these things are part of the Pontecorvo mystery.

Not Senior Man

Scientists here say they can't imagine him as the driving force behind any H-bomb program. He was a first-class physicist and one of 20 who helped develop the Chalk River reactor, but he wasn't the senior one by any means.

He came with a British scientific team about the end of the war. He was working on cosmic rays and all he seemed to want to do was to get back into his laboratory and work on cosmic rays.

He didn't show any special interest in the reactor. He didn't work at anything that would equip him particularly for work on an H-bomb.

Gay and Popular

Off work here, he was gay, pleasant, popular. He liked parties and was an excellent tennis player. He didn't seem to have a clue about politics, certainly never championed communism even though some of his family were Communists in Italy.

When he left he was offered a permanent job here but turned it down because he said he had promised to go back to the British atomic project. He went and in 1940 he and his family went to Italy on holiday and then vanished.

One guess here is that when Pontecorvo got among Communist relatives in Italy pressure was brought to bear in some unknown way which forced him to do the bidding of the Reds. It's only a guess. Nobody really knows what made Bruno Pontecorvo do what he did.

Small Apple Crop In New England

BOSTON (AP) — The smallest New England apple crop since 1946 is expected this year, the New England crop reporting service said today.

The agency, a United States Department of Agriculture division, said the Aug. 1 estimate of 5,044,000 bushels shows a decline of 13 per cent from the July 1 estimate.

Dry, hot weather, continuation of June drop, scab, wind, and hail damage all were factors causing the decline.

The production forecast this year is 41 per cent less than the 1951 production of 8,501,000 bushels, and 22 per cent less than the 10-year average.

3 Dead, 1 Injured In Car Crash

CHICOUTIMI (CP)—Three persons were killed and another injured last night when their automobile crashed into a parked truck on the Quebec-Chicoutimi highway.

Dead: Emile Ferland and Mrs. Ferland of Kenogami, Que., and a soldier whose surname was reported as Baudin, of Chicoutimi.

Huguette Ferland, daughter of the dead couple, is in hospital here where her condition is said to be fair.

The collision occurred about 50 miles from Chicoutimi when the car plowed into the platform of a truck loaded with livestock.

MARINES REPEL SECOND ATTEMPT TO REGAIN RIDGE

750 Chinese Reds Cut To Ribbons by Artillery

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—United States Marines and artillery today cut to ribbons 750 Chinese Communists assaulting Marines entrenched in prefabricated bunkers atop Bunker Hill on the Korean western front.

The battalion-sized attack—second major bid of the Chinese to recapture the height—was broken at dawn. Chinese losses were described as heavy.

The Marine commander, Maj.-Gen. John T. Selden, said the strategic ridge overlooking the Panmunjom truce site "is Marine territory now."

Red Attack Repelled

Marine foot soldiers, supported by flame-throwing tanks, captured the strongly-fortified height and nearby Siberia Hill early yesterday. The Reds counter-attacked at dusk yesterday but were thrown back with heavy losses.

In mid-afternoon today communist artillery and mortar fire was falling on Bunker Hill.

The U.S. navy said its carrier planes yesterday struck a heavy blow against major Red supply and troop concentrations south of Wonsan, east coast port city. The navy said 40 buildings, including barracks, were flattened with heavy casualties to Red troops. All carrier planes returned safely, the navy said.

Island Shelled

Communist shore guns near Wonsan shelled Yodo Island, about 15 miles northeast of Wonsan, hitting the small repair ship U.S.S. Grapple. The navy said damage was slight and that there were no casualties.

The navy added that the destroyer Jarvis destroyed a train—a locomotive and 14 tank and box cars.

A Marine spokesman estimated the Communists threw 6,000 rounds of artillery against Bunker Hill in today's four-hour attack. Marine gunners laid down a curtain of fire as Red soldiers darted through the darkness in a frantic charge.

"It was a hell of a fight but they never reached our positions," the spokesman said. "When the Chinese finally began retreating we really slugged them with artillery."

Dies of Burns

RIVIERE DU LOUP, Que. (CP)—Alfred Cusson, about 30, of Hamilton, died in hospital here yesterday from burns suffered when his truck-trailer caught fire.

En route to New Brunswick, the furniture-laden trailer caught fire while passing through here and Mr. Cusson was unaware of the fact. A passing motorist warned him, but the driver suffered facial and body burns before he could leave the vehicle.

Col. McNaughton Undecided About Changing Name for $250,000 Fortune

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA (AP)—Lt.-Col. Edward Murray Dalziel McNaughton said today he doesn't "like the idea of changing my name," but will wait until next year before deciding whether to do so to collect a $250,000 fortune.

The will of Mrs. James Norman Stuart Leslie, who died in May, said she is his aunt and left him $250,000 and her home in Kingston, Ont., on condition he adopt the name of Leslie.

McNaughton, 32, a bachelor and commander of the 1st Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, said in an interview:

"I haven't the least idea what Im going to do. I'm quite comfortably off as it is and I don't particularly need the money. Naturally, I don't like the idea of changing my name. My father, (Gen. A.G.L. McNaughton, chairman of the Canadian section of the International Joint Commission) is very well known and I am quite happy with it.

"There's the question of taxes and things like that. If Doug Abbot (Canadian minister of finance) takes too big a chunk of it, I don't see any inducement in the legacy itself."

He said the will came as no surprise and explained that it's quite a custom in Canada and England to ask the second son of a near relative to assume the name of a family without male heirs.

He said the name of Leslie "is a respected name. My uncle and great uncle commanded this regiment in the name of Leslie. My uncle and aunt had no children and since I have an older brother who carries on my father's name, my aunt asked me to carry on her name."

"If the old girl sincerely wanted me to continue the family name, it very possibly will be a matter of personal honor for me."

McNaughton's home is Ottawa. He served in the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery in the Middle East and Europe during the Second World War in the Canadian Army commanded by his father.

Six months ago, Col. McNaughton brought his regiment over to Korea as supporting artillery for the 25th brigade.

The will says that if McNaughton refuses to change his last name children of any future marriage are to be given a similar opportunity.

Coal Price Jumps $1.50 Per Ton 'Across Board'

Higher Freight, Labor Costs Cause Says C.R.C.A. Head

TORONTO (CP)—The price of anthracite coal here will be increased "at least $1.50 across the board" over the spring price of $24.25, E.R. Lockyer, president of the Canadian Retail Coal Association, said today.

Mr. Lockyer said the increase will be made necessary by: the 20 cents a ton freight-increase recently granted the railroads; the probability that labor costs will climb after United States coal industry contract negotiations next month; the coal industry's intention of taking back a $1 reduction allowed in the spring to encourage summer sales.

He said about 30 per cent of the coal, the smaller sizes, may be up $2.25 over the May price. The increase might come "perhaps in the next few days" and at least 50 cents will be passed along to the consumer before Sept. 1.

A Belleville retail coal dealer stated today he had received no word of a price increase from the association headquarters. Special summer price here is $25.50 and this would revert to the normal price of $26.50 on September 1st. The new increase would be over the above prices.

Canadians Will 'Quite Possibly' Assist in Tests

LONDON (Reuters)—Canadian scientists will "quite possibly" participate in Britain's first atomic tests which are to take place in Australia, a usually-reliable source said today.

The source pointed out that British and Canadian atomic experts had co-operated closely since the middle of the Second World War.

If Canadian scientists do take part in the tests, on the Monte-Bello islands off Western Australia, it is understood they would come from the Canadian government's Chalk River atom plant.

(Earlier today in Canberra, Australia, Georges Carpentier, press attache at the Canadian High Commissioner's office, said there has been no indication that Canada would take part.)

Lamport Disappointed

TORONTO (CP)—Mayor Lamport said yesterday he was disappointed at the care the province of Ontario gave city-owned jail farms it has ocupied for the last 12 years. "In fairness to the citizens of Toronto, these properties either must be maintained as a continuing asset or sold outright to the province," he said.

B.C. Forest Fire Uncontrolled On 12 Mile Front

BURNS LAKE, B.C. (CP)—British Columbia's biggest forest fire of the year burned uncontrolled today over a 12-mile front, but a sudden shift in the wind stemmed its march on the tiny village of Tintagel.

Tintagel, eight miles east of here on the Prince George-Prince Rupert highway, was in the path of the fire until a southwesterly wind switched and sent the fire north, away from the town and main road.

The force battling the fire has grown to more than 200 firefighters, many of them "rounded up" by R.C.M.P. officers combing the streets of Burns Lake for able-bodied men.

The fire is burning between the Endako River and Taltapin Lake in a timber tract described by forestry men as being "as dry as a bone."

Meanwhile, reinforcements were ordered to a mountainside fire which doubled in size overnight in the Boston Bar area, 130 miles east of Vancouver.

Firefighting equipment is being flown to a lake near the fire while firefighters reach the scene by truck, boat and then on foot.

The Forestry Department estimates some 150 fires are burning throughout the province, most of them minor.

Child Dies After Lying Unconscious For 14 Months

ERIE, Pa. (AP)—A nine-year-old boy died last night after lying in a coma 14 months as a result of a mysterious street accident.

David Robert Morton was found unconscious on the street June 1, 1951, suffering from head injuries. Police said he may have been the victim of a hit-and-run driver.

He never regained consciousness. After months in hospital, he was taken home where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Burton J. Morton, maintained a 24-hour vigil at his bedside.

Peiping Radio Says Thousand Killed in Raid

TOKYO (AP)—Peiping radio last night said early reports of the bombing of Pyongyang, the North Korean capital, by United States bombers last Sunday indicated that more than 1,000 civilians were killed or wounded and 676 houses and cave shelters destroyed.

The Red propaganda broadcast, heard in Tokyo, said more than 500 bombs were dropped.

In Tokyo, Far East Air Forces headquarters announced Sunday that B-29 Superforts had bombed military vehicles and supply concentrations in Pyongyang Saturday night. It said warnings to evacuate civilians from military installations were repeated ahead of the raid.

Motorists Have Large Selection To Choose From

It rather looks like the motorist will drive the best in autos this year judging by the impressive display on exhibition at the Fair this week.

Automobiles have come a long way since their invention fifty odd years ago. Each season finds something new in the transportation field.

Trudeau Motors display is one of the finest selections to be seen at the fair. The majority of the company's exhibition consists of trucks. Along with two Chrysler sedans and one Plymouth sedan, Trudeau's are exhibiting, two half-ton express trucks, one half-ton panel truck and one three-ton stake truck. All the trucks are Fargo make.

Belleville Motor Car's display is a fascinating one in itself. There are three Meteor sedans, one Mercury sedan, one Mercury panel truck, one Mercury pick-up truck and one-three-ton Mercury stake truck.

Impressive Array

J. B. Boyce & Sons is showing an impressive array of autos as well. There is one Oldsmobile "88" convertible, red in color, one Chevrolet deluxe coach, one Chevrolet deluxe sedan, one Oldsmobile "88" sedan and one Oldsmobile "98" sedan. They also offer one Chevrolet half-ton, pick-up truck and one Chevrolet panel truck.

The Nash dealer isn't to be out done by his competitors by any means. C. R. Clapp and Son are offering one Ambassador Nash sedan along with one Statesman sedan and a Rambler Club sedan.

In the smaller car, Halloran Brothers are showing two Austin Dorsett sedans.

Riggs Motors are displaying one Monarch sedan.

2 Fliers Escape Injury In Forced Landing

Two fliers from the RCAF station at Centralia escaped injury late this morning when they made a successful forced landing in their Texan trainer east of the RCAF main station at Trenton and north of Bayside Church.

The plane, piloted by FO. K. R. Miller, an instructor at Centralia, with Pilot Officer K. H. Robinson, a NATO trainee from Cacton, Essex, England, was on a routine training flight from Centralia when they were forced to land their trainer just east of the main station at Trenton.

Both men were taken to the air force hospital at Trenton but there were no injuries.

The aircraft was not seriously damaged.

"SLUMS"
Like many other social problems, upon the spirit and method of approach to the problem depends the solution.
Without regard to future use or appearance and there being less inconvenience and pain attached, a sore tooth is often pulled out rather than treated and filled. And today teeth are often pulled out to cure an ailment in another part of the body, but the ailment still continues. We read of the "bleeding" practised by the doctors of years ago for any ailment.
With regard to our Social problems, are we still in the "bleeding" days.
Sometimes one is led to believe, from results at any rate, that all the brains in the world are focused on Atomic research. What a Godsend if we could only divert this army of master minds to solving some of our Social problems. The results would probably be no less startling and spectacular than Atomic progress.
One thing is apparent, everybody is taking a hand in the Slum problem and as the old saying goes, "What's everybody's business is nobody's business".
Taking a hand today to clean up slums are businessmen, religious organizations, municipalities, governments, gentlemen's and ladies' societies, exploiters, planning dreamers. Seldom is the slum dweller himself or the taxpayer asked or allowed to participate.
Perhaps if all the efforts supplied by each representative body and individuals were correlated and a concerted attack made upon slums in our district, the problem could be resolved.
Primarily the need for individuals or families to seek out the very lowest-cost living quarters obtainable create slums.
Of necessity, to banish slums, clean sanitary rental accommodation must be made available and sufficient funds must be in the hands of tenants to pay for same.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Prices dropped in early afternoon trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Only golds held firm.

Industrials fell more than two points on the exchange's index in the first three hours and western oils suffered more than a one-point loss. Base metals dipped nearly a point but golds advanced slightly.

Trading was moderate and volume for the first three hours totalled 1,109,000 shares.

Steels, manufacturing, papers and utilities led the industrial decline. Brazilian Traction traded more than 9,000 shares in the first three hours for a loss of half a point. Constructions, foods, retail stores and miscellaneous industrials were firm.

Speculative support for a number of secondary golds bolstered the gold index. Gunnar, a prospect, gained pennies on a turnover of more than 77,000 shares. East Malartic, a junior producer and Hugh Pam, a prospect, also gained in active trading. Senior golds were mixed.

Base metals continued the decline started Monday. Losses and gains were moderate. Western oil losses covered a wide list of leaders and lower-priced issues and ranged from one to 50 cents.

TRENTON

Police Convinced Daniel Sullivan Sound Sleeper

He claims he dozed at the wheel early yesterday morning when his car was badly wrecked damaging Agnes Shoniker's property to the extent of $150.

The uncontrolled auto running wild on Dundas street east ran over the south curb, broke off a three-inch tree on the boulevard, veered across Herman street over the sidewalk, zoomed down a steep embankment, crashed a high board fence and ploughed up part of a garden of berry bushes, rhubarb, onions and beans.

Sullivan roused sufficiently to hunt for a telephone to notify police was stopped walking to the Gilmour hill public booth. He was not detained by police and no charge was laid.

CAN'T AGREE

PARIS (AP)—Representatives of the six European army nations announced yesterday they have not been able to agree on how long soldiers should serve in the proposed one-uniform force. France and Italy have an 18-month period of service, Belgium 24, Luxembourg 12, and The Netherlands 24 months for officers and specialists and 20 months for others.

Frank Brooks Shifty Pacer In Winning Class

The large attendance on the grandstand at the Fair on Tuesday was fitting testimony to the place that the harness rac horse holds in the hearts of the district residents. Those who came witnessed a fine afternoon of racing interspersed with acts on the stage and judging of light and heavy horses under the direction of William Reid.

Billy Patterson of Perth showed a shifty green pacer in the 2.28 class and which was most capably handled by Ben Davies of Westport. Frank Brooks made every post a winning one in taking three straight heats and at no time was "he straightened" by the field, which followed. The pacer "wiggled" a mile in 2.15 of the second heat, which is not too bad, for a horse just coming out. How much faster he could have negotiated the distance will not be known as this clip was much too good for the others. Beth Hanover was the only one to give the winner a race while Billy Delose was up in time in the third heat to be second.

Ben Davies took his own horse, The Admiral, and won two heats of the 2.17 class after being third in the first dash due to a bad send off from the starting gate. Harry Ingles of Brighton had Supremus in there after a successful showing at Thorncliffe but after winning the first heat, he was sent away, on the run in the second heat and never did catch the flying Admiral, Duke McKinney, another horse owned by Ingles, raced consistently all day with two seconds and a third.

An innovation was seen at the trots yesterday when G. V. Ducette of Foxboro donated a number of driver's whips. These whips were given to the two drivers in the opinion of the judges were the most neatly dressed and had their equipment in the best shape. Charley Gallogy of Kingston won one of the whips and Del Shields won the other. The crowd liked this gesture and Miss Annette Ducette, daughter of the donor made the presentation on each occasion.

CHILD KILLED

TORONTO (CP)—Larry Saracini, 5, was killed yesterday when crushed beneath the wheels of an ice truck a few doors from his home. Police said he had been standing on the back step of the truck. His death and the death two hours earlier of George Martin, 34, injured in another accident, brought Toronto's traffic toll this year to 30.

6. Construction of the connections of highways 15 and 17 at the easterly and westerly approaches to Ottawa. It also is proposed to complete highway 17 from Ottawa to Hawkesbury as part of the trans-Canada highway. Approximately 15 miles of grading remains to be done on that route.

7. The building of a by-pass on highway 11 at Washago, in co-operation with the federal Department of Transport, to eliminate delays occurring due to the narrow swing bridge over the Trent Canal. This project involves, besides the building of a new canal bridge, construction of two structures over the lines of the Canadian National Railways.

Complete Traffic Study

Mr. Doucett said that the decision to eliminate the seven bottlenecks has been reached following intensive study of the overall traffic picture in Ontario.

"Motor registrations have reached an all-time high of 1,182,961 cars and they will probably be much higher next year," said the minister. "I want to emphasize that this program will be over and above the normal annual requirements of highway expansion and improvement."

More than 7,000,000 pounds of reinforcing steel will be needed to complete the program. Mr. Doucett said every effort will be bent to obtain the steel as rapidly as possible.

CAN'T AGREE

PARIS (AP)—Representatives of the six European army nations announced yesterday they have not been able to agree on how long soldiers should serve in the proposed one-uniform force. France and Italy have an 18-month period of service, Belgium 24, Luxembourg 12, and The Netherlands 24 months for officers and specialists and 20 months for others.

Frank Brooks Shifty Pacer In Winning Class

The large attendance on the grandstand at the Fair on Tuesday was fitting testimony to the place that the harness rac horse holds in the hearts of the district residents. Those who came witnessed a fine afternoon of racing interspersed with acts on the stage and judging of light and heavy horses under the direction of William Reid.

Billy Patterson of Perth showed a shifty green pacer in the 2.28 class and which was most capably handled by Ben Davies of Westport. Frank Brooks made every post a winning one in taking three straight heats and at no time was "he straightened" by the field, which followed. The pacer "wiggled" a mile in 2.15 of the second heat, which is not too bad for a horse just coming out. How much faster he could have negotiated the distance will not be known as this clip was much too good for the others. Beth Hanover was the only one to give the winner a race while Billy Delose was up in time in the third heat to be second.

Ben Davies took his own horse, The Admiral, and won two heats of the 2.17 class after being third in the first dash due to a bad send off from the starting gate. Harry Ingles of Brighton had Supremus in there after a successful showing at Thorncliffe but after winning the first heat, he was sent away on the run in the second heat and never did catch the flying Admiral. Duke McKinney, another horse owned by Ingles, raced consistently all day with two seconds and a third.

An innovation was seen at the trots yesterday when G. V. Ducette of Foxboro donated a number of driver's whips. These whips were given to the two drivers in the opinion of the judges were the most neatly dressed and had their equipment in the best shape. Charley Gallogy of Kingston won one of the whips and Del Shields won the other. The crowd liked this gesture and Miss Annette Ducette, daughter of the donor made the presentation on each occasion.

CHILD KILLED

TORONTO (CP)—Larry Saracini, 5, was killed yesterday when crushed beneath the wheels of an ice truck a few doors from his home. Police said he had been standing on the back step of the truck. His death and the death two hours earlier of George Martin, 34, injured in another accident, brought Toronto's traffic toll this year to 30.

6. Construction of the connections of highways 15 and 17 at the easterly and westerly approaches to Ottawa. It also is proposed to complete highway 17 from Ottawa to Hawkesbury as part of the trans-Canada highway. Approximately 15 miles of grading remains to be done on that route.

7. The building of a by-pass on highway 11 at Washago, in co-operation with the federal Department of Transport, to eliminate delays occurring due to the narrow swing bridge over the Trent Canal. This project involves, besides the building of a new canal bridge, construction of two structures over the lines of the Canadian National Railways.

Complete Traffic Study

Mr. Doucett said that the decision to eliminate the seven bottlenecks has been reached following intensive study of the overall traffic picture in Ontario.

"Motor registrations have reached an all-time high of 1,182,961 cars and they will probably be much higher next year," said the minister. "I want to emphasize that this program will be over and above the normal annual requirements of highway expansion and improvement."

More than 7,000,000 pounds of reinforcing steel will be needed to complete the program. Mr. Doucett said every effort will be bent to obtain the steel as rapidly as possible.

A BOOM IN CANADA

The Alexander Hamilton Institute of New York City, long known for its accuracy in monthly surveys of Canadian economic and financial conditions, reports in various categories what can only be interpreted as a boom in Canada. There are four headlines or highlights, where income is greatly above the same period a year ago. Farm, minerals, retail sales and, most important of all, labor are well up.

The value of retail sales in Canada rose in May for the fourth consecutive month and reached the highest monthly figure on record. Sales in May were valued at $1,053,500,000 topping the previous peak of $1,005,700,000 reached last December when trade had the benefit of the Christmas season. As compared with the sales of $931,100,000 in May last year, sales in the same month of this year showed an increase of 13.1 per cent.

Sales in May brought the total for the first five months of this year to $4,287,600,000, or 6.1 per cent above the total of $4,039,900 for the corresponding period of last year. Sales are thus well on their way toward a new high annual record in 1952. Maintenance of the first five months' gain would carry this year's total sales over the $11,000,000,000 mark, or well above last year's high record of $10,445,000,000.

In April, as in the first quarter of this year, the output of minerals in Canada was larger than a year ago. Further evidence was thus provided that this year's high volume would exceed last year's record high production. Although the outputs of six of the fifteen principal minerals produced in Canada were smaller in the first four months of this year than in the same period of last year, the decreases were more than offset by increases in the outputs of the other nine minerals.

Cash income received by Canadian farmers in the first quarter of this year rose to $585,534,000 from $494,381,000 in the corresponding period of last year, an increase of $95,624,000, or 18.4 per cent. Included in these income figures are adjustment and participation payments made by the Canadian Wheat Board. This year, such payments were confined entirely to wheat and amounted to $48,943,000. Last year, a total of $18,024,000 was paid out on wheat, oats and barley. This increase in the amount paid out by the Wheat Board this year contributed materially to the gain in the farmers' income over that of last year.

The total of salaries, wages and supplementary labor income in Canada rose to $2,531,000,000 in the first quarter of this year from $2,208,000,000 in the corresponding period of last year, an increase of 14.6 per cent. This gain indicates that total labor income for the full year of 1952 might reach $11,047,000,000, and thus exceed by a considerable amount the record high of $9,640,000,000 reached in 1951. In such an event, Canada's total national income in 1952 would reach an all-time high of $19,727,000,000, if it is assumed that labor income this year will amount to 56 per cent of the national income as it did last year. Last year's national income, which was higher than ever before, amounted $17,229,000,000.

The figures for national income are highly pleasing, no doubt, to Finance Minister Abbott. It makes budgeting much easier, although there has been an admission that the percentage from income for government purposes is much too high now, 30 percent is far more than the usual norm.

With boom conditions as generally reported, what chance is there of a lower cost of living? The general forecast is for further increase. (St. Catharines Standard)

WHAT IS ROOT OF TROUBLE IN PENITENTIARIES

It is good to see the announcement of Premier Duplessis of Quebec that steps are being taken for the complete segregation of first offenders from habitual criminals or repeaters. That is a move in the right direction, at a time when increasing attention is being given to the prisons, because of serious rioting in Canadian and American Institutions. In some cases, it is evident that first offenders were drawn into the demonstrations against their will and the loss of good conduct marks has been resented.

Because of the lack of indefinite information, at Bordeaux prison, for instance, it is not easy to know what is behind such disorders. Some hold that today's criminals are more cunning and others that the prisons and their populations are growing too large for efficient handling. Still others believe there is too much mollycoddling of prisoners until they forget that they are there because they were violators of the laws of civilized society. It is to be hoped that, as far as Canada is concerned, we will be told the underlying causes of such disorders, so that we may know what remedies should be applied.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

(Copyright, 1952, Edgar A. Guest)

REASONS WHY

Why the tumult and the shouting? Why the strife for place and power?
Well, for all the little gardens where the roses bud and flower;
For the countless homes where mothers guard their children, night and day,
And the churches and the temples where the people meet to pray.

Why the pleadings and the speeches? Just for victory's selfish spoils
Or our way of life which honors and respects the man who toils?
It's for him and all his fellows, and though oft we disagree
It's for love of God and country and the joys of liberty.

By one hope we're all united.
'Tis that freedom shall endure
And our little homes and gardens shall forever be secure.
We are bound to one great purpose by the pledge we stand to say.
It's for liberty and justice and for childhood's right to play.

"Rival" Atomic Submarine Power Plants Being Built

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States has two "rival" atomic submarine power plants under construction.

Theoretically one could be smaller than its competitor while producing equal energy. It also could be more hazardous to operate, stopping just short of being a potential atomic bomb.

This device is to be called the submarine intermediate reactor. It is now under construction by the General Electric Co. at an A.E.C.-owned site in West Milton, N.Y.

Its "rival," farther advanced because work was started on it sooner, is to be called the "submarine thermal reactor." It is being built by the Westinghouse Electric Co. at A.E.C.'s reactor testing station in Arco, Idaho.

The navy already has laid the keel of the U.S.S. Nautilus, the submarine which will house an atomic power plant of the "S.T.R." type. It has authorized construction of another sub which eventually will be equipped with an "S.I.R." model.

The fact that construction plans are already settled—even before land-based models of the power plants have been tested—is a strong indication that the navy and the A.E.C. figure both types of power plant will work. But neither agency has given a tip-off on whether it considers one type more promising than the other.

The two projected power plants differ in certain atomic characteristics—specifcally in the type of neutrons or atomic particles, which will be employed to generate power.

Neutrons given off by atomic splitting are mostly "fast" neutrons, travelling many thousands of miles a minute. They can be "slowed down," but the "slowest" neutron still travels 6,000 miles a minute.

The proposed submarine intermediate reactor will employ neutrons of "intermediate" speed—that is, intermediate between the "fast" neutrons of an atomic bomb and the "slow" neutrons most generally used in so-called "controlled" atomic energy devices.

The rival submarine thermal reactor will employ "slow" neutrons.

The slower neutrons travel, the better are the chances of sustaining a "controlled" reaction, but the "slow neutron" power plant has to be much bigger than one operating with faster particles.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

EDUCATION

There is a notion, held by all too many, that if a boy or girl goes through college he or she is educated. This is largely fallacious. A person is not educated until he has learned to rightly live. William James, I believe it was, said a person was not educated until he had brought all his voluntary faculties under perfect control.

I have a banker friend who is one of the best informed men I have ever known. One day I asked him what college he attended. He replied that he never went to college! Our best education comes about through our knowledge of nature and people. I have always found farmers a most interesting and highly educated class. They live close to nature, and do a great deal of thinking as they till the soil. Travelers learn what no book can tell them, or at least can only stimulate.

Varied experience in education. If we keep our eyes wide open in an observant manner, and listen to others, we get lessons no college can teach. College is a good thing if the student puts his mind and heart into what is taught, it is suggestive, but life outside is the big college. We come in contact with teachers everywhere. We learn from the trees, from birds and animals, even from insects. I have most interesting books about bees and ants. Eevry bird variety has its own special way of building a nest, and it never varies from it. Each is an expert as to location and material used.

There is no school on earth so important as the home. It is there that the earliest habits are formed and the fundamental laws of life and right living are introduced and emphasized. We are influenced throughout life by what we were taught at home. To the home we owe our best religious training. There it is that the foundation of character is created. The child does not easily depart from his home lessons. Education begins in the home.

THE ACID TEST

Officials of a large dairy had suspected for some time that a portion of their cream was being stolen. They thought they knew which employee was stealing it, and they felt sure that a certain local milk dealer was receiving it. But they lacked evidence. Finally they procured from their chemist a colorless, tasteless, odorless substance which would turn pink in the presence of a special reagent. One day they mixed this with their cream, the next day, armed with a search warrant, they visited the suspected milk dealer. When his cream was tested with the reagent, part of it turned pink—exactly the quantity which the dairy had missed.

To the eye and to the tongue, the stolen cream was the same as any other cream. Only when the chemical reagent was added did it reveal its true identity. This was a real example of the oft-referred-to "acid test."

We cannot go around applying chemical reagents to people to see whether they are false or genuine, yet it is when they meet such acid tests in life that we really know them. And life does test people—ourselves as well as others. Sooner or later, the great stress comes to everyone; the test of temptation, misfortune, grief, power, or danger.

Christian living prepares us to meet the acid test unchanged.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

There is really no law governing what a hotel keeper can ask for his rooms. He can put a few fancy items of furniture in a couple of them, call it the Princess's Suite, and charge twenty-five a day for it. There is no law controlling what our tourist industry can charge for accommodation or food, and the prices are going up steadily, as, doubtless, most other prices are. But a problem faces those engaged in the tourist trade to persuade some of the more piratical of the brotherhood to go easy.

That it is a problem I can declare. This week, I found myself ready for lunch while driving on a famous tourist highway. We came to a most attractive looking tourist layout, a motel with beautiful lawns, flower beds, and a gravel drive leading into it. The buildings were snowy white and awninged in green. At one end of the outfit was a round building with a dining room sign on it. We drove in.

It was cool and beautifully clean and attractive inside. Nothing I had seen of short-season tourist accommodation could approach it. It was de luxe. And when the waitress showed us the menu, we realized it was de luxe. The prices were terrific. A Spanish omlette was $2. That was about the lowest item on the bill of fare. A steak was $4.50. Fish was $2.75. Other commonplace items were $3 and $3.50. Wow.

Down at the bottom of the menu were a few brief postscripts. Western sandwich, 90 cents; chicken sandwich, $1.25, and so forth.

We ordered Western sandwiches, recollecting that in most parts of Canada, they go for 35 cents. While awaiting them, we noticed that those who had ordered Spanish omelettes or other dishes were also getting soup, beautiful vegetables, a great big old-fashioned salad bowl from which they could dip. When our Western sandwiches arrived, they were accompanied by cold slaw and French fried, and were the best Western sandwiches we had ever met in our lives.

Govt. Butter Will be Cheaper Next Winter

OTTAWA (CP)—Government butter will be cheaper next winter than it was a year ago and there likely will be enough of it—along with commercial stockpiles—to eliminate the need for butter imports, agricultural officials said yesterday.

They based this estimate on current production trends, the government stockpile that is being built up under federal price-support and the lower price the government is offering to the producer, down to 58 cents a pound wholesale from 63 cents last year.

Government butter retailed at about 70 cents a pound last winter. It may run to about 65 cents during the next cold spell, officials said.

HOW TO GET INFECTED

Infection is defined as the process of invasion of the tissues by disease - producing micro-organisms which produce injury. Note that in this definition nothing is said about "weather permitting."

I cannot vouch for the source of the story but it is scientifically acceptable. It concerns a class in medical school yawning through a lecture on the common cold. The instructor, halfway through his canned speech and noting the disinterest of the class, called for volunteers to "catch cold" in order to provide actual clinical instruction on the subject.

"Well," asked the volunteers, "how do you catch cold?" "Tsk-tsk," responded the instructor, "everybody knows how to catch cold. Go out and get wet and chilled and stand in a draft somewhere." Ten of the twelve volunteers did just that. The other two, with time off for the purpose, decided to skip the whole thing and went to a movie instead.

Yes, you're right. Two days later, the only students who had "colds" were the two who had gone to the movies.

It is generally known that the nose and throat of perfectly healthy persons contains a large variety of disease-producing germs. The quaint notion still persists in unenlightened quarters that wetting, chilling and the like, decreases the "resistance" of a person to these germs to the extent that they then become infected with their own germs.

The facts are that a person is immune to his own germs as long as they are confined to the usual sites and that infection, as such, occurs only when someone else's germs invade the tissues. If such were not the case, it seems doubtful that the human race could survive very long.

The Eskimos, for instance, despite the chilling to which they are constantly exposed, catch "cold" only when visitors from the south arrive. But while the "common cold" is not one of their main disorders, they are extremely susceptible to tuberculosis which passes from one to the other. The element of chief importance is contact or close proximity. If you want to get infected, get in close contact with a person who has an infection. The weather has nothing to do with this.

It has long been known that tuberculosis strikes hardest amongst the malnourished victims of unsanitary surroundings. Nevertheless, most health departments insist that a child not be allowed to live in a house where any one with active tuberculosis lives—despite the factors of nutrition and sanitation, good or bad, which may affect them. Here again the element of contact or close proximitiy is stressed as the factor of importance. Even a well nourished person in sanitary surroundings can be infected by contact.

The person who attributes his "cold" to a drafty office or shop, or to cold or damp weather, is simply ignorant of the facts. The parent who bundles up a child with overshoes, mufflers, parkas and the like with the thought that such "protection" against the weather will prevent the child from "catching cold" or catching anything else is kidding himself.

The parent who keeps a child indoors because the weather is "inclement" and subjects the child to all the accumulated disease-producing germs contained in the atmosphere of the overheated, "draftless" house, serves only to perpetuate the hoary malarkey of fish-wives and prattlers to the detriment of the health of the child.

I repeat: Infection is caused by germs—not by weather.

Successor Being Sought For Ailing Dr. Schumacher

By IAN FRASER

BONN, Germany (Reuters)—A successor is being sought for ailing Dr. Kurt Schumacher, a violent anti-Communist who is just as fanatically opposed to allying West Germany with the free world and with European defence plans.

Schumacher, whose health was broken by First World War wounds and later by rigors of Hitler's concentration camps, suffered a stroke last Christmas and since then has not left his villa overlooking this West German capital.

He was due to be back in Parliament in April. Now his supporters say he will be on hand in late September for a rally of the Free Democrat part which he heads.

United German Aim

A re-united Germany and her rise as a great power in the western comity of nations is Schumacher's main political aim. For him, unity must come before Germany's alliance with the west. Although never ceasing to emphasize that the western style of political life is the only one for him, Schumacher says that a western tie-up now will make the two Germanys drift farther apart.

If West Germany joins the west now, he says, East Germany will complete her transformation into a "People's Republic" and the chance of negotiating unity with the Soviet Union will disappear.

He has always been an outspoken opponent of Communism, even in pre-Nazi days. But for him there can be no compromise. Either the western powers give West Germany the status of an equal, or Schumacher says they will sow the seeds of future trouble, just as, he says, the Treaty of Versailles helped bring Hitler to power.

BORN MILES APART

DEUX, France (AP)—The wife of a Deux factory worker gave birth to twins today—17 miles apart. The older of the twins, a boy, was born here. The doctor, fearing complications, had the mother moved to a clinic at Niort, 17 miles away. The second child, a girl was born there.

Fine Display Of Fruit, Vegetables Seen at Fair

Considering the dryness of the season, the fruits and vegetables on exhibit at the Fair were of good quality, with a fine showing of apples, pears, plums of the Burbank and Lombard variety, and a sprinkling of Niagara grapes and gages.

Among the apples the winter variety included Richardson delicious and greenings, and the in-between Wolfe Rivers and McIntosh reds; while the early variety was of the Melba which will be at their best in a few days.

The vegetables included Irish Cobbler potatoes, carrots, beets, sweet and hot green peppers, green-skinned cucumbers; a fine display of tomatoes, onions, Hubbard squash, both of the dark green skin variety and the light; small showing of watermelons and muskmelons, but of good appearance; cauliflowers were small and few in number; cerery was also of average quality.

In the preserve exhibit there were jajrs of crabapple jelly, raspberry jam, pickles, relishes, tomatoes, pickled crabapples, pears, strawberries, cherries, apples and golden gages.

Home Cooking

The home cooking department was replete with perfections of the culinary art where chocolate cakes topped with shredded cocoanut vied with white cocoanut cakes, angel cakes, and many others. There were pumpkin, lemon and fruit pies, as well as delicious looking buns and homemade bread, small cup cakes, cookies and other varieties.

The school lunch boxes showed a fine balanced diet of fruit, sandwiches, vegetables and milk. Some nice honey, extracted and in combs, was also shown, as were eggs of good size and color.

The farmers' section had a fine showing of fall wheat in sheaf form, oats, and timothy hay, ensilage corn, and rye, as well as grass silage, and chopped hay. Dried beans, peas and various grains were shown to advantage.

MISS CANADA

Marilyn Reddick, 18, of Agincourt, Ont., near Toronto, is Miss Canada 1952, chosen from 13 contestants at Burlington, Ont. Her prizes include the right to represent Canada in the Miss America pageant at Atlantic City, a $1,000 scholarship and a trip to the Coronation in London next June. The blonde band vocalist's figure—34-inch bust, 24-inch waist and 36-inch hips—was judged best in a private exhibition in sun suits and shorts for the eight judges only. (CP Photo)

Gleanings From Fair

If the bingo game at the Fair should be short of the corn kernels used for markers, there is a good reason.

Monday some one got hungry and removed two oranges growing on a tree. Tuesday, what was obviously a hungry little girl, discovered the corn was edible. All thoughts of the game vanished as she made a meal of her markers. Certainly a hungry crowd at the Fair this year.

There is a game along the amusement board-walk where a mouse is placed upon a rotating wheel. The wheel has holes around its circumference and whichever hole the tiny animal crawls into, the ticket holder with the corresponding number to that on the hole wins.

Beneath the holes are individual drawers by which the mouse may be retrieved and there is no connecting link between drawers.

One particular turn of the wheel Tuesday saw the mouse make a bee-line for hole No. 19, but when the game operator opened the compartment to remove mousie, it wasn't there. The delinquent animal was later found in compartment 23. The puzzled operator still can't figure out how it got there.

The "kids" can't leave the fair alone. They are lined up ready to go in before the gates are open in the morning and they are the last ones to leave at night.

If the fair went all year, things probably wouldn't be any different as far as the children go. The main attraction seems to be the games along the midway, amusement rides take second place. Their limited resources are usually gone five minutes or so after they arrive. The rest of their day is spent observing others play the games. The young ones don't even save enough for the bus when chey want to go home. However, the fair comes only once a year and the main thing is they appear to enjoy themselves.

Concession operators are a little nervous of 12-year-old Bobby Lewison of Toronto who is presently holidaying at Moira Lake with his parents.

Tuesday the young fellow visited the fair and came away with an armload of prizes. The ring toss is Bobby's specialty. He spent most of the winter practising at home with his own ring toss game and now he plans a tour of the carnivals. He seldom fails to win something. But according to Bobby, "Juse wait till the C.N.E. gets under way."

Art Display at Fair Depicted in Oil, And Needle Work

Art might be defined as the application of skill in the expression of beauty in color and form, and as such was ably demonstrated in the art section in the horticulture building at the Belleville Fair, for here it was depicted by china painting, needle work in silk, wool and cotton, and by palette and colors.

The fine china was beautifully painted and consisted of bon-bon dishes, vases, fruit dishes, cups and saucers, fruit plates, rose bowls and other exquisite pieces.

There was also a good display of oils depicting winter scenes with pyramid cedars, one showing a deep, violet blue stream between snowy banks, and another, the setting sun reflected on the cedars and snow; a charming bit of work. The "Windswept Pines" was also attractive with the orchid-rose of the sunset tinting the pines, the plowed hillside fullows, and road. Another piece of color by the same artist, showed a blaze of autumn maples bordering an uphill road, backgrounded by a soft blending of autumn sky.

Still life was represented by the "Old Violin," and also by a vase of yellow and gold marigolds backgrounded by a window. "Sails at Sunset" and the "Rolling Sea," made good companion pictures. Another painting of blue delphiniums and phlox, gladioli and pink corn flowers was worthy of note.

Something out of the ordinary, the "Old Country Flower Garden" was new, executed in colored silks, depicting a garden with three ladies in crinolines, one in mauve with parasol and one in blue with parasol, and in the distance, one in pink, walking along the garden paths, bordered by various blooms over which flowering trees of unknown origin cast their pleasing shade.

Paintings of animals, including puppies—one of which returned this year—and one of a spirited horse upon a knoll merited attention as well as the painting of grapes with lovely graduation of tone.

The other section of this display that of the handicraft in crochet, consisted of fancy dollies, hot mats, slippers, dressed doll, table runner, flower holder, woven mats and shell flower pictures were exceptionally well done, all showing that creation of the beautiful finds its place among the members of the human family.

These displays were directed by Mrs. E. Sandercock; Mrs. J. Cowan; Mrs. F. Stork and Mrs. J. F. Wilson.

Eggs Laid During Poultry Exhibition Are Destroyed

With run-of-the-nest eggs selling at 65 cents per dozen, professional viewers-with-alarm will really view with alarm the practice at the fair whereby all eggs laid during the poultry exhibit shall be destroyed. No, no fresh poached egg for anyone from hens in the poultry exhibit building!

It appears that competition is keen among poultry enthusiasts and to prevent any possibility of the blood strain of one breed being used by another breeder who does not go through recognized channels to get his sample of chicken, the eggs of all entries are destroyed, thus preventing the possible hatching of another man's breed by a sharpie in the poultry raising business.

Bride-To-Be Honored By China Shower

A most enjoyable time was spent recently at the home of Mrs. Addy, 47 Chatham Street, when Mrs. May Broad and Mrs. Norma Sobel were co-hostesses for a china shower in honor of the bride-to-be, Miss Doreen Sopha. Seventeen friends of the bride were in attendance.

The tea table was daintily appointed with a centrepiece of white and pink sweetpeas in a crystal bowl, while pink and white streamers and gaily colored confetti-filled balloons decorated the spacious rooms.

Those who presided at the tea table were, Mrs. F. Fitzgerald and Mrs. James Sopha. Mrs. Broad and Mrs. Sobel served the dainty refreshments, assisted by Mrs. Addy.

Miss Sopha was the recipient of a number of lovely gifts for which she graciously expressed her appreciation.

The evening was spent in games and a social get-together.

WEDDINGS

ERVINE—McGRATH

Gladioli and roses banked the altar of the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, on Saturday, July 26th, at 10:00 a.m., when the Rev. Father J. J. Buckley united in marriage Marian Geraldine McGrath, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William McGrath, to Francis Wilfred Ervine, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Ervine.

Miss Mary Flurey provided the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Mr. Joseph La Berge, of Peterborough, uncle of the bridegroom.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her white Chantilly lace and net bridal gown in ankle length, fashioned with fitted bodice and bouffant skirt. Her shoulder-length veil of silk tulle illusion was held by a coronet headdress encrusted with seed pearls. She wore mitts and shoes of white, and carried a shower bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Miss Sheila Ervine, of Belleville, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid, attired in pale pink sheer with white accessories and wearing a wreath of roses and lily-of-the-valley. She carried a nosegay of sweetpeas and roses.

Mr. Michael McGrath, of Selby, Ontario, was groomsman, and the ushers, Mr. Bernard Ervine, brother of the bridegroom, and Mr. Donald Finnegan.

At the reception, which was held at Tobe's County Gardens, the bride's mother received, wearing navy blue sheer with white accessories and corsage of pink roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was attired in turquoise blue nylon sheer with navy accessories and corsage of roses and lily-of-the-valley.

For the wedding trip to Toronto, Barrie, Algonquin Park and Peterborough, the bride wore a light blue suit with white accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Ervine will reside in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were present from Tweed, Selby and Peterborough.

Women's Section Displays Fine Samples of Hand Work

Once again the Women's Section at the Fair, under the direction of mrs. B. Docter, Mrs. Ben Bleecker, Mrs. M. B. Weese, Mrs. Thomas Walker and Mrs. S. M. Nicholson, was outstanding in demonstrating that "the hand that rocks the cradle" can also sew a fine seam and create many lovely articles both useful as well as ornamental.

The clothing included housecoats, bed jackets, blouses, pyjamas, house dresses and aprons for practical wear and also for afternoon teas. One of the latter was of white organdy, fashioned of three panels scalloped at the edges, with a centre panel of flowered organdy. The whole outlined with narrow darker blue bias binding, and having an applique of blue iris flowers on the outer panel.

Fine Crochet

Among the household linens were some fine samples of crochet, embroidery and cut work. These comprised a beautiful crochet tablecloth done in rose design, rose pattern place mats, ecru runners in cut work; and frilly doilies and chair sets of many designs. Pillow slips had both crochet work and colored embroidery, as well as cut work in pansy design—a lovely piece of handwork.

The baby wear in knitting included many little sets in colors of white, pink, and blue. One outstanding set was of blue with sacque ornamented with a white angora bunny on either side front, with matching tiny beret and socks.

Rugs

The rugs were shown in braided design, of wool and rags, and in hooked medium. An attractive round rug, which somehow passed the judge's eye, was made of rainbow hues, tiny rolls divided by a narrow black strip; another out-of-the-ordinary was composed of yellow, and blue circles, having beige centres, the yellow circles forming a geometric central pattern. A lovely hooked rug had a beige centre surrounded by pastel blue and pink flowers in blue pots on a grey ground, the whole outlined in darker grey with black stripes. Another pretty rug of wine color, fringed, having a floral centre on a beige background, was exceptionally well done.

The cushions were many, and of various tpyes, tufted, woven, pompon design and unique, representing a frog. The tufted satin consisted of 12 sections in colors of mauve, green, deep rose, blue, gold, wine and grey.

The pompon cushion was rich in shades from wine to light yellow having a corresponding looped fringe. A cushion out of the past, but most pretty. The frog cushion was unique, fashioned of dark green velvet above with under body and legs of gold satin.

Outstanding Quilt

The quilts were numerous and attractive, of various designs and beautifully quilted; wild rose, morning glory, rainbow star, the old, familiar churn-dasher, the wedding ring, and the Dresden plate. But the outstanding quilt was that depicting the 48 States of the United States. Each square having the native floral and typical bird done in colored silk on a white ground, the whole outlined in pale green, and bordered with green scallops. A lemon yellow satin comforter made one think of cosy nights when snow and sleet covers the window panes.

Among the children's wear there were play suits, smocked dresses, rompers, woollen dresses in crochet and knit stitch.

Beside the above several samples of socks, in diamond stitch, some with lion design, and many others in fancy stitch as cable, and others, done in wine, green, brown heather and black.

Men's and boys' wear showed sport shirts, work shirts with collars; broadcloth pyjamas; hand knit pullovers, gloves, and pullovers in sleeveless style.

The miscellaneous section showed some fine specimens of tatting in dollies, filet crochet chair sets; cut work runners, cross stitch embroidery and tatting.

WINSTON'S NIECE TO MARRY EDEN

Clarissa Spencer - Churchill, niece of Winston, will become the bride of British foreign secretary Anthony Eden. He is 55, she is 32.

Wife Preservers

Do not dampen your clothes too far in advance for ironing in warm weather.. It invites mildew. If the ironing must be postponed, shake out all damp articles to dry to be re-sprinkled later.

Children's Section Features Interesting Handicraft Work

The children's section at the fair comprised needlework, including aprons, made of white organdy having red and white teacup gingham pockets and bottoms bordered with a band of the same; others were of pink, white, yellow and green squares, while yet another was of pink broadcloth with blue embroidery depicting a Mexican with sombero and donkey, doll's clothes; wooden wall brackets in butterfly design; posters of bird sanctuary; conservation of soils; one of Columbus landing in 1492; Indian life, traffic posters; 20th century communication — wireless, telephone; birds of different species and colors; skiing, hockey; rugby; interpretation of fairy stories and relief work in plasticene.

Nature Collections

Nature collections of butterflies, and other insects were nicely mounted and arranged. There were also paper cutout work; ships with match masts and sails; an Indian village modelled in plasticene complete with tepee, totem poles and inhabitants at work. A fine model of a speed boat; a home with garage and stone-bordered walk, was also well executed.

Specimens of printing and writing were also shown, neat, and clear; map drawing and coloring flower painting, and the interpretation of art as to depicting scenery. In all, a fine contribution from the schools of the city in their various grades.

Playground Crafts

Another interesting exhibit was that of the crafts made by the children from the various playgrounds of the city. These were done under the supervision of the Belleville Recreation Committee, and showed some nice pictures of the various playgrounds, photographed by Mr. James Driscoll, showing the children at play, and those without children.

The exhibits included paper Chinese lanterns; paper chains in colored links; book marks; artificial flowers; pipe-cleaner animals; decorated jelly jars; hotplate mats made from rubber sealer rings; decorated drinking tumblers and other handicraft, both interesting and useful.

40-Year Hunt For Relations Ends in Success

WATERLOO (CP)—A 40-year hunt for missing relatives paid off the other day when a Brockville milkman helped Mrs. Charles Nahrgang locate her brother and sister.

Next week she will meet three more sisters at a family get-together.

As a child of five Mrs. Nahrgang was placed in a Brockville orphanage. Two years later she was taken to Kitchener-Waterloo orphanage. She was adopted by a family at St. Agatha where she lived until she married and went to waterloo.

Through the years she has tried to trace members of her family whose name was Perrin.

Last week while visiting at Brockville a milkman was able to tell Mrs. Nahrang where there were some Perrins.

At nearby Spencerville she found her oldest sister, Mrs. James Lawrence, 70, and her only remaining brother, Clarence. She was told four brothers were killed in the First World War.

Three other sisters in Montreal, Ottawa and Watertown, N.Y., will visit Mrs. Nahrgang next week.

English Woman Makes Splendid Debut at Shoot

By CECIL SMITH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CONNAUGHT RIFLE RANGES, South March, Ont. (CP)—A slim, tanned English woman is making an impressive debut at the 84th annual Dominion of Canada Rifle Association prize shoot on these ranges near Ottawa.

She is Marjorie E. Foster, the only woman ever to win the King's Prize at Bisley, Eng., and a member of the crack 14-member British rifle team. Miss Foster is the first woman to make the trip to Canada with the British team.

In the opening two days, she proved that she can keep step with any of the 600 competitors.

Posts High Scores

In the opening day's Macdougall match she posted a score of 98 of a possible 100. Yesterday, she scored two off the possible 200 in the Banker's match.

"I like it very much here," she said. "The ranges are good and the weather has been ideal."

"This is the fourth time since 1939 that I have been a member of England's Bisley team touring the Commonwealth and next year I will tour South Africa as vice-captain of the team."

Miss Foster whose home is in the little village of Mytchett, six miles from Bisley, was setting rifle sights when most girls her age were playing with dolls.

At the age of 10, she was a member of England's Camberley rifle team competing against army men.

During the First World War, Miss Foster served as a transport driver behind the lines in France. In 1939 she joined the Women's Auxiliary Territorial Service and served in Europe as a senior commander.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Prejudice is not born, but made

Parents are often apt to think that they know all the answers, and that their children should listen to them dutifully and accept what they say as the last word on any subject. If it would occur to more parents to listen occasionally to what their teen-agers have to say, and give it honest consideration, the world might get on to better things a little faster.

What I have in mind particularly at this moment is the sort of thing one teen-ager tells me in a letter I have just received. It reads:

"Boy, do I have a problem! I can't seem to make heads or tails out of it, and I'll bet a lot of gals have the same problem.

"I'm 16 years old, and a few months ago I met a sailor who was one of the most understanding boys I ever met. Everything was fine until my parents got wind of Joe's last name. Then the trouble really began.

"Joe and I are of different nationalities and faiths. I can't make my relatives realize that I love Joe despite this. I may be young, but I know right from wrong, and I know Joe well and love him very much. When he gets discharged from service I will have graduated from high school and I know he has plans for us because he has practically proposed in his letters. His mother and father are both dead, and his dearest brother died in the last war, and I haven't the heart to break up with him under such circumstances.

"No man can help what's he's born, and if people could only realize that, what a wonderful world it would be. But all my efforts to make my parents see it this way are useless, and every time I talk with them about it, it only ends up with me feeling bitter resentment toward my own people.

Now I am not saying that 16-year-old Nancy should be advised to go ahead and make plans at this time to marry her Joe. What I would like to say to Nancy at this point is that, regardless of any other consideration, and no matter what any young man's nationality or faith may be, a decision to marry is not something to be made impulsively. Therefore, no matter how sorry she may be for Joe, it is up to her, I think, to keep a level head and help Joe to keep one, too. In brief, she should write him friendly letters, of course, but she should not allow herself to rush, or to be rushed, headlong into an engagement. What she should try to make Joe understand is that an acquaintance of only "a few months" is not enough by which to judge whether or not two people are really suited to each other. It is specially important for a boy and a girl to understand this under the current circumstances, where young men in service, and girls who know young men in service, are frequently misled about their feelings for each other.

The reason I am particularly interested in Nancy's letter, however, is because of the evidence it presents—evidence which I find in a great many letters from other teen-agers—of a tolerance and an understanding which far surpasses that of many parents, who want to confine their children's friendships to young people of their identical background in all respects.

It is certainly true that marriage between different nationalities and different faiths often presents many complicated problems. But how are young people to realize this if they are arbitrarily forbidden to find it out by normal association with those of backgrounds different from their own? And how is the world ever to move in the right direction if people refuse to try and compromise such differences?

If parents would only try to gain the wisdom to allow their children freedom to choose their own friends, guiding them unobtrusively in the right direction by their own attitudes, I feel sure that in most cases the young people will arrive at more sensible decisions, and be happier and more useful adults, than if they are shut off during their adolescent years from anyone who may think differently from themselves. The prejudiced are not born that way, they are made. Who wants to be responsible for developing intolerance in children who are born without it?

Loss of Pension Rights Will Be Main Problem

OTTAWA (CP)—Loss of pension rights by teachers who move from one province to another is one of the problems to come before the 12th triennial conference of the Canadian Federation of University Women here Aug. 18-22.

The subject has been under study by a special education committee set up by the 6,000-member federation. Its report, to be presented during the four-day meeting, also will deal with the question of federal financial aid to the provinces for education.

The theme of this conference is "Women and the State" It will be developed during a series of addresses and discussion groups led by prominent Canadian women.

These include Dr. Hilda Neatby of Saskatoon, a professor at the University of Saskatchewan and the only woman member of the Massey Commission on arts, letters and sciences; Dr. Esther Clark Wright, Fredericton, N.B., medical doctor; Dr. Olga Jardine of Victoria; Joan Gilchrist, Montreal lawyer; Dr. Bernice MacNaughton of Moncton, N.B., Dr. Aileen Noonan, retired Windsor, Ont., teacher.

Principal speakers will be the Begum Ikramullah, wife of Pakistan's High Commissioner to Canada and Dr. Janet Robb of New York, consultant for International Federation of University women with United Nations' economic and social council.

The conference also will review its program of scholarships and financial aid to libraries to stimulate reading among children.

Food for Thought

Special-Purpose Menu

By Mary Moore

If you or your family think your cooking is in a rut here's your chance to climb out of it. I'm particularly pleased with the Pilaf the Apple Squares and think you will want to add them to your files.

Pan Braised Breaded Pork Chops
Turkish Pilaf
Quick-cooked Spinach chopped butter and lemon
Tossed Green Garden Salad with Garlic French Dressing
Apple Squares with Baumert Coffee

DIRECTIONS:

PAN BRAISED BREADED PORK CHOPS

Ask the butcher to cut you 1-inch thick loin pork chops—1 for each person to be served. (These may be stuffed by making a pocket by slitting lengthside through fat edge to depth of 2 inches.) Sprinkle with salt and pepper and light breadcrumbs, pressing the crumbs into the moist surface. Dip into beaten egg to which 1 tablespoon water has been added. Dip chops in fine crumbs again. Let stand 20 minutes turning over a few times. Fry slowly, in 1 tablespoon fat to start them, on both sides. Lift out and place on trivet, add 1-4 cup boiling water, cover tightly and cook 30 minutes, adding a little more water if needed. Test for tenderness; if not tender in 30 minutes cook them 15 minutes longer.

TURKISH PILAF

(Rice with vegetables.)

In a heavy saucepan melt 1-4 cup shortening, and add to it 1-2 cup cut up green peppers, 1 cup cut up peeled tomatoes, 1 finely chopped clove garlic, 1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms, and gently cook these together for five minutes. Wash 1 1-2 cups long grain rice under running cold water in sieve, drain well and add it and 2 cups hot water or clear meat stock. Cover, let come quickly to boil over high heat, add 2 teaspoons salt and 1-4 teaspoon pepper, cover; reduce heat in 1-2 minute to as low as possible. (If electric stove is used turn off heat for 4 minutes.) Cook as slowly as possible for 35 minutes without lifting lid or increasing heat. Do not stir. Rice grains will stick to bottom when this is served, but do not try hard to scrape them off—merely add 1-4 inch water to pan after serving, let stand until meal is over and rice will scrape free. Use it for soup.

APPLE SQUARES

These are a cross between a pie and a cake and something I am sure you will be glad to add to your dessert reportory.

Crust—Into mixing bowl sift 1 1-2 cups sifted bread flour, 1-2 teaspoon baking powder, 3-4 teaspoon salt. Sift these three times. Cut into them 1-4 cup each butter and shortening and when this is like fine meal slowly stir in 1-4 cup cold milk. Knead on covered board for a few minutes then chill for 15 minutes. A square pan 7x7x1 inch is ideal. Roll out 2-3 of the dough to fit bottom and sides. Sprinkle bottom of crust with fine bread crumbs—about 2 tablespoons. Pour in the filling (below) and roll out top crust to make it fit. Moisten edges of bottom crust and seal top crust on. Brush it with milk, prick it with fork and bake at 425 deg. Fahr. about 40 minutes. Allow to cool in pan on cake rack. When cold cover with icing made of 3-4 cup icing sugar, 1-4 teaspoon vanilla and 1 tablespoon hot milk. Let set until cold. To serve, with saw-edged knife cut into squares and serve with cube of Baumert cheese.

Filling—1 1-2 lbs. apples cut into slices as for pie; add these to a syrup of 1-2 cup each hot water and sugar and 1-4 teaspoon salt, brought to boiling point. Cover and cook slowly 15 minutes. Skim out apples. To syrup add 2 tablespoons lemon juice and stir in a paste made of 1 tablespoon cornstarch and 2 tablespoons cold water, until thick. Gently stir in the apples. Let stand until cold, then use as filling for crust. Strew over them 1 tablespoon raisins and 2 tablespoons broken walnuts or pecans and put on top. See above instructions for finishing.

GOOD MANNERS

Four questions about giving a baby shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

About a month ago a woman I know had her second baby (her first baby is 15 months old). Now her mother-in-law is planning to give her a baby shower. Is this correct? I always thought that if your friends wished to give your second baby a gift, they would bring the gift to you—my friend did. Isn't having a shower just asking for gifts, or is it considered correct? (This woman had a shower given for her when she returned after she had eloped to be married. Then when her first baby was born, there were several baby showrs, one of them given while she was in the hospital. And now this shower, for her second baby.) The question in my mind needs answering.—A.

If your question is whether or not it is correct to have a baby shower given for the second baby, the answer is "Yes"; it is correct to have such for the second baby, or the third or fourth baby, just as correct as it is to have one for the first baby. . . If your question is whether or not it is correct to have the baby shower given after the birth of the baby, a month or more after the birth, the answer also is "Yes". Many people prefer this, consider it in much better taste than the shower given before the baby's birth. . . If your question is, "Isn't having a shower just asking for gifts?" the answer is "Yes". A shower is the kind of party that means that the guests bring gifts. . . But if your question is, "Is it correct for the mother-in-law of the guest of honor to give the baby shower?", the answer is "No" . . . It is not considered good taste for a close relative of either the baby's mother or father to give a baby shower, for this too obviously gives the appearance that the shower is a "promotion" for gifts.

Only her father's name on invitations to announcement party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have just become engaged, and my father would like to give me a large party in our house to announce the engagement. But we've a problem about this! About eight months ago my mother left my father, but I, understanding all the circumstances, decided to remain with my father in our home. My parents are not divorced, not legally separated, but everyone knows that my mother is not living with my father. I think the invitations to the engagement - announcement party should be given in my father's name only, but several relatives are insisting that it is correct to include my mother's name, even under the circumstances I have mentioned. What do you advise?—Rosemary B.

Since, I judge, your mother will not be present at the announcement party, the invitations should be given (either by telephone or by note) in the name of your father only. Any other plan I should think would be misunderstood.

To a man patient in a hospital . . .a plant, magazines, books

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A man who is a very good friend of mine is going to the hospital soon for an operation. Would it be proper for me to send him flowers while he is in the hospital, or are flowers sent only to a woman patient? He's a very conservative person, and I don't want to do anything out-of-order. —B.L.

It's entirely proper to send flowers to a male patient in a hospital. . . but a plant is perhaps more appropriate than cut flowers. Or even better, I think, to send him a group of current magazines, (one or two small one easy to handle, in the group) or book you think he will enjoy.

Petes Lengthen League Lead By Crushing Redmen 13-4, Lowrey Hits Grand Slammer

Peterborough, Ont. Aug. 13—Joe Stewart's Petes seniors waltzed to an easy 13-4 COBL victory over Belleville Redmen Tuesday night in Riverside Park as they hammered three Belleville pitchers for 14 hits, including a four run homer by Joe Lowrey in the third inning. That homer sent the Petes ahead 7-2 and seemed to take the drive out of the Redmen who never threatened after.

All in all the game was quite different from Belleville's last appearance, also won by the Petes, 5-4. That game was a pitcher's duel, but Tuesday's tilt was the batters turn for revenge. They pounded out no less than 29 hits.

The win put the Petes further out in front of Belleville in second and Kingston in third.

Ed "Gunner" Whitehill, Petes veteran started off poorly but strengthened until he had to quit in the fifth in favor of Bill "Lefty" Dadson. Dadson although giving up seven hits, was never in serious trouble.

Meanwhile the Petes batters came through with hits in bunches, sending Art Wright to the showers in the third after a seven run rally. Reliefer John Mowat went well until the fifth but caved in, allowing another five run burst. Bill Strahan, and 18 year old, took the mound for the Redmen in the sixth, but the damage was done.

Joe Lowrey's third inning homer was about the season's best. With the bases loaded, the quick Lowrey hit the ball over the right field fence, about 310 feet. It landed in the river.

The Redmen started well. Pat Gilmour singled to start, followed by Earl Bush's double to right, Tony Pettitt singled scoring Gilmour and Bush. Whitehill with a curve and slow ball easily retired the side, forcing the Redmen to ground out.

The Redmen still were in charge in the second, but couldn't push a run across with two aboard. Again in the third they worked a runner to third but couldn't score.

The Redmen didn't score again until the eighth when Al Kelleher singled to left, scooted to third on Bill Strahan's single to second ,and scored on Pat Gilmour's single to centre. Again in the ninth they scored a single. Bunton started the rally with a double, scoring on Fitzpatrick's single to left.

The Pete's big inning was the third when they scored seven runs. Wright's support was weak and two errors, mixed with a single by Fred Garvey provided three runs to start with. The Petes for a second time loaded the bases on an error, a walk and a double by Bryan Young. Lowery's bat then hit a homer.

Wright's successor Mowat ran into trouble in the fifth. He hit Young with a pitched ball, allowed Pagett to single and then loaded the bases when he walked Lowrey. He walked in the first run, then had four others scored in singles by Bill Edger and Al Menzies.

Dadron opened the eighth with a single to centre, - and scored when Strahan walked Lowrey and Garvey and hit Bill Edger up end the scoring.

Belleville will be without catcher Tony Pettitt for a few games. Pettitt received a broken finger early in the game when nicked by a foul ball.

NEW GUNSIGHT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lieut. James F. Low, 26, the U.S. Air Force's 17th jet ace, yesterday attributed his score of six Russian-built MIG-15s destroyed to (1) luck and (2) an improved gunsight. Low told a press conference that all but one of his plane kills in Korea were scored with the new modified computing gunsight now installed in F-86s.

WANTS SHORT TERM

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Mrs. Dorothy Knowles, sentenced yesterday to a year on charges of swindling, told court she wanted to be out of jail by next January to greet her husband who will then be released from Kingston penitentiary. Her husband was jailed for false pretenses a few months after they were married last year.

CAUSE OF COLLISION

WASHINGTON (AP)—A naval court of inquiry announced yesterday that the "sole cause" of mid-Atlantic collision between the carrier Wasp and the destroyer-minesweeper Hobson April 26 was an "unexplained left turn" made by the smaller vessel. A total of 176 crew members died in the sinking of the Hobson.

Big-Time Golf Not for Me Says Stan Leonard

VANCOUVER (CP)—Golfer Stan Leonard has always been an outspoken believer in the tonic of tough practice sessions.

The veteran Vancouver professional once said, disdainfully: "The average golfer, when practising, will take a few lusty swipes at the ball and call it a day. His mind will be on the office. . .or maybe on the girl he left behind."

Leonard never took that attitude himself. But now, he says, even gruelling practice sessions don't hone his play to its old sharpness.

So, he announced yesterday on his return from Chicago's Tam O'Shanter tournament, that he's through with big-time golf.

Something Missing

"There is just something missing in my game," said the 37-year-old Canadian professional champion of 1940, 1941 and 1951.

He added: "I'm afraid I've had it in top tournaments at least. I've practised four hours every day. I thought perhaps if I could get in the groove, and practice would do it, I would give it the business. That didn't work, either."

Leonard finished just one stroke out of the money when he three-putted the last green of the $90,000 Chicago tournament.

But Leonard isn't complaining. The sport has been good to him since he was first bitten by the golf bug at the age of 11.

He travelled the "gold trail" of big-time golf in the late 1940s with considerable success and regarded as Canada's top competitive golfer.

Glen Roys Crush Bloomfield 22-2 In Exhibition Tilt

Glen Roy Juniors rode roughshod over the Bloomfield Sun-Joys last evening at the Alemite Field under the lights, when they handed the visitors a crushing 22-2 setback in an exhibition game.

Bill Spafford, coach of the Glens, pulled a Casey Stengel by using two platoons with no noticeable change in production.

Bob Green and Bob Hunter combined to pitch a three hitter with none of the hits having any bearing on the scoring.

Bloomfield scored its two tallies in the seventh on a walk to Hayden, an error at second base that gave Corke a life, an error to the pitcher that put Stacey aboard and let Hayden score, and a fielder's choice play that nipped Stacey at second and let Corke score.

That was the only Bloomfield bright spot in the whole contest as the Glens smashed over two runs in the first, three in the third, eight in the fifth, three in the sixth, and six in the seventh.

Home runs for Glen Roy were hit by Claude Carr, Bill Nolan, and Lyle Wannamaker. Doug Hull and Ted Degray hit triples, and there were five doubles in a 23 hit assault on two pitchers.

Bill Nolan with two singles and a home run in three official trips led Glen Roy at the plate. Claude Carr had a single, two doubles, and a home run in six tries, while Degray had three singles and a triple in five appearances.

Hayden, Corke and K. Steacy had the hits for Bloomfield.

Hunter and Green split the pitching chore striking out 15 men, walking five and giving up three hits for two runs between them.

Bloomfield: Perry, Cornelius, McDonald, Chalmers, Guy, Talkit, Hayden, Corke, Platford, Stacey, K. Steacy, Hamilton.

Prairie Farmers Expect to Reap Record Harvest

WINNIPEG (CP)—There's a new sound in Western Canada's wheat belt this year as farmers wait for late summer sun to ripen an expected bumper crop.

Hammers and saws are busy as a rash of new granaries spring up throughout the west.

Prairie grain growers are tackling their own storage problem this year in the face of estimates setting the 1952 harvest at a record high.

Preliminary crop estimates say total grain yields this year will be 1,263,000,000 bushels — 136,000,000 bushels more than in 1951.

The problem is where to store the golden deluge in elevators still crammed with last year's carry-over. Country elevator stocks at July 31 were 143,000,000 bushels compared with only 105,000,000 last year at the same time.

A frozen 1950 crop and another big crop in 1951, harvested damp, created an unprecedented transportation and storage problem.

Dealers report material sales for new farm granaries and repairs to old for temporary storage this fall are definitely increased.

Elevator company spokesmen estimate that western storage capacity will be increased 10,000,000 bushels this season by the "emergency" storage measures.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

The Cleveland Browns and the Detroit Lions will be staging a pre-season exhibition football game in Syracuse's Archbold Stadium on Saturday, September 6th for the Syracuse Cerebral Palsy Clinic. The Browns, possessors of one of the most remarkable records in the annals of team sport, are not looking forward to an easy night of it, as the Lions, runners-up to the Browns in the east last season, have stolen a march on the other NFL clubs in starting their training camp two weeks earlier than their rivals.

Coach Paul Brown of the Cleveland Browns has coached for 22 seasons in high school, college and pro leagues and in that time has won 205 of 244 games, tied nine, and lost only 29 games. In six full seasons at the head of the Browns he has won 75, lost eight and tied three. In those same six seasons he has won five league championships and lost his sixth by one touchdown in the playoffs with Los Angeles last winter.

Cleveland's high powered offense is generated around the amazingly versatile quarterback, Otto Graham, who, in six seasons with the Browns has never completed less than 52 per cent of his passes, and holds a six year average of 55.5. This aerial witchery is good for 20 TD's per year and about 2,500 yards. The Brownie kickers, placement specialist, Lou Groza kicked 43 points after touchdown last season to convert every Cleveland touchdown without a miss. In addition he added ten field goals. His 73 points made him sixth highest scorer in the pro league. Punter Horace Gillom, in two seasons, has averaged 45 yards per kick on 141 tries. In fact Gillom has done all the punting for the Browns in two years and has had only one kick blocked in that time.

This is the squad the Lions will have to contend with September 6th. However, the Lions, with passing star, Bobby Layne, almost downed the Browns last season. This year the Lions, in addition to great conditioning, will has Tennessee's triple threat man, Hank Lauricella, in the backfield. The game shapes up as one of the outstanding attractions of the U. S. football season, and several local addicts intend making the trip to see the contest in the flesh and blood.

The Belleville and District Softball League executive last night rejected Northern Electric's protest on the third game of their best-of-five series with Belleville Motor Car for the intermediate AA championship of the league. In turning down the protest, the league moguls upheld the decision of the umpire at the plate at the time. The series now stands at 2-1 for Northern with the fourth game scheduled for tomorrow night at the Alemite Field at 6.45.

Schwab's pee wee hardballers trek to Kingston this afternoon for the second game of their best-of-three series in the first round of the OBA playdowns. Schwabs took the first game in Belleville last Friday night by a score of 8-1. Glen Roy Juniors, who polished off Kingston Alcans last Saturday night here, downed Wilson Lumber Kings in Tweed 20-7 Monday night, and chalked up a 22-2 victory over Bloomfield Sun-Jeys last night at the Alemite Field, will play Madoc's intermediate C juniors in Tweed tomorrow night, as they get set for the opening game of their OASA junior A playdowns against Brockville here Saturday evening at 6.00 p. m. Glen Roys pee wee softball champs trek to Brooklin Saturday to play the first game of the OASA playdowns for the zone championship. The return game is set for Belleville for the following Saturday. CNR Diesels will attempt to steer clear of elimination from the OASA intermediate A playdowns tonight when they take on Point Anne Cementmen in the fourth game of their best-of-five series. The Point leads the series 2-1. Pat Maracle, long-time mainstay of the Point Anne mound corps is said to be nursing an ailing arm, and it is likely that Buck Burshaw, who has pitched the three series games to date, will be called on to start again. Don Boyle will go for the Diesels if coach Alf Rowbotham maintains his pitching rotation. The Northern Electric Ladies softball team plays under the lights at the Alemite Field this evening. S. Bovay, with a .370 batting average compiled 17 hits in 46 tries leads the Northern lassies at bat.

Tom Sharkey, Gloved Terror Of Ring, Fights Last Battle

His opponents are old age, feebleness and loneliness.

He is penniless and a committee has undertaken to collect a fund for his needs. In his peak days he had a fortune of $250,000.

Sailor Tom Sharkey is of an era of 50 years ago. Never a champion himself, he boxed the best. He is the only man alive today who exchanged punches with the first four heavyweight champions under the Marquis of Queensbury rules: John L. Sullivan, James J. Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons and James J. Jeffries.

Born in Dundalk, Ireland, Nov. 26, 1873, he was a barrel-chested strongman, standing five feet 8½ inches. His fighting weight ranged from 180 to 185 pounds.

In 1896, Sharkey boxed a four-round draw with Corbett, a three-round no-decision contest with Sullivan won on a eight-round foul from Fitzsimmons.

He lost a close 20-round decision to the champion, Jeffries, in 1898 and won from Corbett on a ninth-round foul in the same year. It led to a title match with Jeffries in Coney Island, Nov. 3, 1899.

Sailor Tom lost the 25-round decision and suffered three broken ribs, but never was floored.

Up from Columbus Stands Chicago Cubs on Their Heads; Yankees, Indians Washed Out

By JACK HAND

Associated Press Sports Writer

Stu Miller's sensational debut with St. Louis Cardinals recalls the "good old days" when pitchers such as Bill Hallahan, Dizzy and Paul Dean, Howie Pollet and Harry Brecheen used to pop out of the Card farm system each fall.

Since the war, talent has come in dribs and drabs. More and more the Card managers have had to lean on the old standbys of other years.

But Miller, a 24-year-old right-hander with an 11-5 record at Columbus, stood Chicago Cubs on their ears with a six-hit, 1-0 shutout last night.

Sense of Humour

Miller's first quotes would indicate he has a sense of humor as well as "a fast ball, a slow one and another slow one that's slower than the other."

"I felt better after the first inning," he said. "And I knew that Hank Sauer couldn't hit my fast ball. . .because I didn't throw any fast balls when he was up."

Miller's shutout was the first by a Cardinal pitcher since Al Brazle, 37-year-old lefty, blanked Pittsburgh July 5.

Just to prove he had it in the clutch, Miller breezed a 3-2 pitch past Bill Serna for a called strike in the ninth with men on first and third and two out.

Hal Rice's first-inning single scored Red Schoendienst with the game's only run, handing Bob Rush his 11th loss.

Giants, Dodgers Idle

New York Giants didn't start any little miracle this Aug. 12. Their scheduled night game at Brooklyn was rained out on the anniversary of the start of their 1951 push.

Brooklyn leads New York by nine games and St. Louis by 11.

The Boston-Philadelphia game in the National was washed out and Pittsburgh and Cincinnati were not scheduled.

Rain kept both New York Yankees and runner-up Cleveland idle in the American.

Boston lost a chance to gain on the leaders by dropping a 13-inning game to Philadelphia Athletics, who now trail the Yanks by only 7½ lengths. Billy Hitchcock's single scored Gus Zernial in the 13th to top the Red Sox, 4-3, after Clyde Vollmer's two-run homer tied the score in the eighth.

Jimmy Dyck took matters into his own hands to power St. Louis Browns to a 3-2 win over Chicago White Sox in 12 innings. Dyck's first homer tied the score in the eighth and his second won the game for Gene Bearden in the 12th.

KNOW OF NO REASON

SHENANDOAH JUNCTION W. Va. AP—Mysterious shots and rocks hurtled out of the darkness as a Norfolk and Western passenger train pulled out of town last night. The engineer and the brakeman said rifle fire zinged by close to them. A rock broke a window in a passenger car. one of the passengers was injured. Railroad officials knew of no reason for the attack.

Sport in Brief

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Heavyweight champion Jersey Joe Walcott is really shadow boxing these days—working out for a fight that doesn't yet exist.

His manager, Felix Bocchicchio, said at Camden City, N.J., that Walcott was going to do road work and woodchopping for one of three prospective fights. The 38-year-old champion will either fight Rocky Marciano, unbeaten Brockton, Mass., heavyweight; Rex Layne of Salt Lake City, Utah, or Johnny Williams, British Empire heavyweight king, in London.

The International Boxing Club has made no progressive move in the negotiations for a Walcott-Marciano bout next month. The two camps still are at odds over the percentage of the take for each fighter.

Bruce Humber, coach of Canada's Olympic track team, says Canada must decide whether she is to be a competitor in the Olympic Games or enter "just for the sake of sportsmanship."

Back home in Victoria from the 15th Olympiad, Humber said: "I'm proud of every member of our team, but under the circumstances they simply were not prepared for the tremendous competition they ran into at Helsinki.

"It certainly was not their fault that Canada made the showing she did in point competition."

When Tottenham Hotspur finished second last season in the English Football League's first division, the club made a record profit for any British club of £73,725.

They also tucked away an additional £2,000 for players' benefits.

The old bogy of taxation came into the picture, however, and it was estimated £49,000 went to the government. When other allowances were made, the net figure totalled £23,625.

Three years ago Arsenal established a profit record with £59,000.

John Baker of Tara, Ont., yesterday was suspended for 10 days for an unsatisfactory drive with Wee Ted in the sixth race of Monday's harness racing program at Thorncliffe raceway in Toronto. The suspension was reported to the Canadian Trotting Association.

Wee Ted finished last in the sixth race which was the first of two heats. In the second heat, Wee Ted won and paid better than 5 to 1. The stewards ruled that Baker had made no effort to win the first heat.

Jake Mintz, co-manager of former heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles, said yesterday at Pittsburgh he has asked the National Boxing Association to reverse the decision which gave Rex Layne of Utah a win over the Cincinnati Negro.

Mintz bitterly assailed Referee Jack Dempsey's decision after the 10-round bout last Friday night at Ogden, Utah. No judges were provided for the bout.

There is no boxing commission in Utah and the state is not affiliated with the National Boxing Association.

At Paterson, N.J., Greene said the N.B.A. would "not intrude on any state jurisdiction."

Joseph Pregent, 18, of Trenton, considered among the most promising golfers in the Bay of Quinte district, died of poliomyelitis in hospital at Kingston Monday night. He was stricken Sunday.

"COOL CONTROL"

PITCHING FROM THE RUBBER

1 Your pivot foot must be in contact with the "rubber" on every pitch. You should not walk into a pitch. "Rubber" is 24 inches long and 6 inches wide. If no runners are on base, begin with right foot on "rubber" a few inches in from 3rd base side.

2 Left foot is slightly behind right leg; spikes on right shoe hang over "rubber" and bite into earth. Hold ball behind right leg, body relaxed and slightly bent. Gloved hand hangs loosely.

Yes, it's control that counts, in baseball as in every sport—control which brings the extraordinary quality that sets one performer above the other. In the ability to approach things coolly, to control every move and moment, lies the answer to better results.

This is one of a series designed to increase the pleasure of Canadians who participate in sports.

Comparatively Unknown Golfer All But Eliminates Champion, Marlene Stewart

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP)—Few of the most ardent golf followers were optimistic enough today to attempt to pick a winner from the 16 survivors in the Canadian women's open golf championship at the Edmonton Mayfair.

A comparatively unknown golfer all but eliminated defending champion Marlene Stewart yesterday and a young competitor extended a one-handicap player to 26 holes before losing out. The rest of the field went almost according to form.

Mrs. D. MacDougall of Saskatoon grabbed a strangle-hold on the first three holes and didn't lose her grip until the 19th when champion Marlene from Fonthill, Ont., dropped a birdie four to win.

Go To 6 Holes

Daintry Chisholm of Montreal and Mrs. Maurice Glick of Baltimore, Md., came up with the outstanding marathon of the opening round when they went to the 26th hole before Mrs. Glick won out. Their medal scores topped the field, too, when Mrs. Glick parred in 103 and Miss Chisholm took 194 for 26 holes.

The two top qualifiers—Mary Gay of Kitchener, and Edean Anderson of Helena, Mont.—blazed through without difficulty. Miss Gay whipped the lone Edmonton qualifier Mrs. T. S. A. Sutherland, 6 and 4, and Miss Anderson won 5 and 3 over Mrs. J. Dagenais of Laval-sur-le-Lac, Que.

Rae Milligan, 18, of Jasper, Alta., was not extended in winning 5 and 4 over Mrs. W. D. Edey of Winnipeg.

Marlene Off Game

Eighteen-year-old Miss Stewart was off her game, putting badly after poor seconds and approaches. Mrs. MacDougall was steady all the way, going two up at the third. They were even at the turn but Mrs. MacDougall was two up after 11. Miss Stewart came even with a par three on the 17th and the 18th was halved.

Miss Chisholm was one up at the turn over Mrs. Glick and held a lead until the 18th when the American evened it. They halved to the 26th where Miss Chisholm was one putt short.

The seven American entries came through the first round but two will fall today when Grace Lenczyk, 1947 and 1948 winner, and her sister Lorraine of Hartford, Conn., meet Marie Polk of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Polly Martin of St. Clairsville, Ohio, respectively.

Minor Upset

Lorraine Lenczyk pulled a minor upset when she defeated Mrs. Graeme Pyke of Montreal 3 and 1 and Grace won by default when Mrs. R. S. Rideout of Regina sprained an ankle.

Miss Stewart meets Mrs. G. E. Wilcox, Jr., of Miami, who won 2 and 1 over Shirley Fry of Esquimalt, B.C., and Miss Anderson runs against Ada Mackenzie of Toronto, who defeated Mrs. C. Shuttleworth of Toronto, one up.

Miss Milligan meets Mrs. Glick and Miss Gay goes against Anne Sharp of Fonthill, a 2 and 1 winner over Joanne Goulet of Regina.

London Majors Ready to Join Pro League

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The fierce roar out of London last night dwarfed action on the diamond in the Intercounty Baseball League's senior series.

Bill Farquharson, the man behind London Majors, filed an official protest with the league on a player protest decision that knocked his team right out of the playoffs of the seven-team loop and indicated he's ready to listen to proposals for a professional loop in southwestern Ontario.

Farquharson said he had sent a telegram of protest to league secretary Jack Blakney against President Otto Manske and the Intercounty executive which on Monday night ruled that London pitcher Arnold Early was ineligible. It awarded to other clubs five games in which Early played and London won.

Fixes Playoff Positions

The decision gave the four playoff positions to Kitchener, Guelph, Brantford and Galt. The other clubs haven't any chance of dislodging that four in the rest of the schedule.

While Farquharson was providing new committee-room fodder, his Majors blasted the sixth-place Waterloo Tigers, who filed the Early protest, 14-6. The leading Kitchener Panthers edged the second place Guelph Maple Leafs 6-5 and Galt Terriers dropped an 11-4 verdict to the tail-end St. Thomas Elgins.

Farquharson mentioned that there was a report in Hamilton of a new pro league taking in London, Brantford, Hamilton, St. Catharines, Kitchener and possibly Galt or Guelph. "They can count on London if the Intercounty persists in taking those five games from us."

Hamilton baseball officials said they hadn't heard the report and they termed it a rumor.

Wonderful Thing

"It would be a wonderful thing for baseball if such a league was formed," said Art Mullens, manager of Hamilton Cardinals of the Class D Pony League. "This is one of the most fertile areas for baseball on the continent—not just Canada."

In debating the decision on the Early protest, Farquharson said it had not been filed within the 72-hour time-limit and, moreover, Early had not pitched against Waterloo which filed it.

In the night's diamond action, Bob Brake pitched the Majors to their victory in Waterloo.

Three Pitchers

He held the Tigers to 11 hits, walked six and fanned three. Waterloo used three pitchers with Whit Graves blamed for the loss. He gave up eight runs on eight hits in five innings.

Second baseman George Boniface slid home with the winning run for Kitchener on a bunt by leftfielder Dick Blanchard in the bottom half of the ninth. Catcher Nick Ciani had tied the score for Guelph on a double by first baseman George Carruth in the seventh.

Don Summers of St. Thomas allowed the Terriers only three hits in Galt. He walked nine and struck out six. Galt started Jim Bell and replaced him with Bob McDonald in the fourth. Bell was tagged with the loss after allowing eight runs.

Bowling Tourney Down to Finals In Eaton Trophy

TOONRTO (CP)—A single bowl and a tape measure sent F. Scott of Toronto into today's final for the Eaton Gold Trophy, top award at the 18th annual provincial lawn bowling tournament.

It took the last bowl in the final end of yesterday's semi-final match to defeat the Hamilton rink, skipped by R. Bell, and a tape measure to decide the winner.

The loss smashed Bell's hopes of recapturing the gold cup he won in 1948 or even the runner-up position he held last year.

Scott, who in 1948 won the Rice Trophy, top provincial singles award, will lead his rink against L. Rogers' Lindsay crew in today's final. Rogers moved into the finals by defeating E. J. Adgey of Toronto, 22-13.

Trafton, Coach of Winnipeg Bombers Not Crying Now

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

George Trafton has dried his tears.

The coach of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers flew into Ottawa last week waving a damp handkerchief dreading the outcome of the 1952 football season opener against Ottawa Rough Riders. So what happens? George's "greenhorns" fling a 24-6 victory into the faces of the 1951 Canadian champions.

George cries no more. In Hamilton for tonight's exhibition meet with the Tiger-Cats, Trafton crowed: "It shouldn't be too much of a contest, but we'll appear on the field anyway. I hope it won't be too much of a slaughter."

Taking the cue from Trafton's pre-game performance in Ottawa, Tiger-Cat coach Carl Voyles cast an eye on his "little club."

He pointed to his 240-pounder, Joel Williams and sighed: "See, we're just a little club." He glanced sadly at Bill Mackrides, Bernie Custis and Doug Gray and wondered about tonight's outcome.

Hamiltonians are out to greet one of their former stars, Tom Casey, who's playing back on the Winnipeg line-up this season.

In Toronto, Coach Frank Clair is priming his Argos for their game with Winnipeg in Varsity bowl Saturday afternoon. And at the same time he's on the prowl for more Americans to strengthen his squad.

Clair has been greasing up his pass defence, concentrating on Ulysses Curtis and Ross McKelvey. The Argos' line was further strengthened yesterday with the announcement that Freddie Black will be able to play football this season. Black has been sidelined with a back ailment since the first week of practice.

The ax dropped over the Rough Rider camp in Ottawa. Coach Clem Crowe let out three players—Clarence Clark, negro middle wing from the Los Angeles Dons, Danny Mazulka, Toronto St. Mike's lineman, and Ollie Harras, Hamilton Quarterback.

Aches and pains still plague the Montreal Alouettes, but Coach Doug (Peahead) Walker still hopes to have 32 or 33 players out west this week-end for exhibition games in Edmonton and Calgary Aug. 16 and 18.

Edmonton Eskimos are grooming themselves for their Saturday meeting with the Als. Coach Frank Filchock is happy with his punting pair, sophomore Don Lord of Vancouver and Rod Pantages.

Import Johnny Bright, recovered from a shoulder injury, showed up at the Calgary Stampeders' camp. Although still not in the scrimmage, he is expected to be in top shape for the Stamps' game Monday.

Glen Dobbs has geared his Saskatchewan Roughriders into a well-oiled machine at Regina and Thursday will see their first inter-squad game. A second will be played Saturday at Saskatoon.

Sarnia Imperials of the Ontario Rugby Football Union this week tried out their first U.S. import since the mid-30s. He was 22-year-old Maurrie Dorocke, a fullback from the University of Idaho who was let go by the Saskatchewan Roughriders.

West Yorks In Third Place Lacrosse Loop

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto West Yorks last night strengthened their hold on third place in the Ontario Lacrosse Association's Senior league by defeating Owen Sound Crescents 18-5.

Jim McNulty led the Yorkers with three goals. Johnny Hewitt, Nick Ferri, Stu Scott, Bruce Webster and Ken Croft netted two each.

For Owen Sound Hack Hauert, Norm Shortridge, John Lumley, Don Campbell and Bill Allum were the goal-getters.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—The American League, says manager Lou Boudreau of the Boston Red Sox, probably is heading for a wingding of a finish. He seems to feel that his club has about as good a shot at first prize as either the New York Yankees or the Cleveland Indians.

The former shortstopping great has fooled 'em all this summer by keeping his colorful mixture of raw rookies and fading veterans right up in the race. He is stubborn in his belief that, given a couple or three breaks from here on, they can win it all. He has figured it down pretty fine.

"We play our last six games at home, three against the Yanks and three against Washington, and that's what I'm banking on," Lou said on his last visit here. "Those games could be the pay-off for us, especially if we get some pitching help from Ellis Kinder.

Fears Yanks

Asked which he feared the most, the Indians or the Yankees, Lou had some difficulty making up his mind.

"I guess you've got to say the Yanks," he finally decided.

"They've got the depth, all those good young fellows on the bench, and Stengel keeps shifting them around to get the best from them."

Then, we said, the simple truth is that you fear the Yanks more than you do Cleveland. What is this unholy spell that the Yanks seem to cast over their opponents year after year, anyway?

"No, wait," Boudreau remonstrated. "I don't mean to say they've got any better chance of beating us out than the Indians have. I'm afraid of that Cleveland bunch, too. A club that has the kind of pitching they have, you've got to respect them; even if Bobby Feller isn't having such a good year.

"As a team, maybe I fear the Yankees a little more. What I feel about the Indians is that they might be strong enough to sneak in."

Johnny Hetki Wins Shutout Over Springfield

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Lowly Ottawa is kicking up a late-season fuss at the expense of the lofty Montreal Royals in the International League.

Charlie Bishop pitched the Athletics to their second straight win over the league-leaders last night, 6-4, while all the other clubs divided two decisions. Springfield finished up a Sunday suspended game with a 5-3 win over Toronto and then absorbed an 8-0 defeat as Johnny Hetki shut them out with seven hits.

Toronto's Lew Morton ripped into Al Lary and Al Ihde for a homer, tripple, double and single in five trips to lead the Leafs' attack. Ed Stevens and Bill Jennings also homered for the winners.

Rochester Hangs On

Rochester clung to second place, one-half game ahead of Syracuse, by splitting two with Buffalo. Bisons took the opener 6-5 with a three run rally in the seventh. Rochester came back to win the second, 12-7, as Don Richmond drove home five runs with a homer, double and two singles.

Syracuse romped home in the second game, 7-1, after Baltimore took the opener 4-1. Bobo Holloman won his 11th for Syracuse in the second.

Jocko Thompson, down from the Phillies, pitched a one-hitter in the seven-inning opener. The only hit was a homer by Johnny Welaj in the fourth inning.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You may wonder how the biggest bridge shots in the world make out with the pasteboards. Do they make mistakes? Lots of them. Do they always get the best results? Of course not.

How can you tell? By comparing what different pairs do with the same hands at the different tables. This comparison is possible by the records from any important championship.

Before me are the hands played in the 1950 Summer Nationals at Chicago. Competing were 260 players, 180 pairs, 90 tables in the deal shown here:

NORTH
♣Q J 10 8 6

WEST
♠6 3 2
♥Q 10 9 2
♦8 6 4

♥J 8 6 3
♦Q J 10
♣9 7 5 3

SOUTH
♠J 10 7 4
♥A K 5
♦A K 9 7 5

Understand that the deals were not prepared. Each table shuffled, dealt, and played. Their identical cards were duplicated for play at each of the other tables. And their results recorded.

Only 29 bid six spades; 26 of which made six and three went down one. Of 14 that bid five spades, eight made six, and five made five, and one went down. The 25 who bid four spades made five or six.

There were 17 who bid three no-trump; 11 made three, four made four, one made five, one was doubled and made four. One bid five clubs and went down one. Others made ridiculous bids.

Here is an easy set of hands that a dub pair should know is slam in spades. But only one third of the masters reached it. So, hot shots are not always so hot.

Think of this any time you get discouraged about the result of some deal. Do not be discouraged because every contract of yours is not right down the old alley. Neither is it for the experts.

It happens that west is the dealer in this case. So the north player will open the bidding and south will go along with him while their opponents do not interfere in any way.

How would you do?

WORKER GETS MONEY

STAFFORD, England (AP) — A Staffordshire smelter worker stared yesterday at the cauldron of molten lead he was stirring — wads of money were rising up through the bubbles. The astonished worker snatched a 52 pound note from the seething cauldron. The money apparently had been hidden in a bag of lead scrap.

BORN GROUCHY

Apparently birthdays mean nothing to "Bamboo", the gorilla at the Philadelphia Zoo. He's just as ill-tempered on such festive occasions as on ordinary days. He proves it here— on his 25th birthday — by chewing up his card and making mush of a watermelon his keeper presented to him. "Bamboo" is the oldest gorilla behind bars. — Central Press Canadian.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—How do United States political conventions look to foreigners?

Through television, some 60,000,000 Americans this year got to see what goes on at presidential nominating conventions. It was an eye-opener to many citizens, but even more so to those not familiar with U.S. political traditions.

One of these is Richard Burton, young British actor who was imported to play opposite Olivia de Havilland in "My Cousin Rachel."

Eye-Opener

"It was quite an eye-opener to me," he said. "I guess I expected some very solemn men in dark suits to sit around and discuss important issues on a very lofty plane. Instead, I saw a hullabaloo with people running around wildly. It was an amazing show.

"The oratory, I thought, was old-fashioned. Most of the speakers shouted at the audience and pounded their fists. It was refreshing when a young lawyer got up in the Republican convention and merely conversed with the audience. Suddenly everybody started listening to his speech.

"I would think there would be a change in the demonstrations for the candidates. Nearly all of them were obviously staged."

Burton remarked that there is nothing in the English political scene that matches the hoopla of the national conventions.

"The two major parties have their meetings," he said. "But they are rather quiet affairs."

The actor added that television has not made much impact on British politics.

"Not enough people have sets," he explained.

Drew to Make Two Tours Within Twelve Days

OTTAWA (CP)—George Drew, national Progressive Conservative leader, will make two tours in Quebec province within the next 12 days and has scheduled speeches to political meetings in several of the points he will visit.

Thursday and Friday he will visit the Montreal area.

Starting Friday, Aug. 22, he will make a four-day tour in the Eastern Townships and Quebec city.

Mr. Drew's visits this week will precede a tour by Prime Minister St. Laurent, who will leave Saturday for the Saguenay area to make several speeches.

Political Pal Of President Takes Beating

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Governor Sid McMath, of Arkansas, a political pal of President Truman, was defeated for a third-term nomination yesterday by a one-time college classmate, Judge Francis Cherry.

Unofficial reports from 2,040 of the state's 2,286 polls today gave Cherry 190,542 votes to 110,675 for McMath.

McMath was the second Truman-backed Democrat to be defeated in two weeks. Last week J.E. (Buck) Taylor, the President's choice for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator from Missouri, was beaten by Stuart Symington.

Democratic nomination—such as Cherry obtained yesterday—always has meant election in Arkansas.

Polynesians Direct Descendants Of Indians Says Book

LONDON (CP)—There's a book just out which says the Polynesians of the Pacific are direct descendants of North American Indians.

Thor Heyerdahl, the Norwegian scientist who headed the famous Kon-Tiki expedition and then wrote a best-seller about it, outlines the theory in a second book entitled "American Indians in the Pacific," published yesterday. (Allen and Unwin).

Heyerdahl claims that some nine centuries ago members of Indian tribes from British Columbia took to the ocean in canoes and eventually wound up in Hawaii and other Pacific islands. Until recently, the accepted theory has been that the Pacific islanders came from Java or Malaya.

FOR THURSDAY, AUGUST 14, 1952

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—No day to go blustering about, while thinking people will take it. Be calm and friendly and you will not have to buck other than your own tasks.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Friendly rays for many interests, including good fun, vacation activities. If at work, get through tasks quickly but well.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Stimulating, benefic Mercury aspect now should inspire you to achieve much in your own field, and perhaps gain advantages elsewhere.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Very favorable Moon vibrations for your benefit now. Having system and not dallying over unessentials should put you ahead of schedule.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Generally neither overstimulating nor hindering. An even tempo keeping your innate good humor out front, should make this a productive period.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Similar indications as for Gemini now. You man be especially original and creative today, use these talents to further your work. Rest, too.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Fine day for accomplishing in worthy undertakings, conferences, legal questions, practising true acts of brotherly friendship.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Mars and Saturn neutral in aspect help to make this day calm, should give you energetic folks desire to relax sensibly. Tabu worry.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Your Jupiter's position now advises against over-forcing issues, spending or investing unwisely. It is an interesting, favorable day on whole.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—You should be able to think, plan and act quietly, efficiently and progressively this unusually advantageous day. A good schedule will produce better results.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Be audacious where you should but not where more gentle reasoning is expected. Day has new advantages of occupational duties. Rest in free time.

February 21 to March 20 (Pieces)—Can be peak day for your interests and activities. Confidential matters, dealing with new clients or business enterprises in favor. Water sports, sea travel, recreation favored.

YOU BORN TODAY are courageous, virile, perhaps adventurous, inclined to be aggressive at times. May dislike details, seemingly unimportant tasks. Remember, no undertaking or project of worth is done without details. You can advance at any age if you don't lose ambition. Very encouraging months ahead.

Elks Favored By Good Weather For Annual Picnic

Picton—While rain fell heavily in most sections Sunday afternoon it failed to produce more than a light sprinkle about five o'clock, at the Lakeshore hotel grounds at the Sand Banks. Thus the annual picnic of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, Picton Lodge No. 326, was favored by good weather, though skies were overcast most of the time.

The weather failed to keep several thousand people away and the event was the most successful yet.

Highlight was a draw for a boat, 14 h.p. motor and trailer. This was won by Mrs. Donald Harvey, Bloomfield, whose husband is a cheesemaker at Bloomfield, and who was marking his birthday.

Other prize winners were Mr. Roland, Belleville, blanket; Howard Wood, Picton, electric heating pad; Mrs. Hero Smart, Cherry Valley, nylon fishing line; Mrs. W. T. Fraser, R 2, Picton, flashlight; Milton Bigg, R 1 Picton, 2 pairs hose; Luella Bailey, Picton, magnetic can opener; Ivan Wannamaker, Picton, combination cushion and lap rug; Marilyn Minaker, Picton, bath towels; Mrs. Leslie Bath, Picton, scatter rug.

Tickets were drawn by Malcolm McFarland, young son of Mayor H. J. McFarland. The latter also congratulated the Elks lodge on their work.

500 Children

The day was an unforgettable one for some 500 children who attended in the afternoon. They received free ice cream, balloons, candy and cash prizes for a variety of races.

In a mutt contest entries of Roy Insley, Roy Nutley, Mr. Loney won prizes. Judges were Mr. Dickson, Toronto and Judge W. S. Lane, Picton. I.O.O.F. band delighted the crowd with spirited selections under the baton of Bandmaster A. A. Benvie.

A yo-yo contest saw four reach the finals and since all received equal applause each was given a prize. They were Gordon Cole, Bob Abbott, Carol Roland and Carolyn Weldon.

A barrel race was a novelty with boys crawling and rolling through hoops and barrels.

A treasure hunt saw a lively group following clues to find hidden gifts.

The mystery man was found by Carol Stacey and George Rand.

The evening performance saw an excellent program of western music, songs and stories, by Walt Taylor and the Rhythm Ranch Riders.

The whole day was brought to a colorful and pleasing conclusion by a display of fireworks which turned dark skies into a glittering mass of color.

The Grand Exalted Ruler of Picton Lodge, Arthur MacDermaid, expressed appreciation to everyone who had helped make the day such a success.

In the morning the Elks with Picton Band paraded to the Anglican Church.

Wolf Believed Responsible

A wolf is believed responsible for killing a four-day-old Hereford calf at the farm of Ernest Roth at Cressy. Mr. Roth found the calf dead, with a portion of the heart and shoulder eaten away. Marks on the throat indicated that it had been killed by a dog-like animal. A wolf has been reported in the vicinity, being seen by several residents.

Papers Charge Former Worker In Consulate

DETROIT (CP)—Two Detroit newspapers said yesterday in newspage stories that a former employee of the United States consulate at Windsor helped Canadian citizens to obtain fraudulently visas which permitted them to enter this country.

The News identified the individual as a "Mrs. X" who was said to have been a minor employee of the consulate early in the Second World War. The Times described the individual only as a "former employee."

Both newspapers said that, for a fee, the employee gave Canadians who wished quick entry to the U.S. papers specially marked which received quick consideration at the consulate.

Commission Asks State Attorney To Make Appeal

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan state public service commission yesterday asked Attorney General Frank G. Millard to appeal a court of claims decision granting a Canadian trucking company the right to use Michigan highways without paying any fees.

The court held that the Mason Cartage Co., Limited, could bring grapes from St. Catharines to Lawton, Mich., entering the state at Detroit, without obtaining a Michigan licence or paying fees.

Commissioner John M. Veale in a letter to Millard said that the company operated 51 truck-trailers around the clock during last year's grape harvest.

Veale added that Michigan motor carriers are not permitted to make hauls of this type in Ontario at all.

"The court's opinion," he said, "if not appealed, will permit the unlimited, free use of Michigan highways in operations of this type."

Controller Says Pension Plans Are Identical

WINDSOR (CP)—Controller W. Ernest Atkinson yesterday contradicted testimony given earlier at an inquiry into management of the 350-bed East Windsor hospital for incurables about a pension plan for the institution's employees.

The controller, who is vice-chairman of the hospital's board, told the Ontario government commission investigating the hospital's affairs that the plan is identical with a pension plan in effect for city of Windsor employees.

H. N. Phillips of the Sun Life Assurance Company—which is providing the plan—said earlier the hospital plan is much more liberal than the city of Windsor plan.

Italian Oil Head Confers With Mossadegh

TEHRAN (AP)—Count Ettore Della Zonca, head of an Italian oil company, conferred with Premier Mohammed Mossadegh yesterday and was reported to have discussed the purchase of Iranian oil which this near-bankrupt country is anxious to sell.

Tehran newspapers said two representatives of a French oil company had also arrived to begin similar negotiations with Mossadegh, newly equipped with virtual dictator's powers to ease Iran's economic plight.

Sunday School Picnics

FRANKFORD UNITED CHURCH

FRANKFORD.—The Frankford United Church Sunday School picnic was held Wednesday at Crystal Beach, Moira Lake, with approximately 125 present. The young folk and a few adults left at 3:00 on the bus, arriving an hour later. The afternoon was spent in games and swimming.

In the evening, all sat down to a bountiful picnic supper, after the singing of grace.

Highlight of the races was the men's potato race, in which each contestant had to roll a potato over the course, propelling it with his nose. The farmer members of the group copped top honors, Walter Morrow just edging out Howard Richards by a nose. Jack McInally rolled the potato at least three times as far as any other participant, but unfortunately, in the wrong direction.

Throughout the day's activities, Frank Rabel kept a visual record of all events by means of his movie camera. It is hoped that some night in the fall, the Sunday School can have a "Family Night" at which the pictures will be shown.

All in all, the Sunday School picnic this year proved the best yet, and it is certain that everyone will be looking forward to another year's event.

Underneath The Bough

By Edna G. Robins

Louise Weston smiled pleasantly at her companions, Sadie Gibson and Josie Brown.

"Oh, no," she answered. "I'm not going to give up my art work Of course for a few weeks, I'll be busy getting the house fixed as I want it; but as soon as we're really settled I'm going on with my lessons. I couldn't stand it just to stay home and fold my hands. I'd have to do something worth while.

"I should think it was worth while to look after your house and your husband properly," said Sadie tartly. She resented Louise assumption of superior intelligence.

"I think it's wrong," Louise insisted, firm but a little flushed, "not to develop a talent if you happen to have one. My teacher says that I have a gift for painting and that I should keep on with it. And Harry agrees with him and would not want me to stop my lessons."

Of all the conceit! Sadie laughed rather noisily.

"My husband thinks a woman's place is in the home," she declared. "He wouldn't want me to be running off to art classes, meeting all sorts of people. He says artists are horrid and—immortal. They do things that are not nice at all and have no respect for women. Why—" her voice sank to an impressive whisper—"why they even have women in their rooms, he says, to pose for them without many clothes on!"

"It seems to me entirely too much fuss is made about that," Louise said quietly. "A beautiful body is one of the loveliest things in the world."

Her guests blushed and looked down uncomfortably. Sadie broke the strained silence.

"Well, Josie, we have other calls to make. It's been very nice to see your house, Louise. It's very pretty."

Louise saw them out the door with relief. She went back to the table and poured herself another cup of tea. As she sipped it, her thoughts were not happy ones.

"Why are women so stupid, so petty?" she wondered. "Sadie would be positively glad if I had to give up my art school. And yet it doesn't do her a bit of harm. I'm glad Harry is so nice about it."

She set down her teacup and stared before her, her eyes large with a sudden doubt. Was Harry really interested in her painting? He had not referred to it since their marriage. But then they had been so busy—and so happy—just to be together, to talk and plan.

Of course she had not expected to go right back to art school. She had intended to get everything perfectly in order first and running smoothly. She didn't want to have Harry bothered in any way by her studies. His comfort would always come first with her. Yet she had taken it as a matter of course that he would refer to her lessons as soon as they were really settled.

She began absent-mindedly to clear the tea table.

"I suppose I could ask Mother for the money, but I don't want her to know that Harry has not offered to pay for the lessons," she thought. "Besides, Mother wouldn't approve of my taking any more lessons now that I'm married. So she probably wouldn't help me. Harry promised me a servant girl if he found our expenses were not too high, as I'd much rather do all the work and use the extra money for my lessons. I wonder if I should suggest that to Harry."

She considered it carefully as she walked back and forth, putting the china on the tray to take downstairs.

"It would be almost worse," her melancholy thoughts ran on, "to find out that he doesn't want me to paint than just to go on waiting for him to suggest having lessons again. I can't bear to quarrel with him. And after all, my life with him comes first. I won't let my painting come between us."

The tears came to her eyes, and for a few minutes she was shaken by violent sobbing. She wiped her eyes impatiently.

"I mustn't let Harry see I've been crying or he'll ask what was the matter. And it's just too awful—to have hardly a cent of my own. To have to depend on him for every penny. Why!" she stopped abruptly and thought hard for a moment. "Why, Harry hasn't given me one single penny since I've been married."

As a child, Louise had been very ambitious. She had no clear idea at first as to just what she would do with her life, but she was sure that some day she would be famous. She would consort with the great ones of the earth. She got so tired of her playmates and of their lighthearted chatter. They never seemed to look ahead to anything serious. They never questioned the purpose of life. Louise found them dull, and they laughed at her strange enthusiasms.

Even in her early teens, when working for her hope chest, her dreams had not been just about domestic happiness. She had expected to marry as a matter of course; it was the customary lot of women. But she could be great even though married.

It hurt and surprised her to find that her mother did not understand her bright visions of future greatness.

"I suppose one of these days," Mrs. Bentley had said cheerfully, "you'll be coming around to visit me wheeling your baby carriage."

Louise had cried out in dismay.

LEAVE FOR U.S.

1,000 Persons Visit Trent River For Community's 40th Regatta

CAMPBELLFORD. — A crowd estimated at 1,000 persons thronged to Trent River on Saturday to attend the fortieth annual regatta. Originally scheduled for Monday, the event was postponed due to rain, and although the sky didn't look too promising at some times on Saturday, the rain held off and the program was carried out with great success.

For the past six years, the regatta has been sponsored by the Trent River Community Club and the proceeds help toward the upkeep of the community hall. President of the club is Melville Wight of Trent River and Mrs. Harry Mann is secretary-treasurer.

Competition was keener in all the events this year than it has been in any year previous, especially in the speed boat races which had a larger card of entries and faster boats than have participated before.

Peterborough Ornamental Swimmers were the feature attraction and the crowd greatly enjoyed their skill in the water and many of their intricate formations drew spontaneous ovations from the crowd. The show put on by the junior girls of the group ranging in age from nine to eleven years was greatly appreciated by the crowd as were the numbers performed by two very junior members, Margaret Anne Murdiff, age 6 and Janice Currie, age 5.

Added Attraction

An added attraction this year was a display of water skiing by the Chemong Lake Water Ski Club. This group thrilled the audience with their display of skill on their water skis, and one number, a pyramid consisting of Doug Laird and Terry Hill, with Trevor Mitchell on their shoulders, brought rounds of applause from the spectators. Doug Laird is the president of the club.

Judges of the various events were all persons from outside the district. They were Albert Allmark, of Toronto; Victor Horwitz of Cleveland, Ohio, and Al Pink, of Peterborough.

A lucky draw was held in which Mrs. Craig Nelson, of Campbellford, was the winner of a mixmaster, and the three lucky gate prizes went to Mrs. F. Ruttan, of Trent River, Mrs. Harold Agnew, of Havelock, and Mrs. Donald Carnrite, of Trent River. These prizes were all made up of groceries.

Mrs. M. Buchanan, of Clayton, Sask., was found to be the oldest person on the grounds on Saturday. She was presented with a lawn chair and was given the good wishes of the crowd on having reached the ripe old age of 83.

Gary McArthur of Peterborough, outswam a number of other contestants in a 'duck race'. Gary captured a duck that had been turned loose in the water and brought him to the shore, where he was presented with the duck as his prize.

Captures Watermelon

Beverly Dunsford of Trent River, had a similar experience she captured a watermelon and succeeded in getting it to shore ahead prize was the watermelon.

Following is a list of the re- of the other contestants. Her sults in the various competitions throughout the afternoon—

Three Found Dead After $250,000 Fire at Guelph

60 Left Homeless After Business Places Destroyed

GUELPH, Ont. (CP)—A 65-year-old woman and her two grandchildren were found dead early today after a fire swept through several downtown stores and filled apartments over them with dense smoke.

Firemen found the bodies of Mrs. Eva McCullough, David Nichol, 7, and his sister, Bonnie Lee, 3, huddled in a second-floor bathtub. They had fallen through a burning floor.

Until the bodies were found it was believed that all occupants of the building had escaped to safety down a fire escape after the blaze broke out around 10 p. m.

The fire caused extensive damage to more than 20 apartments and left 60 persons homeless. Damage was estimated at $250,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Nichols, parents of the two children, live in nearby Eden Mills. They brought the youngsters to be cared for by Mrs. McCullough while they went out for the evening. They returned to find all three dead.

The blaze was fought by every available piece of fire-fighting equipment in Guelph, Kitchener, Rockwood and Acton. Dense clouds of smoke covered the downtown section after flames broke out in the Wolfond Auto Parts building on MacDonell Street and spread to adjoining clothing and hardware shops. From there it swept up into the Wolfond and Spegel apartments.

The fire was finally brought under control early today, more than two hours after its unexplained start.

The entire auto parts shop, reopened yesterday after being renovated, was burned out. Smoke and water damage to second and third-storey apartments was extensive.

Boy Called Help

First to discover the fire at 9:30 last night was a Guelph boy, Ron Horn. He broke open the door of the auto parts shop and looked for a fire-extinguisher. Unsuccessful, he raced out again and called the fire department.

Firemen were on the scene quickly but were handicapped by a shortage of men. Civilian bystanders volunteered their services. Among them was 37-year-old Norman Mayot of Brantford, who poured water on the blaze for nearly two hours. He is working here temporarily.

The flames spread quickly to the upstairs apartments and one mother came onto a balcony with her child in her arms. Persons in the crowd below urged her to throw the baby down but she was persuaded by firemen to step back. She was guided down the fire-escape.

Card Game Costly

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP)—Four county police recruits started a penny ante card game yesterday during a break in their training program.

A veteran officer saw them. Result: Suspension and recommended dismissal from the force, and formal charges of gambling against the four.

Detective Russell Runyon made the arrest and confiscated the card game's pot—39 cents.

Red China Finds Tibetans Difficult To Deal With

By SELIG S. HARRISON

HARSIL, Indo-Tibetan Border (AP)—Red China can't seem to make the Tibetans understand who's boss now in the Himalayan "roof of the world."

Traders report Peiping officials sent to consolidate Communist power in western Tibet are running into serious trouble.

Number one case is the late June departure of West Tibet's head administrator or Garphone, Lara Lampa, for consultations with the Dalai Lama after a flare-up with Chinese authorities.

Lara Lampa turned down Chinese demands for conscript manpower and free supplies needed to build a 640-mile road connecting the Tibetan capital of Lhasa in the east with Gartok, chief West Tibetan center.

An Old Custom

Tibetan custom switches control of West Tibet to a new Garphone each four years. Lara Lampa has served since 1948. Garphones maintain magistrates who collect taxes in the form of barter goods and hold virtually complete legal power in their domains.

The Chinese have enraged Garphone Lara Lampa by advising peasants not to pay taxes or work without payment—meanwhile insisting that the Garphone furnish free road construction crews.

Quick completion of the Lhasa-Gartok road is an essential part of China's program in Tibet. The influx of more than 5,000 Chinese soldiers into sparsely-populated West Tibet with its chronic food shortage has put the area under severe strain.

Although the transport crisis worries the Chinese most, language troubles rank second. Intricate Tibetan dialects so far have defied Chinese officials seeking to learn the tongue.

Make Strong Effort to Settle Canning Strike

LEAMINGTON (CP)Farmers of Essex and Kent counties have moved to bring a settlement between a canning company and its employees before a $1,000,000 tomato crop starts to rot in the fields.

The growers, who will be picking their peak tomato crops in another week or 10 days, want action now. A meeting of the Kent Federation of Agriculture Tuesday authorized its marketing committee to seek the assistance of the Ontario Vegetable Growers Marketing Board to bring the disputing parties together.

The strike started last Friday when 1,000 workers here and another 100 in Wallaceburg walked out of the H.J. Heinz Company plants in a demand for pay increases. The workers, members of the United Packinghouse Workers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) are seeking an increase of 21 cents an hour and union security.

From Leamington a union request went direct to Andy Fulton of Hamilton, secretary of the growers, suggesting a meeting be arunion. Now plans are reported under way for a 3-way meeting, possibly, Friday, between the two disputants and farmers groups.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: Warm humid air will move northeastward out of the central United States today and Friday in advance of a disturbance now moving eastward through northern Manitoba. Scattered thundershowers during the periods of darkness will occur in most areas accompanied by considerable cloudiness.

Temperatures will rise slowly in all regions but cooler air will follow and begin moving across Lake Superior early Friday.

Cheese Consumption Trends in Three Cities Show Considerable Difference

OTTAWA (CP)—How do you like your cheese?

Most people in Ottawa like theirs on the mild side. People in Vancouver favor medium-strength cheese. Most Torontonians lean towards the old, strong kind.

That's the finding of investigations by the department of agriculture into cheese consumption trends in the three cities. The department found almost all families in the three cities use some type of cheese. Less than five per cent of the housewives interviewed indicated they never have cheese on the family menu.

The investigation disclosed that processed cheese is somewhat more popular than cheddar but most families use both types. Cheddar cheese is used in 90 per cent of Ottawa cheese-using households compared with 80 per cent in Vancouver and 70 per cent in Toronto.

Cottage cheese is used in about three-quarters of all Vancouver cheese consuming households, much more than in the other two cities. Other kinds of cheese such as Gruyere, Oka and Danish blue are used by one-third to one-half of all families in each of the three centres.

The investigators found colored cheese was more favored than the uncolored kind. The department concluded this was because colored cheese "looks more appetizing and has eye appeal."

BUREAU PREDICTS 625,000,000 BUS. WHEAT HARVEST

Record Will be Made If Figure Reached

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Wheat fever is running high in government agricultural circles here. It likely will culminate in a historic Bureau of Statistics announcement tomorrow.

Excitement mounts as thousands of reports from Prairie farmers and elevator men pour into the bureau, indicating the prospects of a record wheat crop in Canada this year.

But what a record. At first there were indications the golden money crop may reach an unprecedented 600,000,000 bushels, a boost of 34,000,000 bushels over the previous high of 566,000,000 in 1928. This compared with last year's 562,000,000-bushel crop.

But now optimism is even more glowing. There's talk in the government back-rooms of a 625,000,000-bushel crop or possibly even a 650,000,000-bushel harvest.

Official Tomorrow

That of course would make agricultural history. But so far all the talk is unofficial. Tomorrow, at about 3 p. m., EDT, the bureau will go out on an official limb, and make its forecast of what the wheat crop will be.

At the same time, it will make an estimate of other principal field crops, such as oats, barley, rye and flaxseed, but the main centre of interest is in wheat, for wheat is one of Canada's leading export items and a mainstay of the country's economy.

The bureau's announcement likely will quicken the heart of many a Canadian, but it will mean a big headache for the country's transportation men.

For it if turns out that Canada has the biggest crop in history, it likely will mean another tremendous drive by Transport Controller Roy Milner and his staff to prevent a Great Lakes shipping bottleneck such as that which threatened Canada last year.

Storage Problem

It may mean also that the government may have to requisition every inch of storage space available on the prairies. For besides this big crop expected, Canada also may have a large carryover from the last crop year which ended July 31. And there's a question in official quarters whether there is sufficient storage space to carry all that grain.

But anything can happen between the time the official estimate is made and the wheat is harvested and shipped to market. Rain, rust, hail and frost all can interfere and reduce the harvest drastically.

The bureau's initial estimate will be followed by another in a month's time and by a third in November. Not until the final estimate is made will Canada be absolutely sure of how much wheat she actually got in 1952.

Friendly Wolf

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—A timber wolf pairs off nightly with a saddle pony and roams the hills around Anjigami Lake, 250 miles north of here, until dawn.

The wolf trots close to the heels of the pony in perfect companionship.

It feeds regularly at a garbage dump with two bears.

A report of the strange friendship came from Byron Smith, chief ranger for the Ontario Lands and Forests Department at Sand Lake in that area.

118 PICKETS CHARGED WITH INTIMIDATION

As a result of this scuffle outside a Waterloo, Ont., plant, 14 pickets were charged with intimidation by police. Foremen trying to enter the plant were stopped by the pickets and a fight occurred before police could escort them through the lines. Altogether 118 pickets have been charged by police since the strike started on July 3.—Central Press Canadian.

Howe Tells of $320,000,000 Program to Aid U.K. Through Defence Gifts and Purchases

OTTAWA (CP) — Production Minister Howe announced yesterday a $320,000,000 program to aid the United Kingdom through defence—equipment, gifts, purchases and capital assistance. He also denied Canada lacks sympathy for Britain's financial problems.

"The Canadian government is prepared to do more for the U.K. than for any other country in the world," Mr. Howe said in an interview.

He said Canada this year will send about $150,000,000 worth of armaments to Britain as a gift under mutual aid, purchase about $100,000,000 worth of defence equipment from British factories and provide some $70,000,000 in capital assistance to help establish some key U.K. defence plants in Canada.

Some Success

Meanwhile the British Board of Trade announced in London some success in that country's drive to sell more goods to the dollar markets of North America.

Britain's imports last month were still higher than exports—by £69,100,000. But her July exports to North America, estimated at £25,400,000, were 15 per cent above average for the second quarter of the year. Exports to Canada, at £13,400,000, were a third above average to account for most of the increase.

The three-way program announced yesterday will come out of Canada's three-year $5,000,000,000 defence program which began April 1, 1951.

The original defence plan, Mr. Howe said, was to place defence orders in Canada and the United States because of the two countries' standardization program. Canada is trying, however, to place defence orders in the U.K. "Wherever possible outside the Canada-U.S. standardization program."

Rather Spend Pounds

If given an even break on price and a promise of speedy delivery of goods, Canada would "rather spend pounds than dollars."

The Manchester Guardian in a recent editorial criticized Canada for maintaining an "Olympian detachment" toward Britain's financial plight.

"We hold no Olympian detachment toward Britain," the minister said. "We are sympathetic to her financial problems . . . in fact the Canadian government is prepared to do more for the U.K. than for any other country in the world. We would do almost anything to help balance U.K. trade."

The basic cure to British trade problems, however, would have to come from Britain herself.

"No one can really get a country out of financial difficulties unless it is that country herself. Britain must make more goods and sell more goods, particularly to the dollar countries of Canada and the United States."

U.N. Official Sees 'Disaster' In Putting Defence Apart From Aid for World's Hunger

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP)—Dr. H.L. Keenleyside of the United Nations says he sees "disaster" in treating western military defence and aid to impoverished countries as separate problems.

This separation, "a very real mistake," is a prelude "to sure and imminent disaster," he said last night at the Couchiching conference sponsored by the Canadian Institute on Public Affairs and the C. B. C.

Little time remains for the free world to rectify its mistake, warned Dr. Keenleyside, director-general of the technical assistance administration of the U. N.

The problems of Communist imperialism and the active revolt of two-thirds of the people of the world against their sufferings must be tackled as one "for they are two facets of the same flawed stone."

"We cannot defeat the totalitarian threat," said Dr. Keenleyside, "if we lose two-thirds of humanity to the totalitarian philosophy. . . The two causes are inseparably united. If we lose on one front we lose on both."

Critical of Abbott

He was critical of Finance Minister Abbott's view that as far as Canada was concerned the present division of approximately $100 for direct defence to $1 for technical and economic aid was about right.

Such a distribution of democratic resources was "dangerously unrealistic." While it was probably true that Canadians were not prepared to make the additional financial sacrifices necessary to provide both kinds of protection, it was not necessarily the final word of the Canadian people on the subject.

"This is a time for leadership, not for simple compliance with existing opinion. Popularity is not the final test of governmental greatness."

Welfare Program

Yesterday at nearby Geneva Park, R. E. G. Davis of Ottawa, executive director of the Canadian Welfare Council said the council has prepared a report recommending a general assistance program for employable and unemployable Canadians.

He spoke at a panel discussion on the adequacy of Canadian welfare programs. The report, to be issued shortly, would recommend that the assistance program be operated by provincial and municipal governments with the support of substantial federal grants.

R. A. Farquharson, editor of Toronto Saturday Night, said suburban municipalities are for the most part avoiding low-cost housing programs because of educational and other costs.

Stringfellow Barr, president of the Foundation for World Government, New York, said the United States is in the grip of a great fear and that the futility of American foreign policy is to blame.

FORMER BANK MANAGER ADMITS FAKING ASSETS

Says He Provided False Papers for 100 Canadians

DETROIT (CP)—The story of how the faked bank statements were used to provide some 100 Canadians with United States visas was told at a deportation hearing here yesterday.

Roy H. F. McBride, former Windsor, Ont., bank manager, said he faked an asset statement for Everett E. Glassco, 25. He said he provided similar false papers for some 100 Canadians.

Glassco told the hearing he received a U. S. visa in January and entered the U. S. The hearing now is discussing his deportation.

McBride, manager of a branch of the Provincial Bank of Canada until July 31, testified he provided the asset statements on behalf of Mrs. Marguerite Prest, Windsor public accountant.

Said Balance $3,461

The statement declared Glassco opened an account with the bank and that his balance at the time of the statement was $3,461.18. Actually his balance was $2.01, McBride said.

U. S. law requires that a visa be granted only to an applicant who can show a substantial bank balance or who is sponsored by a U. S. citizen who will guarantee that he will not become a public charge for five years.

McBride said Mrs. Prest paid him $5 for faking the statement for Glassco.

Glassco testified McBride gave him the bank statement when he gave McBride a sealed envelope from Mrs. Prest.

In Washington the attorney-general's office said no charges will be laid either against McBride or Mrs. Prest.

In Windsor Crown Attorney Bruce J.S. MacDonald had no comment on the Glassco hearing.

Eastern Harvesters Move West Soon

OTTAWA (CP)—The big annual move of eastern farm workers to help western farmers harvest their crops has begun, the Labor Department announced today.

About 2,500 workers will be needed, the department said, and recruiting now is under way in Ontario and Quebec. Only experienced farm men will be used.

Those who volunteer get a low excursion rate of $15 for travelling west by train and $11.50 for the return journey.

Mower Cripples Girl

OWEN SOUND. (CP)—A mower blade Tuesday amputated the front part of an 11-year-old girl's left foot and one toe on the right foot. The girl, Irene Lindsay, of Owen Sound, was taken to hospital and her condition today is good.

She was watching a farmer cutting hay when the accident occurred.

Book Discloses How Britain's Royal Family Came to Be Called Windsors

LONDON (CP)—How Britain's royal family came to be called the Windsors is disclosed today in a book about King George V written by Harold Nicolson, well-known author and critic.

The book says that when the King learned in 1917 there was a rumor that he must be pro-German because the family had German names, "he started and grew pale."

His secretary, Lord Stamfordham, conceded that members of the Royal Family bore names of Teutonic origin. Experts were unable to answer the question: What is the King's surname? It was not Stewart or Guelph; it might be "Wipper" or "Wettin."

Various names were suggested — Tudor - Stewart, Plantagenet, York, England, Lancaster, D'este, Fitzroy. Then Lord Stamfordham remembered that Edward III had been called Edward of Windsor — the name which the present Queen recently chose to keep in preference to Mountbatten.

Lord Stamfordham was congratulated and told that the suggestion was something "to be historically proud of."

Nicolson's 570-page study is entitled "King George V: His Life and Reign." As reflected in reviews by newspaper critics, here are some sidelights on the man.

The Times: "This thorough and carefully composed study shows that the popular picture of King George formed by his subjects was accurate, He was a man without guile who brought a disinterested judgment and a remarkably retentive memory to the service of wealth."

News Chronicle: "(He was) the king who knew his job. He rarely made an error of judgment; and he was sometimes right when ministers were wrong."

The Daily Mirror, quoting from the book, notes that the King was human enough to write in his diary after a French visit: "Went to see 'Occupe-Toi d'Aemlie,'' the hottest thing I have ever seen on the stage. . .bed at 3:30."

Canada Praised For Arms Aid To United Kingdom

'Absolutely First Class' Says Commissioner Thomson

OTTAWA (CP) — Official Britain today heaped praise on Canada for her arms contributions to that financially-hit country.

James Thomson, acting High Commissioner for the United Kingdom, said Canada is taking an "absolutely fine step" in strengthening the defences of a North Atlantic partner.

He was commenting on a statement by Production Minister Howe yesterday that Canada will make a gift of about $150,000,000 worth of arms to Britain this year.

Mr. Howe stated also that some $70,000,000 capital assistance is being made available to help U.K. defence plants establish in Canada, and, in addition, that Canada is placing about $100,000,000 worth of defence orders in U.K. factories.

Long Term Gift

"That's absolutely first class," Mr. Thomson said. "Of course, we must remember that not all of the $150,000,000 worth of arms will reach Britain this year. Shipments likely will be spread over a number of years.

"There also is the need for Canada to place even more defence orders in Britain. And don't forget that the Canadian defence orders placed in Britain are helping Canada's own defences.

"Britain has trucks and diesel engines to sell, for example. The $100,000,000 worth of orders placed in Britain is a very nice step in the right direction, but Canada should try to spend even more dollars in Britain."

TV Tests on CBLT Start on Friday

TORONTO (CP)—Regular transmissions of test pattern over Toronto's television station, CBLT, channel 9, start tomorrow.

They will be on the air from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. and from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. daily until Aug. 22. Music will accompany the showing of the station's call letters during the evening transmission, while a steady tone will be broadcast with the afternoon transmission.

Fergus Mutrie, CBC TV director for Toronto, said the test pattern is intended to enable engineers to check equipment and to provide viewers and television dealers with a chance to check set reception on channel 9 prior to the start of test programs Aug. 22. Official opening of the station is scheduled for Sept. 8.

Flash transmissions of the test pattern last week brought favorable reception reports from as far away as Cobourg, Kitchener and London.

$1,500 THEFT

OTTAWA (CP)—Provincial police last night charged three youths with the theft last Monday of a pair of trousers containing $1,500 from the bedroom of a cattle dealer at Clarence, 25 miles east of here. Charged with breaking and entering are two Ottawa brothers, Maurice and Roger Prest, and Maurice Cardinal, of no fixed address.

TORONTO PUBLISHER

Harry G. Kimber, assistant publisher of the Toronto Globe and Mail for several years, has succeeded the late George McCullagh as president of that newspaper and of the Toronto Telegram, which Mr. McCullagh also owned. Mr. Kimber also becomes publisher of the Globe and Mail and acting publisher of the Telegram, in succession to Mr. McCullagh who died Aug. 5 of a heart attack.

Mountain Climber Struck 5 Times By Lightning, Lives

SEATTLE (AP)—A young mountain-climber, struck five times by lightning atop Mount Stuart in the Cascades, says he considers himself "the luckiest man there is, to be alive."

"After the third bolt, I thought I wanted to die," Alan Robert Grant, 19, said yesterday.

Grant's companion, Paul Brikoff, 20, was killed in the storm that struck just after they reached the summit of the 9,470-foot peak last Sunday.

Grant spent three days on the mountain waiting rescue. He was removed by helicopter yesterday.

Hospital attendants here said the youth suffered third-degree burns on his back and second degree burns on his right leg and thigh.

Ike Side-Steps Bid To Talks With Harry

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman invited Gen. Dwight Eisenhower to a cabinet luncheon and foreign affairs briefing at the White House next Tuesday, but the Republican presidential nominee turned down the offer.

The White House made public the telegram Truman sent Eisenhower yesterday and said the general's reply rejecting the offer had been received.

Press secretary Joseph Short told reporters the invitation had been "in the works" before Governor Adlai Stevenson, Democratic presidential nominee, came here Tuesday for a round of conferences at the White House.

At Denverl Colo., Eisenhower said his telegram to Truman said "it is my duty to remain free" to analyze Truman administration policies publicly and that it would be "unwise and result in confusion in the public mind" if he accepted the bid.

PEDESTRIAN NARROWLY MISSED BY MOTOR CAR

Here is a warning to pedestrians. Don't cross the street with something else on your mind and your eyes full of sleep.

Early this morning, a young man crossing Church Street, narrowly missed being hit by an auto. The pedestrian, obviously not quite awake yet got in the way of an oncoming auto. He gazed at the car bearing down upon him as if he hadn't a care in the world. The completely flabbergasted motorist turned his car in time to miss the sleep-walker.

The motorist had something to say, "Fella, you will have to get up a lot earlier than this or you won't be getting up at all." The pedestrian, continued unconcernedly on his way.

Kindly Judge At Fair Makes Young Lad Happy

A young four-year-old horseman will long remember Wednesday at the Belleville Fair when he received a cash prize from one of the horse judges for showing a young colt that was very little bigger than himself.

Whether or not the young lad was showing out of his class, or possibly there were only just enough prizes to go around. Anyway the show was over and the lad was very obviously disappointed.

But the judge was very understanding and quickly noting the look of disappointment that flashed across the boy's face, dug into his pocket and produced a dollar bill.

"Here, son, it's a special prize," he told the boy.

Then proudly clutching his dollar bill, the lad paraded his colt before the appreciative crowd on the grandstand.

Car Crashes Into Veranda

Falling to make a turn in the road while on his way to work this morning, a car driven by Kendall Rowe, 3 Brown Street, mounted the sidewalk, crossed a lawn and crashed into a veranda on West Moira Street.

Rowe was westbound on Moira when near the top of the hill his car left the road and sailed into the veranda on the house occupied by Goldie Livingston, 105 West Moira. About $100 damage resulted to the front of the small English type car, while damage to the veranda and steps will amount to about $50, it was estimated by police.

Rowe told police that he did not know how the mishap occurred. Police, however, think the driver may have fallen asleep.

Fawn at Grounds Will be Released In Near Future

Visitors to the Department of Lands and Forests exhibit at the Belleville Exhibition are wasting their tears if they believe the three-months-old fawn being displayed in a wire cage is doomed for a life in captivity. "Come time when the fawn is old enough to protect himself in his native wilds, the animal will be released," conservation officers said.

The fawn's captivity dates back to spring when his mother was killed, while crossing a highway near Arden, northeast of Belleville. At that time he was picked up by James Binckell, a farmer, who obtained a permit from district game overseer, to keep the fawn. The orphaned fawn was borrowed by the Department of Lands and Forests for exhibit here and following the conclusion of the fair, he will be shipped to Ottawa and put on display before being returned to Arden to wait out his release.

Few Permits Granted

Commenting on the fawn, Fred MacDonald, district conservation officer, declared that few permits are granted residents of the Quinte area to retain wild animals in captivity. Because of the mother's death on the highway, a permit was granted Binckell to keep the animal on the understanding it would be released when it could look after itself.

"Deer do not make good pets," the conservation officer said, adding that when they become adult they become treacherous, capable of killing a man with their front hoofs. "Nor is it fair to the animal," he continued. "After being in captivity, they learn to trust a man and when they are put on their own, they become easy targets for hunters in the hunting season."

The Sisters of Charity of the House of Providence will teach Charity of Providence will teach in the new school.

Blueprints for the school are expected to be ready in three to four weeks with tenders being called after that time. The School Board expects to let the contract sometime in late September and hopes to open the school by Easter of 1953.

Schwab's Giants Defeat Kingston In Two Straight

Schwab's little giants advanced to the second round in the OBA pee wee playoffs last evening when they defeated the Kingston Cardinals 11-8 in Kingston's Megaffin Stadium, to take their best-of-three series in two straight games. The Giants won their first game here last Friday by a score of 8-1.

The game, originally scheduled to be played in the afternoon at the Cricket Field was shifted to Megaffin Stadium through the kindness of Max Jackson, who opened all the players' facilities, and doubled as an announcer on the public address system.

Elliott and Kelleher shared the pitching duties for Belleville with Coe doing the receiving. Coaches Mark Storms and Frank Weir used fourteen Belleville players to subdue the Cardinals.

The Kingston team congratulated the winners following the game. The Belleville squad was high in praise of their treatment in Kingston.

Schwab's are now awaiting word as to the next draw which is likely to pit them against either Barrie or Mimico.

Skipper of Damaged Cruiser Blames Trent R. Regatta Officials for Mishap

Trenton (Special)—A unique repair job attracted scores of spectators down at the government dock last night.

The pleasure cruiser Thekla III of Ithaca, N.Y., ran aground at Trent River early yesterday damaging both propellers. On arrival at Trenton the skipper arranged for a Central Bridge crane. The crane lifted the stern of the 20-ton boat out of the water enabling workmen to replace the twisted screws. It was dark before the final adjustments were made.

The skipper blamed Trent River regatta officials for leaving a navigation buoy in shallow water marking a motorboat racing course. In the process of negotiating the buoy the Thekla III became fast on a hidden shoal.

While the repair operation progressed Senator W. A. Fraser, a boating enthusiast, came down to the dock to offer advice. Weight of the boat and crane caused the dock's concrete covering to give way in two places.

Concrete Platform At Rear of Town Hall Removed

Trenton (Special) — The concrete platform built at the rear of the town hall as an accommodation for farmers marketing produce has been removed by an order from the town office. The peninsula 100 feet long and 10 feet wide had not been in place three weeks. It was considered dangerous to motorists travelling north on Division Street rounding the corner at the rear of the Trent Theatre. The piece cost the ratepayers approximately $500 for installing and removing.

TWO PLANES DAMAGED

Besides the Texan forced landing north of Bayside yesterday morning, a Mustang fighter and a Harvard training plane were damaged in faulty landings on the airfield. The occupants escaped injury in all three accidents.

O'Keefe Brewery Wins Six-Horse Tandem Hitch

Motor transport with its greater efficiency may have replaced the horse to a great extent on farm and highways, but there are still many people who appreciate the sight of good horses and good horse showmanship.

This was quite in evidence Wednesday evening at the Belleville Fair when four and six-horse tandem hitches were shown in front of the grandstand. Horses and drivers in both classes received big hands as they paraded for the judge on the track in front of the crowded stands. Commentator was William Reid chairman of the fair horse committee.

O'Keefe's Brewery with its fine team of matched Belgians received the judge's nod for first place in the six-horse tandem hitch, while in second place was the Wilson Lumber Company of Cannifton with its Clydes.

Kiwanis 4-H Calf Club Holds Achievement Day

Members of the Belleville Kiwanis 4-H Calf Club held their achievement day Wednesday afternoon in conjunction with junior farmer club activities at the Belleville Fair. Fifteen members of the club turned out with their calves.

Points were given for the calves' appearance, for showmanship on the part of the young exhibitors and for attendance at meetings during the year. Three girls took part in the year's club work, while one member showed a Hereford calf. All other calves were Holsteins.

Lyle Leavens with a total of 885 points was the Achievement Day winner. Other club members and their placings were as follows: Ivan Phillips, Dale Balcanquel, Keith Richards, Jack Vermilyea, Wayne Herrington, Lewis Cummins, Murial Swan, Robt. Morris, Richard Walsh, Gordinia Cummins, Douglas Rollins, Kathleen Homan, Leslie Haight and Allan Cassidy.

Other Farm Machinery Seen at Fair

Included among the farm machinery exhibits at the fair was that of C. E. Brintnell and Son of Plainfield, George White dealers who had a B. and F. Avery tractor and a David Brown, English type tractor on display.

Another soldier from this area linger of Foxboro with Minneapolis-Moline tractors and farm equipment and Graham and Hoeme plow which caused considerable interest. This particular type equipment is a deep cutting plow for breaking up hardpan.

MALDON, Essex, England (CP) Officials at a Maldon carnival asked outsiders to judge their talent competition instead of measuring by applause. It was suspected that some competitors turned up with crowds of relatives to shout for them.

Two Belleville Rinks Win At Brighton Tourney

Two Belleville rinks got into the prize money with three wins at the tournament held at Brighton on Wednesday. A rink of W. Anderson, Fred Harper and Gordon Watkin as skip was second three-game high with a total of 51 plus five, while fourth place went to a rink of Ray Grant, A. E. Wonnacott and J. W. Davison as skip.

A Trenton rink of Roy Brown, W. Findlay and George Fuller won third place, while a Peterborough rink skipped by W. Freeman was the winner of the Canada Rex Soray trophy up for competition.

Winters of Cobourg won the two-game high score while Dive of Colborne with two Brighton bowlers as partners won the one-game high. There was a prize for the no-game winner and this was between Dick Edney of Kingston and a local rink of A. R. Symons, C. B. McGuire with Jack Lee as skip. The tournament was a full double draw with the first game starting at ten o'clock and play continued until late in the evening. The greens were in excellent condition, the play exceptionally keen and the hospitality of the host club unexcelled.

Decision Makes New Troubles For Gen. Ridgway

By RUSSELL BRINES

WASHINGTON (AP)—Belgium's decision to cut down its military and unexpected troubles for Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's European army.

The Brussels government decided yesterday to knock three months off the 24-month service period for conscripts. It had failed the previous day to get neighboring countries to agree on a common two-year training program.

United States officials, testifying before Congress on foreign aid in March and April, predicted several recent European developments, including the economic troubles which evidently have cancelled plans to raise 50 divisions by the end of this year.

They said they wanted to increase the training of reserves throughout western Europe, as the key to the whole defence plan, and they said this would create difficult problems.

No Hint of Cut

But there was no hint they expected any European country to cut down on the length of conscript service.

Belgium is the only member of the European defence community with a two-year service period. Britain, not an E. D. C. member, has a two-year period.

Ridgway, supreme Allied commander, had told the E. D. C. representatives that two years' training was the minimum for the calibre of reserve troops needed. American officials in Europe say manpower is sufficient for a two-year period.

The most important effect of the Brussels action is apt to be psychological. If this movement spreads or the Communists succeed in capitalizing on it, the European build-up could be drastically affected.

NO SURE ANSWER

MALMO, Sweden (CP)—When this city's civil defence commission announced a competition for the best plan to detect rocket bombs, it received 64 answers from many countries, including Britain, West Germany and the United States. But none gave a perfect answer.

One of Largest Hydro-Electric Projects Opened

ARVIDA, Que. (CP)—One generating unit of the Peribonca No. 1 power plant, one of the largest hydro-electric projects in North America since the Second World War, was given a trial run yesterday and is expected to be operating by the week-end.

The 350,000 horsepower, $30,000,000 plant, is located at Chute du Diable, some 60 miles from this Saguenay region centre on the Peribonca River, one of the largest emptying into Lake St. John.

Owned by the Aluminum Company of Canada, the plant is made up of five generating units which will begin operating at three-week intervals.

It is expected that 500,000 tons of aluminum ingots will be produced in the region next year, the power from Peribonca No. 1 going to a new 50,000-ton smelter at nearby Ile Maligne.

Another power plant, Peribonca No. 2, is under construction at Chute a La Savane, about 14 miles down the river and is expected to be in operation early next year.

Peribonca No. 1 was started in November, 1950, and its sister project the following spring. Some 673,000 cubic yards of rock had to be excavated from the site of Peribonca No. 1 alone before concrete could be poured.

Italian Jobless Tell Sad Story About Plight

ROME (AP)—Young men who never had a payday and jobless fathers with hungry babies are telling the sad story of Italy's economic ailment — unemployment — in the first parliamentary investigation of its kind in this country.

Tragic word pictures of this weakening national disease, which has baffled dictatorial and democratic governments alike, are being painted on the official record. But how the whole story will help Premier Alcide de Gasperi's government to eradicate unemployment—the Communists' biggest ally—remains to be seen.

Alongside the sad stories of the jobless is tragic testimony of their incapacity for jobs is tragic testimony of their incapacity for jobs crying to be filled.

Can't Fill Jobs

Rome and its province have 47,326 unemployed. Yet building contractors need and can't find 2,000 carpenters and bricklayers.

Almost all the jobless get government unemployment payments, but these fall far short of providing food and lodging for a family. Manual workers get about 64 cents a day and trained or white-collar workers get 93 cents.

Thousands of unemployed throughout Italy depend on their wits to supplement their subsidy.

How they do this is one of the big stumbling blocks of the committee. Workers young and old are reluctant to tell about what one Italian reporter described as their "secret acrobatics" in living without a pay cheque.

HOUSING No. 24
BUILDERS ACROSS CANADA ASKING US TO HELP

The concern is not for the general contractor or the opportunist looking for an opening to exploit the housing shortage to his unwarranted advantage, but for the regular experienced legitimate builder.

A builder who aims to build a good substantial, well designed dwelling to meet the needs of his client or prospective purchaser.

Sufficient mortgage funds are not available for this type of builder and across Canada builders are idle or have been forced to seek other occupations at a time when they should be building and homes are scarce.

We are asked to support these builders in their plea to the C.M.H.C. for reasonable consideration of their plight.

I am doing what I can to support the builders' plea and to provide proper housing accommodation for our people. Are you prepared to do anything? To all those who are interested and desire further information. I will gladly supply all data that I have at hand or can obtain.

A Trenton rink of Roy Brown, W. Findlay and George Fuller won third place, while a Peterborough rink skipped by W. Freeman was the winner of the Canada Rex Soray trophy up for competition.

Winters of Cobourg won the two-game high score while Dive of Colborne with two Brighton bowlers as partners won the one-game high. There was a prize for the no-game winner and this was between Dick Edney of Kingston and a local rink of A. R. Symons, C. B. McGuire with Jack Lee as skip. The tournament was a full double draw with the first game starting at ten o'clock and play continued until late in the evening. The greens were in excellent condition, the play exceptionally keen and the hospitality of the host club unexcelled.

Decision Makes New Troubles For Gen. Ridgway

By RUSSELL BRINES

WASHINGTON (AP)—Belgium's decision to cut down its military and unexpected troubles for Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's European army.

The Brussels government decided yesterday to knock three months off the 24-month service period for conscripts. It had failed the previous day to get neighboring countries to agree on a common two-year training program.

United States officials, testifying before Congress on foreign aid in March and April, predicted several recent European developments, including the economic troubles which evidently have cancelled plans to raise 50 divisions by the end of this year.

They said they wanted to increase the training of reserves throughout western Europe, as the key to the whole defence plan, and they said this would create difficult problems.

No Hint of Cut

But there was no hint they expected any European country to cut down on the length of conscript service.

Belgium is the only member of the European defence community with a two-year service period. Britain, not an E. D. C. member, has a two-year period.

Ridgway, supreme Allied commander, had told the E. D. C. representatives that two years' training was the minimum for the calibre of reserve troops needed. American officials in Europe say manpower is sufficient for a two-year period.

The most important effect of the Brussels action is apt to be psychological. If this movement spreads or the Communists succeed in capitalizing on it, the European build-up could be drastically affected.

NO SURE ANSWER

MALMO, Sweden. (CP)—When this city's civil defence commission announced a competition for the best plan to detect rocket bombs, it received 64 answers from many countries, including Britain, West Germany and the United States. But none gave a perfect answer.

One of Largest Hydro-Electric Projects Opened

ARVIDA, Que. (CP)—One generating unit of the Peribonca No. 1 power plant, one of the largest hydro-electric projects in North America since the Second World War, was given a trial run yesterday and is expected to be operating by the week-end.

The 350,000 horsepower, $30,000,000 plant, is located at Chute du Diable, some 60 miles from this Saguenay region centre on the Peribonca River, one of the largest emptying into Lake St. John.

Owned by the Aluminum Company of Canada, the plant is made up of five generating units which will begin operating at three-week intervals.

It is expected that 500,000 tons of aluminum ingots will be produced in the region next year, the power from Peribonca No. 1 going to a new 50,000-ton smelter at nearby Ile Maligne.

Another power plant, Peribonca No. 2, is under construction at Chute a La Savane, about 14 miles down the river and is expected to be in operation early next year.

Peribonca No. 1 was started in November, 1950, and its sister project the following spring. Some 673,000 cubic yards of rock had to be excavated from the site of Peribonca No. 1 alone before concrete could be poured.

Italian Jobless Tell Sad Story About Plight

ROME (AP)—Young men who never had a payday and jobless fathers with hungry babies are telling the sad story of Italy's economic ailment — unemployment — in the first parliamentary investigation of its kind in this country.

Tragic word pictures of this weakening national disease, which has baffled dictatorial and democratic governments alike, are being painted on the official record. But how the whole story will help Premier Alcide de Gasperi's government to eradicate unemployment—the Communists' biggest ally—remains to be seen.

Alongside the sad stories of the jobless is tragic testimony of their incapacity for jobs is tragic testimony of their incapacity for jobs crying to be filled.

Can't Fill Jobs

Rome and its province have 47,326 unemployed. Yet building contractors need and can't find 2,000 carpenters and bricklayers.

Almost all the jobless get government unemployment payments, but these fall far short of providing food and lodging for a family. Manual workers get about 64 cents a day and trained or white-collar workers get 93 cents.

Thousands of unemployed throughout Italy depend on their wits to supplement their subsidy.

How they do this is one of the big stumbling blocks of the committee. Workers young and old are reluctant to tell about what one Italian reporter described as their "secret acrobatics" in living without a pay cheque.

Man Coughs Up Evidence For Theft Charge

YONKERS, N. Y. (AP)—Clayton Cuff of Baltimore yesterday coughed up the evidence to pin a theft charge against him, police said.

Cuff, 20, and Clinton Allen, 18, were arrested after allegedly stealing a $425 diamond ring.

Police said Cuff answered questions in a coughing, stuttering fashion.

HOUSING No. 24
BUILDERS ACROSS CANADA
ASKING US TO HELP

The concern is not for the general contractor or the opportunist looking for an opening to exploit the housing shortage to his unwarranted advantage, but for the regular experienced legitimate builder.

A builder who aims to build a good substantial, well designed dwelling to meet the needs of his client or prospective purchaser.

Sufficient mortgage funds are not available for this type of builder and across Canada builders are idle or have been forced to seek other occupations at a time when they should be building and homes are scarce.

We are asked to support these builders in their plea to the C.M.H.C. for reasonable consideration of their plight.

I am doing what I can to support the builders' plea and to provide proper housing accommodation for our people. Are you prepared to do anything? To all those who are interested and desire further information, I will gladly supply all data that I have at hand or can obtain.

TORONTO STOCKS

Golds and base metals registered small gains. Western oils lost slightly on the exchange's index as leading issues dipped but gains generally outnumbered losses.

Most industrial sections slipped. Utilities, liquors and miscellaneous industrials weakened but Brazilian Traction, a weak utility for several days, checked its decline. Refining oils, textiles and foods were mixed.

Golds reached a high for 1952, gaining .01 points on the index over yesterday's record. Senior golds were strong and Bralorne and Giant Yellowknife gained. Secondary issues also drew good support with a few exceptions.

In base metals Hudson Bay, Sherritt-Gordon and United Asbestos strengthened but Golden Manitou and Mindamar were down.

Higher-priced western oils advanced as Federal Petroleum, Pacific Petroleum and Punch gained strength.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario Stockyards cattle sales today were too few to establish a market trend. Receipts: cattle 200; calves 40; hogs 200; sheep and lambs 200. The leftover from Wednesday was 1,500 cattle.

A few canner cows sold at $11-13 while choice light bulls were at $14. Common stockers were selling from $18-23.

Calves sold from $15-25 for common to medium while a few good calves brought $26-27.50.

Hogs were $26 for grade A with sows $16 dressed.

Lambs were $31-31.50 for good ewes and wethers with bucks at $30. Common sheep sold from $9-12.

PRODUCE MARKET

TORONTO (CP) — Churning cream and butter print prices here today were unchanged.

Supplies of A medium and small were ample while A large were in short supply today at the egg market. Prices quoted are for eggs packed in fibre cases.

Graded eggs cases free, delivered Toronto: grade A large 60; A medium 51; A small 42-43; grade B 38-39; grade C 27-28.

Market Prices Generally Firm

Business was brisk on the farmer's market today as most stall holders disposed of their produce before noon.

Of the offerings, tomatoes dominated the scene, selling at the opening for 50 cents for six-qt. baskets and showing little chance of a price recession as the afternoon approached. Reminded that last year tomato prices dropped to 40 cents per basket during the peak of the season, most growers expressed the view that this price would not be reached this year because canning factories were prepared to take all offerings at one dollar per bushel.

Potatoes continued in short supply selling steady at five dollars per bushel and with supplies of top-quality corn also limited, corn sold at 50 cents per dozen. Elsewhere on the market there were no major price changes. Blackberries appeared more plentiful, selling at 50 cents per quart and plums at 65 cents per six-qt. basket. Watermelons were also available, ranging in price from 15 cents for the small to 65 cents for the large. No eating apples were offered.

Gunman Foiled In Bold Attempt To Hold up Four

WINDSOR (CP)—A service station proprietor told today how a hurtling beer bottle and a shotgun blast routed a gunman who tried to hold up four persons shortly after midnight.

As Harold Donnelly was sitting with his wife and another couple in living quarters at the rear of Donnelly's Auto Service in Windsor's western outskirts, he said, a man thrust a revolver around an outer door and barked:

"This is a stickup. Stay where you are."

Mrs. Donnelly jumped to the door to push it against the gunman, her husband said.

Donnelly grabbed a beer bottle and hurled it through a window at the top of the door.

Then he ran to the next room, got his loaded shotgun and fired a blast through the window.

"Between the beer bottle and the shotgun, I think the man was frightened away."

FRIENDS AT FIRST SIGHT

A new playmat efor Melody Leonard of Beaverton, Ont., is this three-month-old racoon found in an abandoned farm home. The racoon wastes no time in making friends, and if left alone crawls into bed with the baby, pulls the covers up to his chin and snoozes blissfully. — Central Press Canadian.

Canadian Dollar Higher

NEW YORK (CP)—The Canadian dollar today was quoted at $1.04¼ and closed at that premium in foreign exchange dealings—the highest value it has reached in 18 years.

This means it took one U.S. dollar plus a premium of 4¼ cents to buy one Canadian dollar.

Today's quotation was the highest for the Canadian dollar since November, 1933, when it rose to $1.05½.

Sharbot Lake Man Fatally Injured by Blast

PERTH, Ont. (CP)—Myles Vanalstine, 45, of Sharbot Lake, was fatally injured yesterday by a dynamite blast on a road under construction near Sharbot Lake, 25 miles west of here and 45 miles north of Kingston.

With two other men, he was caught in the blast from a stick of dynamite which failed to detonate with several others.

David Crawford is in hospital here suffering from cuts from flying rock and shock. The third worker, Stanley Asseltine, was shaken by the blast but was able to walk a quarter-mile through the bush to a neighboring farm for aid.

Youth Confesses To Slaying Girl

BREA, Calif. (AP)—"I had to kill her to get what I wanted."

Those were the words attributed yesterday to William F. Rupp, Jr., 18, by District Attorney James Davis. Davis called them a confession to the slaying of Ruby Ann Payne, a 15-year-old baby sitter in nearby Yorba Linda last Friday.

Rupp, disheveled in jail denims, appeared briefly in a justice court yesterday and was arraigned on a formal charge of first degree murder. His preliminary hearing was set for Aug. 21.

Davis quoted Rupp as saying in a transcribed statement that he hit her with a hammer, and when she ran, he shot her.

He didn't rape her, he said, but contented himself with fondling her.

Motor Displays Contain Wide Variety Vehicles

The motor displays are proving interesting to the public at the fair. One of the displays contains two Fordson major tractors exhibited by Riggs Motors. Other Fordson tractors are being shown along with a full line of trucks, including one three-ton truck, one two-ton truck, a one-ton pickup, one express truck and one panel truck. Besides the tractors one Monarch sedan is being exhibited.

Elliott Motors are showing a full line of Buick and Pontiac cars at their booth at the fair, along with G.M.C. trucks of all sizes and two school buses. There is also shown a G.M.C. 650 diesel tractor. Three Buicks are displayed, a roadmaster, custom hardtop and a sedan along with a Pontiac sedan.

Motor Vehicles Sales Higher

OTTAWA (CP)—Motor vehicle sales increased in June to 43,57 from 32,680 during June, a year ago, the second consecutive monthly gain, the Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday.

However, the two-month increases did not offset decreases in volume and value over the six month period from January to June.

Value of sales during June totalled $107,336,831 compared with $83,749,780 a year ago. Volume and value during the first six months of this year was 213,753 and $540,-059,416 compared with 242,217 and $585,153,556 during the first six months of 1951.

Is one life as good another?

This question raises itself as result of the findings of a Montreal Superior Court judge who has ruled that an ambulance on an emergency mission is justified in going through a red light. This decision follows an accident in which an ambulance passed through a red light, striking a truck. The truck owner who believed he had the right-of-way has been ordered to pay damages totalling $1,373 to the owners of the ambulance.

In his decision, the judge reasoned that fire department apparatus, police patrol wagons, hospital ambulances "or any other vehicle on its way to save life or prevent property loss" fits the "emergency" category.

Visitors to Montreal often witness with amazement the number of sirens mounted on ambulances and police department vehicles which pierce the air with their deafening whine. So commonplace are these disturbances that Montrealers often joke that the driver of the ambulance or patrol car, is on his way home to lunch when the screech of a siren is heard.

In an emergency, all vehicles rushing to the aid of the stricken should be given the right-of-way. Their warning siren should be enough to bring other vehicles to a stop. However, when these emergency vehicles abuse the privilege, they should be treated accordingly.

A firm operating an ambulance service in the city estimated that an average of less than five calls per week could be regarded as "emergencies." This city is fortunate to be spared the Montreal siren nuisance, but the law should clearly stipulate that emergency vehicles may flaunt the recognized rules of safety only in the event of a real emergency. If questioned about the use of their sirens, police cars and ambulances should be able to prove the existence of an emergency. Yes, one life is as good as another.

FARMERS VICTIM OF LABOR DISPUTE

Fruit and vegetable growers in the Leamington area in southern Ontario have cause to worry as a result of the strike of 1,160 employees in one of the largest canneries in the business. The strike was called in an attempt by the union to increase wages in the canning industry, but while the union leaders and representatives of the canning company prolong their talks, tomatoes and other perishable crops are left to rot in the field.

In this case, it appears that the farmers will be the innocent victims of the labor-industry dispute. Unable to market their crops, farmers face bleak economic prospects and any regard they may have had for organized labor will certainly wane.

To armchair economic quarterbacks, it would appear that union and management should have reached accord on wages and on all other matters before the canning season started. Time is now of the essence and it is unfortunate that canning must be delayed while union and management debate their differences.

It is suggested that some tentative understanding should be reached immediately so that processing of this year's crop may get underway without further losses to the innocent farmers whose livelihood depends on immediate acceptance of his crop at the canning factory. Both labor and management could demonstrate their good faith by returning to production now, agreeing to reach accord on wages when the harvest is in.

THERE'S SOMETHING WRONG

It is worthy of note that the province of Saskatchewan made a gain of 111 in population during the first six months of the current year. Alberta, of comparable population and more like Saskatchewan physically than any of the other provinces, made a gain of 31,000 during the same period. The increase for the whole country was 421,000; of this 421,000, about one half, or 216,000, was due to immigration.

But the fact that Saskatchewan registered a gain so trivial in relation to that of every other part of the country was not in itself surprising. The surprise was that Saskatchewan showed a gain at all, in view of its history for many years. This 111 increase is, we believe, the first or almost the first gain that Saskatchewan has made for about 20 years. We believe every preceding count showed a decline, while all the rest of the country continued to gain.

Between 1930 and 1938, this decline was blamed on drought, and with some justice. But the drought ended before the start of the last war, and the decline in population continued until just recently. This gain of 111 is so insignificant that it may not even mark the beginning of a trend.

It is probable that a combination of factors is responsible for Saskatchewan's lamentable failure to stay abreast of the rest of the country in development, or even to hold its own, but it is obvious that Saskatchewan must have handicaps from which the rest of the country is not suffering.

CHILD'S BEDTIME

'Tis strange at four years old how soon
The sun gives way to stars and moon;
How fast the happy hours have fled
'Twixt getting up and time for bed.

"Not yet! Not yet!" the children plead,
"We want to play; we want to read.
Not bedtime yet," they sadly say,
"A little longer let us stay."

'Tis well that childhood doesn't share
The weariness that follows care.
It would be tragic to behold
A child, worn out, at four years old.

And so when nightly this is said:
"Come on now! It is time for bed,"
Since only life's delights they know
I"m glad that they don't want to go.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

A GOOD COMPANION

If you have a mind toward nature and can welcome yourself as a good companion, you may well hope to reach a high standard of success and enjoy a rich spiritual happiness. We spend too much time, and anticipate too greatly, upon the occasion of discovering a companion right off street as though it were an occurrence common enough — which it isn't.

The best companion you can ever hope to meet, or know, is yourself. You know that one better than any other you might attract to you, and there is the convenience of always having that companion near for any duty or emergency. We have solved many another problem when we have learned that important one of how to live agreeably, and with enthusiasm, with our own self.

In illness, in health, in triumph and in failure, there may that companion be—associate, savior in time of need, and the inspiration of all our faith in God and man. People who have not learned to live with themselves have missed the cream of a happy existence, their usefulness and personal happiness being throttled to an exceedingly low pace.

There is always self-triumph to all greatness. There is an efficient meeting ground between oneself and that good companion which is that other self of ours. All through life we meet those with whom it is difficult to deal. That isn't so strange for it is difficult to deal with our own self, whom we know so much better than any other with whom we come in contact.

We are a composite of scores of lives, something taken from the many in both life and fiction. Who would not be a Lincoln, a Jean Valjean, or a Sydney Carton? It's this readiness to absorb and adopt that furnishes us with selected companions as friends, and keeps enriching that silent companion of one's self. It's the good name, the good companion that always measure more than great riches.

DON'T THROW HAPPINESS AWAY

Some people throw happiness away with both hands. They have love, opportunity, fine heredity, good health — the makings of a happy life. But because they lack self-control, or have a jealous spirit, or nurse a grudge, or love money too much, they cast all chances of happiness away in exchange for some bauble, some tinseled toy not worth the having.

It very often happens that married couples, because they greatly dislike some little failing in each other, destroy the possibility of deep and abiding happiness. People who have been friends for years disagree over some petty matter and henceforth are strangers to each other. Many a boy who has had everything under the sun given him, and who should be a great success in life, has cast it all away in the pursuit of an aimless life of pleasure. Jealousy has shoved many persons off the road to happy purposeful living and kept on pushing them until they went over the precipice. Judas Iscariot sold out a man who loved him for thirty pieces of silver, and many are those who have scoffed at love and trampled it under foot that they might gain riches.

Why do we cast away our treasure so recklessly? Why are we so prone to empty our hearts of gold and fill them with dross? It's easy to throw happiness away, but happiness thrown away is as hard to pick up as spilled water.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Psychiatrists for children are becoming part of our everyday social establishment. In schools, social service organizations and public health services, psychiatry is taking a place alongside tooth brushes and setting-up exercises. Children being the healthiest and happiest of all mortals, why psychiatrists have been allowed to put the finger on them is a mystery. Outside of children, the only other social group exposed to psychiatry are the unbalanced and ill.

Psychiatry should start at the other end. It is old people who require the soothing, healing and understanding arts of the psychiatrist. Children have no worries about the future. That is about all the old peple have to think about. Children are concerned almost exclusively with the present. Old people are supposed to rest their thoughts upon the past. But in a great majority of elderly men and women, anxiety for the future, both earthly and in the hereafter, consumes a good deal of their thoughts, as anyone who observes them sympathetically can determine. If the state of the world today causes anxiety among the mere thirty and forty year olds, whether by reason of the political situation or of the terrific speed-up right around the office and the home, what must it be doing to the sixty and seventy year olds who can so brightly remember a quieter and happier world? The guilt complex is one of the commonest of psychiatric manifestations. How much of a guilt complex do the aged suffer from, as they look upon a world which they helped shape and now in such a state of jump and jitters?

Some psychiatrist could make himself a nice little profit by setting up a clinic specially for the elderly, and making it fashionable. It would have to be fashionable, of course; because elderly people are more wedded to fashion than anybody else. The old-fashion, that is.

Letter to the Editor

Wants Action on New Highway--But Fast

Editor, Ontario Intelligencer:

What does it mean, that notice on the Trenton bridge, that you must use the bridge at your own risk? Is that a joke by the government at Ottawa? Are we supposed to swim across? This of course should not be the main No. 2 highway, but it is.

And there is no use the Ontario government giving us that old army stuff, about not being able to get on with the new four-lane highway for lack of steel. They certainly could go ahead with the grading, culverts, right of way and so on, but they don't seem to be doing anything much. Our traffic problem here is fast reaching an impasse. We should get busy moving the railway off Pinnacle street—it can and must be done. We should also commence proceedings to get the C.P.R. line moved a few feet south so we can put a bridge across the river to connect the Dundas streets. If we can't get steel let us use wood. It will then be at least as good as the Trenton bridge.

Emphasis On Pretty-Smelling Products for Men

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Dad's in for a Christmas scenting.

Manufacturers of holiday gifts held a preview yesterday and the emphasis was on pretty-smelling products for men.

"Sales of cologne for men are booming," reported Henry Dow of Boston, a manufacturer representative.

But holiday gift manufacturers aren't overlooking the prime sales obstacle: man's fear of appearing sissified if too fragrant. So they're steering clear of glamorous names.

Men's cologne is simply and sternly "cologne for men" and a spray deodorant makes its appearance with a warning:

"For men only."

NO COLD GRADATIONS OF DECAY.

A casual reader—at least I hope not a regular reader—chided me recently because I persist in telling readers that the instant after we attain full growth and development, maturity or the peak of life, we begin to die.

House guests of a fabulously rich man who dwelt in a castle by the sea were warned on arrival that any reference to dissolution in the nabob's presence would make the visitor persona non grata.

Perhaps the reader envisages the end of the process whereas I tell readers only about the beginning of it.

Dying, it is well to remember, is naturally a long, one might say gentle and, from a philosophical point of view, interesting process, not at all the dismal plight described by Samuel Johnson (Bartlett tells me) as "the cold gradations of decay."

I've been dying for at least thirty years and I can assure you young 'uns that it isn't nearly so sad a fate as you think and I thought when I was your age. Of course I remain considerably younger than you will be when or if you reach my age, but I have been hammering away at you since I was your age in the endeavor to teach you how to keep your arteries soft, your blood pressure but of mind, your joints nimble and your teeth. It's not my fault if you have ignored these teachings.

The reader who resents enlightenment about degeneration, decline and dying added a typical stu—oh, oh, I must not use that adjective any more— remark: "Few people have the time or will take the trouble to buy wheat and grind it in the coffee grinder as you advise us to do."

How true! And that trait, unwillingness to take the trouble to get out of the wrong way of living, accounts for the early beginning and short termination of the dying process in America today.

Buying and grinding wheat is just one of the "troubles" you have to take today if you preserve the characteristics of youth, extend the prime of life in both directions, build and maintain a higher level of positive health throughout the life cycle.

In the booklet The 7 Keys to Vite, for which send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope, I have condensed as much of these teachings as possible. However, if that seems steep, send just a stamped, self-addressed envelope and ask for the pamphlet Young Folks and Old Folks. ....

If that is too much trouble, just settle back in your chimney corner and listen to your arteries hardening.

I don't take trouble very well myself, big troubles or little troubles. Other people's troubles, that is. Some readers tell me I'm hard boiled and cynical because I strive to keep pathological matters out of this health column. But I am confident, from what most correspondents say, that the less medicine and the more hygiene we can serve newspaper readers the better for their health and happiness.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Mental Deterioration

Woman, 57, has developed some eccentricities—for instance after every simple statement she makes, serious or not, she laughs. She seems constantly under the apprehension that some one is looking in on her—she rushes to close windows and blinds and draw the curtains regardless of the hour or day. . . (K. L. T.)

Answer—She should have a medical examination to determine her sanity. It is useless to try to reason with such a person.

Cucumbers

What element are in cucumbers? They cause indigestion when I eat them. Others tell me the same. (F. F. J.)

Answer—Ho-hum, who cares? Next to mashed potato I can think of nothing less interesting. . . A pound of cucumbers will yield 75 calories, nearly a third as many as a pound of lemons, a little less than a pound of lettuce. If you like 'em, they can do no harm. but why a biped should eat 'em, I don't know.

Dr. Dope

Sister gives her baby "dormitol" (I guess that is the spelling) prescribed by her doctor, also he advises a dose of paregoric at bedtime. . . half teaspoonful of the dormitol in every bottle of formula . . . (A. L. P.)

Answer—Paregoric is camphorated tincture of opium. I'm not sure what "dormitol" may be. Surely even a little opium is not good for a baby. Send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope for The Brady Baby Book.

Mrs. Albert Freemantle, of Middlesex, England, has arrived in the city to visit her sister, Mrs. J. S. Vallis, of Hamilton, Bermuda, and her brother, Mr. A. C. Latta, of Sidney.

Exquisite Wood Carvings Attract Appreciative Viewers

Yesterday afternoon an added attraction to the Belleville Fair was seen outside the horticulture building, consisting of five special display boxes housing delicate hand carvings by William Loney, who resides near Picton. These consisted of exquisitely carved birds, rosetree, with roses, full blown and in bud, perfect to the most minute detail; marauding wolves devouring a freshly slain fawn; a perfectly formed black horse, "Black Beauty", carved from pine, with Hawaiian rider carved from black walnut; a lordly deer; and a family of moose.

All the exhibits are wood-carvings and shown with a natural background painted by Mr. Loney, depicting snowy wastes, and flowing rivers, with native birds.

Mr. Loney, a retired skilled mechanic, who served with steel companies in Sault Ste. Marie, Newton Falls in the Adirondacks, Chicago, and Gary, Indiana, is now residing in Prince Edward County. As a result of his inclination for fine work, carving came as a natural hobby. He is one of the few persons in this part of Canada who do such work.

The whole exhibit is outstanding in the delicacy of its fine interpretation, as exemplified by the tiny humming birds sipping nectar from the red rose hearts, as is the little sandpiper at the foot of the rose tree, so realistic that one expects it momentarily to skid across the case, and stop, and skid again, in natural sequence.

Bride-To-Be Honored By Many Fine Gifts

Last evening about 45 friends and members of the Alliance Youth Fellowship Group met at the Alliance parsonage, North Front Street, to honor Miss Eunice Veley, bride-to-be and graduate of the Western Canadian Bible Institute, with a miscellaneous shower.

The early part of the evening was taken up with the singing of favorite Gospel choruses, led by Paul Delaney, accompanied at the piano by Miss Margaret Benn. These were followed by several amusing games, after which Mr. Russell Perkins gave an impromptu address wishing Eunice much happiness in her new undertaking, with special reference to foreign missionary work, the objective of her life and that of her husband-to-be.

At the close of the address, Miss Velma Carmen and Miss June Whittaker carried in a prettily decorated hope chest in pink and white filled to overflowing with gaily wrapped gifts, for which the happy recipient expressed her gratitude and thanks to each giver, and also for their best wishes on her behalf.

Bounteous refreshments of sandwiches, chocolate and white cake, and orange drink brought a happy gathering to a close.

EXTENSIVE EXERCISE

STOCKHOLM (CP)—The Swedish air force has embarked on large-scale manoeuvres that will last until the end of September, partly in conjunction with the navy. Mock attacks on the Island of Gotland will be made with live ammunition and bombs.

Clarissa Spencer-Churchill Weds Foreign Secretary

Prime Minister Churchill was a witness as the daughter of his dead brother was united with his 55-year-old political heir apparent in London's Caxton Hall.

It was Eden's second marriage and his bride's first. Because of his divorce two years ago from the former Beatrice Beckett, today's ceremony could not be performed in the Church of England.

Crowd Cheers

Eden drove to the hall with his elder brother, Sir Timothy Eden, through a crowd estimated at some 2,000. The bridegroom wore a blue lounge suit with a white carnation in his buttonhole. He waved and beamed as the spectators clapped and cheered.

Ten minutes later the bride arrived with Randolph Churchill, the prime minister's son. She wore a lilac taffeta dress with a dark, close-fitting hat and veiling.

The 77-year-old prime minister arrived with his wife and walked slowly up the steps of the hall. Mrs. Churchill wore mauve.

No Royalty

None of the Royal Family was present. British royalty doesn't attend the weddings of divorced persons.

The prime minister smiled approvingly as the bride and the handsome diplomat signed documents completing the civil marriage.

It was all over within five minutes.

Outside Caxton Hall the sun shone brilliantly and spectators created the biggest traffic jam since the marriage of movie stars Elizabeth Taylor and Michael Wilding in the same room a few months ago.

Bride Demure

Between lines of spectators rode mounted policemen. A hundred constables on foot joined hands to form a chain as Eden and his bride came down the red carpet to the front door a few minutes before noon.

The bride posed demurely beside her husband for dozens of photographers.

The foreign secretary carried an "Anthony Eden" homburg, designed especially for him.

The romance between Eden and Churchill's vivacious blonde niece took London by surprise when it was announced earlier this week.

But the two had known each other for years. During the Second World War, while Eden was running the Foreign Office, his bride worked in the department's communications section, decoding telegrams and confidential documents.

Both are descended from aristocratic, land-owning families. A baronetcy, held by his elder brother, was granted to the Eden family in the 17th century by King Charles II.

The new Mrs. Eden is the daughter of the late Maj. John Spencer-Churchill, who died in 1947. Her mother, Lady Gwendeline, a daughter of the seventh Baron of Abingdon, died in 1946.

Eden had two sons by his first marriage. The elder, Simon, was lost in Burma in 1945 when a bombing plane on which he was navigator failed to return from a mission. The younger son, Nicholas, is an aide to Governor-General Vincent Massey of Canada, and now is visiting his mother in New York.

Drug-Induced Sleep May Save Girl Afflicted With Tetanus

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Ten-year-old Kathryn Slater is a modern Rip Van Winkle—but physicians believe her drug-induced sleep will save her life.

Kathryn is afflicted with tetanus. Her doctor put her to sleep 32 days ago, and has kept her asleep while her body fights the disease. If she wakes up, he said, she would have convulsions that in all probability would kill her.

The physician described the treatment as "routine."

Kathryn cut her foot while playing and picked up the germs.

Her physician said the tetanus germ produced a poison which spreads to the nerves through the blood stream, causing frequent muscle spasms.

The shock causes high temperatures and prevents proper ventilation of the lungs, affecting the heart. The patient finds it difficult to breathe and swallow.

When her physician decides the girl is over the convulsion stage, he said he will slowly reduce the anesthetic to awaken her.

While sleeping, Kathryn is fed through a tube inserted through her nose and entering her stomach.

DEATH STRIKES YEARS LATER

RIPLEY, Derby, England (CP)—Miner William Stocks, 35, was killed in a fall of stone here July 21—exactly 11 years to the minute after his brother was killed in the same pit. Since the first brother died the father refused each July 21 to go down in the colliery.

The collection was $3.75 and flower fund $1.61.

JOHNSTOWN W.A.

The Johnstown Women's Association held its August meeting at the home of Mrs. James Lamonde on Thursday. On account of so much threshing in the neighborhood, the president and vice-president were unable to attend, so Mrs. Glen Stickle was asked to take the meeting.

The Scripture reading was found in: Acts: 1 verse 8, and an explanation of this was given by Mrs. Alva Meyers. This explanation was terminated by a verse called "Why?"—"Why is it hard about God to talk as with a friend we chance to walk? Why do we keep from that subject away? Why do we? Why do they? As we go upon our way we hear folks talking every day, but never a word about God do they say. Why don't we Why don't they? When we meet a friend upon the street we talk of the weather, the cold, the heat. Why don't we talk about God? Why don't I? Why don't you? O friends, if we love our Saviour and King, let us talk of His love and His praises sing. Let us try to win others to love Him too. I'll try. Can we count on you?"

Several sick people in the neighborhood are to have cards sent to them from the Johnstown W.A. There were four short readings given. There was a contest given and Mrs. Clayton Curtis won the prize. A social half hour was enjoyed by all.

WOOLER A.A. OF W.M.S.

The August meeting of the Afternoon Auxiliary of the Women's Missionary Society, Wooler, was held in the church on Tuesday afternoon with an attendance of sixteen. The president, Mrs. E. McMaster, presided and conducted the worship service and business.

Following the reading of the minutes, the financial report was given by the treasurer. The date of the Baby Band party was announced also the School for Leaders at Whitby. Mrs. Alden Arthur, Community Friendship Secretary, reported calling on the sick members, also the new Dutch families in the community.

Mrs. R. Redcliffe, Christian Stewardship secretary, gave a reading entitled "Service In Little Things". The main feature of the program was a short play "Life Is a Trust". This was well presented by Mrs. Gooding, Mrs. C. McMaster, Mrs. E. McMaster, Miss C. Cox, Mrs. R. Walker and Mrs. R. Putnam.

THE MELROSE W.M.S.

The regular monthly meeting of the W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Eugene Badgley.

During the business period, a quilting, was discussed and will be held August 20th. The treasurer give her report and the collection amounting to $4.35 was received.

Mrs. Pascoe, Sr., gave a reading on "Community Friendship", and Miss Beatrice McFarlane, a reading on "Temperance".

Mrs. Charles McFarlane gave a paper on the 23rd Psalm, giving the present day shepherd's interpretation of this well known scripture.

Mrs. G. Morgan gave a paper on Christian Stewardship, and said "Can You be a Christian and an Isolationist, when Christ said, 'Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel." She said there was a stewardship entrusted to each one and everyone must be witness for Christ.

Several Scripture passages were read by Mrs. E. Embury, Mrs. John Weese and Mrs. H. Davis.

The hostess served refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

TRACTOR RODEO

DRESDEN, Ont. (CP)—Some 3,500 persons turned up to see the first tractor rodeo here, sponsored by a service club at the fair grounds. The program included five classes of entries, a free-for-all pulling competition, a tractor race and a tug o' war.

Fashion Flashes

WHAT'S NEW in fall go-everywhere and campus coats? Why, plenty; For instance, a new rain or shine coat, good right through winter over a suit, is of felt in dark or bright colors with insulated lining. It has a high-rising petal collar, which like the front closing and seams, has pinked edges.

TOWARDS THE END of August is when you're apt to see much of the first fall dresses. Black is queen this year, light, well-handled and very new looking. Black silk faille for a coat dress on double breasted lines with a deep neck scooped almost to the shoulders, flanged by indented shoulder revers above short sleeves. Tiny waist, moderately full skirt.

THE ETERNAL jumper is here again as stores stock up on campus clothes. Black and white tissue tweed for a nice jumper trimmed with black braid to simulate a bolero. With it a long-sleeved, classic white pique blouse, and a black patent leather cinch belt.

YEAR ROUND cottons are here in new and clever weaves. A beautifully tailored, fitted suit of what looks like alpaca is of cotton. Black braid emphasizes the deep, and also the long, curved hip pockets.

A GOOD DAY dress is an addition to any wardrobe, especially that of the workaday girl. Ribbon lattice over wool jersey makes the pretty top of a black dress, a middy top with black wool middy cuff. The slim wool jersey skirt is completely taffeta lined.

AS THE BASIS for an important but informal evening wardrobe we can't think of anything more exciting than a real something new. It is a separate skirt that is a mass of sparkling sequins on a lightweight mesh background. The skirt is gathered and is moderately full. We saw it modeled with a sleeveless black jersey blouse and a wide tucked cummerbund of blue satin and it was a wow.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A fine boy who wants to do right by his girl

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am in the navy, and have a girl back home as most boys do. She is very pretty and I love her very much.

The problem is that she has just turned 15, and I don't know if this makes any difference. She writes to me almost everyday and tells me she loves me and that she will wait for me forever. I have known this girl almost all my life, and have spent a lot of time with her, and the way she writes, you would think she wants to marry me, and I don't know whether it is right or not.

I would like for you to tell me if she knows what she is doing or if it is right for her to wait for one boy for so long. My age is 18.—R. D. H.

Dear R.D.H.

I think you must be a very fine young man to be making such an effort to see and do what is best for this young girl.

It is very wise and right for you to question whether, at 15, she really knows just what she wants and whether or not she should tie herself up to waiting for you.

On the other hand, you have known her a long time, and it is perfectly true that many boys and girls, when they have been friends almost all their lives, form early attachments which last through the years and end in marriage.

What I think you should do is to let this girl keep right on writing to you and thinking of you, if she likes, as the man she will some day marry. At the same time, you could explain to her in your own way that she is very young, and that while both you and she believe yourselves in love, and you hope things may work out that way for you eventually, you want her to see other boys while you are away, and have good times with them, so she won't be lonely. If you make her understand that this is what you really want her to do, she probably will do it. After that, things can take their natural course, and time will show whether yours is one of these boy and girl attachments which really last, or whether she falls for someone else. I can see that you are the thoughtful type of boy who would make her a fine husband if things came out as you wish, but who would understand and accept it if they worked out differently.

A situation that should not be allowed to continue

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My sister has been going steady with a boy for three months, and now he has begun to think that he can do whatever he wants to anybody. He has a sister who was sent to reform school and he seems to think that I might be like her. I don't see why he should think any such thing, because I am only 13 years old and I don't go out with boys and I'm not very sociable. But anyhow, he has taken it upon himself to boss me, and he even yells at me and slaps me when I do something he thinks is wrong, even though it is only breaking something that belongs to me. My parents would not dream of speaking to me about a small thing like that and I don't see why he does. I have asked my sister to speak to him about all this, and I have discussed it with my parents, but nothing seems to come of it. Could you please tell me what I can do about it? He is 17 years old.—B. C. D.

Dear B.C.D.:

This is a ridiculous situation, and it should not be allowed to go on. Either your sister or your parents, or both, should make it plain to this boy that he cannot behave that way to you, and I am surprised that none of them has done so especially when you have called it to their attention.

If you can't get anywhere with them about the matter, then I suggest that you just quietly keep out of the way whenever this boy is in the house. It is all wrong that you should have to do such a thing in your own home, but if you can't get anyone to stand up for you and put this boy in his place, I'm afraid that's about all you can do.

Food for Thought

Half-Party Hospitality

By Mary Moore

Every summer I think "Well maybe next summer I won't be so busy and we can have more guests and more barbecue parties and I can play more golf."

This springing of eternal hope is not limited to me, for this summer while we are anxiously awaiting results from my niece Beverley's fourth year examinations in Medicine, and, Pete's senior matriculation results and Marianne's junior nursing examinations, I happened to say to my brother "Is this waiting and worrying over results never going to end?" (Nobody's ever failed yet.) All he did was wistfully point at his youngest son, Paul, who is seven, and say "I've about 15 more years at least—you can feel lucky!" That quieted me. We might as well take our fun as we can and as we go along.

Are you busy almost to distraction and confusion too? I love people and feel so out of things when I'm so busy we can't have folks for dinner as often as I would like. So, I decided to give two or three half parties. Ever heard of that before? Course you haven't for I've just made it up.

A half-party can be either the first course or the last course of a company dinner—both with trimmings.

For the first course type the guests can start arriving at 5 o'clock and leave at 7. For the last course type they could arrive at 7 and leave after an hour or two or play bridge or watch television or have a good old talk. But be sure of one thing. When you give them the initial invitation tell them the times to come and go (remember I'm talking to busy hostesses who have extramural work to do) and if it's a dessert party tell them not to eat dessert or drink coffee for their dinners at home.

Then really splurge. Of course it's because I have two ideas that I like that I'm suggesting this kind of half-party hospitality.

POTATO CHIP DIP

This is the accompaniment for a sophisticated but non-alcoholic cocktail party. The cocktails could be tomato juice with lemon and salt or apricot nectar or chilled clam juice or even chilled sauerkraut juice. Everybody likes fruit punches that are not too sweet and a combination of canned pineapple or bottled grapejuice either of them with lemon juice and ice is universally popular. Now for the dip.

Rub a mixing bowl with a cut clove of garlic. Mash in the bowl an 8-oz. package of Baumert cheese with 2 teaspoons lemon juice, 1 1-2 teaspoons Worchestershire sauce, 1-2 teaspoon salt, dash of freshly ground pepper, 1-2 cup drained canned minced clams, and 1-4 cup clam broth. Pile this in a deep bowl and place in centre of large tray surrounded with crisp potato chips. Add some dainty crackers and some short wide celery sticks—for your guests will love to try all three in this delicious dip.

CHIFFON BANANA CAKE

Go berserk with the frosting and trimming of this. Rich butter frosting sprinkled with shredded toasted almonds is my choice though. Two and one-quarter cups sifted cake flour, 1 1-2 cups sugar, 1 tablespoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup salad oil, 6 unbeaten yolks, 1-2 cup cold water, 1 cup mashed ripe bananas, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup egg whites, 1-2 teaspoon cream of tartar. Sift together sifted flour, sugar baking powder and salt. With a spoon make a hole in the centre of them and add the yolks, oil, cold water, mashed banana and vanilla. Beat this until batter is perfectly smooth. In a separate large bowl beat the whites with the cream of tartar until very stiff. Then pour the batter in thin stream over entire surface of egg whites, gently cutting and folding in with rubber scraper until blended. Pour into ungreased tube pan and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 55 minutes then at 350 for 10 to 15 minutes for 10-inch tube pan. For 9-inch tube pan 325 deg. Fahr. for 50 to 55 minutes. This cake must "hang" like an angel food until cold.

Keep plenty of hot coffee coming to accompany this delicious but sweet dessert.

91-Year-Old Enjoys Trip To Old Country

LONDON (CP)—"What's all the fuss about?"

That was the reaction today of 91-year-old Tim Heal of Vancouver as he stepped off an airliner after an unaccompanied flight across the Atlantic from Montreal.

The spry, beaming old-timer told reporters he decided to make the trip on the spur of the moment to see his "baby" sister, 82-year-old Mrs. Pelitha Hardy of Portsmouth.

"I really enjoyed the trip," said Heal, "except that it was a bit noisy."

After 46 years in Canada, Heal still looks and talks like an English countryman. He plans to return to Canada late in october.

Ranchhand Held For Sex Killing Of Baby Sitter

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP)—William F. Rupp, Jr., 18-year-old ranchhand captured after a five-day hunt, was booked on suspicion of murder today in the sex killing of a 15-year-old baby sitter.

Sheriff's deputy Jess Buckles said the youth admitted shooting Ruby Ann Payne last Friday after she resisted him.

Rupp was employed as a bee-keeper at the ranch of Harry Dyer of Yorba Linda, Calif., whose children Miss Payne was watching when fatally shot.

Buckles said Rupp denied raping the girl but admitted hitting her with a hammer and shooting when she ran from his advances.

Three Haggard Aussie Fliers Deny Charges

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Three haggard Australian fliers, freed after 20 months imprisonment in south China, yesterday denied Chinese Communists allegations that they were opium smugglers.

The men—Ross Bohm, Dick Richmond and William James—were the crew of a British flying boat forced down Dec. 15, 1950, 40 miles southwest of Hong Kong and seized by a Chinese patrol boat.

They staggered in across the Hong Kong border from the Canton train late yesterday.

A sick British soldier in a neighboring cell was still imprisoned, they said.

Shanghai Sources Say Newspaper Man Died June 5

HONG KONG (AP)—Shanghai sources today reported that August Klingenberg, 27, widely-known newspaper man who was arrested by Chinese Communists in 1950 on spy charges, died June 5.

The reports received by friends said Klingenberg died in poverty and was buried in a vacant lot near Kiangwan airfield. The body later was exhumed and cremated.

Samuel Berglof, 34, former editor in the Shanghai Associated Press bureau, was reported seriously ill in a Shanghai hospital. He was arrested at the same time as Klingenberg.

For several years Klingenberg wrote an aviation column for several Shanghai newspapers. After the Reds closed them down, he and Berglof issued a mimeographed news sheet.

RAWDON

Over 400 Attend Social-Dance Sponsored by River Valley W. I.

Rawdon—A successful social and dance was held Thursday evening at the agricultural park, Stirling, with an attendance of over 400 persons. This outstanding event was sponsored by River Valley Women's Institute under the leadership of the president, Mrs. Ed. Heasman, who worked long hours with the various committees to make the affair a great success.

The adults were charged 25 cents and the children and vehicles were admitted free. The park provided ample place to park cars and allowed children to race off some energy.

The opening feature was a game of ball between team from Springbrook, under the leadership of Jack Reid who won in the finals by a slight margin over a team from Stirling Legion, captained by G. B. Noble. The score of 11-10 closed a six inning game with a goodly number of spectators.

The umpires were John Kane, Major Fraser and Mac Mason.

When darkness called the game the group repaired to the large show building and from then until 10 p.m. a steady stream of visitors arrived.

Bower of Beauty

The large show building was a bower of beauty, decorated with evergreens in abundance, large baskets of gorgeous gladioli, asters, phlox and other autumn blooms, dozens of balloons in a galaxy of colors, crepe paper streamers in various colors with the Institute blue and gold predominating.

The hall presented a carnival air with each booth doing a good business. All were decorated in keeping with their particular event of the evening.

A large central space was devoted to "under the Five", and several games were played with the winner choosing his prize. In case of a tie each contestant was given 75 cents in cash.

Two other games were played in small booths and they both helped to garner in the nickles and dimes.

The east end was fenced off with evergreen trees and free dancing was enjoyed for a couple of hours.

The hot dog and coke stand along the south catered to those who had arrived early for the ball game and directly opposite along the north were two more booths, one selling ice cream cones and confectionery and the other in the form of a dainty tea room, all curtained with pretty plastic drapes, set with quartet tables covered with gay cloths. Here, your favorite piece of pie topped with ice cream or a bounteous dish of ice cream could be procured There were pies galore with plenty left over after the inner man had been satisfied.

Farm Products

The farm products booth was well arranged and decorated with huge sheaves of bulrushes. One shelf was filled with beautiful bouquets of flowers, while cucumbers, cabbage, carrots, beets, onions, beans, cheese, eggs, jars of Jam, fresh cream from the farm, and many other items were displayed for sale.

The fish pond did a roaring business with many children anxious to spend their money. Those in charge soon sold all their fish.

At the south west corner the home baking booth displayed luscious cakes dripping with icing and festoned with cocoanut, all varieties and shapes of drop cookies, several kinds of tarts and the odd pie. Here Mrs. George Heasman was in charge of the large angel cake which later was won in a draw by Mrs. Harvey Pitcher, Stirling.

The next booth on the south was a double affair. One end displayed a poster depicting a big mystery and the other a life like white elephant. Dozens of parcels were in evidence. The mystery parcels intrigued a lot of buyers and if any person received a big bargain they eagerly told their friends and some came back to purchase more.

The white elephants showed a large variety of pretty dishes, ornaments, heirlooms, antiques, and these readily found new homes.

The adjoining booth was in charge of Mrs. Jack Donohoe, who conducted all the preliminaries in connection with a beautiful life like doll dressed in blue and white and donated to the Institute by the president's mother Mrs. Ina Free. The winner in the draw was E. Curtiss, Front Street, Trenton.

The two highest ticket sellers each received a silver dollar and the runner up a plain greenback dollar. They were Jean Doohoe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Donohoe, Patsy Donohoe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Don Donohoe, and Grace Heasman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Heasman.

Fancy Work

At the west end of the showroom the fancy work booth was situated. Here crocheted articles, dollies predominating were displayed. Several print broadcloth and muslin aprons bedecked the walls, tea towels, a rayon tablecloth, dresser scarves, children's clothing and various dainty articles for keeping holsery, gloves, all in good condition were on sale.

Further on the homemade candy was sold to those who enjoy something sweet. Fudge light and dark predominated. Here also one could sit a few minutes and enjoy a luscious slice of cold watermelon arranged on a paper plate.

Mrs. Ross Bush sat near the torchiere floor lamp and looked after the sale of tickets. The lamp lit up that corner just a little brighter and many people hoped they might win. When all the stubs were duly placed in the box Mrs. Bush walked all around the bingo table vigorously shaking the box so all would be well mixed. Mr Harry Morrow took charge of the draw. The president Mrs. Ed Heasman was the lucky winner. When folks recovered from the news some one in the audience said in an audible whisper, "well she deserved it, as she centainly has spent a lot of time with this affair.

The permanent baby booth in the show room was used for quite a different purpose Thursday evening. Here men and women enjoyed a refreshing cup of tea in the mother's waiting room and later in the baby weighing and judging compartment the visiting ladies from across the sea who are noted for their ability to see into the future, patiently told their patrons what they could expect in the coming days.

The capable secretary of River Valley W.I. Mrs. J. L. Donohoe was busy keeping all the various booths supplied with quarters, and dimes and nickles.

Soon after midnight, the various barkers grew tired of advertising their wares and the orchestra closed with "God Save Our Gracious Queen."

River Valley Women's Institute has membership of over 40 members, and the majority of them spent a busy evening and were well rewarded for their efforts. The Institute will realize a goodly sum when all expenses are paid which will enable them to carry on their usual activities this autumn and plan for the proverbial "rainy day"

Kingston Hospital Tries 'Rooming-in' Units for Babies

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—A "rooming-in" unit for babies now being tried at Kingston General Hospital means that a mother may have her new-born baby stay right at her bedside instead of being cared for in the hospital nursery.

The unit consists of a rectangular plastic bassinette, transparent and high enough to be level with the hospital-bed. The bassinette rests on a metal frame made mobile by a set of rubber wheels. Below the bassinette and inside the frame is a built-in metal linen supply cupboard, a soap and drug compartment and a bin for soiled linen.

All supplies are at hand for the mother to bathe and care for her baby. Cost of each rooming-in unit to the hospital is approximately $250.

Study Advantages

Margaret Grant, maternity supervisor at the hospital, said there are advantages and disadvantages in the use of rooming-in units.

"Use of the unit means that the mother can watch over her baby personally," she said. "It also enables the mother to determine her own nursing intervals."

Further, "if it is her first baby, she learns to care for him right in the hospital with assistance from the nurses."

On the other hand many mothers prefer to have their babies looked after in the central nursery because they want to rest themselves as much as possible while in hospital.

Windsor Man Ends World Cruise In Reformatory

GUELPH (CP)—Lawrence Guy, 22, of Windsor yesterday ended a world cruise with a two year term in Guelph reformatory, the same prison from which he escaped almost two years ago.

The court was told Guy visited the United States, France, England, Belgium and the Belgian Congo during his 23 months of freedom. On the way he saw his wife and child in Ireland.

In England and Ireland Guy was charged with housebreaking. He once surrendered to the Canadian embassy in Paris, France. Finally he was arrested in Montreal and returned to Guelph for trial.

Guy fled the reformatory Sept. 21, 1950 with four others who were later recaptured in the United States and Canada.

Guy was sent back to the reformatory for two years when he pleaded guilty to breaking out of the institution. The sentence is concurrent with the 24 months which still remain of the original term he was serving.

Double-Barreled Barrage Will Be Fired

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman and Gov. Adlai Stevenson will fire a double-barreled barrage opening the Democratic presidential campaign with Labor Day speeches in Detroit and Milwaukee it was announced yesterday.

There had been speculation that Stevenson was none too happy about Truman accepting a bid to speak in Milwaukee on the same day he was billed to hit the campaign trail with a speech at Detroit.

But simultaneous announcements issued by the White House and Stevenson's headquarters in Springfield, Ill., indicated that mutual arrangements had been worked out.

Death Penalty Ordered For Riot Agitators

CAIRO (CP)—Egypt's strong-arm reform government ordered the death penalty last night for riot agitators after announcing seven persons had been killed in labor demonstrations outside Alexandria.

Premier Aly Maher hustled a military inquiry court to Alexandria to seek out the riot-rousing elements and punish them with extreme measures.

Two workers died in a hospital last night, raising the toll from Tuesday's riot to seven: Two army soldiers, one policeman and four workers.

The government said 25 others were injured.

It expressed determination not to be sidetracked by labor troubles from its announced policy of social and land reforms.

Court Asked to Rule Whether Ex-Fuehrer Dead or Alive

VIENNA, Austria (Reuters)—A lawyer looking after Adolph Hitler's legal interests in Austria has asked a court to rule on whether the ex-fuehrer is dead or alive.

Most allied and West German authorities have assumed Hitler is dead. The commonly accepted story is that he committed suicide on April 30, 1945, and that his body was burned immediately on his own instructions.

Now Dr. Herbert Eggstein, an Austrian who watches all Austrian legal interests of the former Third Reich, has asked the local German court at Berchtesgaden—Hitler's last place of residence—to rule on Hitler's status.

The ruling is wanted in connection with the struggle for ownership of a famous painting, "The Artist in the Studio" by Dutch master Jan Vermeer, said to be worth nearly $1,000,000.

Hitler bought the picture from an Austrian collector, Count Jaromir Czernin-Morzin, in 1938 soon after Germany swallowed up Austria. Hitler paid 1,650,000 marks (then $660,000).

The count recently asked an Austrian court to declare that he had to sell it under duress at much less than its real value. But the court ruled against him, making the picture Hitler's property and forfeit to the Austrian state.

VEIN PLAYS OUT

BINGHAMTON, N. Y. (AP)—The silver vein under the city's streets was about played out today. It was worth $5.80. Of an estimated 6,000 dimes spilled down a sewer grate Monday, workmen had fished out all but 58. The silver spilled when two employees carrying a bag containing 10,000 dimes to the bank, accidentally snagged it and ripped it open.

WANT WAGE BOOST

TORONTO (CP)—The 4,700 employees of the Toronto Transportation Commission, who won a wage boost after a 19-day strike earlier this year, want another increase of 12 cents which would bring their rate to $1.60 an hour. The demand came yesterday from the Street Railway Union (A.F.L.) in response to a T.T.C. proposal a month ago for a three-cent wage cut.

Board Member Upholds Salary Of Superintendent

WINDSOR (CP)—Earl R. Watson, a member of the board of East Windsor hospital since 1948, said yesterday he thinks that hospital superintendent Dr. P. J. G. Morgan's $18,000 annual salary is "little enough" for the work he is doing.

Mr. Watson, who is president of Local 195, United Auto Workers (C.I.O.), was testifying before a provincial government commission which is investigating the hospital's affairs.

He said the superintendent is a "phenomenal man" who is performing excellently a very strenuous job as administrator and medical superintendent of the 350-bed institution.

William Stewardson, who represents the Windsor Trades and Labor Council on the hospital board, said he thought the institution was justified in sending Dr. Morgan on a $2,000 vacation to Nassau in the Bahamas. Dr. Morgan "needed a rest."

Newly-Won Hold On Bunker Hill Still Retained

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—United States Marines beat back two fierce Communist attacks Wednesday night and today to retain their newly-won hold on Bunker Hill in western Korea.

The battalion-sized Red assaults were the third and fourth futile attempts to recapture territory seized early Tuesday by the Marines.

A United Nations briefing officer said Communist casualties were heavy. By mid-day, he said, dead enemy soldiers lay sprawled in groups on the scarred slope of the hill, only four miles east of Panmunjom, the truce-talks site.

Allied planes continued to hammer at Red positions today. The air force said they knocked out nine troop bunkers and three gun positions. Bone-tired Marines huddled in their prefabricated timbered bunkers, awaiting new Red moves.

Red machine-gunners early today infiltrated the crest of nearby Siberia Hill—also captured Tuesday by the Marines. But Allied troops silenced the guns in 15 minutes.

The Communists preceded their Wednesday-night assault on Bunker Hill with a three-hour artillery barrage. Then, at 9:05 p. m., Chinese infantrymen charged into withering fire from Marine rifles, machine-guns and artillery. Seventy minutes later the shattered Communist battalion pulled back.

The Reds launched the next attack at 2:25 a. m. Thursday. After a crackling skirmish which lasted four minutes, they withdrew to their lines.

"When they found the marines were really ready for them, they called it off," said Maj. Louis Breault of Dallas, Tex. Breault estimated 3,000 or more Reds have been assigned to retake Bunker Hill.

Here's the way one housewife puts it: "I don't expect to save on every item at Dominion . . . nor to make a whopping big saving on any one thing. But in the long run the many little savings I make add up to a big saving . . . enough to splurge on a new pair of shoes . . . or something else I really need."

Have YOU tried DOMINION lately?

Do it today! Do all your shopping at Dominion for a month. You, too, will discover what many other women know: "You can cut food costs at Dominion!"

All Signs Point To CIO Lining Up For Stevenson

By ROWLAND EVANS, JR.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The C.I.O. high command today opened a three-day political session with all signs pointing to endorsement of Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic candidate for President.

Headed by Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, and Jack Kroll, director of the organizations' political action committee, some 500 C.I.O. leaders streamed into town to talk candidates, money and strategy.

The national C.I.O. has never gone beyond an endorsement of presidential and vice-presidential candidates. State and district councils handle the organization's political drives on the state and local level.

Move Tomorrow

Official C.I.O. backing for Stevenson seems a foregone conclusion, but the timing is still a bit uncertain. Best bet is that the executive board, a 46-man body which includes a top official from each of 35 C.I.O. unions plus 11 national officers, will get officially behind Stevenson tomorrow.

The A.F.L., older and larger labor federation, has not given its official blessing to a presidential candidate since 1924, although individual unions and officers often campaign for one candidate or another. This year, too, the A.F.L. is expected to keep national hands off the presidential race.

ECONOMY WINS

A recent national motor rally, with an eye to the cost of living, awarded points on miles per gallon rather than miles per hour. Competitors had to cover the round-Britain course using as little gasoline as possible, but conforming to a time schedule.

Impact of Orders For Military Now Being Felt

NEW YORK (AP)—The impact of high-priority military orders on the post-strike steel supply is beginning to be felt, the Iron Age said yesterday.

"With November set as the curfew for catching up on military and atomic-energy orders, jammed mill schedules are being kept fluid by new directives," the metalworking weekly said.

"Steel companies are still striving for orderly production schedules which improve efficiency and cut costs. But there is little chance they will achieve this goal in the next few months."

Steel mills are required to set aside a certain percentage of their production for military needs, but these percentages are not expected to be big enough to cover high-priority orders, the weekly said.

"In the weeks ahead the military may take more than 30 per cent of mill shipments," the Iron Age added. "The mills are more than three months behind on some civilian orders now.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

Second place in the Central Ontario Baseball League is at stake in Kingston's Megaffin Stadium tonight as the faltering Belleville Redmen invade Roddenville to battle with the Kingston Monarchs. The Injuns, who have dropped from a lengthy league lead earlier in the summer will have to win tonight's game to stay in front of the Monarchs who have been zooming along in great style in recent weeks. In two recent outings with the Peterborough Petes the Injuns had superlative pitching but lost both games by one run—5-4 in the last of the ninth, and 3-2 when two errors broke up Bob Bunton's sparkling five-hitter. Tuesday night in the Liftlock City the Reds outhit the Petes 15-14 in a free-wheeling affair but dropped a 12-4 verdict. They couldn't hit when it mattered and when Joe Lowery pounded a grand slammer into the river the game was all over for the Injuns who tried vainly to stem the attack with three pitchers.

The club has the pitching and hitting to regain their old prowess and close in on the Petes in the last week of the schedule. However, it appears that they are going to have to put them both together to earn a victory over the Monarchs who have been trampling them in their last few meetings. Loss of catcher Tony Pettitt with a broken finger will dim the Redmen's hopes as Tony is an able receiver and a good hitter.

* * *

Next Monday night the Redmen reopen the local ball season against Kingston Monarchs. All adults attending the game will have a chance to win a Stewart-Warner television set in a lucky draw being sponsored by the club. There should be a dandy brand of ball displayed, and with the added inducement of a TV set, the local baseball executive is looking forward to their largest crowd of the season.

* * *

Tomorrow night in Memorial Arena, Yukon Eric, the powerful Alaska lumberjack, will attempt to mangle Lord Athol Layton in the feature bout of one of the most attractive wrestling cards presented here this season. Lord Layton and the Yuke fought to a draw before the biggest crowd of the year last week, but this time there will be no time limit to rescue the combatants. Lord Layton, who has roused the ire of the fans like no one else since John Katan stalked through the rings here years ago, is certain he can demolish Yukon despite the latter's tremendous strength. He feels his judo chop, which has cut down plenty of big men in its time will fell Yukon like an Alaska pine. Yuke, on the other hand, just flexes his muscles (quite a chore for anyone with all the muscles Yukon uses) and asserts that his famous back-breaker will make sweet music on the Layton vertebrae tomorrow night.

In the main preliminary, Johnny Barend will tangle with Jim "The Bull" Wright, while in the opener, Tiger Tasker will go against popular Pat Flanagan.

RCAF Station and No. 6 Repair Depot will jointly hold their 18th annual Sports Day on the grounds of the main station tomorrow afternoon beginning with the marchpast of the athletes at 1.00 p. m. This sports event, bigger and better than ever, will pit the best athletes of both stations together with the flight cadets from Canadian universities taking summer training at both stations, against one another in a full list of track and field events. A complete program of swimming events will run simultaneously with the track and field show, and it has been announced that the airwomen will hold special events of their own for the first time in the history of Sports Day.

In addition to the athletic program the station will present a midway for the children, and an aerobatic display for all. The aerobatics will include solo performances by the Vampire Jet and rocket firing by Mustang fighters at targets in the bay. Admission and parking on the grounds are free and everyone is not only invited but urged to attend. A dance will be held in the recreation hangar in the evening.

Glen Ray Juniors take on the Intermediate C juniors in Tweed under the lights tonight. The Warden Allen Softball Congress, set for the Kingston penitentiary this Sunday, will bring together a team from Belleville, not named as yet, the Bloomfield Sun-Joys, Stan Scrutton's Kingston All-Stars and Kingston Saints. The Saints and All-Stars, Bloomfield and Belleville will square off in 7-inning games in the morning with winners meeting in a nine inning affair in the afternoon. The losers will play a nine-inning consolation game.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Delighted as the Yankees were at drawing a whopping 51,005 paid admissions to a non-televised game against the Boston Red Sox the other night, their general manager, George Weiss, still professes to be far from convinced that the picture tube is the villain in the season's sharp decline in big league attendance.

The single contest, which attracted nearly 18,000 more customers to the big Bronx park than the average night game this year, was not a conclusive test for several reasons, Weiss said.

"Actually we didn't mean it as a test at all," George explained. "It just happened that our Friday night game was rained out and we had to shift it to Monday night, which originally was an off-day. No plans had been made to televise on that night.

"I can't regard it as a fair test for the reason that we had had a big advance sale for the Friday game and many fans simply exchanged their tickets. You have to keep in mind, too, that the Red Sox always are a big drawing card here. I doubt, as a matter of fact, that there were many fans who knew the game was not to be televised."

As of now, the Yankees are more than 300,000 paid admissions behind their 1951 pace, and the comparative figures for other clubs are similar. It appears pretty obvious that either television or the high cost of living, or both, are causing a lot of empty seats.

Weiss was asked if there was anything to a report that he might go before the next league meeting with a proposal that clubs televise only their road games and make the video sports pony up at the box office when they are at home.

"I've heard such a plan suggested," George admitted, "but we have nothing of the sort in mind. If we wanted to do it, though, we wouldn't have to ask the league's permission.

Joe Black Taking up Slack Caused by Don Newcombe's Entry Into the U.S. Army

By RALPH RODEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Joe Black is one rookie who is living up to his spring press clippings.

Black was hailed as another Don Newcombe in Brooklyn's Vero Beach, Fla., training camp. He was tabbed as the best bet to take up the slack caused by Newcombe's entry into the army.

It's doubtful if the Dodgers would be leading the National League by nine games today if it weren't for the 28-year-old right-hander. Used entirely in relief, the Dodger recruit has appeared in 37 games, winning nine, losing two and saving several others. He appeared in only six games until the beginning of June, and since then he has worked in 31 of Brooklyn's 69 games.

Plays in Both Games

Black took part in both ends of yesterday's day-night doubleheader against the runner-up New York Giants. He gained credit for the 5-4 day-game triumph and was tapped for two unearned runs in the 8-4 night defeat.

Chicago and Cincinnati and Philadelphia and Boston also split doubleheaders. The Cubs dropped the opener to the Reds, 11-3, but won the second game 7-0. Philadelphia whipped the Braves 3-0, but bowed 9-3 in the night portion of the twi-light twin bill. St. Louis and Pittsburgh were idle.

New York Yankees retained their 2½-game lead over Cleveland in the American League, dividing a bargain bill with Washington while Cleveland halved a pair with St. Louis Browns.

Washington drubbed the Yanks 12-4 in the opener, but lost the second game 10-9 in 13 innings. The Browns tripped Bobby Feller and the Indians, 5-2, but Cleveland bounced back to grab the second game 9-1. In other games, Boston Red Sox turned back Philadelphia, 4-0, and Chicago White Sox crushed Detroit 7-1.

Halted Giant Rally

Black took over in the eighth inning of the see-saw opener at Ebbets Field with the score tied at 4-4. He halted a Giant rally and got out of another jam in the ninth when he induced Hank Thompson to hit into a forced play with the bases loaded and two out. Max Lanier suffered his 10th defeat. Bob Thomson hit his 17th homer for New York and Hodges his 25th for Brooklyn.

In the second game, Clint Hartung threw wild and permitted two Dodgers to score during a four-run rally in the sixth that enabled the Brooks to tie the score at 4-4. But he doubled home the tie-breaking run in the seventh. The Giants added two unearned runs off Black in the eighth and picked up another in the ninth. Relief ace Hoyt Wilhelm got the victory, although Larry Jansen saved the game.

Rumblings Fail To Frighten I.C. Officials

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The thunder rumbling out of London apparently failed to frighten officials of the Intercounty Baseball League.

London loosed a blast against the league following a decision which declared pitcher Arnold Early ineligible and knocked the Majors sliding out of the playoffs.

League president Otto Manske said yesterday the London protest, which questions Waterloo's right to protest against Early, "on the surface appears to be out of order.

"The Waterloo protest was not based on any game in which Early participated but purely against the player's eligibility."

Beaten Off Diamond

Meanwhile London took a lashing on the diamond. The Majors were whipped 7-3 by Galt Terriers in Galt. St. Thomas Elgins, with all hopes of a playoff position shattered, edged the league-leading Kitchener Panthers 9-8, and moved into fifth place. Waterloo Tigers dropped into the cellar-spot on a 5-4 loss to the third-place Brantford Red Sox.

Don Miller picked up his sixth win in the last scheduled home game for Galt. He gave up only four hits, including a triple by London leftfielder Russ Evon and a homer by second baseman Gord McMachon.

The Terriers slammed out two home runs of their own, by right-fielder Joe Mack with two on in the fourth and first baseman Irv Schupp in the fifth. Tommy White was losing pitcher.

Double Steal

A three-run rally in the top of the ninth brought St. Thomas its win in Kitchener. A double steal sent third baseman Don Butler across the plate with the winner.

Kitchener catcher Ross Doherty homered in the fourth and second baseman George Boniface hammered an inside-the-park homer in the seventh.

Buck Tanner hurled a five-hit game for the Red Sox in Brantford. He allowed five hits, walked three and fanned one. Gord Ariss was tagged with the loss.

No games are scheduled for tonight. Friday Kitchener plays at St. Thomas and Galt at Guelph.

It's 'On To Argos' For Victorious Winnipeg Blue Bombers

14,000 Fans See Peggers Behind Jacobs and Casey Run to 24-17 Win Over Tigers

HAMILTON (CP)—It's "Argos next" for Winnipeg's big Blue Bombers.

The rugged western crew, fired by Indian Jack Jacobs' booming arm and Tom Casey's fleet footwork, scampered past Hamilton Tiger-Cats 23-17 last night in a pre-season exhibition football contest before 14,000 fans.

The victory, coupled with the Bombers' sparkling 24-6 triumph over the 1951 Canadian champions, Ottawa Rough Riders, could mean that Toronto Argonauts are in for a rough time. Saturday's game completes Winnipeg's pre-season tests against the Big Four clubs.

Bombers have made no bones about the fact that they'll "shoot the works" on Saturday when they take on the Scullers. Coach George Trafton, remembering Winnipeg's hard-luck record against past Argo teams, said he's saving some special tricks for Frank Clair's club.

Had To Use Jacobs

The Bombers hadn't intended playing Jacobs last night but when Ralph McAlister, former Philadelphia Eagle halfback, was hurt running back the opening kick-off, Trafton sent in Indian Jack.

Jacobs then proceeded to put on an amazing display, completing 15 of 24 passes in Winnipeg's total of 30. Casey, former New York Yankee halfback who entered Canadian football at Hamilton, teamed with Jacobs to make Ti-Cats' pass defence look anaemic.

Casey picked off two touchdowns, one in the last quarter making Hamilton look silly. Casey raced into a gang of Ti-Cat players, seized the ball and raced 45 yards for an electrifying touchdown before anyone could make a move.

Bernie Custis was Hamilton's big gun, scoring all three home-town majors.

Winnipeg's points came from four converted touchdowns and Ti-Cats from Custis' majors, two of them unconverted, and a first-quarter single.

Dawes Comes Up With Some Figures To Prove Point

MONTREAL (CP)—President A. Sidney Dawes of the Canadian Olympic Association came up with some figures in a statement today to show that four athletes—whose non-selection for the games at Helsinki brought "a great deal of criticism" of the association—would have fared badly.

He named the athletes as Mary Lawrance of Toronto, women's shot put; Jo Brennan of Toronto, women's discus; Fred Ruish of Niagara Falls, men's shot put, and Bob Bazos of Toronto, decathlon.

He said none of these four, at the Olympic trials at Hamilton late in June, equalled six-place figures of the 1948 games, "which was the standard necessary to qualify for our 1952 Olympic teams."

Dawes said that on the basis of their performance at the Canadian trials Miss Lawrance would have placed 14th in the Olympics and Miss Brennan 19th.

"The winner's distance in the men's shot put event was 57 feet, 1⅝ inches, and, while I do not know where Fred Ruish's best effort of 47 feet, 4⅝ inches would have placed him, I do know that the sixth-place distance was 53 feet, 1⅜ inches."

Dawes' statement said also that Canada's summer Olympic teams totalled 135, a nine per 1,000,000 of population, while the United States team was three per 1,000,000 of population and Great Britain seven per 1,000,000.

Peterborough Wins

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Peterborough Timbermen last night trounced St. Catharines Athletics 28-5 in a senior Ontario Lacrosse Association game played before 1,800 fans.

Peterborough led all the way, blanking St. Catharines until after the half when the score was 12-0. Don Ashpee led their scorers with eight points—two goals and six assists. Ike Hildebrand, Lou Nickel, Dootch Vitarelli, Curly Mason and Russ Slater each counted three goals.

Ham Nelson led Athletics with two counters.

N.H.L. Likely To Protest Ruling Of Amateur Body

TORONTO (CP) — Conn Smythe hinted yesterday there may be a battle during a meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and the National Hockey League here Monday.

Smythe, managing director of Toronto Maple Leafs of the N.H.L., told a press conference that the C.A.H.A. through its rules is retarding development of hockey players.

One of the points the Leafs are believed ready to protest is a rule against eastern teams signing players of junior age from Western Canada.

Ontario, B.C. Have Two Each In Quarter-Finals of Canadian Women's Golf at Edmonton

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP)—Ontario and British Columbia had two players each today in the quarter-finals of the Canadian women's open golf championship. The rest were Americans.

A gallery of some 2,000 spread over Edmonton's Mayfair in bright, sunny weather yesterday to see defending champion Marlene Stewart, 18, of Fonthill, Ont., easily defeat Mrs. G. E. Wilcox, Jr., of Miami, 5 and 3.

But Alberta's brightest hope in years—18-year-old Rae Milligan of Jasper—was eliminated in a mild upset on the 19th green by Mrs. Maurice Glick of Baltimore, Md.

Grace Lenczyk of Hartford, open winner in 1947 and 1948, was extended to the 20th hole before she won over Marnie Polk of Chattanooga, Tenn.

Mary Gay Wins

The remaining matches went much as expected. Mary Gay of Kitchener, 20-year-old Ontario champion, won 3 and 1 over Anne Sharp of Fonthill, Ont., to complete Ontario's twosome in the eights.

Babs Davies of Vancouver and Mrs. J. H. Todd of Victoria were B.C.'s quarter-finalists when Miss Davies won one up over sentimental-favorite Mrs. N. J. Carlson of Toronto and Mrs. Todd took a 2 and 1 win over Mrs. J. C. Whitelaw of Laval-sur-le-Lac, Que.

Edean Anderson of Helena, Mont. a low qualifier, won 4 and 3 over veteran Ada Mackenzie of Toronto, who copped the open five times, the last in 1935.

A family act was broken up by Polly Martin of St. Clairsville, O., who defeated Lorraine Lenczyk, Grace's sister, 1 up.

Champion In Form

The courageous little champion, all but eliminated on the first round when she won on the 19th, was back in form yesterday. Miss Stewart won the first hole and was never behind. She ended it on the 15th after holding a four-up lead from the 11th.

Miss Milligan led Mrs. Glick until the 18th. She lost that and on the 19th faded under pressure. Her second shot was in a trap and it took her two to come out. Mrs. Glick was trapped but came out in one.

Grace Lenczyk was ahead to the 17th. The next two were halved but on the 195-yard 20th Miss Lenczyk put her tee shot on the green and putted in for a par three. Miss Polk needed a chip shot and two putts after her drive.

Today, marathon-player Mrs. Glick—she won her first-round match on the 26th hole—meets Grace Lenczyk, while Mary Gay goes against Mrs. Todd in one half of the draw. The other side sends Miss Stewart against Miss Martin and pairs Babs Davies with Miss Anderson.

Ed Kryzanowski Sold to Hawks

BOSTON (AP)—The sale of Ed Kryzanowski, a defenceman who specializes in penalty-killing, to the Chicago Black Hawks for an undisclosed sum was announced today by general manager Art Ross of Boston Bruins.

Kryzanowski, a native of Fort Frances, started his National Hockey League career with the Bruins in 1948. He was unable to win a regular defence post but his ability to play all other positions brought him a job as a utility player.

Stubby Overmire Wins First Start For Maple Leafs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Syracuse Chiefs held down the runner-up spot in the International League today, but at the rate the battle for second place has been going the Rochester Red Wings will be back before long.

The Chiefs got a half-game margin by whipping Baltimore Orioles 3-2 last night while Buffalo Bisons were thumping the Wings 6-2. Last-place Ottawa stopped the front-running Montreal Royals 2-1, and Toronto Maple Leafs walloped Springfield Cubs 9-3 in other action.

The Chiefs scored all their runs in the seventh inning to overcome a 2-0 deficit. Fenton Mole's home run with one on was the big blow that enabled Art Hartley to gain the triumph.

Easy for Borowy

The Bisons' victory over the Red Wings was an easy one for Hank Borowy, who registered his 10th win. Frank Carswell hit a round tripper with one mate aboard and Don Lund, who had a perfect night at the plate, clouted another for the winners.

Joe Coleman pitched a fine game for Ottawa and bested Hamp Coleman in a pitchers' battle. Hamp Coleman walked home George Moscovich with the bases loaded, after which John Metkovich sneaked home when an attempted double play failed.

Stubby Overmire, recently of St. Louis Browns, was the winner for Toronto, although he needed relief in the sixth from Ray Shore. Bill Jennings and Hal Keller both hit home runs for the Leafs while Ted Lotz connected for the Cubs.

Diesels Run Over Cementmen 9-0, Tie Series 2-2

CNR Diesels hauled themselves back on the main line last evening as they highballed their way to a convincing 9-0 victory over the Point Anne Cementmen in the fourth game of their best-of-five series for the right to represent the Belleville and District Softball League in the OASA Intermediate A playdowns. The series is now tied at two games apiece. The fifth and deciding game is set for the Alemite Field, Friday night at 6.45.

Don Boyle did the firing for the Diesels and turned in a masterful job as he limited the Pointers to four scattered hits over the route. In going the route he walked three and struck out six. Pat Maracle toiled the distance for the Cementmen. He walked seven, struck out eight and gave up nine hits for nine runs.

The Diesels opened the scoring in the fourth frame scoring three runs. The rally started with two men out and no one on. Leo Goyer singled and went to third on wild pitches. Glen Young walked and stole second and Don Adams singled to score Leo Goyer. Rogers then smashed a double to centrefield to plate Young and Adams. Boyle struck out to end the inning.

Four-Run Rally

In the fifth the Diesels came up with a four run outburst on four hits, including a double by Leo Goyer, a walk, and one error. Singles by Fitzpatrick, Corbett, and Sword loaded the bases and then Vern Goyer walked to force in Fitzpatrick. Leo Goyer doubled to drive in the other tallies.

The Diesels finished their scoring in the eighth by ramming over two runs on a walk, and two errors in left field.

Point Anne never threatened seriously and were able to push only one man as far as third base in the whole game.

Dick Fitzpatrick and Leo Goyer with two hits in four trips led the winners at the plate.

Lineup:

CNR Diesels: Fitzpatrick 2b; Corbett 1b; Sword ss; V. Goyer rf, replaced by J. Wardhaugh in 9th; L. Goyer cf; G. Young c; D. Adams lf; Rogers 3b; D. Boyle p.

Brighton Horse Wins Fast Class At Local Fair

Tom Fritz of Brighton sent a pacer to the gate in the 2.20 class at Belleville Fair on Wednesday afternoon and Black Lock was ably handled by the owner, won the last two heats after dropping to last position in the first dash. Is bad showing in this heat was due to a break when he was ready to make his "drive" to the wire. The driver did not punish the horse and he was fresh when the second heat rolled around.

The Admiral, which raced the afternoon prior went away "winging" and although Bucknell made several tries at him, the chestnut horse had too much foot for his field. Dark Mercury, who raced steadily in third spot in the first heat moved up to be second to the winner in the last two heats. Bucknell faded badly in the stretch in each heat and finished a poor fourth.

The real race of the afternoon was in the slow 2.23 class when in each heat four and sometimes five horses would come to the wire in a blanket finish and the judges had a hard time picking the winner especially in the second heat. The winner turned up in Miss Highlight, owned by B. C. Samon of Cobourg after Leon Baker won the first dash. The second heat was a real horse race when four pulled up at the head of the stretch and stringing across the track raced to the wire. It was a close squeeze for Miss Highlight but she did just get her nose in front. Bobbie Hendley raced evenly and had three seconds to show for his day's work. Mabel Mac, owned by Roy Boyce of Cannifton, showed promise. This mare is coming along fine and should be heard from later in the fall.

Roy Boyce and Barney Davies won the whips for the best equipped outfits racing in the various heats.

Hollywood, during its frantic transition from silent films to pictures that "talked", furnishes the locale and period of M.G.M.'s star, laugh and song-loaded new Technicolor musical, "Singin' in the Rain" showing tonight for the last times at the Belle Theatre, with Gene Kelly, Donald O'Connor and Debbie Reynolds forming as merry a trio of leads as you have seen in some time.

The producer of the picture is Arthur Freed, who seems unable to made an unsuccessful musical. He may add "Singin' in the Rain" to such other memorable films as "Annie Get Your Gun" and "Show Boat".

City Fathers Veto Proposal To Throw Party

DUNDE, SCotland (Reuters)—The city fathers yesterday vetoed a suggestion to throw a tea party for the Iowa State University girl pipers.

By a 5-4 vote, they decided the 59 members of the band, since they're being paid $700 to play here, can pay for their own tea.

William Blake, who voted in favor of a buffet tea at city hall for the girls, said he was not really in favor of ladies' pipe bands. But since they were Americans and were being well-received throughout the country, he was "inclined" to show a little hospitality.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY, AUGUST 15, 1952

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Artistic professions, light and airy matters are in favor now. Friendly day for honorable, useful activities managed rightly. Don't indulge "moods" or ill temper.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Your Venus in favorable position sponsors the artistic, gardening, decorating, domestic affairs and children's activities. Extra caution urged in handling tools.

May 21 to June 2, (Gemini)—Not overstimulating vibrations, but day will be mildly progressive, pleasant. Home, family, personal interests generally good. Be tactful in seeking a raise or other advancement.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Friendly aspects mostly though day does not sanction extremes in anything, and Sun's rays stress extra care handling vehicles, machinery, tools, airplanes.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Sane moderation the important thing today. Railroading, mining, building, all hazardous work ask intelligent patience and care. Pleasant outlook.

ests. Curb any tendency to "bossiness" or a "know-it-all" atti-

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Auspicious now for scientific and artistic matters; for dressmaking, millinery, interior decorating; stage, screen, radio, television work. Don't strain mentally or physically.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—More generous aspects now. Your Venus favorable. Be encouraged to do your best, also to inspire others to fresh ambition.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Mars' position here stresses patience, your most genial disposition. Take up essential chores, but also enjoy some rest, healthy outdoor activities.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Caution in investments, all money transactions; buying, selling, real estate, making contracts. But day encouraging familiar business has advantages for you.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — In-between day, neither too helpful nor yet hindering. Give first attention to urgent matters and take the less important when you can. Don't worry; get some relaxation.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Day responsive to right direction and management but advises more caution as it advances. Familiar issues should run smoothly. Don't take up new matters until right time.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—One of the few mixed days this fine Pisces month. Think and check before you start anything important so you can speed ahead and not have to retrace steps.

YOU BORN TODAY: Innately gay, bright, mentally keen; a snappy talker and dresser. Many talents, fine capability, but these must be developed, and used daily in useful occupation, in community and country's inter-tude. Pray for God's help and guidance, and you won't go wrong.

Birthdate: Sir Walter Scott, novelist, poet; Ethel Barrymore, actress.

Nurse Charged With Murder, Slashes Wrists

WETUMPKA, Ala. (AP) — A middle-aged nurse accused of poisoning her two small nieces injured herself by slashing her wrist with a razor blade Tuesday night only a few hours before she was to go on trial on murder charges.

Police said Mrs. Earle Dennison, 54, slipped a piece of razor blade under the covers of her bed at nearby Tutwiler prison for women where she has been held since her arrest three months ago.

She lost about a pint of blood before the incident was discovered.

Mrs. Dennison was to face trial today for the arsenic poisoning of two-year-old Shirley Dianne Weldon who died last May 1. She also is charged with poisoning Shirley's two-year-old sister, Polly Anne, more than two years ago.

The sheriff said the trial probably will be postponed, at least for a day.

Nudists Use Bull Terrier For Protection

FINCHAMPSTED, Berkshire, England (AP)—The Heritage Nudist Club put a fierce bull terrier out last night to nip its naked peeping Tom.

Club members have been frightened by a tall, sunburned male nudist hiding in the surrounding woods.

The intruder has been able to outrun every chase since the nudists always stop to don clothes—a necessary preliminary in case the pursuit goes beyond the club boundaries.

But club members were betting on Patch, the bull terrier, to nab the pest.

"Patch knows how to grab by the seat of the pants," one said confidently. "He will be no less effective with an intruder wearing no pants."

PASSING THE JONESES

WINNIPEG (CP)—An $845,000 housing projejct is under way in West Kildonan, probably the largest such development in greater Winnipeg. Seventy-five homes, valued at between $10,000 and $11,000 each, are being built, mostly five and six-room bungalows.

Awful Gas, Indigestion Nervous, Couldn't Sleep

Condition followed Long Illness. This Woman Says Syntona Was Only Thing That Would Relieve Discomfort of Stomach.

If you are a sufferer of stomach disorders, gas, sour acidity and discomfort after eating, Syntona offers real help in time of need. Thousands of men and women say that this pure herbal medicine has helped them when ordinary things had failed to bring relief. And there is every good reason for this, because in addition to aiding in the elimination of excess acids and impurities from the digestive system, Syntona stimulates the flow of normal digestive juices, thus helping to stop stomach distress right from the time of eating.

Proof of the genuine effectiveness of Syntona is found in the experiences of people like Miss Rose McMaster, 799 Barton St. E., Hamilton, Ont., who said recently:

"Following a serious illness I suffered terribly from gas and indigestion. I would get a distressed, bloated feeling so bad I couldn't sleep. My nerves were all on edge.

"Reading in the paper about Syntona, I started taking this medicine and found it to be the only thing that would relieve the awful stuffy distressed feeling. Thus my appetite improved and Syntona helped me to get more restful sleep and I don't know how I would have managed to keep working if it hadn't been for the help I got from this medicine."

Why not give this Pure Herbal Medicine a chance to help you, too? Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

Underneath The Bough

By Edna G. Robins

When Louise found that she was going to have a child, a deep peace enfolded her. She was filled with a new strength, a new life. The restlessness of her girlhood, the yearning for a richer, fuller life that had found some satisfaction in her painting, was now forgotten. She felt no fear, for a divine energy seemed to be supporting her. She trusted it to carry her through.

And yet when she sat in her parlor, she avoided looking at the portrait of her mother that she had painted in those last weeks before her marriage.

The eyes seemed to be saying "Well, you see I was right."

In spite of her happiness and contentment, Louise hated to think that her mother had been altogether right. When she did look at the portrait her conscience reproached her as though she were betraying her own soul.

She began to avoid going into the parlor. She could not think of art work now and did not want to be made to feel ashamed for her indifference.

The unexpected appearance of Aunt Ella was a new test of Louise's courage. Louise had gone around to her mrother's house for lunch. They were in the midst of it when Aunt Ella breezed in.

"Well, Louise, what luck to find you here," Aunt Ella started in bruskly. "I especially wanted to see you, because I want you to help in the new campaign we are launching. I've just come on from Chicago to meet the national committee. It's time you gave some active service to the cause of Woman Suffrage."

"Oh, I'm sorry, Aunt Ella, I'm afraid I can't do anything about it, You see, I'm—"

"Oh, Louise!" Aunt Ella was shocked and grieved. 'You can't go back on us like that. You have a profession. You can't degenerate into a common housewife."

"Louise has always loved her home," said Mrs. Bentley coldly.

She had no sympathy with her sister. Women became so unladylike when they argued about woman suffrage. Furthermore, she was not flattered by the suggestion that she herself was a "common housewife."

"Louise has brains," Aunt Ella flared out. "There are plenty of silly little fools who can't do anything else but keep house. She's fit for something greater. What are you doing about your painting, Louise?"

"Oh, I can't do anything about that now!" Louise cried, deeply distressed to have her aunt echoing all the sentiments she herself had expressed so often before her marriage. "Later on, after the baby grows up, I'll take it all up again. But right now I feel that I just want to live—just to be myslef. I don't seem to want to be famous any more. It takes all my time and thought to be a good wife and mother."

"Humph!" snorted Auht Ella. "If anybody else but you said that, Louise, I'd call it bosh and twaddle."

She let the matter drop, but through the rest of her hasty luncheon she eyed Louise keenly from time to time.

"Maybe it's money," Aunt Ella thought. "How could she marry a man named Harry! Such an anemic name! Probably he's too mean to give her the money for lessons and the girl's too proud to admit it. And yet she really looks happy. Perhaps she would not have been a real help to the Cause. Too sweet. Maybe she's soft and sentimental. Artists generally are. But I always thought Louise had too much character to grow mawkish over babies. Well, I can't waste time on her.'"

Aunt Ella rushed off to a committee meeting. It was a long time before Louise saw her again Occasionally her name was in the paper in connection with the Woman Suffrage movement.

The sunlight streamed into the dining room. With a delightfully lazy feeling Louise poured out a second cup of coffee. It seemed so strange to be there by herself with so much time on her hands and nobody to bother her. It would certainly make a big difference to her to have both of her children at school. Eleanor had not begun school until she was six, but the baby was starting at five. He had begged so hard to go.

Louise's smile was tremulous as she thought of strudy little Ted, so manly and yet so affectionate. The house was painfully quiet without him.

Louise sipped her coffee slowly, glad of this opportunity to relax and to think things over without being interrupted. It really seemed as if, from the time of Eleanor's birth seven years ago, she had never been alone, never known a moment when she wasn't being called on some service. Yet she was conscious of an intense satisfaction.

"I certainly have nothing to reproach myself about—as far as the children are concerned," she thought. "Look at Josie Brown's baby, and Sadie's little girl! So pale and puny and miserable looking. They were horrified at the way I brought up my babies — giving them fresh air and exercise and fresh vegetables. Even Harry had his doubts and mother wanted me to keep the children wrapped in flannel all winter! No. I've nothing to regret in the way I brought up my babies."

Homemade TV Set Gives Convict New Outlook

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP)— A convict named Joe has pierced the walls that do his prison make, and officials are proud of him.

Joe, otherwise unidentified — has built a television set, mainly from salvaged parts and scrap metal from the machine shop at Connecticut state prison. Some parts he bought from his prison pay of $4.65 a month.

Deputy warden George A. Cummings says Joe's set works perfectly.

But prison officials are more pleased with how Joe has rehabilitated himself by working on his window on the world.

From a "Kansas tough guy" three years ago, he became a "model prisoner," Cummings said.

Joe will be up for a parole shortly. His plans for the outside?

"I'm getting into television," he says. "There's a great future in it."

"COOL CONTROL"

POINTERS ON CATCHING

1 You lessen the possiblity of injured fingers if you learn to catch all below-waist pitches with your fingers pointed downwards, and all above-waist pitches with your fingers pointed upwards. Receiving the ball this way also allows faster, surer handling.

2 Play close to the batter in semi-standing posture; weight on balls of feet; feet well spread, left foot about six inches ahead of right foot. This position gives good control when throwing to bases and when handling wild pitches.

3 Keep fingers on bare hand closed but relaxed, with thumb along index finger. When ball strikes mitt, bare hand opens over the ball in mitt and plucks it out ready for throw. Mitt hand gives slightly with pitch, and remains in front of body for balance when returning throw.

Yes, it's control that counts, in baseball as in every sport — control which brings the extraordinary quality that sets one performer above the other. In the ability to approach things coolly, to control every move and moment, lies the answer to better results.

This is one of a series designed to increase the pleasure of Canadians who participate in sports.

HEAVY FOREST FIRES CONTINUE MARCH IN B.C.

No Hope of Getting Assist from Weather

VANCOUVER (CP)—A red tide of fire which has claimed at least one life continued to dash against British Columbia forests today and hopes of getting an assist from the weather.

As B.C. began its 23rd day without appreciable rain, the weather office reported "there is still no sign of significant rainfall to bring an end to the threat of forest fires."

1,200 Fight 150 Fires

Some 150 fires are being fought by 1,200 men. The biggest of these outbreaks has spread over more than 8,000 acres in the Cariboo country of north-central B.C.

But this "killer" fire slowed its offensive yesterday after it had taken the life of Howard Gordon, 40-year-old father of five children, who was trapped and burned to death.

Gordon, the first fatality of the fire season, was trapped by falling timber in the Tintagel area, 10 miles east of Burns Lake, when that corner of the fire suddenly puffed out before a wind and levelled a logging camp.

One Man Missing

A man identified only as J.H. Hunter was listed as missing in the same rampage. A forestry official said early today it was too early to presume Hunter dead because there was a faint possibility he had left the fire lines earlier without reporting.

The forestry official said the fire "didn't spread much yesterday." In estimating that the fire has covered 8,000 acres, he said, "the smoke drifts so much it's hard to estimate."

Meanwhile, three other major fires continued to burn out of control. They are at Vernon Lake on Vancouver Island, in the Bella Coola valley, 300 miles up-coast from Vancouver, and near Kelowna in the Okanagan valley.

At last reports the Vernon Lake fire had covered 1,000 acres while the Bella Coola and Kelowna fires each had consumed 1,500 acres.

Diefenbaker Urges Bill of Rights At Conference

GENEVA PARK, Lake Couchiching, Ont. (CP) — John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative member of parliament for Lake Centre, told the Couchiching conference last night that Canada is facing the problem of how to survive internationally without unnecessary sacrifice of fundamental freedoms.

The Saskatchewan member spoke at a night session of the conference, sponsored jointly by the Canadian Institute on Public Affairs and the CBC.

He said: "The garrison state, in greater or lesser measure, is with us."

Urges Bill of Rights

He said Canada should have a bill of rights and before such a bill, a Supreme Court Act amendment that would enable a citizen the right to appeal to the highest courts when fundamental freedoms have been invaded or infringed.

R.G. Cavell, Canadian administrator of the Colombo Plan, the British Commonwealth's five-year project to aid underdeveloped countries, said the plan may become a United Nations operation before it concludes its present work.

He said there was full co-operation between the U.N. and the Colombo Plan. It might well be that before long the Commonwealth investment project would be joined with its opposite number in the U.N. program.

Hector McNeil, former minister of state in the British Labor government, said caution should be exercised in the matter of moving the Colombo Plan to the U.N.

"The number of countries which can contribute surplus products and technical assistance is limited to no more than a dozen or so, but the legitimate claimants for aid are legion," he said.

Bandits Get $4,000

HULL, Que. (CP)—Two armed bandits held up a savings bank yesterday and escaped in an automobile with about $4,000.

The men entered the bank on the pretext of getting change for a $1 bill, ordered the manager and the teller into the manager's office and rifled the teller's cage after locking the front door and pulling the blinds.

EGYPT IMPOSES CENSORSHIP ON OUTGOING NEWS

Sudden Shift Does Not Come as Surprise

CAIRO (AP)—Egypt's new reform government today imposed censorship on all outgoing news stories after only a few days of free reporting.

Premier Aly Maher had granted reporters freedom from the strict Egyptian censors in a decree last Sunday. Censorship had been enforced rigidly by former King Farouk's regime, particularly to stifle criticism of the royal family.

The sudden shift did not come as a complete surprise, even though Anwar Habib, the country's chief censor, said yesterday that censorship would not be reimposed. Habib said then that press freedom did not extend to news involving security of the army or the state. He did not elaborate.

Newspaper men in Cairo regard this as, in effect, a fresh imposition of censorship.

Indict Rioters

Meanwhile, a military court in the cotton-mill town of Kafr El Dawar, near Alexandria, indicated an alleged ringleader of labor rioting Tuesday which left seven persons dead and scores injured.

The court charged Mustafa Khamis, a worker, with inciting the demonstration for higher wages in textile plants. Several hundred other workers are under investigation in connection with the riots.

Khamis and any others indicted with him could get death sentences if convicted.

Fired Fatal Shot Detective Testifies At Hearing

TORONTO (CP)—Detective-sergeant Roy Perry today identified Val Lesso, alias Steve Suchan, as the man who fired the shot March 6 which fatally wounded Sergeant of Detectives Edmund Tong.

Suchan and Leonard Jackson appeared in police court today for preliminary hearing on charges of murder.

Perry, telling the court of the shooting in which he was wounded in the right arm, said Suchan was driving a black car which he and Tong were following. Both Suchan and his companion were armed with pistols or revolvers and both men fired shots at the officers, he said.

The physician who attended Tong, was not available to testify today and the hearing was adjourned to Aug. 22.

Sixteen police officers and detectives stood guard over the courtroom when Jackson and Suchan appeared.

$26 Million Plan To Reduce Traffic Snarls Announced

Doucett Says Program Will Eliminate Seven Bottlenecks

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government this week announced two highway projects costing a total of $26,000,000 aimed at reducing traffic snarls in the southern section of the province.

The first announcement came Tuesday from Highways Minister Doucett with news of a $16,000,000 program designed to eliminate seven bottlenecks. Last night a second project, costing $10,000,000, to route in a northern arc around Toronto, was announced.

Keeps Cars From Cities

Much of the new construction is designed to carry heavy traffic away from cities and towns where speed limits and traffic lights cut movement to a minimum. Controlled access and express routes are planned to eliminate the foul-ups.

Main point of last night's announced project is the construction of a 4-lane controlled access route to send traffic curving northward from the Queen Elizabeth highway around Toronto. Mr. Doucett said conditions in that area threaten to make the city "a traffic quagmire."

Use Much Steel

The two projects will require a total of 15,000,000 pounds of reinforcing steel or enough for 42 miles of heavy railway track.

In his announcement last night Mr. Doucett said tenders will be called within the next two months. The project includes:

1. A controlled-access highway on the present route of Highway No. 27, from the Queen Elizabeth way to a point south of the Dixon sideroad.
2. Completion of the northwest entrance to the Toronto-Barrie Highway by way of Black Creek valley to Toronto's north-end Eglinton avenue, and a spur road connection with the west-end Weston road, a distance of three miles.
3. Extension of the North Toronto interceptor road east from Yonge St. to join No. 2A highway at the Rouge River.

Goes Near Oshawa

Mr. Doucett said the completed Toronto by-pass will give the province a four-lane limited-access highway from Hamilton to Newcastle, 10 miles east of Oshawa.

Mr. Doucett said the plans for the Toronto area are based on the fact that more than 5,000,000 United States motor vehicles entered Ontario in 1951. Figures for the first six months of this year show an increase of 7.3 per cent over the same period last year. At the same time, motor vehicle registrations increased 6.1 per cent.

He stressed Toronto's position as a major tourist attraction and said highways in this district must make room every summer and fall for almost four times the needs of the city's own residents.

Battled at Dieppe Canadian Vets Muster at Montreal

MONTREAL (C:) — Representatives of every unit that took part in the Dieppe landing in France 10 years ago Tuesday assembled in Royal Montreal Regiment armory today preparatory to leaving by air for Paris and the annual memorial service at the little French seaside resort.

Col. W.D. Dick, chief of staff of Quebec Command and in charge of the party, briefed the 36 officers and men.

There were 16 from Central Command units, with the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry represented by Col. Dick, highest-ranking officer to make the trip, and Cpl. W.A. King, one of four corporals, lowest rank going to the ceremonies.

Union Ranks Gain Survey Shows

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor union membership in Canada stands at a record high, the Labor Department said Thursday.

It reported that the 41st annual survey of union membership now belong to unions and that a higher proportion of workers now are unionized than ever before.

Topping the list is the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada which claims the allegiance of 522,965 workers or nearly half the over-all total.

The Canadian Congress of Labor has 330,778.

The increase over the over-all 1951 figure was 117,600 but the department said some of this was made up of 24,350 workers not included in last year's total because they were in independent units not surveyed then.

More than 30 per cent of the labor force belongs to unions, the department said. The jump of 117,600 was one of the largest in years.

There are 108 international and 62 national and regional organizations in the union field.

Woman Promises Expose of Windsor U.S. Consulate

WINDSOR (CP)—Mrs. Marguerite Prest, a public accountant who was named in connection with the provision of fake bank statements for applicants for United States visas, yesterday promised an expose of the Windsor U.S. consulate "when I'm ready."

She told a reporter that U.S. consul Robert J. Cavanaugh is "nothing but a publicity-seeker" and said she has "done nothing wrong" in connection with visa applications.

She had, she said, "merely provided a visa service for persons wishing to go to the U.S." She had charged $75 fees for paperwork performed with visa applications and had had to pay approximately $26 for records necessary for the average application.

Gardiner Urges Livestock Men To Hold Their Cattle Until U.S. Lifts Embargo

VAUXHALL, Alta. (CP)—Canada now is among the major livestock countries which have no foot-and-mouth disease among their livestock, Agriculture Minister Gardiner said yesterday.

Mr. Gardiner, officiating at opening ceremonies of a school, urged livestock men to hold their cattle until the United States lifts the embargo applied on Canadian animals after the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease near Regina last February. He said the government hopes it definitely can declare Canada free of the highly-contagious disease next Tuesday.

Following this announcement, the next move will be to convince the United States the disease no longer is present in Canada. United States law requires a further two-month wait before the embargo is lifted. After that, it is up to that country to decide when it will permit entry of Canadian livestock.

He said there is no basis for reports that the United States has decided not to lift the embargo until next spring. No decision of any kind had been made south of the border about the embargo because Canada has not said she is free of the disease.

"We're suggesting that you should not sell any more cattle than you have to to the packing plants until the embargo is lifted," Mr. Gardiner said.

The meat moved to two places from the plants: the domestic market and for export. Canada normally sends one-third as much meat to the United States as is eaten at home.

"Put that other third on the domestic market and the fellow who wants cheap beef will get it cheaper than he ever dreamed of," Mr. Gardiner declared. This extra meat on Canadian markets would put the price down to where it was before the war, he predicted, and "no one wants that."

Rhee Promises No Rest Until Reds Defeated

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—Thousands in this war-ruined capital cheered wrinkled Syngman Rhee today as he was inaugurated to his second term as president of South Korea. He promised "no rest" until the Communists are licked.

The 77-year-old president, re-elected Aug. 5 in South Korea's first popular presidential election, proclaimed during open-air ceremonies that Korea's "first charge remains upon the battlefield."

He added that his long-range aim, and that of the United States and the United Nations is "the restoration of all Korea as a free, independent, united and democratic nation."

200,000 Attend

A crowd estimated at 200,000 jammed the capitol grounds to celebrate also the seventh anniversary of Korea's liberation from 40 years of Japanese occupation and the fourth birthday of the U. N.-sponsored republic.

In Pyongyang, the capital of North Korea, Premier Kim Il Sung issued a mild blast at the U. S. in ceremonies commemorating the liberation.

"U. S. insistence on compulsory retention of Communist prisoners" Kim said, "is the only obstacle holding up final settlement of the Korean dispute." The speech, broadcast over Pyongyang radio and heard in Tokyo, promised efforts "to settle the Korean question amicably." (The U. N. stand at the deadlocked truce talks is that no prisoner should be forced to rejoin communism against his will.)

—Russia's Premier Stalin and Mao Tse-Tung, boss of Communist China, wished the North Koreans success in the war, in anniversary messages.

Swiss Gunman Attacks British Tourist Family

NYON, Switzerland (Reuters)—A Swiss gunman attacked a British tourist family sleeping in their tent on the shores of Lake Geneva early yesterday, it was learned today.

The gunman, a 20-year-old farm laborer, fled when Creighton Harrison, 33, sleeping in the tent with his wife and two sons, awakened suddenly and tackled the intruder. The laborer was captured later by gendarmes, who found a loaded gun in his pocket.

Police here have been on the alert since the murder of Sir Jack Drummond, 61-year-old British food scientist, and his wife and daughter over the French border, about 150 miles away.

At Lurs in southern France, detectives hunting the assailant of the Drummond family today interrogated Gustave Dominici, the farmer who found the bodies, for the fifth time.

There is still a strong belief that Dominici is frightened and has not told all he knows of what happened 11 days ago when the British tourists were killed.

Today's questioning followed a letter received by police from Paris alleging that Dominici in 1944 bought an American carbine similar to the murder weapon.

Want Picnics Banned From Bronte Cemetery

BRONTE (CP) — Bronte council last night heard further protests against visitors sitting on tombstones and graves in the cemetery here while they eat their picnic lunches.

Reeve Alfred Jennings said there is some question as to who had jurisdiction over the cemetery. Although it was located in Trafalgar township, 85 per cent of those buried there were residents of Bronte.

Council decided to ask the township to erect signs banning picnics in the cemetery.

Bronte is 20 miles southwest of Toronto.

Farm Prices On Way Up For First Time

OTTAWA (CP)—Farm prices of agricultural products are on the way up for the first time in a year. The Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday the turning point came in June.

The bureau's index for June, based on 1935-39 equalling 100, stood at 263.7 compared with 257.8 in May and 300.7 in the same month in 1951. The increase occurred in all provinces.

The bureau said the June gain was attributable mainly to higher prices for livestock, potatoes, poultry and eggs. These offset slightly lower average prices for grains and dairy products.

British Newspapers Hail Canada's Latest Gift of Arms to Britain

LONDON (Reuters)—The Liberal News Chronicle says today there may come a day when the future of the Commonwealth will be more the responsibility of Canada than Britain.

Inspired by Canada's free gift of arms to Britain, announced Wednesday, the newspaper devotes an entire editorial to the Dominion's bright future.

After reviewing her vast resources and developing industrial power, the newspaper says Canada emerged from the Second World War "a great nation."

"Canada has even outsoared dominion status. She has earned her own place, as of right, at the council tables of the world.

Power in Infancy

"Yet Canada, having come so very far, still stands only on the threshold of her future. Her power is still in its infancy.

"Canada is one of the few places in this tired old world where the future beckons confidently. She stands now where America did a hundred years ago."

The newspaper adds: "It says much for the ties that bind Canada and Britain that they are still so very strong. Trading difficulties have stretched Anglo-Canadian relationships somewhat thin, and the authorities in London, immersed in their own grave problems, have not always shown deep understanding of the problems that Ottawa face.

No British Effort

"Canada needs manpower and capital. Britain makes no special effort to send her either. This is a very grave mistake.

"One day it may come about that the future of the Commonwealth and all that it stands for will be more in Canada's than in Britain's keeping. This is a possibility against which we should not rebel for there is nothing shameful about it.

"If we were wise, we would rather do all in our power to ensure that should such a day ever dawn, the British tradition will flourish as happily under the maple leaf as ever it did in the shade of our more ancient oaks."

U.S. Experts Say Soviet Hit Sour Blow in Propaganda War, Now Trying to Soft Pedal

WASHINGTON (AP)—State department officials believe that the Russians, in their hymn of hate against the United States, have hit a sour note which their propaganda directors are suddenly trying to soft pedal.

The situation created an opening for a U.S. propaganda counter-attack which the Voice of America has been pressing for some weeks. Officials say Russian reaction indicates the counter-attack is worrying the Kremlin.

Here is what happened:

The Soviet Union always tried to present itself to the world as a friend of all peoples and an enemy only of small groups of "warmongers," "enemies of peace".

Attacked U. S. Army

However, for many months the Soviet propagandists have attacked the whole American army as an army of "monsters" and "cannibals" guilty of committing the most violent atrocities.

Coupling this with the germ-warfare campaign they have pictured the U. S. as a country capable of the most horrible crimes.

U. S. Replied

Taking all these elements together, the Voice of America began telling the world that the Soviet Union was conducting a "hate-America" campaign, blackening the reputation of a whole people for the first time in Soviet history.

In recent days two Soviet publications, "News" and "New Times," have carried articles disavowing any such campaign, and restating that the Russians love everybody.

Similar denials and protests have been voiced by Russian radio commentators, usually in English or some other non-Russian language.

Bomb Delays Recovery Of Major's Body

SEOUL (Delayed by censorship) —(AP) — a wide section south of Seoul was heavily guarded area of acute danger yesterday as authorities awaited the explosion of delayed action bombs which plummeted to earth in an aircraft accident two days previously.

Astride one of the bombs was the broken body of a major who cannot be identified as yet. He lost his life when his bomb-laden fighter-bomber collided in flight Tuesday with a jet plane. The pilot of the jet parachuted successfully.

Because the bomb on which the major's bodylay might detonate at any second, the body could not be recovered. Other bombs in the area already had exploded. A whole village was evacuated temporarily for the safety of the inhabitants.

Authorities said it will be days before the danger passes.

Allied planes dropped delayed action bombs around the target areas to prevent immediate rebuilding by the Communist enemy in North Korea. Bombs can be set to go off hours or days after they strike the earth.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: Very warm humid air will cover most of Ontario today and tonight but cooler air moving southeastward from the Prairies will bring more seasonal temperatures Saturday. Widespread thundershowers will begin this evening in the western sections and will move eastward ahead of the cooler air. Sunny skies today and Saturday will combine with overnight showers and lower humidity on Saturday to make a fine beginning for the weekend.

Aly Visits Rita, Departure Glum

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Prince Aly Khan hurried to a five-hour visit with his estranged wife, Rita Hayworth, soon after he arrived here last night, but when the meeting broke up early today their reconciliation question remained unanswered.

Appearing glum as he left the actress' Beverly Hills home, the Prince said only: "I talked with Rita and saw our daughter who is beautiful."

Property Owners Form Association

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP) — Some 30 property owners who complain their taxes are too high and works department employees do not work hard enough formed a property owners' association last night.

Bruce Williams, elected chairman, said real estate owners pay 75 per cent of the cost of operating Kirkland Lake and benefit about 25 per cent of the money spent.

Brazilian Financier Closes Shop Leaving $5 Million in Promises

NEW YORK (CP)—A young Brazilian financier who built up a multi-million-dollar business dealing in used cars has stunned his country's business world by closing shop and leaving behind $5,000,000 in promissory notes, the New York Times reports today in a dispatch from Rio De Janeiro.

The Times says that the financier, Luiz Felipe de Albuquerque, a 30-year-old former air force lieutenant, paid 20 to 30 per cent more than other dealers offered — paying in instalments — and sold cars for cash at less than other dealers.

The only explanation hazarded for his method was that in some way he would make enough profits with the quick capital it gave him.

He branched into other lines and owned a fleet of taxicabs and speculated in Rio real estate.

Albuquerque started a near panic yesterday with an announcement in a small newspaper saying that he had closed his "commercial activities" but that he would eventually make good all debts.

Officials Jubilant Over Success Of Belleville Fair

What was believed to be a record both in attendance as well as in gate receipts was established at the four-day Belleville Fair which ended yesterday. It was reported today by jubilant fair officials.

"It was the best fair in the history of the Exhibition" stated fair president Harry Rollins today. "I feel sure that a record has been established. The fair was very, very successful."

Mr. Rollins went on to point out that records were also established in the number of exhibits saying that with the exception of cattle, the exhibits were larger all the way around.

"Our horse show was splendid; our poultry show was exceptionally good and exhibits of sheep and swine were away up. Every pen for sheep and swine was filled."

Another feature of the fair, according to the president, was the farm machinery exhibit which was away up from other years.

Mr. Rollins admitted that the famous R.C.M.P. Musical Ride had been responsible for a record first day attendance, but the Garden Brothers grandstand performance continued to "pack 'em in" in the evenings.

Fair treasurer, Ben Bleecker, was unable today to give an official count on attendance or on gate receipts, but his opinion also was that records for both had been established.

Mayor Couch Blames Board Of Education for Delaying New Project for Housing

TRENTON (Special) — Mayor Kenneth J. Couch is not pleased with the Board of Education. He blames the board for holding up the housing project proposed for the Little farm site adjoining the golf club at the west end of the town.

At the middle-of-the month council meeting last night the mayor asked town clerk O. W. Larry if the board had agreed upon the front half of the Little farm, butting Highway No. 2, as a site for a new collegiate. Mr. Larry reported that chairman of the board, Roly Whitney, told him in the afternoon that the final approval would be coming in a phone message from the Department of Education by 6.00 p. m. He said he had not received the phone call.

It was then that Mayor Couch observed: "They're (meaning the Trenton Board of Education) just going to kill it for this year." Council was quick to flash the "go ahead" signal to the housing scheme soon after it was laid before them in the early part of the year. Since they have agreed to changes by the Planning and Development Board and the School Board. All of which has caused the plan to be held up.

Council was informed that they could not accept the project regardless of how the school board felt. The Central Mortgage must be assured that all parties are satisfied before entering into a contract, Mr. Larry pointed out. Mr. Couch, expressing discouragement with the progress to date, said "The project has been pushed around so much I don't care what happens. We've been a year working on a housing deal and we are just where we started."

The project called for the erection of 25 better-than-average priced homes to be built in a crescent styled development that would eventually accommodate more than 100 houses.

STALIN SENDS MESSAGE

MOSCOW (CP)—Premier Stalin today sent North Korea his best wishes for its success in the battle against United Nations forces. A telegram from the Soviet leader to North Korean Premier Kim Il Sung offered "hearty congratulations" on the occasion of the North Korean national holiday.

Albert Woodcox Victim of Crash Jury Is Told

TRENTON (Special) —Papers in the victim's hip pocket which did not burn in the fire led to the provincial police identifying Albert Woodcox, 27, of Bancroft who died in a level crossing crash here on Aug. 8. This information was brought out at an inquest probing the death of Woodcox here last night.

The jury absolved the train crew and recommended signs and wigwags be placed at the crossing. At the present time there is only one warning sign on the north side of the CNR double tracks on the Sidney Street thoroughway.

Woodcox, a married man with a family of two children, came to Trenton by car in search of work. Apparently he was not familiar with the railway crossings in town.

The only person who saw the crash, Girdwood Gregory, said he was sitting in his car waiting for the Woodcox car to pass so that he could turn out on to Sidney Street. He watched the car pass without slowing down and run into the path of the moving freight. Samuel Bowers, a witness who lives 75 feet from the crossing, said he saw the Woodcox car pass his house and heard the train whistle blow. He did not see the crash.

The train carried the car with Woodcox in it down the rightaway for 300 feet. There was an explosion and the car burst into flames. The person sitting behind the wheel was burned beyond recognition. The train had to be separated so that flames would not spread to two oil tank cars.

Coroner Dr. E. A. McQuade presided at the hearing. Louis Maraskas questioned the witnesses for the Crown. The jury, all men from Frankford included G. Montgomery (foreman) Raymond Rowe, Oscar Farrar, Ellis Green, Holton Madill.

Youngster Plucked from Path Of Train Engine by Aged Man

TRENTON. (Special.) —A 47-year-old man snatched a toddling youngster from the path of a C.N.R. freight train here, on Wednesday night narrowly missing death himself.

The 19-months-old baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Valyear, 65 1-2 Stanley Street, was playing in the yard outside the house, when she apparently decided to visit her grandmother, Mrs. L. E. Rolfe, across the tracks. She could not have heard the train's warning bell because she looked up only in time to see the engine bearing down on her.

The mother missed her daughter. She heard the train lumbering down the tracks. She became panic stricken when she looked out and saw her baby plucked from the path of the oncoming freight.

Ross Chard of Stanley Street, was the hero. He noticed the child stumbling around on the railroad crossing acted on the spur of the moment without thinking of his own life.

Mrs. Valyear is deeply grateful to Mr. Chard for saving her daughter, Thalia. She said yesterday: "I can never explain how grateful I am to Mr. Chard. He definitely saved my little girl and he could easily have been killed himself. This is certainly a dangerous part of Trenton. Children are playing near the crossing continuously and there are no wig-wag warnings. It is certainly a bad street for children.

The train, a southbound CNR freight was reported by witnesses to have been travelling at the usual speed of about 20 miles per hour.

Crew members of the train apparently had seen the youngster on the track and Fireman Jack Lazenby of Belleville was reported to have climbed down onto the cowcatcher to catch the baby. He did not have the opportunity to do so, however, as at the last moment Mr. Chard snatched the baby from the tracks. Harvey Brown of Frankford, was the engineer.

The grandfather of the infant also had words of praise for Mr. Chard. "He is a brave man," he said.

The Valyears have two other children, Roger, almost 3, and Howard 6 months.

New High in Nerve As Thief Steals Beer, Meat, Money

Some kind of a peak in absolute nerve was established here by a housebreaker Thursday night when he entered a house in the east hill district.

Besides ransacking the downstairs the intruder did the following: Stole a piece of meat from the refrigerator, took a wallet and change purse in which there was a signed cheque for $104.36, took three bottles of beer and drank a part bottle of whiskey leaving the empty bottle on the verandah.

The house owner and his wife slept soundly through it all and knew nothing of the intruder until they woke up this morning.

She was treated by Dr. Thos. Woodley.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Prices continued to rise in slow afternoon stock market trading today except for western oils which slipped slightly.

Industrials and golds rose slowly but steadily while base metals jumped in the morning and eased slightly later.

Western oils opened weakly but rallied later, still remaining below yesterday's closing prices. Few shares traded actively and many leading issues slipped.

Industrials continued to rally from recent declines as banks, agricultures steels and utilities gained strength. Brazilian Traction traded actively and gained a fraction.

Most active base metal was Mayo which traded about 160,000 shares in the first three hours for a penny gain.

Gold trading was dull but Gunnar a prospect, gained pennies in a turnover of about 160,000 shares. Senior golds were firm.

Fall Down Fissure Takes Explorer's Life

LICQ-ATHERY, France (AP)—Death came last night to underground explorer Marcel Loubens, 1,000 feet down in the Pyrenees, just before the midnight hour when rescuers hoped to bring him out. His back was broken Wednesday in a fall down a fissure, one of the world's deepest.

The 33-year-old Paris industrialist and underground enthusiast got his injuries when a steel cable hauling him to the surface of the 153-foot Pierre St. Martin fissure snapped after he had been lifted 120 feet. His body hurtled to the floor of a big hole. His spine and jaw were fractured.

TOLL HIGHWAYS STAGE COMEBACK

Most people think of toll gates on highways and bridges as relics of the past; sometning we used to read about in British history long ago. The theory in those quaint, old-fashioned days was that the people who used the highways tand bridges should pay for them and that those who did not should not be required to contribute toward their construction and maintenance.

Obviously, such a reactionary notion was not in keeping with the spirit of what is called modern progress and the toll gates eventually vanished in Great Britain. Originally, there were toll gates on some of the roads and bridges of New France, too. Whether they ever disappeared entirely in Quebec we do not know, but are informed that, if they did, they have nevertheless reappeared in cent times and are to be encountered on certain bridges there today, if not on some highways as well.

They have been reviving them in the United States, too. Just the other day, the State of Ohio sold $236,000,000 in debentures for the purpose of constructing 241 miles of toll turnpike fro mthe terminus of the Pennsylvania Turnpike to the western boundary of Ohio. When the Ohio Turnpike is completed, motorists will be able to go from Hartford, Conn., to Indiana on an unbroken line of super-highway built and paid for entirely by those using it. The only stops will be at toll stations.

There are two reasons for the reappearance of toll highways in the United States. One is that the great increase in the number of motor vehicles, particularly in the number of heavy trucks. The other reason is that the general public—people who either do not own cars at all or are not deriving any benefit fro mthe motor transport companies—have been objecting strenuously to building and maintaining expensive highways for other people's profit and convenience.

It is significant that, where toll highways have been built in the United States, they have been paying for themselves much faster than was anticipated—in some cases, half the estimated time. The casual motorist can still use the ordinary roads and highways, but the commercial truckers and others who are in a hurry find it more convenient to use the toll highways.

We do not knwo whether the toll highway will ever come to Ontario. But it is known here that the construction of newer and broader highways never seems to keep pace with the increase in both the number and the weight of the vehicles using them. It is known also that not everyone is happy about present methods of collecting the very large sums required for building and maintaining the highways, especially those portions of them that run organized municipalities.

Perhaps it might not be amiss for the officers of the Ontario Department of Highways to study what some of the American states are doing about the building of these pay-as-you-them highways. One of the reasons the Americans got where they are has been their willingness to experiment, improvise and improve.

FLUCTUATING VALUE OF GOLD

We were reading the other day a somewhat doleful article from Northern Ontario, complaining that a drop in the price of gold was having serious effects on the economy of the gold mining industry of this province. This rather surprised us, as we had not noted any announcement indicating a change in the fixed price of this precious metal.

As a matter of fact, there has been no change in the price of gold. It is still valued at $35 an ounce on the basis of American dollars. This is the price fixed some years ago and it has not changed.

Unfortunately, however, for the Canadian gold mine operators, the rate of exchange in terms of Canadian and United States currency has changed. When the Canadian dollar was at a ten per cent discount in the United States, Canadian gold mines received a premium of $3.50 an ounce of gold sold. When the dollar exchange was at par, the price was at the even figure of $35 an ounce. Now, however, the Canadian dollar is worth roughly three cents more than the American dollar, so that the returns from Canadian gold are three per cent lower, so far as Canadian mines are concerned.

This is one instance in which a fluctuating rate of exchange causes misunderstandings and heartburnings. And the loss of that three per cent can be a serious thing for Canadian gold mines whic hare hard pressed to make their returns meet their increased costs of production.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

(Coyprigt, 1952, Edgar A. Guest)

BADGES AND BUTTONS

Buttons and ribbons pinned on the lapel
Are fashioned the views of the wearer to tell.
They are symbols to show for what reasons we part.
But true love of country is worn on the heart.

True love of country is better displayed
Not by a badge, but a sacrifice made.
What liberty asks, and our way of life needs
More than buttons to wear on our coats, is our deeds.

These symbols of party will all be in vain
Save united for God and for truth we remain.
As Americans all, 'til the theat fades far away,
Our hearts and our minds must devotion display.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ENJOYMENT

If we get enjoyment out of what we do we get the sap, the substance, and the worth that inspires that enjoyment. Thoreau said: "My wealth is not in possession but in enjoyment."

The worker, who sings or whistles as he works, gains satisfaction and enjoyment that no mere pay envelop ever contains. Enjoyment is something that bubbles up from within. It's something from the heart. It's God-inspired. To gain it you must be happy, for indeed it is the essence of happiness.

To work, or be engaged in something that gives personal satisfaction, immediately takes on importance. Earning more, or less, money than someone else isn't important. One way or the other doesn't contribute to enjoyment. Enjoyment spreads. The humble roadmender gets enjoyment out of his work, learns lessons from his obbservations as he works, and those who profit from his labor, those who have a more pleasant road over which to drive, also gain enjoyment. It is impossible to do anything that is worth while that does not influence others.

The artist writer, musician, scientist, all get enjoyment out of what they do, but the net result is that they give this enjoyment to an endless number of others. It is impossible for any of us to corner our enjoyment. It will find its way out continually. Happiness and the example of diligence are never wasted. Nor are they ever permanently cornered.

The inhabitants of nature, the animals and birds, seem ever to be in the business of enjoying life. How much we can learn from them. They are self-supporting and they play and sing out their enjoyment as a divine inheritance. How industrious they are. You can't imagine any of them ever uttering a complaint!

There is an intriguing phrase used by a famous advertiser—"be happy, go lucky" it could well be applied to life itself rather than to a cigarette!

Auto Factories Lagging On 6-Months Basis

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's auto factories shipped out 16 per cent more cars in June than in the corresponding month a year ago but are lagging on a six-month comparative basis.

With declines in four of the five previous months, cumulative shipments in the first half of this year are down six per cent from a year earlier, the Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday.

June shipments of Canadian-made vehicles totalled 41,910 compared with 36,229 in the corresponding month last year. This brought the cumulative total for the six-month period to 232,397 units compared with 247,775 in the first half of 1951.

KITCHENER MAN SENTENCED

Wagner's Kin Win Support For Super-Modern Staging

By DANIEL DE LUCE

BAYREUTH, Germany (AP)—Richard Wagner's grandsons and the modernists have won a two-year fight against the old dragons of theatrical conservatism.

Only a few flickers of flame still erupt from old-fashioned music critics who dislike the super-modern staging of the Wagnerian operatic festival at Bayreuth.

Most are reconciled now to the loss of musty sets and fussy props. Abstract lighting on an almost bare, elliptical, inclined stage is the new tradition.

No longer are singers floundering in melodramatic gestures through their roles. Their movements are restrained.

This is the way producer Wieland Wagner, 34, says his grandfather would have wanted it, if the great musical innovater had lived in the 20th century.

When Wieland, young and untried, took over the 75th anniversary revival of the festival in 1951, veteran patrons doubted whether he was a big enough chip off the Wagner artistic block.

Weathering a violent attack by conservatives last year, Wieland came back this season with his abstract settings refined—but not repudiated.

The 12 months' interval gave the majority of critics a chance to second-guess themselves. Their favorable change of opinion is seen here as guaranteeing the continuation of the annual festival for many years to come under Wieland and his brother, Wolfgang, 32, who is business manager.

After all, the converted now recall, it was old Richard himself who once said: "Children, create the new! Create the new!"

It costs $440,300 to put on a Wagnerian festival, running as it does this year from July 23 to Aug. 25, with an international cast, a large symphony orchestra and a chorus of more than 100.

Although the 1,800-seat estspielhaus is sold out for nearly all 25 performances, the box office revenue meets little more than half the expenses. Ticket sales amount to $231,000.

From the West German government, Bavaria, Bayreuth and the German radio, there are contributions of $119,000.

But this leaves $59,500 for Wolfgang to raise from private gifts, large and small, to keep the festival going.

Guest singers who come to Bayreuth accept much less than their usual fees. But they relish the experience.

Swedish-born Astrid Varnay and Canadian-born George London, of the New York Metropolitan, sang at the first post-war festival last year and are back again. Roman Vinay of Chile scored a personal triumph as Tristan to open this season.

At 5 o'clock in the afternoon, the curtain rises daily at the Festspielhaus. It is nearly midnight when the last song is sung.

West Worries Over Refugee Infiltrations

BERLIN (AP)—West Berlin is beginning to worry that its proud role as haven for refugees is being used by the Communists to spread chaos.

Forty-three thousand Germans have fled the Russian zone this year and made their way to West Berlin. July had a record total of 13,800.

The flight in July was originally tabbed as a spontaneous revulsion from the east zone's abrupt swing into complete communism in all walks of life, plus the threat of conscription for the Red German army.

Different Picture

West Berlin interrogation teams spending long hours in the refugee camps, are piecing together a different picture now. They note significantly:

1. The average age of the latest crop is much higher than in the past. Some are as old as 75. Thousands are between 50 and 60.

2. A majority told the teams which screen them for political reliability that they had been told they would receive pensions from the West Berlin authorities.

The screening teams say that it is obvious the eastern communists are deliberately trying to coerce Germans they regard as useless to slip into the west.

The result has been an almost intolerable burden on the sagging West Berlin economy.

Wins Divorce

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Shapely Gloria Grahame, 25, testified yesterday that she lost weight because her husband was sullen and morose.

"It hurt my eating," she told superior court. That was enough to win her a divorce, on the ground of cruelty, from Nick Ray, 40, movie director.

There was little evidence of any permanent damage. She appeared in court in a black dress as low cut as any court attaches could remember.

FILM FISH UNDER SEA

LONDON (CP)—British scientists have developed a new underwater television camera, undergoing tests on the Scottish marine biological association's research ship canalus. Screens will enable close-up study of habits and mass movements of fish—the millions that got away.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

A HARMONIOUS PATTERN

In an essay explaining what true culture really is, Matthew Arnold, the great nineteenth-century British poet and critic, gave as his motto for culture a quotation from Bishop Thomas Wilson: "To make reason and the will of God prevail."

This combination of "reason" and 'the will of God" must sound strange to some ears. Many modern people consider rationality and religion far apart Even quite a few who go regularly to church think of religion as a purely Sunday activity, and live from Monday through Saturday completely uninfluenced by what they experience on Sunday. In their own fashion, they follow Jesus' instructions to render unto Caesar what is Caesar's and unto God what is God's but they allot an extremely small share to God.

In these days of popular psychiatry, everyone knows the dire consequences of a "split personality." Yet thousands of nominal Christians must split their personalities every week by lowering their business or professional standards to conduct what they know would not meet Christian standards.

Both reason and the will of God can prevail in our lives and be in harmony with each other. In truth, reason is never as rational, nor the harmony ever so harmonious, as when our Sunday and our weekday lives stop being separate and blend into a consistent pattern of Christian living.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed Letters, Not More Than One Page, or 100 Words Long, Pertaining to Personal Health and Hygiene, Not to Disease, Diagnosis or Treatment, Will be Answered by Dr. Brady if a Stamped, Self-Addressed Envelope is Enclosed, Etc.

VOLUNTARY ISOLATION...

Surveys conducted by the U.S. Public Health Service in various urban and rural communities showed that three-fourths of the illness attended by physicians in the United States is due to C R I (kree), short for common respiratory infections, or complications and sequels of such infections. Write the Public Health Service, Washington, D.C., for a copy of the original report of the survey or at least a reference to it.

Complications and sequels of respiratory infections include operations on sinuses, mastoids, tonsils, middle ears (portion of hearing apparatus within drum membrane), lungs (for lung abscess), pleural cavity (for empyema) and even the appendix, for in some instances acute appendicitis is due to the same Pneumococcus that so frequently causes tonsillitis.

So it should be manifest that it is not just a whim or vagary that one should call any respiratory infection cri until one or one's physician can be reasonably sure whethe it is two-day coryza, measles, epidemic meningitis, frontal sinusitis, influenza or whatnot.

Calling it cri, you give every one within range fair warning that you are coming down with a communicable disease, though you don't know yet just what may be developing.

If you call it "just a cold" you give every intelligent person around you fair warning that you are a double-blank stinker and a menace to the health and life of every one within cough, sneeze or conversation spray range.

As long as medical and health authorities, so-called, cling to the quaint delusion that many diseases are due to "exposure" to cold and dampness, the freely distributed respiratory infections will continue to keep physicians and surgeons busy most of the time.

Perhaps it is utopian to imagine what the effect upon the health and happiness of the world would be if every one called such illness or indisposition cri and followed the golden rule of hygiene—voluntary isolation.

Voluntary isolation means keeping not less than 12 feet away from other persons or, if this is not practicable, wearing a suitable mask whenever closer approach is necessary. In the booklet Call it C-R-I, for which send 25c and stamped, self-addresed envelope, instructions for making and using such masks are given.

Cough or sneeze spray range is up to twelve feet from the mouth or nose of the person who coughs or sneezes without covering mouth and nose. Conversation spray range is less than five feet; that is, the invisibly or faintly visible and palpable moisture droplets in the spray that shoot from the mouth in ordinary conversation carry only a few feet, and so, if you can manage to keep at least five feet away from the double-blank stinker who pretends to have "just a little cold," you are not likely to catch it; unless, indeed, his laughter or conversation is boisterous.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The Packsack recently had a very rude reflection upon guests at summer cottages, and quite a pile of letters have come in, mostly from the relatives and friends of people who own summer cottages, protesting vigorously against the accusation that they sit around the verandah and let the lady of the house do all the work. The best of these letters is as follows:

"Dear Packsack:

"I would like you to write one that we can clip out of the paper and stick up on the summer cottage wall with thumb tacks in a conspicuous place where everybody who comes as a guest to the cottage can see it in future seasons. If you do, I will frame it, so that it will last. I will frame it in bright red, so nobody can miss it.

It should enumerate the duties of guests. First: since the lady of the house always plans and prepares the meals, she should never be allowed to do the dishes, or to appear in the kitchen once the breakfast, lunch or dinner is over. She should go out to the verandah and sit in a rocking chair, and listen to the clink and clatter from the kitchen as her reward for the lovely meal.

"Second: the master of the house (summer cottage) should never be allowed to carry an armful of wood, or empty a slop pail or lift a carton of supplies to carry into the house. Having bought the supplies and provided the wood and produced the food of which the slop pail contains the remains, he should be ordered to sit in a deck chair out on the breeziest spot on the lawn or the rocks, and hark to the sounds of his guests doing their chores as his reward for setting up this lovely holiday for his relatives or friends.

"You have hit on one of the sorest spots of the whole summer holiday situation. I am in the unhappy position of having inherited the family cottage. The whole family connection assumes it as a right that they should holiday with us. Consequently, I work harder in July and August than in any other months of the year."

Hunt for Killer of English Family Hamstrung by Conspiracy of Silence

LURS, France (AP) — A conspiracy of silence among the people of this southern France mountain region has hamstrung the solving of the Drummond murder case, Police Commissioner Edmond Sebeille said yesterday.

Sabeille's statement followed 10 days of fruitless searching for the killer who shot British food expert Sir Jack Drummond, Lady Drummond, and smashed in the skull of their 11-year-old daughter, Elizabeth.

"I'm convinced I know the assassin, I am almost certain to have questioned him, but I haven't been able to trip him up in his declarations," said Sebeille, adding:

"Everyone we question seems to be motivated by the same bad faith. They deliberately misinterpret our questions and are evasive."

The Drummonds were murdered as they camped beside the roadside here Aug. 5.

Romance Between Automobile Heir, Actress Ends

DETROIT (AP)—The romance between automobile heir Horace E. Dodge and showgirl Gregg Sherwood ended abruptly yesterday after Dodge had police pick up the attractive actress.

Miss Sherwood, who has been rumored engaged to the 50-year-old heir, said she was "all through" with Dodge.

"But its all over," Miss Sherwood said. "After all, it was just one of those acquaintances."

Dodge called police last night, saying that a woman riding in a cab had stolen his jewels.

No Jewels

Police picked up Miss Sherwood as she arrived at a bus station. She was taken to headquarters where police again called the automobile heir. Dodge told police that no jewels had been taken but said Miss Sherwood had taken a box of candy, two bottles of perfume and five cigaret lighters.

"If she will surrender these, let her go," Dodge told police.

The showgirl produced the missing items from her luggage, claiming that all were gifts.

"I have been in his house for several days as a guest, with two ladies as chaperones," Miss Sherwood said. "The ladies left so I decided to leave, too.

Too Temperamental

"Last week, he was my house-guest at my parents' home but my father did not approve of his drinking and ordered him out.

"This is the end of a beautiful romance. He's too temperamental."

Nine Swimmers From 3 Countries Churn Channel

FOLKESTONE, England (AP)—Nine swimmers from three countries churned the English Channel today in the season's first attempts at the difficult 21-mile crossing.

Bob Paysour, 24-year-old fireman from Gastonia, N.C., was dragged from the calm, cold water last night about six miles short of the English coast, 12 hours and 15 minutes after he plunged in at Cap Gris Nez, France. Trainers said his left leg had become paralyzed as the result of an old injury.

Multiple Assault

Six Egyptian swimmers plunged into the channel on the French side early this morning in what looked like a mass assault on the waters dividing France and England. They were followed a few minutes later by a British swimmer, Victor Birckett.

Jenny James of Wales, who started from England to France last night, gave up after five hours because of seasickness.

A Danish school teacher, Elna Anderson, who dived in about 30 minutes after Miss James, was still going strong early today.

There was no news of Philip Mickman, a Briton who also set out on the southward route yesterday.

Little Information

Also somewhere in the channel was 56-year-old Ned Barnie, a Scottish school teacher trying to swim to France and back in one go.

An Algerian policeman named Noel Claude was reported coming in from the French side.

Just how they were all doing was still sketchy. Mists blinded cliffside observers, and the boats accompanying the swimmers carried no radios.

Hall Closets Make Attractive Powder Rooms for Guests

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Lazy days are made for swinging in hammocks—or filing away tag-ends from a summer's accumulation of recipes and advice.

Carefully clipped and underlined is a suggestion for converting hall-closets into "attractive little powder-rooms for your guests."

If you're like most persons you won't have any closets that you can afford to use for anything but closets. However, so the suggestion goes, closets to be transformed "may be painted in such delicate tints as oyster white, lavender, rose, soft blue, or peach color."

Incidentally, the suggestion comes from a paint manufacturer.

On Pancakes

The consumer section of the Canadian Department of Agriculture offers a French pancake recipe described as equally good for breakfast, luncheon or as dessert.

Sift one-half cup of flour with one teaspoon baking-powder and one-half teaspoon salt. Beat in three-quarters cup of milk a little at a time so the batter will not become lumpy.

Add three beaten eggs, one at a time, beating well after each egg.

To cook: Melt butter in frying-pan and when the pan is quite hot pour in enough batter to cover the bottom. If the pan is not too large one pancake will just fill it.

As each pancake is cooked, sprinkle it with grated maple-sugar, or spread with tart jelly or honey and roll it up.

The rolled pancakes can also be served with maple-syrup.

Skim milk powder is recommended for use in baking, for soups, sauces, macaroni and cheese. It costs less than whole milk, can be stored indefinitely in a dry place and with it on hand, there's no danger of running out of milk.

Stuffed Tomatoes

for cream pie.

Ingredients: One-third cup sugar; one-third cup flour; one-eighth teaspoon salt; one-half cup skim milk powder; two cups water; two egg yolks; one tablespoon butter; one teaspoon vanilla.

Mix sugar, flour, salt and skim milk powder and blend with one cup of water. Slowly add remaining water and cook over hot water 10 minutes, stirring constantly until mixture thickens.

Add beaten egg yolks and cook three minutes. Add butter and vanilla. Cool. Pour into baked nine-inch pie shell. Top with meringue. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees fahrenheit, about 15 minutes.

STUFFED TOMATOES

When slicing tomatoes cut them vertically—they lose less juice this way.

Stuffed tomatoes make a tasty dish. Cut them in half, scoop out the centres, and stuff. Cottage-cheese, well-seasoned and moistened with salad dressing, is a good stuffing. Another is an egg salad made by combining chopped pickle, diced green pepper, diced celery, and chopped hard-cooked eggs with salad dressing.

Marines Twice Crush Attacks On Bunker Hill

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—United States marines twice today crushed Chinese Communist attacks on Bunker Hill in the latest of a series of western-front battles which the U.S. command said has cost the Reds 3,014 in dead and wounded since last Saturday.

United Nations fighter-bombers strafed and plastered Red positions with bombs, rockets, and jellied gasoline as the marines forced back 200 Chinese who tried to advance on the battle-scarred hill this afternoon.

A briefing officer estimated 39 Communists were killed in the one-hour battle, the sixth futile Red attempt to recapture Bunker Hill.

Before dawn today, marines repulsed a 400-man force which launched a sneak attack on the hill from two directions.

The marines seized it early Tuesday, the fourth day of fighting in the area.

Halted By Artillery

Today's Red drive began at 1:20 a.m. Not one of 200 Chinese spotted sneaking through a canyon toward Bunker Hill got there, the Marines said. Allied artillerymen forced the attackers back.

Communist guns pounded Bunker Hill with 100 rounds a minute as 200 more Red scrambled out of the darkness in a furious frontal attack. Marines, firing from their prefabricated timber bunkers, cut the Reds down at the lower slopes of the hill.

By 3:35 a.m., the Chinese were reported in full retreat.

Daylight brought waves of U.N. fighter-bombers which stung Communist front-line positions with bomb, rockets and flaming gasoline.

POULTRY CHANGE

Black, say they're not town-grown fleas, but subversive suburban elements. Maybe he's right about that, because some of the fleas are actually biting humans. Well, anyway, that's the way I heard it!"

Church Times Does Not Favor Eden's Marriage

LONDON (Reuters)—The Anglican newspaper Church Times says in an editorial today that Foreign Secretary Eden's remarriage after divorce showed "how far the climate of public opinion in this matter has changed for the worse" since King Edward VIII abdicated to marry American divorcee Wallis Simpson 16 years ago.

"A generation or so ago a foreign secretary, who is more than likely one day to be prime minister, would have felt compelled to choose between his public career and such a re-marriage," the Church Times says.

"It is now apparently to be accepted as a matter of course that those who occupy the highest positions in political and public life may break the church's laws without embarrassment or reproach."

Not Official Organ

The Church Times, although it represents militant High Anglicanism, is not an official organ of the church.

Eden was granted a divorce in 1950 from the former Helen Backet on grounds of her desertion. He married Clarissa Churchill, niece of the prime minister, yesterday.

King Edward VIII, now Duke of Windsor, gave up his throne in 1936 because a King of England could not wed a divorced woman.

The high Anglican ruling is that persons married in church should not be divorced. If, however, a couple is divorced, neither one can be remarried in church. They can, as the Edens did, go through the ceremony in a registry office. The high church does not recognize this civil ceremony.

Princess Anne To Have Party On 2nd Birthday

BALMORAL, Scotland (AP) — Princess Anne, a bright little blonde with a sparkle in her eye, is two today, and court gossips already are picking her a husband.

The speculation ranges over a wide list of blue-bloods-in-short-pants, all of them young aristocrats whose family connections are bound to bring them near the young British princess.

But her future dancing partners held little interest for Anne this morning. The excitement centred entirely on the birthday celebration—a program starting at breakfast with the presentation of gifts.

There were presents from her big brother, 3½-year-old Prince Charles, and a couple of big ones from her royal parents, the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh.

Anne now can string her words into a full sentence and chat with her talkative brother.

Despite her royal standing, Anne follows much the same routine as any other pre-school child. Like her favorite aunt, Princess Margaret, little Anne is assured of a full list of blue-blooded suitors to wait attendance on her when she reaches the boy-and-girl stage. Those who are busy picking a possible husband point out several eligibles among the children of the Queen's friends.

There's the four-year-old Lord Hay — his friends call him Merlin. Or five-year-old Viscount Borodale—David to his intimates. Of the four-year-old Viscount Ipswich.

Club Activities

MARSH HILL HARMONY CLUB

The August meeting of the Marsh Hill Harmony Club was held, Friday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Parks with 30 members present.

The vice-president, Mr. Allyn Finkle, opened the meeting.

Minutes of last meeting were read and Mrs. Allyn Finkle gave a report on the box of food which had been sent overseas.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Finkle were conveners of the program. Mr. Finkle read the first Psalm as a call to worship, and the scripture lesson from Romans.

Miss Winnifred Parks read "Life's Most Important Thing."

"Popularity", by Patience Strong, was read by Mr. Ralph Parks.

Mrs. Berson Mitts read "Your Second Job", in which one of the world's most eminent men challenges all to seek adventures for the soul.

Mrs. E. B. Finkle gave an interesting paper on "Citizenship". A challenge was given to all to be better "Christian Citizens". The making of good citizens starts in the home and co-operate with the church and school. A community is no better than its average home.

Miss Alma Parks read a reading, "Kindness".

Mr. Berson Mitts read "The Basque Sheep Herder and the Shepherd Psalm", which explained in full the 23rd Psalm.

Mr. and Mrs. David Hollinger, recreation conveners, put on two contests which were enjoyed by all.

Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by the lunch committee.

MELODY MAIDS

Bethel-Zion. — On Wednesday evening the Melody Maids met at the home of their leader, Mrs. Percy Ray for the fourth and fifth meetings of the Milky-Way.

The roll call consisted in the bringing of a custard, which was judged as to the good qualities, with a discussion on these qualities. "Milk, the Child's Delight", was the main topic of the evening with the following points being brought out: its importance in the child's diet as contrasted with that of the adult. For the first year of the child's life, milk forms the main part of diet; after that the parent may feel that milk is too expensive or that the adolescent may consider it too fattening.

Sometimes, the milk has to be dressed up for the child; this may be done by attractive milk dishes, or by drinking it through a straw; using a pretty glass; in chocolate milk and by many other ways milk may be disguised for the child that hesitates to drink it freely.

For group work Dorothy Sills and Annamae Dickey, lettered the covers for the record books; group II, Helen Jenkins, Connie Sills and Irene Sine made Spanish cream; while the other girls, Eileen Kay, Donna Ray and Galla Cranston, made the sandwiches.

Following the refreshments, the girls all helped in the washing up.

BEAUTY

Daily bath is of cosmetic value.

Deodorants come in many forms; powders, creams, lotions, sticks.

It doesn't seem necessary to harp on the daily tubbing or shower, since it is taken for granted that cleanliness is the first of all good looks laws and the bath tub has become an institution. But it might be just as well to remind the beauty clientele—especially teen-agers—that the daily renovation should not be a casual matter. The body should not just be rinsed, as happens when one stands, unsoaped, under the shower; it should be scrubbed.

There is considerable debris on the skin, dead scales to which the exudations of sweat and sebaceous glands cling like all get out. During twenty-four hours one can pick up considerable atmospheric dust. This combination is not easily removed. It should be thoroughly removed. If the skin is to function normally as an organ of elimination.

The demon bather, who uses soap suds, a brush of firm heavy bristles, plenty of hot water and no limit to energy is going to be rewarded with a fine complexion, as the bath is of wonderful cosmetic value.

This jumping in and out of a cold shower or tub is all very well as a refreshing eye opener in the morning, but it is not nearly cleansing enough to be depended upon entirely. There is no excuse these days for being anything less than immaculate. Get rid of those dead, scales to which the unpleasant BO may cling. Nothing is more objectionable in office or shop than a person about whose clothes and body there is a suspicion of something not quite fresh.

Every woman should have a deordorant or deterrent to apply in the armpits where sweat glands are exceptionally active. One may not be aware of the presence of obnoxious odors. They can appear suddenly, sometimes because of physical conditions or excessive nervousness.

Deordorants come in many forms—powders, creams, lotions, sticks. Some of the liquids close the pores, need to be used only three or four times a year. There is no danger in their use; perspiration finds other outlets.

Every girl should include her mouth in her purifying program as an offensive breath is quite as dreadful as B.O. The teeth should be brushed after each meal, if possible. A mouth rinse is a double assurance of sweet breath. There should be the semi-yearly pilgrimage to the dentist. If the trouble persists despite these attentions, one should seek the services of a throat and nose specialist.

Good Profile Most Important Asset for Fall Hat Styles

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—A good profile seems to be the most important asset for hat styles worn with fall fashions shown in London and Paris.

High-crowned turbans and stove-pipe hats with little or no brim are far from flattering to anything but the most regular features. And it needs well-kept hairstyles and cleverly-applied make-up to do justice to cloches and berets that sometimes resemble close-fitting bathing caps.

London's youngest hat designer, air force veteran Edward Harvane, might have had his service days in mind when he created a propeller-brim model in white panne with biege bee-keeper veil. A shallow juliet-cap crown is surrounded by brown fur and fur-covered propeller wings stretch sideways to shoulder width.

Stove-Pipe Look

The most popular style in this collection was the stove-pipe look created by high-crowned turbans draped and tilted sideways, and square-crowned peach-bloom felts with tiny roll brims and a similar sideways tilt.

The Elizabethen flavor that came into fashion with the start of the new reign is perhaps even more noticeable in the hat field. A Queen Bess" cap in black velvet, has its tiny-crowned, halo brim outlined by a white organza ruffle. It suggests train skirts and farthingale waists.

In both London and Paris, hats are tiny and face-framing. There is scarcely one forward-tilting brim in either city.

Colors tend to softness, ranging from charcoal browns and greys, shaded bronze, olive green and royal purple, to azalea pink, coronation red, chrysanthemum yellow, "banjo blue" and "ukulele green."

Hardy Amies, designer of many outfits worn by the Queen on her Canadian tour, features tudor caps in soft worsteds and light-weight tweeds that match slim suits and softly-draped afternoon dresses.

Eden and Bride Fly to Portugal For Honeymoon

LONDON (AP) — Britain's distinguished newlyweds — Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and his wife the former Clarissa Churchill—took off from London airport today for a honeymoon flight to Portugal.

Eden and his bride, a niece of Prime Minister Churchill, were passengers on an airliner bound for Lisbon. There they will be guests of British ambassador Sir Nigel Ronald for two days before going off for a week at a seaside resort.

The couple, wed yesterday at London's Claxton Hall, reached the airport 20 minutes before the plane departed. They had stayed overnight at the nearby home of Whitney Straight, deputy chairman of the British Overseas Airways Corporation.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Don't let a neurotic mother-in-law ruin your life

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been married for two years, and have spent most of the time since then taking care of my mother-in-law. We had our own home, but because she stayed in bed all the time, saying she was sick, we moved in with her. The doctor says there is not a thing wrong with her, but she still insists she is too weak and sick to do her own housework and get her own meals.

Recently, my husband and I decided to go back to our own home, which is in the same town, so I cleaned her whole house for her before leaving and thought surely she would take care of it after we were gone, but in just a few days it was in terrible condition again.

I just can't take care of two houses. By the time I have them both clean, I am so tired I don't want to do anything, and it makes me cross and irritable with my husband and the baby—Mrs. W G.

Dear Mrs. W. G.:

It sounds to me as though you had acquired a neurotic mother-in-law whose imaginary ailments will dominate your life if something is not done about the situation immediately, before you get hopelessly involved.

You have not given me any information that indicatad whether or not it is absolutely necessary for you to live so close to your mother-in-law, and if your husband's business does not require it, you might solve the problem by moving far enough away, so that your mother-in-law cannot impose on you. Even though you might have to keep in long-range touch with her, and make some arrangement for someone nearby to keep an eye on her, it would be worth it to get rid of the day-to-day nuisance of such an imposition.

If it is impossible for you to move away, then all I can say for you to do is to take a firm stand and tell your mother-in-law that while you are willing to lend her a hand occasionally, when she really needs it, you have your own life to live, and that you haven't sufficient time or energy to run two households. If the man you are married to is the right kind of husband, he will back you up.

Her mother measures friendship by money standard

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For about a year, I was going steady with a girl, and everything was fine until she dated another boy, who was going to college and was well off. When her mother found that the other fellow had a lot of money, she tried to stop her daughter from going out with me, so she would go out with the college student. I know this girl loves me as much as I love her, but every time I ask her for a date her mother argues with her and she refuses to let her go out with me.

How can I make this girl's mother realize that I love her daughter and want to go out with her, and also make her realize that money can't buy happiness? We are both 18 years old.—A. H.

Dear A.H.

It is certainlty too bad that your girl's mother has undertaken to run her daughter's life for her in regard to the boys she goes out with, and on the basis of the money standard alone, at that. I think, though, that perhaps it is up to you and the girl to handle the situation.

That is, it seems to me that if your girl knows her own mind, she should stand up for her friendship with you. Are you quite certain she is not herself influenced by the money the other boy has, and that she is not just giving her mother as an excuse for preferring to go out with him?

If you are quite certain it is only the mother who is making the trouble between you, then you had better go to work on her yourself in a diplomatic way. Don't try to get a date with your girl by asking her, and then having her ask her mother. Go direct to the mother yourself and ask her if she will permit her daughter to go out with you on some specific day you name. It hardly seems as though she would have the nerve to refuse. Your best bet is to make yourself just as agreeable and attentive to the mother as you can, and see if charm can't be made to win out over money.

Readers' Friday Column

By Mary Moore

QUESTION:

The recipe you published the other day for canned berries stated: 1 cup sugar to 1 1-2 to 2 cups water. . . would you please tell me just what quantity of berries that would be for. . . 1 qt? Also would like to know about the quantity of syrup involved in canning cherries. I really study your recipes like so many others. —S. D.

ANSWER:

SYRUP QUANTITIES

Raspberries—For cold pack method knock raspberries down into jar by rapping base of jar on wooden table or board. Then you will need approximately 1 1-2 cups syrup made in proportion of 1 cup sugar to each 2 cups of water (the ratio I use).

Cherries—Same as raspberries.

Strawberries, gooseberries, rhubarb need approximately same syrup quantities as raspberries but gooseberries and rhubarb require sweeter syrup for most folks—but use your own judgment about this—1 to 1 1-2 cups water to each 1 cup of sugar, is usual.

QUESTION:

I am a woman of 63 years and sorry to say I'm overweight, and trying to lost some weight, I am going by the chart but sorry to say I lost only 5 lbs. in two weeks. I'm 5 ft. 4 in. tall, weight 160 lbs. What should I weigh? Would you mind sending the calorie chart. I'm always hungry and started smoking. Does that help to reduce.—Mrs. E. B.

ANSWER:

Listen, my friend, you've done wonderfully! Five lbs. in two weeks is almost too fast to reduce at your age; two lbs. per week would be better. I know there is a lot of controversy over smoking and losing weight, but it's fewer calories that reduces calories that reduces weight—not picking up another insidious habit. Drop that while you can. I think your doctor would tell you that about 125 lbs. would be the ideal weight for your height. If you achieve 125 lbs. in 4 months—and maintain that reduced weight—you will be doing well, and what's more will feel well—and that "always hungry" feeling will disappear. When your hunger gets too unmanageable drink tomato juice with lemon in it, and nibble on a rye wafer.

I have sent you the chart. I have sent out nearly a thousand of these, so if good intentions mean anything there should be some lovely stream-lined figures to admire.

QUESTION:

A short time ago wou had a recipe in the column for jam made without sugar. I have either lost it or forgot to cut it out of the paper. . . .red currants, black currants, cherries or any fruit, I will be so grateful. I love your column very much, thanking you —Mrs. John E. D.

ANSWER:

By now you will have seen the recipes for making sugarless black currant, red currant and peach jam which appeared in this column two weeks ago. I have mailed you copies of them. Following is which is too late for this year's pack but those who are diabetic or have diabetic patients to cook for should clip it and file it for reference next year. This is a delicious jam—even the reducers are using it.

One quart dark, sweet ripe cherries, 2 tablespoons glycerin, 2 teaspoons pectin crystals, 2 1-2 grain saccharin tablets or 4 sucaryl tablets (amount of sweetener depends on your taste). (Saccharin tablets, if used, should be dissolved in 1 teaspoon boiled but slightly cooled water.) Wash cherries well and pit them and mash them in saucepan. Simmer over low heat, to boil off excess juice, for about 20 minutes, then add all remaining ingredients except sweetener. Boil 3 minutes, stirring, then add sweetener, stir until dissolved and mixed, remove from heat and pour into small sterile jars and seal with new very hot paraffin, adding a second coating when cold. I advise refrigeration for this and all sugarless jams.

Note—Write to Mary Moore if you have cooking, canning or pickling problems. If you want return mail enclose stamped self-addressed envelope. Address Mary Moore, in care of this newspaper.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Bride may wear her grandmother's wedding gown. . .but only if it is becoming.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell us if a bride ever "correctly" wears her grandmother's wedding gown without having it made over to the current style. The bride in question and her mother are very eager to do this as the wedding gown in question is a very beautiful one but of the style of the 1890's, with a high neck, very, very full upper sleeves, tight bodice, and a long train. It is of beautiful satin, unusually heavy. (I know that heirloom veils are often worn. The lace for this gown and veil is also perfectly preserved.) One member of the bride's family, however, is outraged at the idea, and insists that such a thing is never properly done. Please tell me what the "real fact" is.—M. N.

The "real fact" is that it is entirely correct for a bride to year the wedding gown, or gown-and-veil, belonging to her grandmother. . . and this is quite often done. (Sometimes the treasured gown may have belonged to the bride's great-grandmother, or to the bride's mother, or to some other lovely lady in the bride's family who may have loaned it to several brides in the family.) When a bride wears such a handsome and picturesque gown as you describe, the effect can be most beautiful, appealing. But—and this is a most important but —the effect is right only if the gown is becoming to the bride, and only if it fits her or can be made to fit her. If the gown is overwhelming, handsome, it may "swamp" the bride. . . particularly in comparison with the simple becoming dresses of her attendants. It takes "a lot of taste" to be sure about choosing to wear this tradition-gown. But when becoming, the effect can be really wonderful.

Making a gesture of appreciation to their co-hosts

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I spent our 3-weeks vacation at a shore resort where there were quite a few people we knew well, and some not so well. We were invited to a dance given at the Country Club by three couples, Mr. and Mrs. A.; Mr. and Mrs. B., and Mr. and Mrs. C. Mr. and Mrs. A. are intimate friends of ours here where we live. The other two couples also live here, but we had never met them until then. Now are we "specially indebted" to all three couples, or may we invite our friends, Mr. and Mrs. A., alone, as formerly, or with our other friends?—S. D.

Actually you could consider that you are indebted only to Mr. and Mrs. A., since it was through them you were invited to the dance. But it would be the way-of-courtesy. . .and I do hope you will find it convenient and pleasant to take this way. . .for you to invite the other two couples who were really co-hosts to you and your husband, to some occasion soon in your own home. It would be pleasant gesture of appreciation to them for their part in your entertainment.

Bride's mother is escorted up the aisle just before the processional

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A very dear friend of mine, a professional singer, is to sing a solo at my wedding. Should my mother go up the aisle with the usher before the soloist has sung or afterward, just before the processional is about to enter?—Bride-to-be.

Your mother is escorted up the aisle immediately before the processional.

Sparrows Electrocuted

The Frankford hydro repair crew made two trips Tuesday and Sunday to "Sunrise Lodge" on the Campbellford Road, where they repaired a broken transformer. The hydro was off three hours each day. Sparrows were picking at the wires and each time one put its beak in the wrong place it was electrocuted. We understand this is common in the summer months and the repair truck is called out frequently.

Seats Adjusted

On Monday evening, President Harry Rollins, of the Belleville Fair, asked for any criticisms that would improve the exhibition. He did not expect to have such a storm of criticism as that which followed. But he was soon busy on the scene and had everything going smoothly. The directors had an overflow crowd to cope with and more bleacher seats had to be set up. This is where they erred; the seats were set out in the field blocking the view of hundreds of patrons and very few people viewed the dog act. However, "all's well that ends well," and soon improvised seats were arranged differently to the satisfaction of all.

Serenaded Corpse of Sweetheart Death Claims Eccentric Lover

ZEPHYR HILLS, Fla. (AP) — Dr. Karl Tanzler von Cosel, 83, who so loved a woman that he kept her body for eight years and serenaded her nightly with organ music, is dead.

The circumstances of his own passing were as dismal as his life with the corpse of beautiful Elena Mesa. His decomposing body was found in his house. Police said he had been dead three weeks.

The coroner said death resulted from natural causes for the eccentric x-ray technician.

Body In Shack

Von Cosel received international publicity in 1940, when the body of Miss Mesa was found in the tumbledown shack where he lived in Key West.

While he was working in a hospital he met and fell in love with the 19-year-old girl who died of tuberculosis. He obtained permission from her family to build a vault for her in the city cemetery.

Eight years later, deputies found the girl's body in a canopied bed. It was dressed in a filmy negligee and adorned with jewels and there were fresh flowers in her hair. Von Cosel had a closet full of bridal finery in which he dressed his lost love.

Charged But Released

He was charged with disturbing a grave and vandalism but the charges later were dismissed.

Von Cosel told officers he had taken the girl's body from the tomb. He claimed that she sometimes came to life and talked with him.

He built an organ to serenade her and said he preserved her with chemicals he mixed in a vat.

The present resting place of Miss Mesa never was disclosed by the family. All members of her immediate family have since died of tuberculosis.

Canadian Soldier Receives Year For Shooting

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA (Reuters)—A Canadian court martial Thursday sentenced Pte. Ken Carleton of Saint John, N.B., to one year's detention for improperly discharging a weapon near a house in the village of Shin San Ry and for the theft of a bottle of whisky.

Carleton originally was charged with murdering an aged Korean woman but charges against him were reduced following the manslaughter conviction of Pte. Leo Mowers of Sillery, Que., in the same case. Mowers was sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

The charges grew out of an incident at the village May 18 when a Korean woman was shot fatally through the head.

Mowers was accused of firing a shot through a door, killing the woman as she sat by a window. Carleton was charged as an accomplice.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

Tomorrow night the Glen Roy Juniors will start their quest for a provincial Junior A softball championship. The Glens are one of the strongest softball squads developed in this city in the last 10 years including all classifications and not excluding the Columbian Squires who were Ontario Junior A champions in 1945. They established a remarkable record this year in copping the league pennant. In the regular season they tied with CNR Diesels with a 16-2 record suffering their only two losses to the Diesels by scores of 7-6 in 10 innings, and 4-3 in regulation time. However, they reversed these losses with two straight wins in a best-of-three playoff for the pennant.

* * *

Their worst defeat off the season was a 7-1 setback in Kingston at the hands of the Kingston Alcans despite the fact that Bob Hunter hurled five hit ball. They evened their exhibition series with the Alcans, however, by beating them here 5-4 last Saturday night. In post season exhibition games they have defeated Bloomfield Sun-Joys 10-3 in Picton and 22-2 here. They demolished the Wilson Lumber Kings in Tweed 20-7 and last evening handed the Madoc Juniors a 9-3 reverse in Tweed.

* * *

The team is big, fast and strong and there is a solid bench to back up the regulars. They are a powerful team at bat, with a team batting average of .268 over the season. But their main strength is defensive. They have a nearly airtight infield with every regular and replacement possessing amazingly powerful throwing arms. The outfield is fast and strong. While their outfield cannot match the offensive power of the Diesels' outer gardeners—Vern and Leo Goyer and Don Adams—they are as good as any junior squad in the province is likely to boast, and much better than most.

The Glens are blessed, too, with two excellent pitchers. righthander Bob Hunter, and lefty Bob Green.

Their opponents tomorrow evening at the Alemite Field at 6.00 p. m. will be Brockville Armstrong Plymouths, who finished third in the Brockville Senior City League this summer with a record of 7-4-1. They were one game out of second place and two games out of first. The Plymouths, however, started the season slowly and have been coming along strongly in recent weeks. They have three pitchers, and according to reports from sports writers in Brockville are the strongest team ever to represent that city in Junior A competition.

Tomorrow night's tilt shapes up as a dandy. but we will have to go along with the Glen Roy Juniors until we see some other club that can match their all-round balance and strength. For our money the Glens are going to take a powerful lot of beating before they are knocked out of the provincial playdowns, if they are knocked off.

Wrestling fans of tender sensibilities are being advised that tonight's battle royal between Yukon Eric, the Alaska lumberjack and Lord Athol Layton, the villainous British dandy, will be no cup of tea. Indeed, it won't be cricket either, because Yukon has decided to end the Layton machinations once and for all. And the Yuke is confident that with no time limit hindering the proceedings, he will smash down Layton to a fare-thee-well. The largest crowd of the season witnessed last week's stalemate between these two powerful grapplers, but an even bigger crowd is expected for the donnybrook this week. Lord Layton, who cowers like the Rock of Gibraltar at Yukon's pronouncements, is certain that his famed judo chop will finish off Yukon as it has all his other opponents this year. Yukon just snorts at this (and with a 56 inch chest a snort from Yukon Eric has all the delicate qualities of a hurricane) and states that his back-breaker is just the hold for Layton. The fans earnestly hope so.

Frank Grandame, administrative head of the Belleville Minor Baseball Association, has been wondering out loud whether the Belleville Association might not be of record size in eastern Ontario. He informs us that there are 16 teams playing in four groupings, with 277 boys active. There are six pee wee teams, four bantam teams, four midget squads, and two juvenile squads. There will be a representative from each division entered in the OBA playdowns too. In fact, Schwab's Little Giants, the pee wee entry, already has moved into the second round with a two straight series over Kingston Cardinals.

The seventh annual Bay of Quinte District Amateur Golf Tournament gets underway tomorrow morning at the Bay of Quinte Club links, with more than 100 golfers from points as far away as Hamilton and Ottawa expected to tee off. The competition is 18 holes medal play in three divisions, with more than $400 worth of prizes to be distributed to the top two golfers in each division. Post entries will be accepted until 3.00 p. m. tomorrow afernoon. The winner receives The City of Belleville Trophy won the last 2 years by T. A. Carruthers. Prizes are on display in the Bond Clothes window on Front Street.

The CNR Diesels-Point Anne Cementmen series winds up tonight at 6.45 at the Alemite Field. The Diesels lost the first two games of the series but have come back to take the last two contests, and tonight's game is the payoff. The winner advances into the OASA intermediate A series while the loser has had it for another year. The game should be a real battle. Following the evening game the Peterborough Marines and the Northern Electric ladies team will play the second game of their playoff series under the lights..

Former National Leaguer, Johnny Schmitz, Wins First Start Against Washington 7-2

By RALPH RODEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Looking for the fountain of youth? Try Yankee Stadium.

A number of former National Leaguers have found the stadium to be just what the doctor ordered. Supposedly washed up, the Yanks' pickups from the ational have not only prolonged their days but have also jacked up their bank accounts.

Johnny Schmitz is the latest senior-circuit discard to find life with Casey Stengel extremely pleasant.

Stengel gave Schmitz his first start in the "new land" yesterday. The one-time Chicago Cubs and Brooklyn left-hander responded with a 7-2 victory over Washington.

Boosts Margin

The victory boosted the Yanks' margin over second-place Cleveland Indians to three games. The Indians and St. Louis Browns were idle.

Boston Red Sox pulled to within 4½ games of the Yanks by sweeping a doubleheader from Philadelphia Athletics, 5-4, in 13 innings, and 4-2. Chicago White Sox downed Detroit 2-0 in 10 innings in the other American League game.

In the National League, second-place New York Giants cut Brooklyn's lead to eight games by nipping the Dodgers 4-3. In other games, Philadelphia Phils defeated Boston Braves 5-3, Cincinnati whipped Chicago 4-1, and Pittsburgh conquered St. Louis Cardinals 5-3 in 10 innings.

One A Year

Schmitz checked the Senators on six hits. He is the fourth National-leaguer in as many years to join the bombers in a pennant drive. Johnny Mize was obtained from the New York Giants in time to help the Yanks win the 1949 flag. Johnny Hopp, now with Detroit, was obtained from Pittsburgh in 1950 and Johnny Sain from Boston last year.

Effective relief pitching by Maury McDermott and Ellis Kinder helped the Red Sox take two from the As. McDermott allowed only four hits in 9 2-3 innings in winning the opener. Kinder saved the nightcap for Willard Nixon, halting a rally in the eighth that threatened to wipe out a Boston lead.

Saves Win For Maglie

Al Corwin turned in a fine relief job to enable the Giants to shade the Dodgers. Corwin allowed only two hits in the last four innings to protect Sal Maglie's 12th victory. Maglie making his first appearance since July 16 when he injured his back in a game against St. Louis, blanked the Dodgers until the sixth, when he aggravated the injury.

Ralph Kiner blasted his 23rd and 24th homers to lead the Pirates to victory over the Cards.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—At infrequent intervals, Col. Walter (Cappy) Wells, publicity director for the Little League, takes a head count of his rabbit reserve, and the resulting statistics never fail to bring his large and expressive eyebrows into violent animation.

To Cappy, the growth of his small fry baseball circuit during the past few years is, in all truth, a source of genuine wonder. Sometimes the retired warrier, who gained renown as West Point's prewar dispenser of hospitality, wears the faintly troubled look of a man who has just won an elephant in a raffle.

Little World Series

Recently Cappy was extending a personal invitation to attend the annual four-day "Little World Series" at Williamsport, Pa., Aug. 26-29, when the cream of the capsule campaigners will gather from all over to fight it out tooth and claw.

Did he, we inquired, intend to charter an airplane for the trip?

"An airplane?" Cappy snorted. "Look," he said, "this isn't any two-bit operation. We're chartering three planes from here. That's what I've been trying to tell you, my friend. This thing is big."

Pausing only to give us a reproving glare and to draw a folded sheet from an inner pocket, the advance man for a million kiddies, more or less, continued impatiently.

Teams In Canada

"Maybe you didn't even know," he accused, "that the Little League is now international. Teams from Alaska, Canada and the Panama Canal Zone are in the country now, engaging in our regional play-offs for the right to go to Williamsport.

"Did you know," Cappy asked, "that something like 150,000 kids 12 years old and under played ball this summer in Little Leagues in 44 states, and that they probably played to more than 20 million spectators?

"Almost without a doubt, this has been the fastest growing sports program in the history of the country. In 1948 there were only 94 Little Leagues. In 1949 there were 197; in 1950 there were 306; in 1951 the figure was 776. And right now there are 1,788 Little Leagues and a total of 7,562 teams."

"COOL CONTROL"
HINTS ON BATTING

1 Watch the ball all the way from the pitcher's hand. Hold bat securely but not too tightly. Swing in a flat arc, bat parallel to ground. Timing and control counts more than force. Shift or slide your front foot instead of lifting it when hitting.

2 Keep your arms and elbows lifted out and away from your body. Always keep your balance: Don't overstride. Always be ready to swing; don't let bat rest limply on shoulder. Start swing early and meet ball in front of your body.

3 Do not try to outguess the pitcher; relax and keep your eye on the ball always. Keep wrists cocked when holding bat and be sure your swing follows through. Do not reach for bad balls — reaching destroys your balance and control.

Yes, it's control that counts, in baseball as in every sport — control which brings the extraordinary quality that sets one performer above the other. In the ability to approach things coolly, to control every move and moment, lies the answer to better results.

This is one of a series designed to increase the pleasure of Canadians who participate in sports.

Marlene Stewart, Mary Gay Win Places in Semi-Finals And Will Meet U.S. Stars

EDMONTON (CP)—The Canadian women's open golf championship came down to a pair of international semi-finals today, leaving an 18-year-old girl two steps away from a feat untouched before in Canadian golf.

Little Marlene Stewart of the Lookout Point Club at Fonthill, Ont., needs two victories to win her second straight open title and become the first to win the Canadian open and close twice in a row.

The serious little champion smashed her way through the quarter-finals yesterday with a 3 and 1 victory over Polly Martin of St. Clairsville, O. Today she meets probably her toughest opposition of the tournament.

Meets Edean Anderson

Edean Anderson of Helena, Mont., six-times Montana state champion and former holder of the Pacific Northwest crown, knocked off Babs Davies of Vancouver 4 and 3 yesterday to enter the semi-finals against Miss Stewart.

Mary Gay, 20-year-old Ontario champion from Kitchener, and Grace Lenczyk of Hartford, Conn., clash in the second semi-final.

Miss Gay was carried to the 18th hole yesterday by Mrs. J. H. Todd of Victoria before she won up. The 4-year-old Connecticut girl dropped a 30-foot putt on the 18th green to win 2 and 1 over Mrs. Maurice Glick of Baltimore, Md.

Easy Winner

Miss Anderson has been an easy winner in all three of her matches so far. She fired a 78 to Miss Stewart's 80 in the medal-play qualifying round to pose as top threat to the champion.

In the quarter-finals, the 22-year-old Montana girl had little difficulty. She played steady golf to go two up over Miss Davies at the third and three up at the turn.

Miss Stewart was carried to the 17th, though she was never behind. Miss Martin was three down at the 11th and couldn't come back.

The young champion scored her third and fourth deuces on today's round. She sunk a 10-foot putt on the 195-yard, par-three 7th for a birdie and dropped a 15-footer for her third birdie on the 195-yard 17th.

Threatened Near End

Miss Lenczyk, 1947 and 1948 open winner and runner-up last year, led from the fourth but Mrs Glick threatened near the end.

Mrs. Glick's tee shot was six feet from the pin on the 17th when Grace drove to a trap. A 30-foot parred it for Miss Lenczyk and Mrs. Glick missed her first putt by inches.

Miss Gay was pressed to the end by Mrs. Todd, though the Ontario player was never behind. Mrs. Todd won the 16th to cut Miss Gay's lead to one. The 17th was halved and Miss Gay birdied the par-five 18th to win going away.

MORE DEFENCE CONTRACTS

OTTAWA (CP)—Contracts for another $3,208,835 in defence orders were awarded in the latter half of July, the Defence Production Department announced yesterday.

Largest single order is for $1,800,000 worth of airplane propellors placed with Canadian Car and Foundry Limited, Montreal.

Canadian Arsenals Limited of Ottawa will turn out $228,906 worth of ammunition.

Bob Cunningham Steals Show At Millar Open

TORONTO (CP)—Bob Cunningham, Jr., who gave up football this year to devote all his time to golf, stole the show yesterday on the opening day of the Millar golf tournament for the Ontario professional championship.

The former halfback of Montreal Alouettes in the Big Four football union shot a six-under-par 66 to lead the qualifying round. And in the first stage of match play he scored a one-up victory over Dick Borthwick of Hamilton Ancaster, a former Millar champion.

Assistant pro at Toronto St. George's where his father is club professional, the 24-year-old Cunningham downed Borthwick on the 18th with a par four while the Hamilton player three-putted.

The draw now pits Cunningham against another of Canada's better golf prospects, Al Balding, assistant pro at the host Islington club. Balding, holder of the Quebec open crown, bested Merv Costello of Toronto Mississauga, 4 and 2, in the opening match-play round, after a qualifying score of 72.

One of two veteran "name" players will be eliminated today. Four-time winner Bob Gray, Toronto Scarboro, meets Gordie Brydson, Toronto Mississauga. Gray won handily yesterday with a 6 and 5 victory over Joe Noble of Toronto Thornhill. Brydson defeated George Clifton, Niagara-on-the-Lake, 3 and 2.

Defending champ Normie Himes of Kitchener Westmount had a battle to eliminate Paul Penna, Fort Erie Cherry Hill. Himes shot a 75 in the morning to barely qualify. Then in his game with Penna, he had to go to the 19th before winning. He had evened the match on the 17th.

Bill Kerr of Montreal Beaconsfield, a four-time winner of the trophy, went down to a surprise defeat to Murry Tucker of London Sunningdale, one-up.

Willie Lamb of Toronto Lambton shot a hole in one on the 165-yard sixth hole in his match with Bob Cunningham, Sr. Lamb won and moved into the second round.

First round match results included:

Gil Gardiner, Sault Ste. Marie, defeated Tom Williams, Toronto, 2 up.

Jack Littler, Toronto Oakdale, defeated Hal Butler, Oshawa, 2 and 1.

Stan Horne, Montreal Islesmere, defeated Lionel Ross, Cobourg, 6 and 4.

Norman Himes, Kitchener, defeated Paul Penna, Fort Erie Cherry Hill, at 19th hole.

Bob Burns, Fort Erie Cherry Hill, defeated Bob Lamb, Toronto Summit, at 19th.

Qualifying round scores included:
Ben Norris, Timmins, 36-40—76
Bob Burns, Fort Erie, 33-36—69
Alf Hill, Peterborough, 37-39—76
Normie Himes, Kitchener Westmount, 37-38—75
George Clifton, Niagara-on-the-Lake, 36-38—74
Hal Butler, Oshawa, 36-36—72
Lloyd Tucker, Kitchener, 40-36—76
Gil Gardiner, Sault Ste. Marie, 34-39—73
Lionel Ross, Cobourg, 37-38—75

London Majors Still Smarting Over Ruling

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

London Majors, still smarting under the recent senior Intercounty Baseball League decision which stripped them of five victories and killed their chances of a playoff berth, last night whipped Brantford Red Sox 4-0.

The win moved the Majors into a tie with St. Thomas Elgins for fifth place, seven games out of fourth place, the last playoff spot.

Galt Terriers, holding that prized fourth place, downed Waterloo Tigers, last team in the seven-club league, 4-3.

Gives Four Hits

Cam Church gave the Red Sox just four hits at London. Brantford starter Billy Gibbs was touched for seven hits, including four for four runs in a sixth-inning explosion.

London catcher Gord McMackon, the Majors' most dangerous weapon lately, cracked out a triple and a single in three trips. Brantford centrefielder Gerry Wilson with two for two turned in the best performance amongst the losers.

Evon Still Leads

London leftfielder Russ Evon continues to lead the league in hitting, with an average of .378 in league figures released today and including games played Monday night. Mike Pontarelli of Galt is second with 328 and Don Butler of St. Thomas third with .318.

Evon also has batted in most runs, 40, nine more than Eudie Napier of Brantford.

Chuck Fedoras of Kitchener is top pitcher with a record of 11 wins and two losses.

Garver Traded For Vic Wertz Of Detroit Tigers

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Bill Veeck's house-cleaning of his St. Louis Browns finally reached hurler Ned Garver, sending the 20-game winner of last year to Detroit Tigers for outfielder Vic Wertz in an eight-man waiver shift.

Veeck had a difficult decision to make in the deal which was completed yesterday.

Garver was the only Brownie bright spot when the club finished last in the American League last year. But this season he has won only seven and lost 10.

Others transferred in the deal were outfielder Jim Delsing and relief hurler Dave Madison from St. Louis to Detroit. Earlier in the week, but part of the same package, Pitchers Marlin Stuart and Dick Littlefield and outfielder Don Lenhardt moved to St. Louis from Detroit, and Detroit picked up pitcher Bud Black from the Browns' farm in San Antonio.

The shifts had to be for the $10,000 waiver price since trading between teams ends by league rule June 15. Since the clubs involved are at the bottom of the standings, St. Louis seventh, Detroit eighth, they have first crack at anyone offered on waivers.

U.S. Has Fingernail Grip On Americas Cup, Two Golfers Beat Canada and Mexico

SEATTLE (AP) — The United States carries a fingernail grip on the Americas Cup today into the second and final day of action against the cream of Canadian and Mexican golf.

Harvie Ward of Tarboro, N.C., teamed with Ken Venturi of San Francisco and Sam Urzetta of East Rochester, N.J., with Joe Gagliardi of Larchmont, N.Y., to stack up four points yesterday.

Canada collected three points and Mexico two as a pair from each country opposed two others in three sixsome matches. Nick Weslock of Windsor and Phil Farley of Toronto were the Canadian winners. Each duo played a single ball, alternating on shots.

Singles Today

Today the teams were matched in singles, each man playing two others over the 36-hole route on the Seattle golf club's 6,632 yards.

For a time Thursday it looked as though the U.S. was on the way to a clean sweep. Ward and Venturi went only 26 holes before they closed out both their opposing pairs. Urzetta and Gagliardi brought home another two points after 32 holes of play.

Then Frank Stranahan of Toledo and playing-captain Charlie Coe of Oklahoma City hit the trouble trail. Going into the 35th hole 1 up over both Canada and Mexico, Coe pushed his long drive into the rough. They found a ball and Stranahan hit it—but it was a pellet lost by some earlier player and the mistake cost them the hole.

Out of Bounds

With things even all around—Mexico and Canada also were deadlocked—Stranahan blistered his drive out of bounds on the 36th. Coe drove another out of bounds and the U.S. pair had four penalty strokes before it got off the tee. It conceded before it reached putting range.

Canadian champ Walt McElroy of Vancouver and Gerry Kesselring of Kitchener, were 11-and-10 victims of the Ward-Venturi combination, but squeezed out a victory over the Mexican pair of Reynaldo Avila and Fernando Gonzalez in the day's longest match. It went 39 holes.

This point and the one taken by Weslock and Farley was raised to three when Percy Clogg of Vancouver and Pete Kelly of Fredericton earned a 1-up decision for Canada against the Mexican duo of Carlos Belmont and Alejandro Cumming.

Word from the Canadian camp indicated former Dominion champion Bill Mawhinney would remain on the sidelines, favoring a lame back.

Pairings for Today:
McElroy, Morris and Stranahan.
Kesselring, Gonzalez and Ward.
Mawhinney, Avila and Coe.
Weslock, Cumming and Campbell or Maxwell.
Farley, Belmont and Venturi.
Clogg, Clifford and Urzetta.

Motors Tie Series With 7-6 Victory In 11 Innings

By JACK BRETT

Belleville Motor Car tied up the "AA" playoffs last night at the Alemite Field as they defeated Northern Electric in two innings of over time 7-6. The teams are now tied two games apiece.

It was "Shorty" Miller's single in the bottom half of the 11th frame that counted the winning run. With one man out, Miller popped a fly. The fielders failed to decide who was to catch it and the ball fell to the ground without an attempt to catch it. Cousins doubled pushing Miller to third. Burley was walked and Powers singled to drive in Miller with the winning run.

At the end of the seventh, B.M.C. was leading 6-2. In the eighth, Mulvihill aboard third on a triple started off a torrid inning for the Electrics as he scored on DeRushie's double. Bone doubled to drive in DeRushie and York doubled to bring in Bone. York crossed the plate on a sacrifice hit to tie up the game 6-6 at the end of the eighth.

B.M.C. led the scoring up until the eighth. In the first frame an error and a double scored as the fourth man to bat doubled for an early 2-0 lead.

Bone made it 2-1 as his single was good when Young doubled. Miller gained first on a fielder's choice in the third, took second on a passed ball and scored on a two base error for the 3-1 score.

Miller's triple in the fifth made it 4-1 as he was driven in on Cousins' single.

Jones for the Electrics scored the second run as he doubled and scored on DeRushie's double.

Garvin doubled in the seventh for the Motor Men, went to third on a fielder's error and scored on a fly ball. Burley made it 6-2 as he romped all the way round on a four base error to centrefield.

Holmes started for Northern to strike out none, walk three and give seven hits for six runs. Day relieved him in the seventh and walked five, struck out three and gave up two hits for one run. Reid hurled for the winners until the eighth, giving two walks and striking out one and allowing six runs off 11 hits. Donnely finished walking two, striking out two and allowing three hits for no runs.

Lineups:

Northern Electric: Hatfield, 3b; Jones, 1b; Mulvihill, ss; DeRushie, lf; Bone, c; York, rf; Young, 2b; Barrett, cf Piperni, cf; Holmes, p; Day p.

Toronto Leafs Solidify Fourth Place Standing

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Montreal Royals shook a three-game losing streak last night, defeating Rochester Red Wings 3-2 and widened their first-place margin in the International League to 9½ games.

Heading for another pennant, Montreal won on the six-hit pitching of Eddie Roebuck, who notched his 11th victory against seven defeats.

Meanwhile Springfield Cubs went 11 innings before beating the second place Syracuse Chiefs 5-4. The winning rally was set up by pitcher Tony Jacobs, who singled after Ted Lot walked in the bottom of the 11th. Chris Kitsos singled to drive Lotz in with the winning run. Red McQuillen's two hits drove in the other four Springfield runs.

Toronto kept up its hopes of getting in the playoffs by defeating Ottawa Athletics 8-2 and solidifying its fourth-place standing. Ed Stevens got three hits for Toronto, one a three-run homer in the fifth. Mike Goliat hit two doubles for the winners and batted in two runs.

Buffalo gained in its private battle with Baltimore for fifth place. The Bisons started early and kept up the scoring to down Baltimore 8-5. This left Buffalo one-half game behind the Orioles.

Children Cause Trouble But Playing Again

SAN SEVERO, Italy (Reuters)—Roberto Ugliola, 10, punched Pino Miglio, 10, on the nose. Pino punched him back.

Each went and told his father.

Papas Ugliola and Miglio both grabbed knives, met in the village squares and stabbed each other.

Today they were in adjoining hospital beds.

But Roberto and Pino were out playing again, not much the worse for wear.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Cary Middlecoff, defending champion, plastered the Milburn country club course for a five-under-par 67 yesterday to take the first round lead in the $15,000 Kansas City open golf tournament.

The Memphis dentist, last of the hot shots to finish, was one stroke better than Fred Hawkins, El Paso, Tex.; Dave Douglas, Newark, Del.; Skee Riegel, Tulsa, Okla., and Jerry Barber, Pasadena, Calif., who came in with 68.

Julius Boros, open champion, finished with a 76. He described his performance as a "natural let-down" after taking the big prize.

HAMILTON (CP)—Ralph Toohy and Johnny Harper, outside wings with Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four football union last season, announced yesterday through their counsel, J.F. Reesor, they will, if necessary, take court action to obtain their release from the Montreal Club.

Since their transfers to Hamilton Tiger-Cats earlier this season, Toohy and Harper have asked and been refused their freedom by Lew Hayman, Montreal manager.

In Montreal, Hayman said: "Harper and Toohy are professional football players. They are being treated on that basis."

HAMILTON (CP)—Chuck Lumsden, speedy halfback with Winnipeg Blue Bombers, injured Wednesday night during an exhibition game with Hamilton Tiger-Cats, has a broken leg.

Coach George Trafton of Winnipeg, discussing the game today, described the officials as "terrible." Winnipeg won 24-17.

Trafton said they allowed Hamilton players to "pile on, clip and hold."

Goyer, Kelleher, Homer As Redmen Whip Monarchs 8-5 To Consolidate 2nd Place

KINGSTON — Taking kindly to the offerings of Wally Stinson in the first and third innings the Belleville Redmen scored five and three runs respectively if not respectfully — and eventually vanquished the Monarchs by 8 to 5 in a COBL fixture staged before a small gathering in Megaffin Memorial Stadium.

Acting in relief Tommy Ryder and Billy Richards collaborated in pitching shutout ball through the last six and two third innings but labored in a hopeless cause.

According to the latest version of the standings the Peterborough Petes have won 11 and lost 9 games; the Redmen have broken even in 20 starts and the Monarchs trail the field with 8 victories and 10 defeats.

A shaky start spelled "curtains" for the men of Levandoski last night. Russ Soules leading off in the opening frame drew a walk. "Mouse" Bush flied out to centre field. "Tony" Pettitt, Kingston's catching gift to Belleville singled to centrefield and when Stinson hurled the ball down the groove big Vernon Goyer drove it high and far over the left field fence.

An error by Jerry McCormick gave Dick Fitzpatrick a life and an extra base. Mac Carson grounded out and Fitzpatrick pulled up at third. Don Semark reached the runway and Fitzpatrick scored when White erred. Al Kelleher, erstwhile Kingston Pony, singled to left garden and when Eric Rank fumbled the ball Semark dashed home.

Bob Bunton went down swinging and the assault was broken.

With two out in the second session an error by Fitzpatrick enabled Clark Carnegie to reach first base. Carnegie promptly pilfered the second sack and scored when Stinson doubled into deep centre field. The side was retired when Rank missed a third strike.

Fitzpatrick leading off the 3rd. frame, grounded out but Carson strolled and Semark singled. Carson tallied on an error by Eddie Deans, a local newcomer, and Kelleher hit over the left field barrier driving in Semark ahead of him. Ryder rushed to the relief of the Monarchs and struck out Bunton and Soules in succession.

A single by Carnegie and a double by Rank produced a run in the fourth, while successive walks to Lorne Ferguson and Joe Levandoski, two wild pitches, and Dean's forcce out of Levandoski, manufactured another tally in the fifth. The rally, however, was marred when Levandoski was injured while sliding into second. He was unable to continue and was replaced by Eric Bradley.

A walk to Ferguson with one out in the seventh, Dean's force out of Bradley at second and successive free tickets to Carnegie and McCormick enabled Ferguson to notch the final tally.

Art Wright, who replaced Bob Bunton on the Belleville hilltop after a walk to Carnegie had loaded the sacks, handed a pass to McCormick but then immediately applied the brakes and held the locals at his mercy. In the ninth Bradley, first man up, strolled but Dean struck out for the third time and Carnegie hit into a double play to end the game.

Kelleher paced the Belleville attack with two singles and a homer, but Goyer did more damage to the local cause when he clouted that three run four bagger in the opening frame. It was the big fellow's lone safety in five appearances and the only time he managed to drive the ball beyond the infield. Eric Rank with a double and a triple was the Monarch's attacking ace. None of the others got more than one safety.

Races Decided In Straight Heats At Local Fair

Straight heat victories were recorded in the two races which closed the horse racing at the Belleville fair on Thursday afternoon. One of the horses winning, Frank Brook, was a repeater and he is the best young pacer to show his wares around these parts in quite some time. The horse is owned by W. H. Patterson of Perth and capably handled by Barney Davies of Westport.

Beth Hanover, driven by Charlie Gallogy of Kingston tried this pacer every heat but could only lead him to the three-quarter pole, when Frank Brook invariably took over and in the last two heats simply jogged to the wire to head the Kingston horse. In the Free-For-All Harry Ingles led with his ace, Supremus and made every post a winning one. He had two others in the field but Peter Aubry, one of the good pacers a few years back, could not match strides with the winner. Ruth Harvester from Trenton was easily second every heat.

Mr. Ingles was also $15 richer after the races due to Fred Rawson offering $10 for the fastest heat of the meet and president Harry Rollins giving $5 for the fastest heat of the day. Ingles won both prizes in the first heat of the Free-For-All, when Supremus stepped a mile in 2.12 4/5 which is good time over the track considering it is not used only once a year. It was in good shape for the races, due to a lot of hard work put on it by the horse committee.

AT THE BELLE

"The Wild North" M. G. M. Thrill Packed Adventure in Gorgeous Color

Stewart Granger, who fought the heat and dangers of the African veldt in the memorable "King Solomon's Mines", fights another thrilling battle against man, beast and nature in the subzero temperatures and frozen wastes of "The Wild North" M.G.M.'s spell-binding adventure drama, now on view at the Belle Theatre, with continuous showings on Saturday from 1.00 p.m.

The picture, first to be photographed in the new Ansco color, was filmed on location in three separate sessions, with the remarkable blizzard scenes taken in the Idaho wastelands during winter, another session devoted to capturing spectacular canoe sequences on the Clearwater River rapids, and the final scenes shot against breath-taking panoramas of the Grand Tetons in Wyoming.

Frank Fenton's exciting screen play is motivated by the files of the Royal North West Mounted Police and the personal memoirs of Constable Albert Pedley, whose exploits during one of Canada's foulest winters made Mountie history.

Stewart Granger is a perfect choice for the role of the virile and forceful trapper-hero of this story and he gives the part the same strength and authority as that of his white hunter of "King Solomon's Mines". The role of Constable Pedley, who first distrusts his captive but ultimately becomes his friend, is effectively played by Wendell Corey, and there is a third principal in the person of Cyd Charrisse, cast as a half-breed Indian girl who has attached herself to Jules Vincent who is eager to share his life in the frozen North.

A new Tom and Jerry color cartoon "Triplet Trouble", the popular Paramount newsreel, and a clever novelette, "A City Sings" precede the feature attraction.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Some helpful opportunities for finances and general business, if you watch closely economical developments, trends. Only try that which you can operate without stress.

YOU BORN TODAY: You are kind, sympathetic, but too often influenced by your heart rather than head. Make clever mimic, story-teller, actor; also lawyer, salesman or military person. EVERYBODY HAPPY IN DEMOCRAT CAMP

Good humor seems to prevail as President Truman, left, confers with Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, right, Democratic presidential nominee, and Sen. John Sparkman of Alabama, vice-presidential nominee, at the White House in Washington. The Democratic running mates had luncheon with the president and the cabinet. A chat on campaign strategy was on the agenda, and all seemed in agreement on the campaign policy adopted.

Sunday School Lesson:

It Was An Inside Job

By ROY L. SMITH

One of the striking characteristics of the Bible is its absolute tragically unheroic.

At one moment David is represented as a "man after God's own heart," and only a little later it was said very frankly that he was a lecherous individual who was willing to send a faithful citizen to his death that the old king's lust might be satisfied. In this week's lesson concerning Saul, the first of the Hebrew kings, we have another example of this kind of fearless honesty.

A Good Start

As a young man Saul was an extremely modest individual. As a matter of fact he had little stomach for the responsibility of being king, and on his coronation day hid himself away in the baggage where he could not be found. It was not because he was afraid, but because he did not seek honors and power. Had he been able to keep some of that fine quality of life and character he might have become one of the greatest characters in Hebrew history.

Power Did Something

Unfortunately, Saul let power and place do something to him. The adulation that comes to a king turned his head; his first few victories won convinced him that he was pretty good; the success that attended his first official acts convinced him that he knew more than enough to be a good ruler.

Power and place have a way of corrupting the souls of men. It calls for an unusually rugged individual to stand out against the seductions of privilege and authto think that a thing is settled ority. It is so easy for a big shot just because he has decided the matter.

Debauched Own Soul

Psychologists and neurologists who have studied the story tell us that Saul actually became insane before he died, and that is probably true. But he did not become insane over night. He drifted into madness by a perfectly natural and inevitable process.

His disintegration began when he began fooling himself. This lesson illustrates how he rationalized, equivocated, and finally convinced himself that his wickedness was wisdom. Then he allowed jealousy to take possession of his life, with the result that he began to hate the most promising young man in the entire kingdom. Day after day, and hour after hour he fed poisonous thoughts into his mind, with the result that he became utterly incapable of judging any situation accurately.

> The Uniform Sunday School lesson for August 17: "The Tragedy of Saul," 1 Samuel 13:8-14; 15; 18; 28; 31.

This is the thing that always happens when we entertain jealousy and it works its terrible results inside the souls of housewives, business executives, star athletes, and humble workers in the shop—all in the same fashion. No man is immune to the temptation to become jealous, and every jealous man is on his way toward insanity.

Did It to Himself

The inescapable fact is that the disintegration of the king was a direct result of his own attitudes, his own thinking, his own evil. By every standard of judgment it was an inside job. He did it to himself.

The cracking up process was not the result of any wound received on the field of battle, but the direct result of the poison he administered to his own thinking. The madness which came upon him might have been checked and cured at almost any point up to the time he actually fell upon his own sword and took his own life. He could have saved himself, if he had taken himself in hand.

That is the thing that makes the tragedy all the more tragic. It need never have been — it needs never be. Every man holds within his own power the forces of creation and the forces of destruction. Most tragedies of this kind are an inside job.

GRANDMOTHER, TWO CHILDREN DIE IN FIRE

A grandmother and two children died in this Guelph, Ont., fire which destroyed a 77--year-old block of buildings in the town's business section. Mrs. Eliza McCullough was baby-sitting with her grandchildren, Bonnie Lee Nichols, two, and David Nichols, six, in a third-storey apartment. Other residents managed to flee by fire-escape before being overcome by the intense heat and smoke. Damage was estimated at $350,000. (Central Press Canadian)

Underneath The Bough

By Edna G. Robins

In a leisurely way Louise cleared away the breakfast things, then dressed for the street. It was a bright brisk day. Louise stepped out at a smart pace and was soon glowing with the exercise.

She hadn't walked as fast as this for years, she chuckled to herself. "It's wonderful to have two such lovely children, but I'm just begining to realize how they've tied me down."

Deep in her own thoughts, she did not notice Josie Brown approaching. Josie was wheeling a little go-cart in which her two-year-old son sat, viewing the world with solemn, lustreless eyes.

"Good morning, Louise. Where is your baby? Have you left him with your mother?"

"Oh, good morning. No, my baby has grown up," louise answered, looking with pity at Josie's child. It did seem as fi something could be done about his complexition. "Ted started school today."

"Oh, Louise, how could you part with him? He's so young. I suppose you sent him to Miss Randall's Academy. Such nice children go there."

"Oh, no, Ted goes with Eleanor to the public school."

"Do you think that's wise? He will meet such horrid boys there."

"They're the boys he'll have to meet later in life, so he might as well get to known them now, don't you think, Josie? And Ted is very stocky and able to look after himself."

"But Miss Randall's Academy is so refined. Sadie is planning to send her Imogene there soon."

"Oh, Imogene!" Louise had a swift vision of that precocious child's sophisticated manner. "That's different. She wants to acquire the airs and graces. But Ted doesn't. He wants to learn things really worth while: Besides I wouldn't think of going to the expense of sending Ted to a private school when a good pub-

"Expense!" Josie thought, pouncing on the word. She told herself that Louise Weston could not afford a private school, and was just pretending she thought the public school was better.

But Josie smiled sweetly as she prepared to go on her way:

"You must come in and see real soon, Louise."

By the end of the week the house had been thoroughly overhauled. Useless odds and ends had been thrown away, and now everything was in excellent order. Harry had never found it convenient for Louise to have a maid. Two small children had kept her too busy to investigate out-of-the-way corners. Besides that Louise loved to sew. She added many delicate touches to the ugly fashions of the day. The children's clothes were beautifully embroidered/ If anything ever happened to Harry, Louise could set up as a dressmaker. She thought that the clothes she made for herself and Eleanor were much finer and more stylish than anything Madame O'-Reilly had ever made for Sadie and her little girl.

Louise had left the cleaning of the hall bedroom to the last. This was used quite frankly as a storeroom. Here she kept her machine, her cutting table, the baby's crib and high chair, some of the toys the children liked to play with on a rainy day. On one side of the room in solitary dignity stood the hope chest, its polished surface dimmed by the neglect of years. Louise regarded it in some doubt.

She approached it with a certain hesitancy, almost with dread The key turned stiffly in the lock as if it were reluctant to revive the past. With an effort, spiritual as well as physical, Louise lifted the cover of the chest. She knelt down beside it and raised the cloth with which she had covered the contents.

Here were her treasures—several rolls of canvas of different size, the tin box that held here precious paihts, some brushes stiff and dry, even the paint smeared smock she had worn while she worked. As the beloved painty smell assailed her nostrils ,Louise buried her face in her arms.

"And what am I going to do about it?" she asked herself finally as she mopped her eyes. "What's the use of keeping up the pretense? I might as well admit I'm beaten. Harry never did care about my work. He never intended to let me go on with it. He pretended he did so that I'd marry him. He knew I never would have married him if I'd known it mean giving up my painting. And he's got the upper hand. He never gives me a cent for myself. I shall never be able to go on with it. But I mustn"t hate him so. I've got to live with him. I can't stand it to see how small—he is—how cruel!"

And yet, as she grew calmer, Louise had to admit that Harry had not been really stingy. But he embarrassed her by never giving her any pocket money, and she was too proud to keep asking for it. When she went to market she charged everything. At first she had been a little anxious when the bills came in, but Harry had paid them all without a murmur.

Harry never begrudged her a new dress either, when she said she needed one. To be sure, she was clever with her needle, and her clothes cost very little. But it irked her to feel that she had to account for every penny to her husband.

"It's as if I were a child—or on irresponsible person who couldn't be trusted. Surely I've proved that I have good sense."

Carying their party flags and shouting slogans, these demonstrators outside the Indian parliament house in New Delhi are protesting the preventive detention bill which would sanction extension of government power to arrest and detain without trial enemies of the state. The bill passed 101-23, after the Upper House had heard a Communist deputy, P. Sundarayya, warn that if the Communist party gained power, landlords and black marketeers would be shot. In centre foreground above are Mrs. Aruna Asaf Ali and (behind her) Dr. Shyma Prasad Mookerji, two of the leaders of the demonstration. ASK STEEL FOR AUTO

WASHINGTON (CP)—The United States automobile industry yesterday asked the government for sharply-increased steel allotments after Oct. 1. Auto makers, contending the government has exaggerated the prospect of a steel shortage, told the national production authority curtailed allotments would mean 300,000 fewer cars manufactured this year.

Several English Towns Submerged By Floodwaters

Three Boy Scouts Believed Drowned, Washed Away

LONDON (Reuters)—Floodwaters fed by violent rainstorms today submerged several southwest England villages.

Three boy scouts camping out by the river Bray were believed drowned. Their bedraggled tent was washed up by the waters today. The body of one scout was found and the other two were missing.

At least two other persons were reported drowned and one man was killed by lightning.

Rivers and branch streams, swollen to angry torrents, were dotted with dead livestock.

Houses Swamped

A "solid wall of water" descended on the village of Exford from surrounding hills, swamping about 50 houses. Villagers there and in other centres were forced onto their roofs or upper floors.

The lobby of Dulverton's Hotel, with 40 guests, was under 4½ feet of water.

In Dulverton the water of the River Barle swirled into a garage and floated 13 automobiles downstream.

Communications were chaotic and washed-out bridges made roads impassable.

The floods followed heavy thunderstorms which swept across 12 counties.

Native Guerillas Fight With Bows, Poisoned Arrows

MELBOURNE, Australia (Reuters)—Several thousand native guerillas with bows and poisoned arrows are fighting an unheralded war against Indonesian government troops on the island of Ceram, the Melbourne Herald says today.

The Herald says recent dispatches, smuggled from Ceram through an "Indonesian blockade," reported 13,000 rebels under arms—10,000 with bows and arrows, and 3,000 former Dutch colonial army troops.

South Moluccan agents claimed the revolt was gaining strength and engaging the attention of several battalions of government troops, three corvettes, motor torpedo boats and a squadron of fighter aircraft.

The dispatches also claim that a state of war exists between the Indonesian government and "separationalist" elements in West Java and Celebes islands.

(Indonesian rebels proclaimed the "Republic of South Moluccas" and were forced out of the island of Ambon by the Indonesian army to nearby Ceram in November, 1950. Several top leaders of the "republic" surrendered to the army last January, and in March Indonesian authorities announced that the South Moluccan rebel movement had been "completely settled.")

Agents told the Herald that the rebels welcomed government landings on the island. Bowmen using poisoned arrows ambushed the troops and took their modern arms.

U.S. Demands Red Negotiators Make Some Offer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States has challenged a Communist "peace" gesture in Korea with a demand that the Red negotiators speak up at the Panmunjom truce talks if they have anything specific to offer.

The peace hint came from North Korean Prime Minister Kim Il Sung Thursday night. In a moderately worded speech, he declared that "we hope to get an armistice agreement wherein there is neither victor nor vanquished."

The report of his speech as carried by Pyongyang radio stirred the interest of United Nations diplomats looking for a break in the long impasse over war prisoners unwilling to return to Communist rule.

The U. S. State Department decided yesterday that on its face Kim's statement offered nothing new, reiterated that the U. N. will not compromise on the prisoner issue, and said that if Kim has any specific proposal to make "it is a relatively simple matter for him to speak up at Panmunjom."

ADD ROCKET ARTILLERY

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: A small weather disturbance which formed in Michigan on the juncture between the warm humid air over Ontario and the cooler air over the Midwest has not only delayed the arrival of cooler air to Ontario but has caused extensive cloudiness and shower activity. This slightly cooler air which now covers northern Ontario and the Midwest will start moving into southwestern Ontario late this morning and will continue eastward accompanied by northwesterly winds and clearing skies.

Sunday will be mostly sunny and a bit cooler with a few clouds and widely scattered showers moving into northwestern Ontario during the afternoon and evening.

Tricky 21-Mile Strait Defeats 11 of 14 Hopefuls

DOVER, England (AP)—A 61-year-old London doctor girded himself today for his 15th try at swimming the English Channel—just a few hours after the tricky 21-mile strait defeated 11 of 14 hopefuls.

Two other swimmers, Jenny Kammersgarde of Denmark and Britain's Phil Rising, also were standing ready in nearby Folke stone for the proper wind and tide conditions.

The doctor, George Brewster Ade, made his first attempt in 1925 but has never conquered the treacherous crossing.

Only three of the swimmers in yesterday's season-opening assault plowed through the rain hail and stormy seas to reach the opposite shore.

One of them was a 20-year-old English factory girl, Kathleen Mayoh, whose unofficial time was 16 hours, 55 minutes. The others were Victor Birkett, a British real estate clerk, and Bakr Soliman, a mechanic from Cairo.

Smallwood Hopeful Of Getting Capital

LONDON (Reuters) — Newfoundland Premier Jos. Smallwood, here to interest British industrialists in his province, said today "we will have Labrador developed" even if British capital isn't forthcoming.

He said, however, he is "anxious" for Britain to have the first opportunity at investment.

"A very big industrial concern is definitely interested," he said in an interview.

He added that he is "getting warm" in his search for British brains, money and machinery.

Smallwood's main selling point is Labrador's natural resources and he painted a glowing picture of potential hydro - electric power, extensive iron-ore deposits and dense forests.

'Immoral Billboard Advertising' Annoys Many Hamilton Residents

HAMILTON (CP)—Mayor Lloyd Jackson said today he was receiving an increasing number of letters condemning "immoral billboard advertising" bordering city streets, and setting forth the advantages of various types of brassiers and girdles.

One letter claimed such billboards "lowered the dignity of women," and others asked that the city take action.

"I deplore such advertising," the mayor said, "but it is beyond our jurisdiction. I will appeal to the Advertising and Sales Club, and the billboard companies, to use their influence in checking the trend."

The mayor added:

"I don't think those girdle ads are very appetizing, especially to an old fellow like me."

THIRTY MILLION DOLLAR HIGHWAY TENDER CALLED

May Set New Record In History of Dept.

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario highways department today called for tenders on road work expected to set a record for any single calling in the history of the department.

Highways Minister Doucett said the total will probably exceed $30,000,000.

The projects, both announced this week, include a bypass around Toronto and elimination of seven provincial traffic bottlenecks.

The Toronto bypass will cost $10,000,000 while another $16,000,000 is earmarked for the bottleneck elimination program. Another $4,000,000 or $5,000,000 will go for projects such as a bridge across the Mississippi River south of Arnprior and work on the Trans-Canada Highway.

Normal highways department expenditures amount to some $52,000,000 annually.

Tenders called today include 103 miles of paving, 140 miles of grading and structures, three bridges and three sections to be laid with crushed gravel.

Majors works are planned for the Chatham, London, Owen Sound, Ottawa, Sudbury, Blind River, North Bay, Toronto, Port Hope and Kingston areas.

Thirteen of the paving contracts are for dual lane projects and five for the Trans-Canada Highway.

Reinforcements Turn Tide For U.S. Marines

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — United States Marines reinforcements today turned the tide in a bitter, three-hour grenade battle and smashed the Communists' seventh desperate attempt in five days to recapture Bunker Hill on the Korean western front.

Four-hundred Chinese charged to within 30 yards of Marine positions on the blood-soaked ridge before dawn, a U.S. eighth army staff officer said. Red artillery and mortars raked allied positions in support of the attack.

Fresh marines were rushed forward at the height of the battle. The Reds pulled back less than one-half hour later. Later the Communists traded shots with the Marines for 10 minues from a distance, but made no charge.

Red losses were placed officially at more than 3,154 dead and wounded for the fighting, which began a week ago near Panmunjom, site of the Korean truce talks.

Elsewhere on the front it was relatively quiet.

United Nations planes turned a Red supply centre at Chunghwa into flaming ruin Friday night. Civilians had been warned by Radio Seoul to leave the area, south of Pyongyang.

Other allied bombers hit Red front-line positions, especially in the Bunker Hill sector.

The U.S. fifth air force said Sabre jet pilots shot down one Communist MiG-15 jet and probably destroyed two more during the last week. For the second straight week, no U.N. planes were reported lost in air battles, but Red anti-aircraft guns shot down one F-51 reconnaissance plane. An F-84 thunderjet and a B-26 bomber failed to return from missions over North Korea.

Six-Year Effort by Western Powers to Get Russia to Sign Austrian Treaty at Dead End

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Six years of effort by the Western powers to get Russia to agree to an Austrian peace treaty appeared today to have reached a dead end.

An appeal by Austria to the United States support, may be the next move. Russia, however, wants another review of the entire Austrian treaty question.

The state department announced yesterday that Moscow had rejected an abbreviated treaty which the Western powers proposed March 13 in the hope of ending the occupation of Austria and giving that country full independence.

Efforts to reach agreement on a full-length treaty of 59 articles, as compared with eight in the short form, had already broken down.

State department officials said they believe the chief reasons Moscow is blocking Austrian independence are:

1. Looting—Russia, they say, has looted Austria on a grand scale. Peace would end looting, and possibly mean the return of some seized property.

2. Occupation—Soviet troops hold a strategic position in Austria. And officials believe the Kremlin may never withdraw its troops until basic East-West issues are resolved.

An exchange of notes last December and January with the Russians on resuming active negotiations got nowhere. That led to the Western powers' March 13 proposal of their eight-article pact and a request for a new round of talks based on it.

The Russians did not respond until yesterday, despite prodding reminders.

Smoke Curtain Hides Heavy Destruction of Forest Fire

VANCOUVER (CP)—A mammoth forest fire today churned destruction in an area of possibly 35,000 acres in north-central British Columbia.

But foresters described the situation as "improved" with greater humidity and cooler temperatures at night acting as an anchor on the flames.

The blaze is but one of 150 burning in the province, some of them tearing at will out of the reach of man.

One at Burns Lake is by far the greatest, although a curtain of smoke and dozens of pesky and deceptive spot fires prevent the B.C. forest service from judging its exact boundaries.

A forestry official at Burns Lake, pointing out that circumstances made the figure subject to possible substantial changes, said the fire is burning about eight miles from Burns Lake, roughly 400 miles northeast of Vancouver. Part of it is in rolling slash country but flames are also destroying valuable stands of virgin spruce, pine and balsam.

The forestry official said this yesterday.

The situation was described as improved over the beginning of the week because of the greater humidity—although there has been no appreciable rain—and the cooler temperatures.

Close to 1,500 men are fighting the various fires, some 200 of them in the Burns Lake area. Uncontrolled fires included two on Vancouver Island, one in the Babine Lake area, 600 miles north of here, and below Gull Lake, near the Yukon border.

Funeral services will be held today at Burns Lake for bulldozer operator Howard Gordon, burned to death Wednesday.

His companion, J.H. Hunter, remains listed as missing. He was reported yesterday to have been seen on his way back to camp. Officials, however, have been unable to confirm the report.

Except for scattered showers, the weather forecaster told British Columbians not to expect rain today. The province has been without appreciable precipitation for more than three weeks.

Hopes of Saving Million Dollar Tomato Crop Dim

TORONTO (CP)—Hopes of saving a $1,000,000 tomato crop in the Leamington area dimmed last night as talks between representatives of the United Packinghouse Workers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) and H. J. Heinz Company of Canada broke down.

Union and Company representatives were called into the conference by Labor Minister Daley and Louis Fine, Ontario's chief conciliation officer.

It is understood that union security is the issue on which the talks broke off.

The union had asked for the Rand formula which requires that all employees in the bargaining unit pay union dues, whether members or not.

On wages, the company offered 11-cents-an-hour increase; the union sought 21 cents.

WEST PROVINCES BEARING BRUNT OF POLIO ATTACKS

Ontario Figures Far Below Last Year's

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada's four western provinces continue to bear the brunt of this year's poliomyelitis attack, most other provinces reporting an average number of cases and deaths. Ontario figures are far below last year's.

A Canadian Press survey today showed 219 cases reported in Saskatchewan with 12 deaths. A week ago there were six deaths and 150 cases. These figures outshadow last year's 23 cases and four deaths.

Alberta is next, reporting 182 cases and 12 deaths, compared with only one death and 18 cases last year.

One death and 51 new cases during the last week brought Manitoba's total to 181 cases and six deaths.

10 Deaths In B.C.

In British Columbia there have been 10 polio deaths, compared with two last year. The 98 cases so far this year are 74 more than last year's total.

Montreal reported seven cases as compared with double that many last year when there was one death. In the Quebec City area, there are seven cases.

New Brunswick reports 60 cases and four deaths compared with five cases and no deaths last year.

In Nova Scotia the situation is reversed. Only 23 cases have been reported this year—three in the last week. Last year at this time there were 100 cases reported to bring the 1951 total to 428 at that time. No deaths have been reported this year.

In Ontario, 133 cases compared favorably with 530 last year. A death yesterday in Port Arthur brought the total to five as compared with 21 last year.

Delayed-Action Bomb Explodes In Plane Wreck

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—A delayed-action bomb exploded today in the wreckage of an Allied fighter-bomber, where the body of a dead American flier has lain for four days because of the imminent danger of an explosion.

The bomb-laden plane crashed south of Seoul Tuesday after colliding with a jet plane. The jet pilot parachuted to safety, but an unidentified major flying the second craft crashed with his plane.

The body was astride a bomb directly under the cockpit.

The plane carried about a dozen 250-pound bombs and two 1,000-pounders. Some have not been found and three villages have been evacuated until all danger of explosions has passed.

Typhoon Heads Toward East China Sea

TOKYO (AP)—A typhoon headed toward the East China Sea tonight after ripping up installations and injuring four persons at the American military base on Okinawa.

The U. S. air force reported 105-mile-an-hour winds severely damaged warehouses Friday night and early today. More than seven inches of rain fell.

Four persons were hurt by flying debris on Okinawa.

Children's Circus Out of Business But Owner May Get Tax Refund

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amusement taxes put Larry Aiken's circus out of business.

Larry, 12, of Terre Haute, Ind., wrote the Bureau of Internal Revenue that he was staging a successful backyard circus when his father—a government worker—told him about that major fact of life — taxes.

Larry promptly closed down his show, figured up his taxes—20 per cent on 22 persons who paid five cents each—and sent the government a money order for 22 cents.

"Was going to run three more days till all this came up," he wrote.

A revenue bureau spokesman said the government may have to refund Larry part of his 22 cents if some of his paying customers were under 12 years old, and thus exempt from amusement taxes. It plans to write Larry to find out.

Toronto Laborer Beaten to Death With Heavy Bar

Wife, Mrs. Ann Maydam, Charged With Murder

TORONTO (CP)—Mike Maydam, 65-year-old laborer, was beaten to death with a crowbar in the bedroom of his home early today. His wife, Ann, 64, was charged with murder a short time later.

A roomer in the brick tenement called police who found Maydan in a pool of blood. Nearby was a blood-spattered two-foot crowbar. The family had been renovating the house and there were several similar tools lying about.

Mr. and Mrs. Maydam had two roomers in their home and they were the only ones who heard any indication of trouble.

Mrs. Mary Magorka, next-door neighbor, said the Maydans kept to themselves most of the time. Some residents of the area said Maydan had told them he was a White Russian and had been in Canada 40 years.

Mrs. Maydan was reported to have told police her husband struck at her with the crowbar and that she wrested it away from him.

They had been married for three years. Both had been married before.

Shows Police Body

One of the roomers in the cottage, George Gravel, said that about 11.45 p.m. he got up to get a drink of water. He went into the kitchen and heard three thumps.

"They were fairly light thumps so I went to the front door to see whether anybody had been locked out," he said. "But there was nobody there. The couple's bedroom door was closed so I went back into the kitchen.

"Then the woman came into the kitchen and said 'What's the number of the police? I want to call the police,'" said Gravel. "When she called the police she just gave the address and said nothing else. I asked: 'What's wrong?' and she replied 'Just don't worry.'"

Gravel and other roomers said they had not been aware of any quarreling in the house.

When the murder charge was read to Mrs. Maydan in court today, she said: "Yes, I did."

She was remanded a week.

Shows Police Body

Mrs. Maydan showed no emotion when she met police at the front door and led them to a bedroom and the battered body of her husband.

Only when a police matron tried to remove a belt from Mrs. Maydan's waist before locking her up for the night did the woman show signs of emotion.

"You don't have to take that," she was quoted as saying. "I won't hang myself.

Detective Robert Bamlett said Maydan must have been struck repeatedly. His skull was shattered and "most of his body badly marked up."

Mrs. Maydan was married to Michael Maydan shortly after the death of her first husband, an Ontario farmer. Maydan's first wife died about the same time as the farmer.

4-Time Divorcee Faces Deportation Charge Monday

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Beatrice Reason, 32, four-times-married divorcee who went to the United States two years ago for a 15-month flight with her night school teacher, is to face a deportation hearing here Monday, immigration officials said yesterday.

She was taken into custody recently at Timmins, where school teacher Alfred Greene now is living, and is being held in jail at Haileybury. She is to be escorted from Northern Ontario today by an immigration inspector.

The hearing will be conducted in camera at the Don jail by a one-man board of inquiry, whose findings will later be confirmed by federal authorities in Ottawa.

If it is established there was an irregularity in her entry into Canada, she could be deported to her native Australia.

Vera Parsons, Toronto lawyer, will represent her.

Mrs. Reason and Greene were picked up in Chicago last November. They disappeared Aug. 9, 1950, leaving Greene's blood-spattered automobile in Toronto's Rosedale ravine. Greene, who once taught school in Cornwall, Ont., said he had been working for an advertising agency in St. Louis and hoped to go back there some time.

They were deported from the United States after a spell in Cook County Jail in Chicago. Greene later was imprisoned for six months in Ontario on a charge of deserting his wife and children.

WILL GIVE AID

WASHINGTON (AP)—The state department said yesterday that the Western powers are giving Yugoslavia economic aid for another year, for the sake of free world security and with no thought of converting Tito from Communism. The United States, Britain and France are reported to have agreed on a total of $99,000,000 in direct economic assistance.

FRED MOTT HOOKS 33-POUND MUSKIE IN CROWE BAY

When it comes to catching muskies, Fred Mott, yard superintendent with the Canadian National Railways here, will always have a good word to say for Crowe Bay in the Trent River north of Campbellford.

Spending his holidays in the Campbellford area Mr. Mott hooked onto a big fellow on Thursday and after a half hour struggle landed what turned out to be a 33-lb muskie. The big fish measured 47 inches in length.

PROVINCIAL POLICE TAKE IT ON CHIN FROM TRENTON AIRMEN

Provincial Police softballers took it on the chin from airmen from No. 6 R.D. at the Prince Charles Public School grounds Friday night, when the fliers downed the lawmen 23-10 in an abbreviated six-inning tussle that was cut short by darkness.

Thirteen runs in the first inning by the airmen decided the outcome of the game and the policemen just could not catch up.

Fullerton and Backham shared the hurling chores for the lawmen who after the disastrous first inning held the hard hitting airmen in check.

Lefty Mike Ryan went all the way on the hill for Paul's, striking out seven, and walking four. Billy Foster was the big gun for the winners with a triple, two doubles, and a single.

The final game in the series is slated for the CNR Field tonight at 6.15 p.m.

Bancroft Area Farmers Finish Hay Cutting

What a difference a few miles can make!

For instance in the Belleville area harvesting operations are all but completed with combining and most of the threshing finished.

But in the Bancroft area farmers have just finished their haying and are just getting started at their grain.

Faraday Reeve John W. Anderson, spending a day at Belleville Fair this week, noted the season was considerably later in the Bancroft area than around Belleville with farmers just now starting their grain harvest. Also in contrast to the Bay of Quinte area there has been lots of rain in the Bancroft district, especially during the past six weeks.

A few Montmorency cherries were quoted at $1 per basket, Astrachan apples were 60c per half peck and Melbas 75c per basket. Huckleberries were $2.25 per basket and 40c per qt. and Saunders' plums up to 75c per basket.

Lyle M. Tweedy, Member Of Public Utilities Crew Shocked by 4,300 Volts

Credit for saving a man's life late yesterday afternoon in the Exhibition Park area has been given the members of the public utilities crew by a local physician. Lyle M. Tweedy of R. R. 3 Belleville accidentally put his head against a primary lead tension wire while working on the pole situated on the north east corner of Yeomans and west Bridge streets. The alert crew lowered the man to the ground by rope and applied artificial respiration. The injured man is reported to be in good condition after the accident.

"It was this training the men of the utilities office have in artificial respiration that saved his life," Dr. J. Russell Scott, the attending physician said.

Officials at the utility office said Tweedy was part of a crew engaged in changing location of the pole, when the accident occurred. The injured man was on the pole working above the guy wires and directly below the primary lead wire. According to the line foreman, William H. Phillips, the worker accidently touched the lead with his head. Normally the wire carries 4,300 volts.

On arrival of Bush's ambulance, the artificial respiration was ceased and an inhalator applied. According to Dr. Scott, Tweedy was in a semi-conscious state when the ambulance arrived. Before artificial respiration was begun, the man was not breathing.

Hospital officials report there are secondary burns to the man's head and left shin where the voltage entered the body and passed out. These are only minor burns and the injured man has been declared out of danger.

Repair Depot Scores Upset In RCAF's 18th Sports Day Before 5,000 Spectators

Trenton (Special) — Athletes from No. 6 Repair Depot, Trenton, pulled a tremendous surprise at the annual R.C.A.F. (Trenton) Sports' Day yesterday collecting a total of 66 points almost twice as many as their closest rivals Station Trenton with 39 points.

Air Cadet and Flight Cadet entries finished neck and neck. The former earned 25 points while the latter gathered 23. Maintenance wound up in last place with 7 points but put up stiff competition in every contest. Over 5,000 saw the games and visited the amusement park.

The athlete winning highest aggregate number of points was Flight Cadet W. Farrell Hyde of No. 6 Repair Depot. The McGill student from Montreal, a distance runner with great style, broke the tape in the 880 yard run, the gruelling mile and featured as lead off man with the No. 6 R.D. winning 880 yard relay team.

He accepted the Benedict-Proctor Challenge Cup, the Officers' Mess Unit Grand aggregate cup and the McColl-Chamber trophy for his unit and as individual competitor.

Sgt. Ray Shipton of No. 6 Repair Depot received the Senator W. A. Fraser trophy won by his unit. Frank Follwell M.P. of Belleville made the presentation.

Group Captain J. D. Millword, Commanding Officer of Station Trenton and Group Captain D. H. McColl, Commanding Officer of No. 6 Repair Depot handed out cups and trophies to team captains and individual winners. None of the established records were broken by this year's crop of athletes.

Airwomen Compete

An entirely new feature of Sports Day attracted a great deal of attention. The airwomen for the first time vied in a field day of their own. The fair sex from Station Trenton edged Training Command Headquarters girls 26 to 19 while No. 6 Repair Depot ladies almost tied the second place team with 18 points.

With merchant and former R.C.A.F. warrant officer Joe Gould making the presentation of his beautiful new trophy the team receiving the cup for TCHQ., included Lila Rose, Manor, Saskatchewan, Clare Baker, Flin Flon, Manitoba, Edna Reeder, Moncton, N.B., and Jean McKay of Toronto.

The cup for the airwoman gathering the highest number of points during the afternoon games went to AW-1 L. J. Burman, of (Toronto) of Training Command Headquarters, Trenton. Air Commodore W. W. Brown assisted with the presentations.

The tug-of-war, stiffly contested between teams from Station Trenton Sgt's Mess, and 6 Repair Depot Sgt's Mess again attracted top attention. Mayor Kenneth J. Couch, of Trenton, officiated as referee declaring repairmen winners with the best two out of three pulls.

Brilliant Entertainment

Swimming and diving competitions for both men and women provided the water sport lovers with brilliant competitive entertainment. Pilot Officer R. B. Walker of Station Trenton won the men's swimming cup.

The new bicycle in the lucky draw for the air force children went to Gein Fortin of 6 Repair Depot.

But the daring solo aerobatic display by Flight Lieutenant Jack Regan, in the renowned Vampire jet again stole the show. Accurate bang-on bomb dropping and rocket firing by hard-hitting Mustang fighters held a large crowd at the waterfront.

A small island off the eastern tip of Baker's island became engulfed in fire and smoke as exploding rockets hit the target. The air strike provided a fitting climax to a great show of athlete prowess.

Stories of Famous Hymns

NEARER, MY GOD, TO THEE

(By Horace B. Powell)

Nearer, my God, to Thee,
Nearer to Thee!
E'en though it be a cross
That raiseth me.
Still all my song shall be,
Nearer, my God, to Thee,
Nearer, my God, to Thee,
Nearer to Thee.

Though, like the wanderer,
The sun goes down,
Darkness be over me,
My rest a stone.
Yet in my dreams I'd be
Nearer, my God, to Thee,
Nearer, my God, to Thee,
Nearer to Thee.

There let the way appear,
Steps unto heaven;
All that Thou sendest me,
In mercy given;
Angels to beckon me,
Nearer, my God, to Thee,
Nearer, my God, to Thee,
Nearer to Thee.

Then, with my waking thoughts,
Bright with Thy praise,
Out of my stony griefs
Bethel I'll raise;
So by my woes to be
Nearer, my God, to Thee,
Nearer, my God, to Thee,
Nearer to Thee.

The Old Testament story of Jacob's dream, which tells how the Hebrew patriarch saw angels passing up and down a ladder stretched from earth to heaven, inspired Sarah Flower Adams to write "Nearer, My God to Thee" in 1840.

The Bible description, found in the 28th chapter of Genesis, says:

"And Jacob went out from Beersheba, and went toward Haran. And he lighted upon a certain place, and tarried there all night, because the sun was set; and he took of the stones of that place, and put them for his pillows, and lay down in that place to sleep. And he dreamed, and behold a ladder set up on the earth; and the top of it reached to heaven and beheld the angels of God ascending and descending upon it . . . And Jacob rose up early in the morning, and set it up for a pillar, and poured oil upon the top of it. And he called the name of that place Bethel."

After 100 years, this remarkable hymn is still gaining in popularity. Many a Christian, on heaven's threshold, has found comfort in its sentiments just before slipping away to join the beckoning angels of which it sings.

When the steamship Titanic was sinking after colliding with an iceberg in mid-ocean one April night in 1912, and many of the passengers realized there was no hope of rescue, the ship's band began to play "Nearer, My God, to Thee." Hundreds knelt in prayer and many were still praying when, a little later, the ship went down carrying 1,513 men and women to eternity.

The hymn was played many times in France over the graves of American soldiers in the World War. In Palestine, it is customary for tourists from Christian lands to pause and sing "Nearer, My God, to Thee" whenever they visit Bethel where, according to the Bible story, Jacob had his famous vision.

Excavating An Assyrian City

In northern Iraq lie the ruins of Khorsabad, the great capital which King Sargon of Assyria built for himself 2,600 years ago. The excavations there are described by Mary Chubb, in London Calling. Miss Chubb visited the scene with an archaeological expedition before the last war.

I suppose most people are hardly out of their prams before they have heard the news that the Assyrian 'came down like a wolf on the fold', but I think that most of them would be hard put to it to say exactly where he and his gleaming cohorts did it from.

Before the war I belonged to an archaeological expedition which worked in Iraq, mainly in the south; but in the spring we moved north to Khorsabad, near Mosul, when the appalling duststorms of the desert country made further excavation there impossible. Then we went on working at the very place where the father of Sennacherib—Sargon, King of Assyria—built a new capital: Sargon began his reign in 722 B.C. Mosul is on the west bank of the Tigris about 200 miles north of Baghdad, and has a pleasant country feel about it after you have come from the dark labyrinths of the capital.

We crossed the Tigris to the eastern side. Ahead lay a long, low, grass-covered barrier. The sandy road wound through a breach in those green banks and then we drove northeast across peaceful agricultural country. There was nothing to show that this quiet plough-land crossed only by the road and a small sparkling river had once teemed and rung with thronging crowds and chariots and soldiers—for those green banks we had passed between were the ancient walls of Nineveh, and we were now crossing the city itself. Here came Jonah, preaching the Word of the Lord very bravely after his backsliding.

The ancient word for Nineveh has a definite connection with the ancient Semitic word for 'fish,' and I have heard it suggested that the big fish into which he disappeared for three days and nights was simply the huge teeming maze of the city, where he was quite lost until he appeared as phophet and preacher. It is an ingenious idea, but perhaps for that very reason one to be taken not too seriously.

Some miles further on we passed through the eastern walls of Nineveh and on across a great plain, rising a little all the way towards hills about fifteen miles off. The plough-land had the rich, red warmth of Devon, the thick grass was brilliant, great patches of yellow mustard-fields rose against the soft blue spring sky, and the snow-peaks of Kurdistan lifted above and far beyond the hills ahead. The ditches ran with sparkling water and the grassland was splashed and sprinkled with scarlet anemones and flaring wild tulips.

We plunged along the uneven road. Sargon himself had built it about 2,600 years ago to connect the old capital Nineveh with his new city. A little way short of the foothills a great mound, flat at the top, stood to the right of the road—Khorsabad. The driver turned off the road, changed to his lowest gear, and charged up a steep ramp which brought us to the top. Sargon had made that mound and placed his palace upon it, astride the city wall.

Here he could keep watch on the mountains to east and north, the plain to the west, and over his new walled city which lay to the south of the palace. Here he came up from Nineveh with his young Crown Prince, Sennacherib, along the road which he had made. Here Sennacherib spent his boyhood, while the armies of his father swept over vast areas and brought terror and desolation to all who stood in the way of mighty Assyria.

The great entrances of the palace were flanked by huge oblong slabs of stone on which were carved, in deep relief, winged bulls with human heads. Some stood sixteen feet high and weighed anything up to forty tons. These tremendous monster divinities, serene in their benevolent aspect as protectors, yet fierce and terrible of body so that they would frighten away all that was evil, were the original 'cherubs' in the Old Testament. And it shows how far misconceptions can travel when one thinks of the gentle little creatures who flutter about in religious paintings and in hymns. Whenever I sing a hymn about Cherubim I think of the forty-ton variety and try not to laugh.

One of them was moved to the University of Chicago. It was impossible to transport it whole, so it was sawn into several pieces—even then the largest piece weighed nineteen tons—and the crates were conveyed with incredible difficulty down Sargon's road to the Tigris. Here one of the small river steamers was waiting to ship the bull to Basra. The ramp was fixed, hawsers attached, winches started, and all was set for embarkation. But the largest piece of bull was reluctant to leave the land he had known for more than 2,000 years. The hawsers tightened; the tug-of-war began. Absolutely nothing happened to the nineteen-ton crate—but it was suddenly and alarmingly observed that the Tigris steamer was doing its best to leave the water and climb up the bang instead.

In the end the mind of man triumphed, and today the reassembled cherub, with not a scar showing, gazes serenely out over the heads of admiring students in Chicago.

Sennacherib though little of his father's palace and city, and when he succeeded he deserted the place and went back to Nineveh, which again became the centre of the Assyrian Empire. His armies were all-powerful, his campaigns devastating his cruelties appalling. This alone is how he is remembered today. But there is another side to the character of that terribly busy man. He surrounded Nineveh with gardens and orchards. He said: 'All the fruits of all lands, herbs and fruit-bearing trees, I set out for my subjects.' He made great enclosures for strange foreign trees, cotton trees from India among them, saying: 'From the wool-bearing trees they sheared and wove the wool into garments.'

But that small river which ran to Nineveh alongside Sargon's road could not carry enough water for all these projects. So Sennacherib carried out some very wonderful waterworks, digging canals to divert all the mountain streams he could find towards his main flow. He himself clambered up the step hills just beyond his father's city to look for springs and pools. He declares in an inscription that he did it 'with much difficulty'—which does seem odd for such an energetic man, for I have climbed up the same hill several times myself, no harder going then the steeper parts of the Sussex Downs. Perhaps he was beginning to put on weight (that particular inscription was made fifteen years after he came to the throne) and one pictures him, sweating a little as he toiled up to that marvellous skyline, a trail of ministers and court officials behind him, who knew it was as much as their life was worth not to keep up. His search for more and more water took him right back into the mountains thirty miles from Nineveh, and from there he brought it, at one point building a 900-foot aqueduct.

The Famous Oracle of Delphi

ARTICLE 78

Special to the Ontario Intelligencer—During my wanderings about Greece I came upon the town of Delphi, whose name you probably recognize. It is world-famous for its oracle, which freely gave advice with a minimum of words to any Greek who might so desire it.

Probably the classic example of these phophecies, which often could be quite ambiguous, concerns a Greek general who, on the eve of an impending battle, came to the oracle for advice.

He was given this sentence: You will return not in battle will you fall.

Since the Greeks did not bother about commas at that time, the general assumed that he would be victorious and marched off to battle where he was promptly killed. His wife took the oracle to task for giving false prophecies, but was told that the sentence had been falsely interpreted, that the pause should have come after the word "not."

Well, I had been playing around with the idea of going on to Turkey, especially since I had found an exceptionally cheap rate on a ship. Before making up my mind I decided to consult the oracle.

It outdid itself in saving words, for I only heard two: "July approaches." The meaning was all too clear, for my examinations come in this month. It was probably better to begin studying than to spend time wandering through Turkish bazaars.

How to get back was quite a problem. I had had enough of Jugoslavian trains so did not want to return by that way unless I could absolutely help it. Taking a boat to Italy seemed to be by far the best way so that is what I eventually did.

Travelled With Troops

The first part of the trip was made in the company of several hundred Greek soldiers who were going off to camp for ninety days training. Although the weather was quite hot they were dressed in old British Army battle dress, which did not make them any cooler.

Added to that they were loaded down with a pack large enough to stagger a horse. They all seemed to be quite sturdy fellows and marched off the ship without any difficulty.

During the trip I met several who could speak a little Italian and so we passed the long hours of the first night telling each other about our homes and what we were going to do the minute we got back.

Admittedly they did not have as far to go as I did, but it seemed a long way to them. I say photos of mothers, fathers, brothers, sisters; well, just about every possible combination of relatives.

The only thing I could do in return was to get out my two well-worn books on Canada and explain all the pictures in them. To most of them Canada was in another world, and it would be the highlight of their life if they could one day go there to live for as one of them, after looking at the pictures in the book, said to me: "We don't have things like that here."

When I was in Public School I saw a picture of the Corinth canal, and was quite impressed with the steep cliffs rising on both sides. On the way we pasesd through the canal and the cliffs were even higher than they had seemed in the pictures. The canal has been cut out of the rock and cliffs, which rise almost at a ninety degree angle out of the water, and tower hundreds of feet in the air. Looking down from above, any ship passing through seems no larger than a row boat.

After calling at several islands we arirved at last at the isle of Corfu, or as the Greeks call it, Kerkyra. This island has played an important part in Greek mythology.

Wrapped in Legend

According to a ancient legend, the first demigod to fall in love with Corfu was Hercules. On one of the beaches the Argonauts landed on their return from Colchis, bringing with them the Golden Fleece, and there was celebrated the famous wedding of Jason to Medea.

Even Homer mentions it in the third ode of his Odyssey. He tells how Ulysses, after the victorious expedition to Troy, on the way back to his home, Ithaca, was shipwrecked on the islands. It was there that appeared to him in a vision the beautiful daughter of the king, playing ball with her attendant maidens. Those who have read the Odyssey will remember the warm reception accorded to Ulysses by both the princess and her father.

No such luck was mine, however. The only one who accorded me a reception was the customs official, who wanted to know how much money I was taking out of the country. Added to that was the knowledge that across the narrow straits were probably a good many Albanian guards glaring at us.

After Corfu I left Greece behind me, and after an all-night trip across the Adriatic Sea arrived at the Italian port of Brindisi. It was a relief in a way for it was the first time in several weeks that I could understand the people on the street. But still no one could say that my trip through the Balcans was uneventful, and it answered many questions that had been on my mind for some time. A most interesting place to visit, but as one of my Swiss friends put it, "It's nice to know that there is a train leaving for Switzerland every day. When you want to leave, you don't have to wait around."

SOLOMON'S WISDOM NEEDED

Nothing better illustrates the trouble that socialism can create than the situation in which the British find themselves in regard to the production of steel. It is scarcely necessary to state that the country needs all the steel it con get, in the worst way, partly for its rearmament program and partly for numerous ordinary industrial purposes.

When the Labor government "nationalized" the steel industry, it forced the shareholders to hand over their shares in return for government bonds paying three and one half per cent interest. The owners of the steel companies objected strenuously to this transaction, but the laborites did not let a little thing like the wishes of the owners stand in their way. In fact, the manner in which the nationalization program was carried out caused some observers to conclude that the Laborites were as much concerned about hamstringing the "capitalists" as they were about putting socialistic theories into practice.

It is common knowledge that the nationalized British steel industry has been unable to meet the requirements of the other industries dependent upon it. Also that the British government has, much against its wishes, been forced to curtail its rearmament program because of steel shortages.

The Churchill-led Conservative government was committed, before it was elected, to returning the steel industry to its former owners. One reason for this pledge was that the Conservatives considered it immoral to seize a man's property and pay him for it only what the purchaser wished to pay. Another and more practical reason was that the Conservatives, aware of the world situation, realized that what was needed was more steel, rather than further demonstrations of socialism in operation.

But the Laborites, although out of office, are still possessed of the power to do harm. No sooner did the Churchill government announce its intention of proceding to denationalize steel than the Laborites repeated their earlier threat that, if and when re-elected, they would immediately renationalize the industry. Recent municipal elections in Britain, as well as the results of various public opinion polls, have indicated that the Laborites are gaining strength and might possibly win the next general election.

Would the former owners of the steel mills be willing to re-purchase them, in view of the fact that, within a few years, they are liable to be forced to surrender them again, also at a price that will be dictated by the purchaser? It doesn't seem likely that they will. Another factor in the situation is this: some of the more radical among the Labcrites have asserted that, if and when they are nationalizing the steel industry again, they will not bother compensating the owners. Another deterrent is that the Churchill government only recently imposed a new excess profits tax which will have the effect of making shares in the steel industry less profitable than they were previously.

What is going to happen next is anybody's guess, but it is a certainty that Churchill and his associates are going to need all the ingenuity and statesmanship which they possess.

The difficulties of the United States Steel industry, with its recurring strikes and incessant demands for higher wages, are as nothing when compared to those facing British steel. American steelmakers are at least free of interference from socialists, except to a nextremely limited extent.

TOUGH JOB

Somehow we feel a bit sorry for young King Hussein of Jordan. He is entering the monarchial business on a falling market. Only a few days earlier the infant Fuad became king of Egypt, just before leaving the country with his deposed father. And Hussein himself so much resembles the young Farouk, who came to Egypt fresh from an English public school to succeed Fuad I, his father.

Hussein's father Talal has just been certified insane, ending a brief and unhappy reign which began shortly after his father, the crafty and dominating Abdullah, was assassinated.

In the changing pattern of the Middle East monarchs are still expected to rule as well as reign. And it is becoming more difficult, as the young Shah of Iran is finding out. We are told that Hussein is expected to strengthen Britain's ties with Jordan, and prove a stabilizing factor in the whole region. It seems a good deal to expect of a 17-year-old schoolboy. TODAY'S TALK

ART AND BEAUTY

We are influenced by art and beauty more than we ever realize. Their appreciation is born within us. Our interest is increased when we are happiest for then it is that we take the time to give each attention. Nearly everything created has a touch of art to it and the thing itself becomes an example of beauty.

Take our rugs, our furniture, our book and magazine covers, our clothes, our many decorations in the home, our gardens, and the endless number of things that furnish our homes, offices and buildings. Never have art and beauty so entered into homes and public buildings as now.

Art and beauty are for enjoyment. The Creator put art and beauty into everything of this earth. Note what intricate things the leaves of our trees are, as well as our flowers. The whole universe is a creation of art and beauty as well as a thing of wonder. How perfectly formed is everything in nature. from the snowflake we have adopted endless designs. Why were they so beautifully formed? We get close to God when we meditate upon all the art and beauty put into this world.

We live far more efficient and happy lives when we surround ourselves with art and beauty. I never see the same things in a place I love. There are new things forever attracting my attention and amazement. The child is fascinated by color. A friend today brought me a great collection of sweet peas. They stand upon my desk as I write. Man, with all his God-given genius has never, and never will, make anything so beautiful.

Most of our designs and color effects have been borrowed from nature. I would say rather that we have taken them, for we can never pay back to nature anything that she has given freely to us. The human form is a thing of art and beauty, especially if it is not abused. I can understand a woman's love for beautiful gowns and accessories. I love my small summer island retreat for God has scattered so much art and beauty about it. It's a natural cathedral to me!

Darius the Great of Persia Originated Postal Service

(Writen for Unesco by Philip Soljak)

Many nations have contributed to the advancement of the oldest of public services, the world's postal systems. Today, the whole vast international traffic of the public mail is under the supervision of the Universal Postal Union (UPU). Yet, it is only within the past 150 years that the letter post itself has been made available to people generally. Before then the post was in most cases reserved for royalty, the aristocracy and State officials.

The first recorded post was founded about 500 B.C. by Darius the Great of Persia, who used relays of horsemen to send messages throughout his vast empire, ranging from India to western Egypt. Macedonian, Egyptian and Roman rulers followed suit. Chinese emperors meanwhile devised an elaborate courier system which Marco Polo described centuries later during his journey to the court of the Grand Khan.

Among the Western countries the Romans raised the post to an efficiency surpassed only in modern times. Julius Caesar's letters to Cicero, written from Britain, reached Rome in 26 days. Letters carried along the same route were still taking a month as late as 1800.

The word "post" dates from the Roman period. It is derived from the Latin positus meaning "placed," because horses were placed at set distances to carry dispatches.

In 1635 Britain's postmaster, Thomas Witherings, established a public service between London and Edinburgh. Rates, payable by the recipient, were 2d for a letter conveyed under 80 miles and 8d to Scotland. Witherings also organized a foreign service through France, with the consent of the French Government.

In 1653 Renouard de Villayer created a local post for Paris, which was run from a central office. Under this scheme, the many letter boxes set up in the streets of Paris were emptied several times daily. The postal charge (one sou) was paid by the sender, and the receipt slip accompanying the delivery thus constituted the first use of a form of postage stamp.

The regular international governmental, or official, post dates from 1670, when England and France established the "Lyons Mail" by special treaty. England provided twice - weekly mail packets across the Channel, and France furnished the overland service to Lyons. Fees to this point were prepaid, but charges for further transmission were collected from the addressee.

An Anglo-French treaty of 1713 provided a basis of accounting for transit mails, which continued with little change until 1870. Letters could be franked to Italy, Spain and Turkey. Accounting between the English and French post offices was based on the total of amounts due on separate letters, mail by mail.

In North America, Benjamin Franklin expanded the inter-colonial post and in 1755 started a packet service from New York to England. The Continental Congress founded an independent post when war broke out between Britain and her American colonies in 1775.

The destinies of empires may depend on the mails, as was illustarted during this conflict. In October 1777, British General ("Gentleman Johnny") Burgoyne was waiting at Saratoga, north of New York, for General Howe to advance up the Hudson Valley and join forces with him. London officials sent their instructions to Howe by too slow a ship, and Burgoyne was isolated and overwhelmed by the Americans.

This victory was a turning point in the war, for it encouraged France, Spain and Holland to support the American open. Bernard Shaw incorporated this incident in his play The Devil's Disciple.

By 1790 the British mailcoach service, founded by William Pitt six years before, was carrying letters and parcels at half the cost of the postboy system, but rates rose rapidly during the Napoleonic wars.

By 1833 an Englishman was paying 1s. 5d to mail a letter 700 miles. Sir Rowland Hill, urging that rates should be based on weight, not on distance carried, proposed the adoption of a uniform 1d fee, and prepayment by postage stamps. Both reforms were in force by 1840 and soon after were followed in the United States, France and Germany. Before long, Britain was also first with cheap rates for newspapers and books.

A famous pioneer service was the American "Pony Express," which carried mail in less than ten days over a distance of 2,000 miles from St. Joseph (Missouri) to San Francisco during 1860 and 1861. This relay of 80 riders and 400 horses covered the distances in one third the time taken by stage coach. Braving blizzards, floods and attacks by Indians, these horsemen won a renown which time has not diminished.

As international mails expanded, more postal treaties were concluded. But due to the many differences in rates and procedures in various countries, rapid and accurate handling of the mails became almost impossible. In 1863, at the suggestion of the United States, an international conference in Paris agreed on a code to improve and simplify international postal relations.

Progress was delayed by the American Civil War and the Franco-Prussian War. During 1870-1871, besieged Parisians organized a pigeon and balloon post to Tours. This was the first regular airmail. Three hundred and sixty pigeons carried microphotographed dispatches. During the same period baloon postmen made 63 ascents, transporting over 3,000,000 letters and 91 passengers, despite attacks by high-firing German guns.

Meanwhile Dr. Heinrich von Stephan, German postmaster-general, was preparing a plan for an international postal union. In 1874, Switzerland convened at Berne a congress at which all the European countries, the United States and Egypt were represented. The result was the International Postal Convention which came into force in 1875.

This treaty provided for uniformity in treatment of correspondence, simplification of accounts and reduction of rates within limits. Rates were to be based on weight rather than distance.

The agency thus founded was named the Universal Postal Union in 1878 and by 1900 included almost every country in the world. In 1948 the Union became a Specialized Agency of the United Nations.

The basic principle of the UPU is that, for postal purposes, all Member States form a single territory. Each member undertakes to transmit mails entrusted to it by the best means of communication it uses for its own mails. Thus each country today enjoys full use of the railway, shipping, and air mail services of the whole world.

Organization of the UPU is simple but effective. Most questions are settled by the countries directly concerned, but for matters concerning all members an international bureau is maintained at Berne to collect and publish information and to help settle international accounts. These are based on a return, taken every three years, of one month's correspondence.

The Universal Postal Convention is revised every five years by the UPU Congress, to which all members send delegates. The UPU Congress which was held this year in Brussels during July, took decisions which will lead to a wider application of lower international postal rates for newspapers, magazines, books, maps and printed music. These concessions, based on recommendations by Unesco or inspired by its aims for the free flow of information:

1.—Allow all newspapers, books and magazines sent abroad to enjoy a 50 per cent reduction in rates, regardless of sender.

2.—Ensure that rates for publications sent abroad will parallel the favorable rates for publications posted within a country.

3.—Allow literature for the blind to be mailed free of charge.

4.—Broaden an existing scheme permitting payment in national currency, at local post offices, for subscriptions to foreign newspapers and magazines, and their dispatch at low rates.

This service will be greatly simplified, so that many more countries may be able to participate.

Today the Union's members handle over 60,000,000,000 letters annually. Their airliners speed across the skies with tons of mail. This is a far cry from the turbaned horsemen of ancient Persia, the cross-Channel cutters of Queen Elizabeth's time, or the reckless riders of Caesar's day or those of the Pony Express. Personal Health Talks

ALL THAT SNIFFLES IS NOT C R I

Lest sophomorones feel impelled to enlighten me about the common ailments of the better class, may I quote one of those long long sentences for which a certain health columnist is notorious, from p. 8 of the booklet Call it C-R-1, (for which send 25 cents and self-addressed envelope):

A state hard to distinguish from ordinary infectious or communicable coryza may be caused by (a) hay fever; (b) hyperesthetic rhinitis or individual sensitivity to some foreign protein (akin to asthma in origin), (c) by effect of certain medicines in persons with idiosyncrasy, notable iodides; (d) mechanical variations in the general circulation from casual environmental changes in persons subject to chronic lesions of upper respiratory tract such as chronic rhinitis, thickened or hypertrophied turbinates, chronic sinusitis . . .

A peculiarity of these noncommunicable types of coryza is that the attack is abrupt in onset and it ceases just as abruptly.

Such sudden spells of stuffiness of the nasal passages, watery oozing or drip from the nose and perhaps excessive sneezing are commonly ascribed to drafts, insufficient heat, insufficient clothing and the like. This misapprehension acounts for the difficulty of teaching such persons that drafts, sudden changes of temperature and the like have nothing to do with the cri.

Old timers within and without the medical profession may regard my teachings about the cri (kree)—the Common Respiratory Infections which cause three-fourths of the illness attended by physicians and surgeons —as the vagaries of a nut. But I find a good deal of mental as well as physical comfort and reassurance in my nutty notions about exposure to cold, dampness, drafts, insufficient clothing, sudden changes of weather or temperature. And I feel sorry for people who worry about such things.

Dr. Leonard Hill, noted English physiologist, is a nut after my own heart. As I quote in the C-R-I book, he said:

"It is absurd to put on an overcoat when going out for a walk. It is good to go out and be braced by feeling cold and so be impelled to take vigorous exercise."

But, shucks, who ever goes out for a walk in America if there is a car, taxi, bus, train or other way to ride?

By the same token, I venture to say now that the weather is not bad, it is absurd and harmful to bundle youngsters up in coats, sweaters, leggings, caps, overshoes, mufflers and the like when they go out to play in the snow or cold.

That tears it, I expect. Go ahead and give me for what.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Ovaries and Sex

When my right ovary was removed a nurse told me that all my children would be one sex, probably female. Is this true?
Mrs. L.J.W.)

Answer—No.

Old A. J. Coincidence?

I have taken calcicaps six months for shoulder pains. Could not raise my arms shoulder high. In three months I was completely relieved of the pain and regained full use of my arms. Also, believe it or not, head noises, dizziness and deafness, from which I had suffered for many years, have entirely cleared up . . .
(A.M.G.)

Answer — Thank you. All I know is that taking calcium and vitamin D, as described in pamphlet Calcium and 'Rheumatiz, (for which send stamped, self-addressed envelope) can do no harm, and I believe it does much good.

Pimples

Niece, 15, has been going to the doctor for a year for pimples but so far without much benefit. She has used— cream for her face.
(Mrs. W.S.)

Answer—Use no cream, oil or other cosmetic which might be suitable for one with an old skin. Plain soap and water is best for your skin. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for pamphlet on Acne-Blackheads and Pimples Inclose 25 cents if you also would like booklet Save Your Skin which contains numerous recipes for the complexion and various skin troubles.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The principle of establishing a fish and game sanctuary in areas that are hard hit by the tourist business is spreading to many parts of Canada. Some of the most prosperous tourist sections are in districts where fairly numerous summer cottages have been long established. Resort owners and professional guides, equipped with power boats and big launches take out fishing parties and comb and rake the shores and the best fishing shoals so that the fishing is being deleted at a rate never contemplated either by nature or by the permanent summer residents. By getting the resort owners and cottagers together to petition the provincial government to set aside certain areas as sanctuaries in which no fishing is permitted, some conservation-minded people are assuring at least a small crop of fish to seed the waters round about.

One such district with which I am familiar got the idea of creating the whole region into a sanctuary which was to be divided in half, and each half closed for a period of two years alternately. This would give some rest to half the area. It worked fine until the resort owners and professional guides of other districts miles away learned that an area that had been closed for two years was about to be opened. And they swarmed in, during the first three weeks of the season, and practically obliterated the fish in the newly opened area.

The fact has to be faced that resort owners and professional guides must be looked upon, for all practical purposes, as commercial fishermen. They are in the same category as commercial fishermen. ish is money to them. Those who fish for sport and recreation, who want an occasional meal of fish, and who kill very few fish in a summer, must in their own interest hold the view that those who provide fishing for money are commercial fishermen. Some resort owners are conservation minded. Some have in mind the protection of their investment in future years. But by far the most of them just love to hear the cash register ring. So let us take a businesslike attitude towards them. Let us all be business men, and protect our respective interests.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

JUDGE NOT

Human nature is an enigma. We think we have people all figured out, and behold, we find our judgment was entirely wrong. We look at some people and call them bad. They stand for everything in life which we abhor. Then some day they suddenly perform an unselfish act, or a heroic act, and we know that beneath that revolting exterior was the soul of a real person. Others whom we regard highly, disappoint us. We recall with sadness that the gods always have clay feet.

Because we know so little about the motives of our fellows and because we are so ignorant of the background of their behavior, we should refrain from judging them. Let us judge evil acts on every occasion. The Bible does not expect us to stand about with a vacant look on our faces pretending that we do not know the difference between good and evil. We know enough to denounce evil when we see it and to praise good. But we do not know enough to denounce the evildoer. Personality is beyond the reach of the understanding. Evil people sometimes surprise us with their goodness and seemingly good people often devastate us with their compromise and meanness.

The formula is: Pass judgment on sin wherever you encounter it, but never pass judgment on the sinner. The judgment of persons is God's prerogative.

Price Index Gets New Look But Figures Just as Grim Despite Official Trimming

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's official price index has been more than two years getting its "new look," but when it's finally established about next October it will be about as hard to look at as it ever was.

Although it will be slimmed to a mere silhouette of its former self, the index will still reflect the hard facts of current price trends. They now lean towards a return to the old cost-of-living peak of 191.5 reached last December.

But because the index will be based on a new point in time, 1949 instead of the 1935-39 period, the peak will appear to have suddenly slipped down to around 120.00. Actually the peak will not have changed because the figures are different.

Job Of Conversion

It's just a matter of converting the old cost-of-living index to the new consumer price index. The Bureau of Statistics tackled the conversion job to give Canadians a more up-to-date view of consumer prices in line with the climb in living standards.

The United States is doing a similar conversion job. It started before Canada, but Canada hopes to get her new price measure out first. The U.S. is switching its postwar base to 1947-49. This also will make the U.S. index look as though it had dropped suddenly.

Officials here agree there will be some confusion, and for that reason they plan to run the new and old index styles side-by-side for several months, dropping the old gauge entirely early next year.

The change is simply a matter of shifting the base period. Under the old index, the 1935-39 prices equalled 100. Any increase in prices since then was added to the 100 figure. That provided a general gauge on how consumer prices moved all through the war and post-war years.

Later Standard

The new index compares prices with four years after the end of the year, the 1949 fixtures. Prices in that year—which had climbed sharply since the previous 1935-39 base period—form the 100 base level for the new index. Increases since then, and there have been quite a few, will be added to the new 100.

The switch is nothing new, for periodic changes of the base level have been going on ever since Canada started her first retail price index in 1913.

Under the current 1935-39 base, the cost-of-living index last June, for example, was 188.0; under the new consumer price index it would be about 118.0. It may give you a sudden jolt to find the official index dropping so sharply. If you don't realize at first the base level has been switched, a glance at the pocket-book may show things haven't changed.

Prisoners of War Exchanged Without Negotiation, Contract

By LARRY ALLEN

HANOI, Indo-China (AP)—Prisoners of war are being exchanged by the French union forces and the Communist-led Vietminh in Indo-China although there never has been any negotiation or agreement between them for releasing captives.

From time to time—with no hint of regularity—the Vietminh release numbers of French union soldiers and officers who struggle back into the French-held Red River delta.

The French, too, liberate many Vietminh, often as a special order in connection with state ceremonies or events.

For instance, on France's independence day—July 14—High Commissioner Jean Centourneau ordered 70 enemy prisoners of war liberated. A few days earlier, 159 French union prisoners of the Vietminh reached Hanoi.

The Vietminh prisoners of the French, well-treated and well-fed, are turned back to their own territory in good health.

On the other side of the picture, French union soldiers freed by the Vietminh report generally that while they were not inhumanely or badly treated by their Vietminh captors, they suffered much because of insufficient food and medicines. The Vietminh long have been reported extremely short on both.

French planes, flying over northern Indo-China close to the Chinese frontier where most of the Vietminh prisoners of war camps seem to be located, several times have dropped tons of food and medicines for French union captives.

No Red Cross Aid

It seems to be a long trek to freedom for these prisoners even when they are liberated by the Vietminh. The freed captives must walk anywhere from 100 to 150 miles before their escorts disappear and they continue on into Hanoi.

The Vietminh were reported to have freed 240 men early in July, but only 159 reached Hanoi. Apparently, the others died on the way.

The Vietminh are estimated to have around 4,000 French union prisoners of war. Over 50,000 Vietminh are held by the French, but the majority of these are believed to be civilian internees, with possibly 10,000 or so from Vietminh fighting units.

There has been no attempt by either side to arrange a big exchange of prisoners in the bitter six-year war.

No representatives of the International Red Cross have been able to get into Vietminh camps to check up on conditions. The French Red Cross has organized agencies to radio messages from families to Vietminh-held captives, and tries to arrange deliveries of letters and parcels.

Al Balding In Semi-Finals For Millar Cup

TORONTO (CP)—Al Balding, a golfing terror to assistant professionals, trained his long-driving clubs on the veterans today.

The 23-year-old assistant pro at the host Toronto Islington Club slammed his way into the Millar professional golf championship semi-finals yesterday by knocking off two of the younger competitors, medallist Bob Cunningham, Jr., and Bill Thompson, both assistants like himself.

Balding, pre-tournament favorite, sent Cunningham to the sidelines with a one-up victory in the morning matches and then put Thompson away by a similar margin in the afternoon. Cunningham, who gave up football for golf, is assistant to his father at Toronto St. George's. Thompson, assistant at Toronto York Downs, for years has been a rival of Balding's in competitions for assistant pros.

Meets Chinery

In the semi-final round today, Balding went up against Clair Chinery of Hamilton Chedoke. The other bracket pitted Bob Burns from Fort Erie Cherry Hill against Stan Horne of Montreal Islesmere. The final match was slated for the afternoon.

Defending champ Normie Himes of Kitchener Westmount was eliminated by Burns, two up.

Chinery defeated Gordon Brydson, Toronto Mississaug, one up—the same as he did last year only to be beaten by Himes in the final. Horne knocked out Jack Little of Toronto Oakdale.

Record Wheat, Barley Crops Forecast by Bureau as Part Of Bumper Crops Expected

OTTAWA (CP)—Record wheat and barley crops were forecast yesterday by the Bureau of Statistics as part of the bumper grain crops expected across the country this year.

The statistician estimated a 656,000,000-bushel wheat crop and a 295,333,000-bushel barley crop.

Several more weeks of warm weather are needed to ensure ample supplies of high-quality wheat, the bureau said. A change in weather or other difficulties could cut harvests sharply.

Barring such troubles, western grain farmers could expect almost an embarrassment of riches. The embarrassment may come in a glut of normal storage space.

eed Storage

Grain experts said community halls, arenas and other buildings may have to be pressed into service to hold the harvest.

Transport controller R.W. Milner said that last year railroads and ships set grain-handling records in the face of "very complex difficulties" and he is confident that this year a "well co-ordinated effort will move the grain into export channels in a satisfactory manner."

The wheat crop estimate is more than 10,000,00 bushels higher than last year's 552,000,000 and well above the previous record of 567,000,000 bushels in 1928. Prairie wheat production is estimated at 632,000,000 bushels.

Higher Yield

The bureau said wheat acreage is 25,994,000 acres, up from the 25,254,400 acres planted last year. But most of the forecast crop increase was expected to come from a higher yield—estimated at 25.2 bushels to the acre as against last year's 21.9.

The oat crop was estimated at 465,668,000 bushels, down from last year's 488,191,000; the rye crop at 24,911,000, up from 17,647,000 last year; and the flaxseed crop at 12,996,000, up from 9,897,000

The mixed-grain crop is estimated at 60,392,000 bushels, down from last year's 68,509,000, and the potato cr[illegible]1,000 bushels, up from 48,355,000.

FINGERLINGS PLANTED

CORNWALL (CP)—The St. Lawrence river had its first seeding with bass minnows this week. The Cornwall Fish and Game Club Council and Department of Lands and Forests officials planted 500 smallmouth black bass fingerlings in the broad river.

Northern Electric Girls Defeat Marines 2-1

Three errors in the bottom of the seventh inning gave Northern Electric Ladies' Softball team the run they needed to down the Peterborough Marines 2-1 in a game played under the lights at Alemite Field last night. The game was cut short in the seventh inning by rain.

The exceptionally low scoring girls' game moved along smartly until the rain came. Both McGrath, on the hill for the winners and Derry, doing the flinging for the visitors, gave up three hits in going seven frames.

McGrath walked three and struck out four. Derry was the victim of loose support in the field as she walked only one, and struck out nine.

Marines scored the first run in the sixth inning with white leading off with a single to right field. She took second on a passed ball, and came round to score on two fielder's choice plays in the infield.

Tied in Sixth

Northern tied the score in their half of the sixth with Bovay clouting a double to right to open the inning. She took third as Butler grounded out short-to-first, and scored when Waite got a life on an error to second. Reeves was safe on a fielder's choice, but Butcher popped to short and Sequin struck out to end the inning.

McGrath, for Northern, got a life on an error to the third baseman to start the seventh. She was forced at second on Reeves' roller, but Reeves went all the way to third on another error at third and scored on an error at second.

That proved to be the winning run as the rains descended and cut off further play.

Lineups:

Peterborough: Page 3b; McMahon 1b; White cf; Hart c; Weir lf; McGurrin ss; Dunk 2b, Naylor rf; Derry p.

Northern Electric: H. Reeves 3b; Young 1b; Bovay lf; Butler ss; Waite cf, B. Reeves c; Butcher 2b Sequin rf; McGrath p.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

Somewhat Unusual

Of the three species of rail found in Canada, the sora is by far the most common. Yet, because of its choice of habitat, appearance and cautious behavior it is really seldom seen by the average person.

This is a shore bird of an unusual type that haunts cattail marshes, bogs, patches of reeds beside rivers, where it runs in and out of the reeds unnoticed.

Remembering the expression, "Thin as a rail," we realize that a "laterally compressed" bird (as the bird book speak of it) can easily hide among cattails. Smaller than a robin, the sora is brown above and grey beneath with black on the face and a black bib resembling that of a male English sparrow, and pale greenish grey legs and feet. Unlike most shore birds, its yellow bill is short, similar to a chicken's. The rear view reminds us of a deer, because its little turned-up tail is white underneath.

If we had never heard of a sora's migration, when it visits Bermuda and winters in the West Indies, we might imagine it incapable of flight, as we never see it in the air. It migrates by night, at such low elevations that many individuals are killed by running into buildings.

Good Swimmer

In the breeding grounds it only runs among the lily pads and swims well. Inquisitive by nature, though shy, a sora often starts calling if a stick is thrown into the marsh. In spring its clear, plaintive, ascending "ker-wee" can be heard both by day and by night, and it has several other calls.

This interesting bird lays an average of 10 eggs, but under favorable conditions as many as 18 are sometimes found in one home, woven out of dead leaves and attached to cattails. Then the mother arranges them in 2 or even 3 layers so that she may be able to cover all of them.

A baby sora gets of of its shell in a most unusual way: by sawing off a section instead of puncturing the shell. A tiny, partly bald bit of black fluff with huge feet and toes emerges and immediately knows enough to try and fight any interference and follow a parent. The eggs hatch one a day, and the father keeps the older children in a "dummy nest" that has been prepared.

In autumn soras change their diet from insects and mollusks to seeds. At the first frost they leave our marshes for their southern holiday resorts where their favorite feed is rice.

Prisoner Escapes

BARRIE (CP)—Alvin Bell, 29, of Collingwood escaped from a provincial police guard on the steps of Simcoe County jail last night and disappeared.

Bell, convicted of theft, was being transferred here from Collingwood and was escorted by two provincial policemen. As they walked up the jail steps he suddenly twisted away and escaped, his hands still handcuffed.

Flattering Adaptation

By TRACY ADRIAN

THE toque, which was brand new back in the Sixteen Century and which has had perennial popularity ever since, emerges this season in a chic and modern version.

The one pictured is a most becoming profile toque which is worn slightly tilted and back. It is made of mauve felt and is built on an oval base overlaid with a deep fold of contrasting felt and banded with shaggy, dark gray beaver. This snug fitting little chapeau goes equally well with dresses and suits for afternoon and daytime wear.

Princess Anne Has Happy Time On Birthday

BALMORAL, Scotland (Reuters) Highlight of little Princess Anne's second birthday celebrations yesterday came during a family tea party when—with a squeal of delight—she blew out two candles atop her small iced birthday cake.

The quiet party was held at Balmoral Castle, the royal family's favorite summer home. Her parents, the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh, and her three-year-old brother Charles, were the principal guests.

Also on hand for the festivities were the Duchess of Kent and her two children—Princess Alexandra and Prince Michael—who are vacationing on the Balmoral estate.

Fair-haired, blue-eyed Anne—like all two-year olds—ushered the big day in with a early start.

Well before "mummy" and "papa" were awake, the Duke of Cornwall bounded into Princess Anne Elizabeth Alice Louise's bedroom, and presented the still-sleepy tyke with her first present.

Though royal birthday gifts are generally kept secret, Charles was reported to have given Anne a woolly toy dog.

Aly and Rita Forget Troubles, Daughter Ill

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Aly Khan and his estranged wife, Rita Hayworth, rushed last night to hospital where their daughter, two-year-old Yasmin, was treated after swallowing sleeping pills.

The prince and the actress arrived in separate cars, forgetting at least for a moment their marital difficulties.

The actress told hospital attendants she did not know how the child, who has been ill with whooping cough, obtained the pills. After her stomach was pumped out, Yasmin appeared none the worse for her experience. She was in the hospital about 15 minutes.

Meantime, Ayl Khan has another date to dine today with Rita.

Mr., Mrs. G. H. Luery Celebrate Their Diamond Anniversary

STIRLING.—Mr. and Mrs. George H. Luery, John Street, celebrated their diamond wedding anniversary on Thursday, August 14th.

The day was spent quietly but happily with their friends and relatives and in the evening open house was observed at the home of their son, Mr. Earl Luery and Mrs. Luery.

Mrs. Luery was formerly Nettie Armenia Rosebush, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Rosebush, of Stirling. Mr. Luery was born on the 13th concession of Rawdon township.

Both are in their 80th year, and although Mrs. Luery has not enjoyed the best of health for several years, Mr. Luery is possessed of a robust constitution and his erectness of stature and military stride as he takes his daily walk about town becomes one many years his junior.

On August 14, 1892, Mr. and Mrs. Luery, both of whom were employed in Marmora, were united in marriage at the Rosebush home in Stirling by Rev. Mr. Spencer, Baptist minister.

Moved to Campbellford

Two years later, they moved to Campbellford, and in 1900 they came to Stirling where Mr. Luery was employed by W. R. Mather, local general merchant.

In 1912, he purchased a grocery business from Miss Annie Green but disposed of it the following year and bought the stock of G. W. Anderson's general store, located in the premises now occupied by R. A. Patterson.

In 1936, he disposed of his business to become a commercial traveller and along with his only son, Earl, and grandson, Robert, he continues to service merchants in central and eastern Ontario.

For 37 years he served the municipality as village clerk in a capable and conscientious manner and when he retired in 1948 was the recipient of a gold watch at a complimentary banquet given in his honor.

A host of friends in Stirling and Hastings county join in extending warmest congratulations and good wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Luery on their anniversary.

On Third Finger of Left Hand

To find the answers to the question as to when the first ring was worn (as well as why and how) you have to slosh your way through a swamp-land of fiction, legend, conjecture, and hyberbole. . . .

Consider, for instance, the plain question as to how and why rings first were worn. . . To begin with, try to find out why the engagement and wedding rings are worn on the third finger of the left hand. The general consensus among experts who are supposed to know something about the ring is that the Egyptians believed a vein runs from this finger directly to the heart. That started the custom, they say. The heart is the seat of the emotions. Engagements and weddings are emotional. One plus one equals two. Or does it?

This well-established theory clashes with another "authoritative" assertion, one of many trickling down the bypaths of history and legend. There was a man named Macrobius who may or may not have lived. But Virgil mentions him impressively. So does Chaucer. Macrobius says that rings were worn on the annular (or third) finger to guard the precious setting of the ring from injury. Ignoring entirely the finger-vein-heart theory he says that rings were worn on the third finger for these reasons:

First, the thumbs were most constantly used for ordinary purposes and therefore were unsuitable for a ring; second, the index finger was too exposed for a ring; third, the middle finger was too long; fourth, the little finger was too small. Therefore, Macrobius reasoned, the third finger of the left hand was most adaptable and safe.

And why the left hand? Veins reaching to the heart? Not according to him. He says it was because the right hand was used too much in the course of an ordinary day's activities, whereas the left hand was comparatively "sedentary". The left hand, in other words, was the gracious lady; the right hand, the hard-working man. . . .

And then we find that the Gauls and the Britons issued a code on ring wearing. This, too, did not concern women but men. In the sixteenth century we find that rings were assigned to the wearers' fingers as follows:

To the thumb—for doctors.

To the index finger—for merchants.

To the middle finger—for fools.

To the annular finger—for students (not lovers).

To the auricular (or small) finger—for lovers. . . .

But the safest thing to say here is that the third finger of the left hand did become the finger for engagement and wedding rings far back in Greek and Roman history, but probably not beyond that. And the reason was not because of any finger-vein-heart theory but simply because, as Macrobius said, the left hand was more suitable and the third finger the most convenient.—From "Rings Through the Ages", by James Remington McCarthy, Copyright, 1945, by Harper & Brothers.

Ascorbic Acid Improves Frozen Peaches

Peaches, when properly prepared make a very satisfactory frozen product. However, because they discolor readily, quick, careful handling and special treatment are necessary to prevent darkening. The natural color and flavor of peaches are best and most easily preserved, says C. C. Strachan, Fruit and Vegetable Products Laboratory, Experimental Station, Summerland, B.C., by the addition of ascorbic acid (crystalline vitamin C) to the syrup in which the fruit is packed for freezing.

To each quart of syrup made by dissolving 2 cups of sugar in 3 cups of water, add 1-2 teaspoonful of ascorbic acid, fine crystals or powder. Mix thoroughly but avoid beating in air while stirring. Do not add the ascorbic acid until ready to package the prepared fruit. In packaging, enough syrup should be used to completely cover the fruit. It is important to keep top pieces below the surface in order to prevent surface discoloration. This is readily accomplished by placing a generous crumpled piece of wax paper on top of the fruit beneath the lid.

One quart of syrup is enough for about 8 pint cartons and 1-4 ounce of ascorbic acid will do about 40 pints of fruit. The amount of ascorbic acid added will be about 150 to 175 milligrams per pound of frozen product. If the ascorbic acid is unobtainable from the local locker plant operator, it may be purchased from a drug store. When the precautions mentioned are taken, peaches make a very attractive and flavorable frozen product.

MOUNTAIN REFUGE

High up on the green mountain that looks down and out over the Bay of Quinte, is one of the prettiest modern homes to be seen in this part of the country . . . . A grey ranch house with grey weathered shingled roof, pale yellow trim and coral pink lining under the eaves, it is banked with large coral pink petunias. At the edge of rear stone terrace is a small blue swimming pool. An old wooden rail fence surrounds the property. Two massive tree roots stood on end, make the gateway.

Roof of the house, fence and gate are sprayed with silvery grey shingle stain to give an antiqued effect. The winding driveway is broad covered with crushed grey limestone and edged with the same coral pink giant petunias, which bloom all summer long.

A long white antique rail bench stretches out near the front door and an old school bell hangs from a wooden frame close to the entrance. The place has all the simplicity, the softness, the beauty and the charm of the natural setting round about.

MATCH BOXES

For people who want to be busy with their hands, there's a way to beautify small match boxes for gifts or for sale at bazaars. You cut a small section of a Christmas card scene or part of a notepaper floral design and paste the pieces on either side of the match box. Then you brush over the two flat sides with clear shellac.

Filled with matches, the box makes an attractive yet practical item for dresser, desk or livingroom table. The boxes can be varied to suit the tastes of men or women simply by varying the designs selected for the boxes. Sets of match boxes make attractive little bridge prizes, place card holders and party souvenirs.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A "home-wrecker" at 19?

Alice—let's call her — and her mother disagree.

Alice's mother says that if her daughter goes ahead with the plan she is considering, she will be a home-wrecker. Alice herself says no; that the home in question is teetering on the ragged edge anyhow, and is certainly going to collapse sooner or later whether she has anything to do with it or not.

Alice is only 19. Has she the maturity to size the situation up as it realy is? Is she right in believing that she will make a better wife to the man she thinks she loves, and a better mother to his children, then the woman to whom he is now married?

Here is her story:

"Some time ago, I met a man I liked very much and who seemed interested in me. We had become very good friends when another fellow came to me and told me that Jim was married and had children. When I asked Jim about this, he told me it was true. We talked it all over and I said I wouldn't see him again. I tried hard to forget him but I just couldn't. Even though I dated other fellows, he was always in my mind.

"Then one day Jim phoned and asked me to meet him, saying that he had to talk to me. I did meet him, and he told me the whole story of his marriage. He said that his wife goes to work from two in the afternoon until midnight, and leaves their children either with her mother or some of the neighbors, whichever will keep them. He said she doesn't seem to want to bother with them. She's always 'too tired to be bothered' with his problems, an dhe never can seem to talk to her about anything.

"I felt so sorry for him, and was so much in love with him, that I agreed to date him again, and since then we've dated every chance we've had. At first, he said he wouldn't leave his wife because of the children. He himself came from a broken home, and he doesn't want that to happen to his own children. But lately, he seems to have reconsidered, and says now that he would leave his wife and marry me.

"Our only real trouble comes with my mother. She says it is wrong, under any circumstances, for me to have anything to do with this man because he is married. I know she would be angry with me if I went ahead and married him without her permission, and anyhow I cannot get married without her consent in my state since I'm only 19. She says I would be breaking up a home just as much as though he and his wife were happily married. Another of her arguments is that if he'd leave his wife now, ered' with his problems, and he but I know he wouldn't, if I made a real home for him and the children, which his wife hasn't done.

"Since I sincerely believe he and his wife will part anyhow, would it be wrong for me to consent to marry him and have him divorce his wife for me?"

I would not say, categorically, that it would be wrong for this girl to tell Jim she would marry him. But I think there are some things to be considered before it could be said that it is definitely right.

For one thing, I would want to know why Jim's wife is working. Is she doing it because the added financial help is needed for the home in which there are two young children to be brought up? Or is it merely because she is bored with being a home-maker and mother? In other words, it is important to make sure whether or not Jim's side of the story is completely fair. I would also want to know if Jim is as ready to listen to his wife's problems as he wants her to be where his own are concerned; if he has always taken his full share of responsibility for the home and the care of the children; if he has always been as thoughtful and considerate of his wife as he should have been. In short, is the trouble between them actually all his wife's fault, as he appears to have made this girl believe?

It is perfectly possible that the story he told the girl checks in every respect. But I think the only way she can be reasonably sure that she is right, and her mother is wrong, on the question of whether or not he might leave a second wife, too, is for her to get the answers to some of the above questions.

But if the facts about the marriage are as they have been presented by the husband, and if he shows, by taking definite steps to end it, that she is correct in believing that the break-up would have come about anyhow, then I can see no wrong in her agreeing to become his second wife once the way has been properly cleared, and she is of an age to make and carry out her own decisions.

QUESTION:

. . .I think it is wonderful the way you can give us almost any recipe we ask for. It is the first thing I turn to in the paper . . . I am very interested in canning and preserving but as this is only my second year at it I have a lot of things to learn. . .I wonder if you could print a recipe for preserving maraschino cherries made from sour red cherries, also one for canning cherries for pie. I would prefer the open kettle method, as I'm working and have not too much time. I have a recipe for pickling these cherries which I am going to try out. . . —M. W. (see below).

QUESTION:

. . . .Would you kindly send me recipe for maraschino cherries?—Helen B.S.

ANSWER:

(To both M. W. and Helen B. S.)

Sour red cherries cannot be used successfully for maraschino cherries. They require the firmness (a different cellular structure) of sweet cherries to result in the plump maraschino cherries we are accustomed to.

MARASCHINO CHERRIES

Three lbs. sweet cherries (preferably Royal Anne—white cherries which give truer maraschino color as they are light to begin with and take on the red coloring more effectively than dark sweet cherries); weigh the cherries after stemming and pitting; 2 1-2 lbs. sugar, 1 oz. liquid red coloring, 1 oz. almond flavoring, 3-4 cup water. Before stemming or pitting soak fresh picked Royal Anne cherries in cold water 2 hours, then stem and pit them, keeping them as whole as possible. Weigh. Put sugar and water in kettle and stir until sugar is dissolved. Add coloring and cherries and cook slowly until cherries are red and syrup is fairly thick—but do not scorch. Remove from heat, cool a little, add flavoring, let stand to cool, then pour into sterile jars and seal. Store in cool dark place. Cherries will shrink a little because this excessive amount of sugar causes slight shrinkage. The commercial method of preparing Maraschino cherries involves bleaching the cherries and this is too complicated and risky with home equipment for me to describe in this column.

CANNED SOUR CHERRIES

Wash cherries with stems on in cold running water. It is desirable to do this for at least 1-2 hour for this "plumps" them and brings any worms which might be present to surface. Stem and pit them. Pack in sterile jars. Cherries for pies may be covered with boiling water or syrup. If syrup is used the usual proportions of 1 cup sugar to 1 1-2 cups water are made into boiling hot syrup, pour over cherries in jar, leaving 1-2 inch headspace. Seal to within 1-8 turn of tight and process in hot water bath 20 minutes for pints, 25 minutes for quarts.

Open kettle method is not recommended. If you prefer hot pack you may wash, stem and pit cherries. Bring to boil in syrup (1 cup sugar to each 1 1-2 cups water) and simmer 3 minutes. Pack hot in sterile jars leaving 1-2 inch headspace. Process in boiling water bath 15 minutes for pints, and quarts. The advantage of this latter method is that the cherries do not shrink so much in the jars after being processed. It conserves jar space.

QUESTION:

. . .I'm following your column more closely than ever because it is important to me too. . .I've just about run out of ideas for quick lunches. . . (we both) eat at home at noon and have an hour, part of which I have to use to get the meal ready. I was wondering if you had any suggestions for menus that could be prepared ahead of time or in quick order? There are no doubt many brides in a similar position who would appreciate some help from you . . . maybe in the "Special-Purpose Menu" column.—L. D.

ANSWER:

I'm so glad you asked for menus for quickly prepared lunches. I feel I have been neglecting the brides lately. I'm enthused over the following recipe for

JELLIED VEAL AND HAM LOAF

I bought 1 1-2 lbs. stewing veal which was very lean for $1.04. To this I added 4 cups water, 2 teaspoons salt, and 1 cut-up outer stalk of celery, covered and simmered 1 3-4 hours. I removed the veal from the liquid and forced through grinder. To it I added 2 1-2 cups well-packed ground smoked boiled pork shoulder (leftover ham). I added 2 1-2 tablespoons lemon juice to enough cold water to make 1-2 cup and added 2 1-2 tablespoons gelatin to them to soak. Dissolve this soaked gelatin in 3 cups of the strained meat broth. Taste for salt. If it needs it add some and 1-4 teaspoon pepper, and, if you have any 1-2 teaspoon MSG or Ac-cent. Add all the meat and pour into molds of enamel or porcelain to chill and set. This is wonderfully tasty and slices beautifully.

Interesting Discoveries at Jericho

Kathleen Kenyon, director of the British School of Archeology in Jerusalem, has recently been digging on the site of the ancient city of Jericho and her talk about it was recorded for the BBC by the Hashemite Jordan Broadcasting Service. Much of Jericho's history was contained in its "tell", tell being the Arabic word for the mound which covers an ancient city. Jericho's tell rises some eighty-five feet, most of it made of the ruins of successive villages and cities built on top of each other. The excavators had to disentangle this vast maze of houses, storage pits, ovens, defensive walls and destruction levels, and assign each to its correct period. Unexpected discoveries concerned the last stages of Jericho's history, as it appeared in the Biblical story, but equally important were discoveries about the earlier stages.

Even some seven thousand years ago the people of Jericho were building solid little houses which may represent some of the earliest architecture in the world. The walls were compactly built of clay bricks set in clay mortar, and the bricks themselves were fascinating, shaped by hand without a mold, and rather like flattened cigars. To provide a surface for the mortar to adhere to the brickmaker made a series of impressions with his thumb in herringbone pattern, so clearly that they could almost see the markings on the individual prints. The wall surfaces and floors were covered with a fine red clay with a highly polished surface. A rather gruesome discovery was made beneath each of the two houses so far excavated.

This was a child's body, possibly buried as a sacrifice. In an adjoining room lay a skull, carefully set upright in the corner. This was possibly to assure to the inhabitants the wisdom of its owner, for the skull clearly belonged to a very old man.

They found that Neolithic Jericho was no village but an extensive town, a revolutionary discovery that made its claim to be one of the very earliest centres of civilization a strong one. Work on the city defences showed that a large population was there at a very early date and that Jericho was a walled city as early as 3000 B.C.

"In the course of the next fourteen hundred years there were no less than twelve successive defensive walls" said Miss Kenyon, and this succession of defences reflected Jericho's chequered career. Its favored position on the Jordan made it a coveted prize and it was always liable to be attacked by nomads from the desert who wished to penetrate to the richer lands of Palestine. An attack of this kind was described in the Book of Joshua but they were surprised to find in the area they examined no trace of any city of Joshua's period, some time between 1400 and 1250 B.C. From the remains of defences they knew that a large city had been there until at least 1600 but no buildings of that or earlier periods survived on the West side of the tell.

Their most spectacular finds came from the tombs which lay North of the tell. These were small oval chambers cut in the rock and used by generations of the same family. Each new burial pushed aside the remains of earlier ones until the floor of the tomb was a jumble of bones and offerings. Some of these offerings were particularly lovely, and one tomb was unique in Palestinian archaeology for preserved in it was a remarkable collection of wooden furniture and vessels. Probably nowhere but in Egypt have wooden objects from so long ago as 1600 B.C. been preserved. Basketwork, too, was preserved and, most remarkable of all, the hair from the skulls, "one lot with three combs in it and even the dried up brains—with the convolutions perfectly visible—inside the skulls", said Miss Kenyon. "Our work is not yet finished," she said, "further surprises and excitement undoubtedly await us. And I am sure, when we stop work this season, we shall feel that we must come back again."

GOOD MANNERS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband passed on recently, and I was determined to do what I wanted to do, and what I know is the right thing to do. . .continue to use his name in my name —Mrs. John Hall (for example). But it seems to me that mighty few people know that this is the correct form of name for a widow to use, and after my husband's going, so many, many people. . . among them so many I should think would know better . . .began writing to me as "Mrs. Mary Hall," instead of Mrs. John Hall. Now, Mrs. Beeckman, I just won't give up using "Mrs. John Hall." But how in the world can I get people . . .my friends, organizations, stores. . .to continue to address envelopes to "Mrs. John Hall?"—Mary.

Good for you . . . and all power to you in your proud and correct decision! Of course you want to "wear your husband's name" with loving devotion and pride (just as I'm sure you are continuing to wear your wedding ring on the finger where he put it on your wedding day). My suggestion is that every time you possibly can, you list your name as "Mrs. John Hall" . . .of course in the telephone book, in your charge accounts (write the stores requesting this form of name, to be sure), in any club or organization listing, on your visiting-cards or informals. Two very important ways to impress this name: (1) use printed letter-paper, for all non-social purposes, with Mrs. John Hall and your address printed on top of the sheets and on the flaps of the envelopes; and (2) write this form of name on the flaps of all envelopes of social correspondence.

Cheers. . . when a small plate is served under the iced-tea glass!

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Which is better service for the tall iced-tea glass—to have: a small coaster under it, or a small plate?—Helen T.

Let's sing praises and thanks, high and deep and most enthusiastic, to the hostess or host or whoever-it-is who serves the iced-tea glass on a small plate! With a small coaster under the glass (the service we usually encounter) there is no room to put the iced-tea spoon. . . and we must go through the awkward procedure of leaving the spoon in the glass and holding it out of the way with the index finger, as best one can, while drinking the tea. But with that welcome small plate, there's the convenient "harbor" for the spoon!

Taking the weekend guests to church

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Over the weekends the last two weeks in August and the first two weeks in September, my husband and I are having several guests. We are uncertain as to what is expected of us as to taking them to church on Sunday morning. Should we just expect them to go with us to our church? —Leila S.

No. Courtesy requires that you talk over with their their preference . . .as to whether they would like to go to church with you, or to a church of their own denomination. Then you and your husband must arrange your driving schedule accordingly.

BEAUTY

Figures take to curves.

If she will make an effort, she can become curvaceous.

During those frenzied hours when you trail through the shops looking for becoming dry goods you are bound to notice that early fall fashions show the nipped in waist-line and pleasing hip curves. Everything is more and more feminine in expression, some items alomst Victorian. If every woman had the ideal figure, buying clothes would be simple and an ecstatic joy. Alas, every cash-customer hasn't the shape that fashion demands, in which event shopping may be mild torture to the soul.

There was a tme when the skinny little slimp was the envy of her sisters. Not now. The bean pole figurette is looked upon as half portion of a mans hug and pretty much out of the picture. She yearns for a normally developed bust and hips—though restrained—that are worthy of the name. If she will make the effort, she can become curvaceous. Her appetite may have to do a turnabout and she may have to cut down on her activities, taking time out now and then to catch her breath, which most skinnies just don't do. They are ever on the go, living on their nerve forces.

A young women should have a certain amount of adipose upholstery to create pleasing lines. The small waist doesn't mean much unless there are neat curves above and below it. Adipose tissues are developed when one has a balanced diet, gets the required amount of fats, sweets and starches as well as proteins.

Often the curveless figure is due to malnutrition. Not enough vitamins or mineral salts. Thin girls have a reputation for being finicky eaters. They have a few favorite dishes and those are not enough to provide fuel for the physical motors. Some of them fancy that they can live on a pickle and a lettuce leaf a day. They are the despair of their mothers who are educated along dietary lines these days.

If a girl wants a pretty figure bad enough she will change her eating habits without grumbling or complaint. She should start the day with fruit, a hot cereal with plenty of sugar and cream, a beverage. If the cereal is omitted she should have bacon or an egg. Every day of her life she should drink a quart of rich milk. Milk is not just a beverage, it is a food, containing elements that are necessary for health and well being.

Add to that nine hours of sleep, and mild outdoor activity and the figure will fill out normally.

Durocher Pondering Problem How To Beat Second-Division Clubs

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

The Belleville Redmen, who have come home black and blue after their recent wanderings on the warpath, took a forelock from the Kingston Monarchs in Megaffin happy hunting grounds Thursday night. It was not the nature of the scalp that gave new hope to the local fans, but the impressive way in which the Injuns did the scalping. Vern Goyer's three-run homer over the left field fence in the first inning left the Monarchs bleeding profusely, and when they showed signs of staunching the wounds later in the night, Al Keleher tore away at the bandages with another blow over the left field barrier that was good for two runs and the remedy needed to pull out an 8-5 victory.

The win left the Injuns a game back of the Peterborough Petes, and dumped the Monarchs two games off the pace. Tonight the Monarchs will be hosts to the Petes in Megaffin Stadium and a win would land them right alongside the Reds. Monday night the Redmen will pitch their wigwams on the Fair Grounds for the first time in a week for a joust with the Monarchs, who could, by beating Peterborough tonight, go into a first place tie with the Petes and dump Belleville into the basement, with a win Monday. The season ends Wednesday pee em with the Injuns back in the badlands of the Liftlock City with the league leadership at stake if they can pull out a win for themselves Monday evening. As if this isn't excitement enough, the locals are offering all adult baseball fans a chance to win a Stewart-Warner TV set in a lucky draw at the game Monday night. Your admission ticket is your chance for the prize. If you would like to halve the odds you can buy two tickets with the treasury department of the Redmen shedding no tears.

Sailors of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club will be guests of the RCAF tomorrow afternoon, as the air station stages its annual aeraquatic show. All boats from the local club are expected to sail in the yacht race which is the feature event of the afternoon. All sailors are being asked to be present on the RCAF dock at 2.30 p. m. to receive racing instructions and charts of the course. Following the race all sailors will be served refreshments in the Recreation Centre.

Tomorrow morning and afternoon the first Warden Allen Softball Congress will be held at the Kingston Penitentiary, with the CNR Diesels representing the city in a four-team playoff. At 9.00 a. m. Stan Scrutton's Kingston All-Stars will take on the Kingston Saints, while at 11.00 a. m. Bloomfield Sun-Joys will meet CNR Diesels. Both morning games will be seven-inning affairs. In the afternoon the winners of the morning contests will meet and the losers will play a consolation game, each contest being nine innings.

Tonight, Glen Roy Juniors take on Brockville's Armstrong Plymouths in the first game of their best - of - three first round series for the O. A. S. A. Junior A provincial championship. The Glens have engaged in three exhibition games this week, defeating Wilson Lumber Kings in Tweed Monday night 20-7, Bloomfield Sun-Joys here Tuesday night, 22-2, and the Madoc Juniors in Tweed Thursday night 9-3. They are fit and ready for the crucial series with Brockville, which will be resumed in the St. Lawrence City, Saturday, August 23.

The Point Anne Cementmen, CNR Diesels series is over and the Diesels advance into the first round of the OASA Intermediate A playdowns. The Diesels were at full value for last night's 12-3 triumph, but for a while it looked like the Pointers might pull out a victory. The Diesels did it the hard way, coming from behind with three straight wins after losing the first two games.

* * *

Al Adams, who registered the big win for the Diesels last Monday night when a loss meant elimination, worked seven and one third frames to chalk up the win before giving way To Don Boyle. It is likely that the Diesels will meet Kingston [illegible] in the [illegible] round of the playoffs, and if they do they should knock off the Limestone entry. This year's intermediate entry packs much more batting punch than the Glen Roy squad that dropped two low scoring games in last year's playdowns.

WHAT'S WHAT

Paul's Motel pee wees take on Bryson Reid's squad in the sixth game of their best-of-five series for the pee wee championship, tonight at the CNR Recreation Field at 6.15. They have tied two games in the series. The league leading Schwab's Little Giants are currently awaiting Barrie or Ottawa in the second round of their quest for an OBA provincial title. Glen Roy's pee wee softballers are off to Brooklin this afternoon for the first game of their best-of-three series in the first round of OASA playdowns. The other four teams in the league will battle it out for the Dr. Potter Trophy while the Glens go in search of a provincial title with the Halloran Brothers Trophy already dangling from their belts. Robb Royals and Houston Lumber will tangle in the second game of their bantam playoffs for the city championship Monday night.

Bobby Shantz of Athletics Posts 21st Victory of Year, Pounded Hard by Senators

By RALPH RODEN
Associated Press Sport Writer

Manager Leo Durocher is searching the Polo Grounds for John McGraw's book on how to beat the brains out of the second-division teams.

McGraw won many a pennant for the Giants by rolling up overwhelming margins against the lower-echelon teams of the National League. But Durocher's men are finding them tough customers.

The Giants of 1952 have looked like champs against the pace-setting Brooklyn Dodgers and third-place St. Louis Cardinals, taking 21 of 33 decisions from the two. Against the last four teams—Chicago, Boston, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh—the Giants have won only 38, losing 25.

Brooklyn, on the other hand, has won 53 and lost only nine games to the Cubs, Braves, Reds and Pirates. Against the rest of the league the Dodgers have captured 19 and lost 27.

Blew Fine Chance

The Giants blew a fine opportunity yesterday to gain on the Dodgers by splitting a twi-night doubleheader with the sixth-place Braves while the dodgers dropped an 8-3 decision to Philadelphia Phillies. The Giants trail by 7½.

Larry Jansen had a 2-0 no-hitter after seven innings of the opener, but lost his stuff and bowed 4-3. Max Lanier pitched the Giants to a 3-1 triumph in the second game. The Cardinals trimmed Pittsburgh 5-4, in the only other game. Cincinnati and Chicago were idle.

In the American League, the second-place Cleveland Indians cut the front-running New York Yankees' advantage to two games. The Indians nosed out St. Louis Browns 7-6 in 12 innings, while the third-place Boston Red Sox nicked the Yanks 3-2. The Red Sox trail by 3½ games. In the remaining game, Philadelphia Athletics outlasted Washington 11-7. Chicago and Detroit were not scheduled.

19th For Roberts

Robin Roberts hung up his 19th victory for the Phils in beating the Dodgers. Home runs by Ed Waitkus, Connie Ryan and Del Ennis featured the Phils' assault.

Enos Slaughter and Al Brazle teamed up to give the Cards the nod over the Pirates. Brazle held the Pirates hitless over the final three innings and Slaughter singled home Red Schoendienst in the seventh with the winning run.

The Yanks out-hit the Red Sox 12-6, but stranded nine runners in bowing to Sid Hudson and two relief pitchers. Johnny Lipon's bases-loaded single in the seventh broke a 1-1 tie and won the game.

Harry Simpson tripled home Ray Boone with one out in the 12th to beat the Browns at Cleveland. The Browns enjoyed a 6-2 lead entering the fifth when Luke Easter poled a three-run homer.

Bobby Shantz, the major's biggest winner, suffered his hardest pounding of the season but posted his 21st win for the As. The Senators got 14 hits, including home runs by Jackie Jensen, Ken Wood and Ed Yost.

Tennis

In the senior tennis tournament played at Point Anne Thursday, Point Anne defeated the Quinte club four games to one.

Ladies' doubles — Hilda Finlan and Shiela Bowler of Quinte were beaten by Madge Cowley and Jo Gist of Point Anne 6-4 and 6-3.

First mixed — Diane Wadsworth and Alex Cunningham of Point Anne defeated Iona MacDonald and Thorold Horwood of Quinte 6-8, 6-4 and 6-2.

Second mixed—Gwyneth Bennett and Gordon Huck of Point Anne took two games from the Quinte crew, Mr. and Mrs. Anderson, 7-5 and 6-2.

First men's—Maurice Vollick and Phil Bennett, Quinte, beat Dick Morden and Graham Bell 7-5 and 6-4.

Second men's—Jack MacDonald and Jack Hart of Point Anne defeated Jack Watson and Dan Cowley of the Quinte club, 14-12 and 6-3.

Dick Marlowe Of Bisons Hurls Perfect Game

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dick Marlowe, a Buffalo Bisons' pitcher who had trouble keeping over the .500 mark this year, today took his place in the International League hall of fame as the first hurler since 1910 to hurl a perfect game in the loop.

He beat Baltimore Orioles last night 2-0 and in the process did not permit a batter to reach first base. The 23-year-old native of Hickory, N. C. thus joined Chester Carmichael, another Bison, as the only flingers in the 69-year history of the league to toss a perfect game.

Carmichael hurled his masterpiece against Jersey City Giants on Aug. 9, 1910.

So effective was Marlowe that only five balls were hit to the outfield. He fanned four and forced most of the batters either to pop up or hit weak taps to the infield.

Homer Clincher

Bob Davis hit a home run for the winners and that was enough to clinch the victory for Marlowe whose record for the year now stands at seven victories and seven defeats. The victory also enabled Buffalo to take over fifth place from Baltimore.

Lynn Lovenguth, who was dealt to Syracuse chiefs from the Bisons a couple of weeks ago, tossed a one-hitter as the Chiefs defeated Springfield Cubs 6-0.

He had a no-hitter going until Chris Kitsos singled in the eighth. He gave up five bases on balls. The Chiefs wrapped up the decision with five runs in the seventh.

First-place Montreal Royals defeated Rochester Red Wings 4-3 with Bob Alexander, second of three Royals pitchers getting the victory. Pete Riggins hit two home runs for the losers, driving in all their runs.

Billy De Mars hit a first-inning home run with one on and Toronto Maple Leafs coasted the rest of the way to hang up a 3-1 victory over Ottawa behind Hal Hudson's five-hit pitching.

Remember When

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Babe Ruth, one of baseball's immortals, died in a New York cancer hospital four years ago tonight at the age of 53. In 22 years as a major leaguer, ending in the 1935 season, Ruth hit a total of 714 home runs and his season's mark of 60 homers in 1927 still stands.

STOLE POTATOES

VIRGINIA, Minn. (AP)—Farmer Raymond Raati went to his potato field the other day to check his crop. He was puzzled by the great number of footprints. He got a shovel and dug. He discovered someone had stolen a good share of his potatoes and carefully set the plants back in the ground to conceal the theft.

C.N.R. Diesels to Represent City in O.A.S.A. Playdowns Defeating Cementmen by 12-8

CNR Diesels used home runs and two pitchers to vanquish the Point Anne Cementmen last evening in the fifth and deciding game of their best-of-five series for the right to represent the Belleville and District Softball League in the OASA Intermediate A playdowns, by handing the Pointers a 12-8 loss in a lengthy contest at the Alemite Field.

One of the season's largest crowds was on hand to see the game which was bitterly fought for one hour and forty minutes before the Diesels managed to slug their way to a win.

The Cementmen shuffled their players about like checkers trying to find the right combination, but fell short with their late inning rallies.

The Cementmen opened the scoring in the second frame with Strahan walking with one out, taking second on a wild pitch, moving to third on Green's single, and stealing home as the Diesels vainly tried to run down Green at first.

CNR took the lead in the bottom of the second frame with a two-run rally and were never headed. A single to Vern Goyer, a walk to Leo Goyer, a two-base error by the shortstop on a throw trying to nail Vern stealing third, and a fielder's choice, accounted for the runs. In the third Al Adams opened with a double, took third on a passed ball and scored as Fitzpatrick flied out to centrefield. Corbett walked, stole second, and after Sword flied to centre, scored from second on Vern Goyer's over-the-fence home run in left field.

Pick up Tally

Point Anne picked up a single run in the fourth on a three-base error in right field and a fielder's choice, but the Diesels lengthened their lead in the fifth on another fence-clearing home run to left by Vern Goyer, a double by Leo Goyer, a single by Glen Young and a fielder's choice that were good for two runs.

Buck Burshaw cut off the rally by getting Adams on a grounder to short. The Diesels slammed over three more runs in the seventh on a triple, a single, and two errors. Burshaw was lifted for a pinch hitter in the Point Anne half of the eighth and Pat Maracle came back to pitch the last inning giving up two runs on three bloop hits to the short fields.

Point Anne scored a single run in the seventh on a triple by Green and a fielder's choice. They added three more in the eighth with one out, before Adams was derricked in favor of Don Boyle, who retired the last two men.

The Pointers rallied again in the ninth using a walk to Bradshaw, a single by Elliott, and a triple by Mallory to score two runs with no one out. However, the rally was cut short as Strahan grounded to the mound. Boyle forced Mallory to hold at third and then fired to first to nail Strahan. Meanwhile Mallory, running on a bad knee, broke for the plate and was thrown out as he came in sliding. Buchanan popped to Fitzpatrick to end the game and the series.

Al Adams, in pitching seven and one third frames for the winners, picked up the victory, walking two, striking out one, and giving up six hits and six runs. In relief Don Boyle walked two, struck out none, and gave up two hits for two runs.

Maracle Started

Maracle started for Point Anne but gave way to Burshaw in the fifth. However, he was back in the eighth and in his working time walked three, struck out four, and gave up 10 hits for nine runs. Burshaw gave up two hits for three runs.

Vern Goyer with two home runs and a single in five tries led the winers at the plate. Young had three singles in five tries.

Lineups:

Point Anne: Genereaux, Horwood, Bradshaw, Elliott, Mallory, Strahan, Green, Buchanan, Wood, Burshaw, M. Whalen, B. Whalen, Maracle.

CNR Diesels: Fitzpatrick, Corbett, Sword, V. Goyer, L. Goyer, G. Young, D. Adams, Rogers, A. Adams, Boyle.

Bob Dobbie paced the Thistle attack with six counters with Don Gear scoring five.

Bob Gear and Jack Mann both scored a pair for the Athletics while Doug Smith, Max Wolleyn, Jim McMahon, Al Frick and Bill Bradshaw scored two.

Elgins Catch Fire But Too Late In Intercounty

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Thomas Elgins have caught fire—but too late. The Elgins lounged in the cellar of the Intercounty senior baseball league for most of the season and now, with playoff positions decided, they break out in a victory rash.

Last night they picked up their fourth straight by edging the league-leading Kitchener Panthers 4-3. London Majors, tied with St. Thomas in fifth place, whipped the third-place Brantford Red Sox for the second night running, 7-3, while Guelph Maple Leafs, in second slot, walloped Galt Terriers 15-4 to cut Kitchener's lead to two games.

Don Summers held the Panthers to four hits in St. Thomas while walking five and fanning an equal number. Red Tallevi allowed seven hits, walked four and struck out two. Shortstop Bob Maurer rapped out a homer for the winners—his only hit of the evening.

First Baseman Pitches

In Brantford Bob Bloxam vacated his customary first base spot to take the mound for London. He allowed eight walks and seven hits but left 13 Red Sox runners stranded. Alf Gavey started for Brantford and was replaced by Frank Parker.

Guelph Maple Leafs hammered 10 hits off three Galt pitchers, Bob McDonald, Andy Turowski and Irv Schupp, with McDonald the loser. Leftfielder George Carruth was the big gun for the Leafs, cracking out a two-run homer and a double to drive in four runs.

John Adie went the distance for Guelph, giving up 11 well-scattered hits, three walks and fanning five.

The scheduled season winds up tonight with Kitchener at Waterloo and Galt at London.

Americas Cup Won by States In Close Match

SEATTLE (AP)—Golfdom's newest trophy, the Americas Cup, belonged today to the United States and it was a youngster known as "the boy" to his teammates who pointed the way to victory yesterday over Canada and Mexico.

The final score after two days of play was 12 points for the U. S., five for Mexico and 10 for a Canadian team that made a courageous but futile bid in Friday's singles matches.

Walt McElroy of Vancouver knocked over husky Frank Stranahan of Toledo 4 and 3; Jerry Kesselring of Kitchener whipped Harvie Ward in a match that went 38 holes, and Nick Weslock of Windsor bumped lean Charlie Coe of Oklahoma City 3 and 2.

Too Few Upsets

These upsets were too few and too late after "the boy," 21-year-old Ken Venturi of San Francisco, had whipped two opponents to put the U. S. clouters on the victory trail. Although they split with Canada, the winners came within one match of making a clean sweep over Mexico in six contests.

That loss, too, was an upset. Sammy Urzetta of East Rochester, N. Y., who disposed of Canada's Pete Kelly 11 and 10, was defeated by Mexico's Percy Clifford, 2 and 1.

After playing in pairs Thursday the Americans had four points, Canada three and Mexico two in the quest for the perpetual trophy donated by Jerome P. Bowes, Jr., of Chicago. Had Canada won just one more match from the U. S. Friday it would have tied for the cup.

Threat In Amateur

As it was, the Canadians knocked over three of the country's top-notch players and enlarged the question mark behind the U. S. amateur tournament which opens a week's run Monday on the same course. In Stranahan they beat a former British, Canadian and Mexican titlist; in Ward, the current British amateur king, and in Coe, the 1949 U. S. amateur champ.

Mexico picked up only two points in the singles Friday. Carlos Belmont edged team captain Phil Farley of Toronto 3 and 2, and Clifford trounced Kelly, who plays hockey when he isn't golfing, 10 and 8.

Kesselring The Boy

Kesselring was the boy with the clutch shots. He started the day with a seven—three over par—and then tossed three birdies at his two opponents. Twice during the match he had strings of four threes. He closed out Cumming on the 28th hole but Ward hung on stubbornly, evening the match on the 36th.

Ward and Kesselring took pars on the first extra hole, but three putts for Ward on the 38th lost him the match to Kesselring's par four.

Campbell bested Farley 6 and 5, shortly after he bumped Cumming 10 and 8. McElroy, the defending Canadian amateur king, matched par only on the final nine but was never down to either of his opponents.

Notes From Football Training Camps

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There was almost a Grey Cup atmosphere around Toronto today for the Argos-Winnipeg exhibition football clash.

Mounting interest among the fans came in the wake of Winnipeg's 24-6 drubbing of Ottawa Rough Riders, 1951 Canadian champions, and their 24-17 victory over Hamilton Tiger-Cats Wednesday night.

The Argo-Blue Bombers clash—Winnipeg's last exhibition tilt against eastern Big Four clubs—renews an old-time rivalry last viewed by Toronto fans in the rain and mud of the 1950 Grey Cup final. Argos won that contest and also a pre-season exhibition game against Winnipeg last year.

The scullers held secret drills in final prepping for the contest. Winnipeg, who won't come to Toronto from Hamilton until just before game-time, will be minus the services of Chuck Lumsden, speedy half who suffered a broken leg in Wednesday's game.

Hamilton, which needs extra strength along the wingline, was cheered yesterday by the signing of Eddie Bevan. The big lineman, who gained all-eastern grid honors last year, donned pads and worked out at last night's practice. Coach Carl Voyles didn't say how much Bevan would get. He'd been holding out for more pay.

A 31-man squad of Montreal Alouettes left yesterday by air for a Western Canadian exhibition tour in which they play at Edmonton today and at Calgary Monday night. Coach Peahead Walker expects his Als to get off to a slow start but to be hitting their top form by mid-season.

Coach Clem Crowe of Ottawa now has 36 players, about eight more than he intends to carry. He's dropped two, Bruce Pirt, who was with the team last year but was little used, and Dean Sensanbaugher, United States half.

Out west, Edmonton Eskimos expect to test 15 American imports against Montreal, including a recent arrival, Keith Carpenter, California middle. He played five years with San Jose state college. Marlene Stewart of Fonthill, Ont., 1951 Canadian women's golf champion, will kick off.

Pre-season injuries have crippled Saskatchewan Roughriders. In a Thursday intra-squad game Glen Dobbs had to play outside wing because of four outsides on the crippled list: Jack Russell, Holland Johnny Bell.

Lord Layton Adds Yukon Eric To List of Victims at Arena By Taking Last Two Falls

Lord Athol Layton, the British villain who has been causing no end of displeasure among wrestling fans here, by the uncouth way in which he wrecks his opponents, added the mighty Yukon Eric to his list of victims last evening as he took the last two falls of the feature event of the weekly wrestling card in Memorial Arena.

The famous Layton judo chop, which was in evidence as Layton broke from the clinches like an octopus, had no part in the final disaster. Indeed, it looked at the time as though Yukon was about to apply the finishing touches to a job which the fans applauded all evening.

But instead of subsiding quietly, Lord Layton came off the ropes in a neutral corner with such force that he smashed the powerful Yukon to the canvas. He then fell on the struggling Yukon, and before Eric could recover, had won the bout as referee Bunny Dunlop counted the fallen gladiator out.

Yukon was not happy with the decision, and neither were the fans who hooted the winner to his dressing room, while they cheered the vanquished Yukon on his parade to the showers.

Fall In 26 Seconds

In the first fall, Layton sprang out of his corner at the bell, and seemingly trapped Yukon with his back turned before he could make any move at all. Yukon, however, squirmed loose, tossed Layton half way across the ring, applied a back breaking hold, hoisted Layton on his shoulder and applied his famous Alaskan back-breaker. And that was that, with Yukon tramping out of the ring over the prostrate form of Layton, at 26 seconds of the first fall.

It took Layton 17 minutes to take the second fall. After cutting Eric down with his judo chop, he hurled him out of the ring and kicked him off the ring apron. Layton, despite the warnings and protestations of referee Dunlop, prevented Yukon from re-entering the ring with a series of elbow smashes and placement kicks. Then, when he decided to become co-operative, he caught Yukon's head in a scissor grip, twisted him over the ropes, and slammed him to the canvas, and flattened him with a spread eagle.

Furious Action

The disastrous third fall, from the fans' point of view, came after seven minutes of furious action that saw Yukon replying to Layton's judo chop with several pulverizing elbow smashes that seemed certain of carrying him to victory. But Layton reversed things with a quick fall, much to the disgust of the faithful who had hoped to see him dismembered by the brute strength of Yukon Eric.

In the opening bout, it took Pat Flanagan 20 minutes to take the grr out of Tiger Tasker. By the time Flanagan pinned the Tiger, the fans were in an uproar at the flagrant eye-gouging, and hair pulling of Tasker, who became meek as a kitten, however, when Flanagan flattened him.

In the main preliminary, Johnny Barend needed all his speed and cunning to outwit the deviltry of Jim "The Bull" Wright. They fought to a 30-minute draw.

Kitchener and Montana Girl Battle for Women's Title

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP)—Two young blondes—one Canadian and the other American—set out today over 36 gruelling holes at the Edmonton Mayfair to come up with a brand new Canadian women's open golf champion.

Mary Gay of Kitchener, Ont., and Edean Anderson of Helena, Mont., pulled a pair of upsets yesterday in the semi-finals to eliminate both the 1951 champion and runner-up.

Miss Anderson, 22-year-old Montana titleholder, hung on grimly to win one up over defending champion Marlene Stewart of Fonthill, Ont. Miss Gay, 20-year-old Ontario champion, went five extra holes to defeat Grace Lenczyk of Hartford, Conn.

4,000 In Gallery

Cloudy skies at the start didn't discourage the gallery, and some 4,000 watched the matches finish up in bright sunshine

Steel-nerved Miss Stewart never said die. Three times she doffed her glasses and prepared to congratulate the winner, only to come back.

Miss Anderson fired sub-par golf throughout, carding a four-under-par 76 for 18-holes. She was never behind, winning the first and third holes, and went three up at the 14th.

The 15th was halved and it looked like the end at the 16th when the Montana girl was in for a birdie four. But Miss Stewart rocked the gallery, dropping a 40-foot chip shot to take an eagle three and stay alive.

Missed Putts

Twice Miss Anderson's putting prolonged the match. On the 15th a three-footer rimmed the cup and stayed out and a two-footer at the 17th just hung to the edge. Miss Stewart won that one in par three.

Both were close to the pin in four on the 18th and the putts were conceded, leaving Miss Anderson one up.

Miss Gay had to come from behind to defeat Miss Lenczyk, runner-up last year. The 24-year-old Connecticut girl was two up twice on the front nine but fell behind at the short 13th. It was evened at the 15th when Miss Gay was trapped twice and the next seven holes were halved in pars. On the 21st, a 20-foot chip shot dropped for Miss Gay to save her from defeat.

Third shots on the 485-yard 23rd hole made the difference. The young Ontario player dropped her chip six feet from the pin and sank her putt. Miss Lenczyk was 30 feet off the cup and missed by a foot with a putt.

The marathon match was too much for one spectator. She fainted at the 22nd.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Letter to Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick:

My Dear Ford—

This is getting plumb ridiculous, the length of time they're taking to play the average big league game nowadays. The other day the Giants and Dodgers dragged out a normal nine-inning contest for approximately 3½ hours. That is cruel punishment for the seat of the pants.

I fully realize the problem does not come within your province But our understanding is that the commissioner has broad powers to act in almost any matter where the good of the game is concerned, and this sure comes under that heading.

What you might do is have signs put up in each dressing room and dugout reminding the players and the managers that they still are being paid primarily to play baseball for the paying customers and not to put on an act for the television audience.

Come to think of it, you might have a sign tacked up in the umpires' dressing rooms, too.

You might find it difficult as an old-time baseball writer to believe that the current crop of athletes, especially pitchers, are out there mugging and strutting for the wives and kiddies.

If you doubt it, ask any of your old writing friends who has to sit out there day after day and watch the boys ham it up.

Paige The Champ

By common consent of the writers, the champ is old Satch Paige of the Browns. A fellow from here held a stopwatch on Satch recently and he says that in one instance the veteran consumed one minute and 28 seconds between the time the ball landed back in his glove and when he let it go again.

As you and I know, a good, fast-working pitcher needs only between six and 10 seconds to get the signal from his catcher and let 'er fly. Beyond 20 seconds, which is supposed to be the legal limit, he's resting or stalling or giving the television fans a treat, or all three.

It might help a little if you reminded the boys now and then of this 20-second gimmick. Maybe the pitcher and catcher could be limited to one conference per batter. Maybe managers could be limited to one visit to the diamond per inning. Almost anything you can think of would help some.

Big Dams and Flood Control

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables)

About ten years ago I became interested in the civil activities of the U.S. Army Engineer Corps and the Bureau of Reclamation. What prompted this interest on my part was the program that these folks, notably the Engineers, had formulated for flood control.

In the course of my investigations I happened to meet a fellow who was fairly close to the Engineers. He is not in the service but he is an engineer and I was astonished and not a little alarmed over what he told me.

Then I investigated further. I talked to all sorts of people, all connected in one way or another with the destines of our forests and our waters. We might as well be frank about it—the more I inquired the more disturbed I became.

If you have been reading such periodicals as the Saturday Evening Post, Readers Digest and Country Gentleman you no doubt are familiar with the over-all program of our big government agencies. You have seen the proposals for the valley authorities, similar to the T.V.A.

Lot of Money

Moreover, you have no doubt seen the estimated bill for these dubious improvements. The last one I saw totalled fifty-four billion dollars. That, ladies and gentlemen, is one whale of a lot of dollars.

If you have some time on your hands some evening, take paper and pencil and figure out for yourself what that water program can cost the taxpayers by the day over a ten-year period. You are due for quite a shock.

The assured way that the Engineers have when they speak of flood control makes me a bit weary. They know all the answers. Of course, the answers they give you may be wrong but that is up to you to find out and prove. Meanwhile they go ahead with their plans to spend billions on king-size dams which give the taxpayer a doubtful return on his money.

Active conservationists, who work at that particular job year after year, will tell you that sound flood control is best done by proper watershed management Floods begin in the uplands. Water impounded there through the medium of reforestation and small feeder-stream dams, can be used later on when water is needed—in times of drought. Conversely, water which is impounded behind huge dams in the lower valleys is of little use to us in times of water shortage.

Waged War

There is a gentleman who lives in Oklahoma named Elmer T. Peterson. He is associate editor of two Oklahoma newspapers and for many years he has waged active warfare in the fight for sound methods of water and soil conservation.

Long ago he learned the soundness of proper watershed management, combined with a sensible program of small-dam construction. He has written an article on the subject which he calls "Big-Dam Foolishness" and this has been republished in the July issue, 1952, of Reader's Digest.

If you haven't read it and you are interested in the conservation of our natural resources, not to mention the conservation of your tax dollars, by all means do so. Read it and then write a letter to your Congressman and your Senator.

There is not space in a news story of this kind to give you the full details. There is room, however, to give you the data—all taken from official Government figures—on estimates furnished by the Army Engineers for a dam on the Little Washita. Mr. Peterson gives them to us in his article. Here they are. They speak for themselves. SCS, incidentally, stands for Soil Conservation Service.

	Army Plan	SCS Plan
Number of reservoirs	1	34
Drainage area, square miles	195	190
Flood storage, acre feet	52,000	59,100
Permanent pool acres (recreation)	1,950	2,100
Flood Pool, acres	3,650	5,100
Bottoms innundated acres	1,850*	1,600*
Bottomland protected	3,371	8,060
Cost proposed	$6,000,000	$1,983,000

*Richest bottomland would be covered by Army dam; SCS dams would largely be on wasteland.

There you have it. On that project alone there is an efficiency ratio of three to one favor of the small-dam plan.

You may wonder why I, who write mostly about outdoor sports, fishing and shooting, concern myself with the activities of the Army Engineers. All right, I'll tell you.

Hates Waste

First off, I am a taxpayer—not a large one, to be sure, but my dollars go into the general fund, just as yours do. I don't like to see them wasted.

More important, I have seen at first hand the damage that the Engineers' program not only can do but has done. I have watched good hunting acreage being flooded and removed permanently from use.

I have watched the ruination of our trout streams and rivers by the men who follow the Engineers' flood-control program. It is my conviction that our streams should not be needlessly destroyed. There are other better and far less costly methods. Those are reasons enough for any sportsman to be interested.

Some years ago I wrote a book called Ol' Bill. This was published in 1942, before my active interest in the Army Engineers and their dams.

In the final chapter of this book, I tell a story of my father's dislike of those who abuse our rivers. This is the final sentence: "Any half-baked engineer can build a lake...It takes the Lord Almighty to make a river."

"The Wild North," M.G.M.'s Thrill - Packed Adventure Drama, Stars Stewart Granger, Wendell Corey, Cyd Charisse

Thirty miles north of the snow-bound railroad terminus of Ketchum, Idaho, Parka-clad Hollywood technicians recently "mushed" dog sleds of camera equipment through Galena Pass blizzards, recreating for M.G.M.'s "The Wild North" the classic story of a Canadian Mountie whose log, written forty-seven years ago in near delirium, is now compulsory reading for every RNWMP rookie.

Constable Albert Pedley was assigned to find a missionary lost in northern Alberta in 1904. Pedley "got his man" brought him in through one of Canada's foulest winters during a four months trip on which Pedley finally blanked out. A victim of the dread "white madness", he nevertheless completed his assignment.

At the time, the Mounties mastered a scant 378 men, with an average beat of 1500 miles, when to fail would have undermined the organization which stood or fell on a prestige born of achievement.

Pedley now eighty and retired, lives in Scotland, his son, Sergeant George A. Pedley, carrying on the family tradition.

For "The Wild North," now showing at the Belle Theatre, with Stewart Granger and Wendell Corey in stairing roles, M.G.M. hewed to Pedley's own reminiscenses, by - passing the several novelized and magazine versions of his heroism.

In the new M.G.M. offering they again have combined to give the screen a fascinating adventure drama.

A funny Tom and Jerry color cartoon precedes the feature attraction.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—No more tearjerkers for Jane Wyman. From now on, she wants happy pictures.

It was the weepers that established her as a top Hollywood star. A downbeat yarn named "The Lost Weekend" first showed producers that she could act. She demonstrated she could handle character roles deftly when she played Ma Baxter in "The Yearling."

As a deaf girl in "Johnny Belinda," she won an Academy Award. Last year she snagged her third Oscar nomination with "The Blue Veil."

"But audiences don't want to see pictures like those right now," she said. "They have enough troubles of their own, without going to see more problems on the screen. That's why I want to sing and laugh in the movies I make.

Tough Assignments

"Besides, it's a lot easier on me. I can breeze right through a happy picture. But 'the Blue Veil' was 17 weeks of hard work. It took a lot out of me. So did 'Belinda'. I was 16 weeks on that, but I spent months seeing films about instructing deaf people and learning how to act like one. 'The Yearling' took almost a year.

Poultry Experts Make Discovery

STORRS, Conn. (AP)—Three Canadian poultry experts said yesterday their studies show that a fast-growing hen will produce fast-hatching eggs.

D. J. McConachie, C. M. Huntsman and F. N. Jerome of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, gave their report at the annual National Poultry Science Association meeting at the University of Connecticut.

They said that in their study they took eggs from fast-growing hens and slow-growing hens. The bigger hens produced faster hatching eggs, they said.

They also found that the chicks from the fast hens weighed more in four weeks than the chicks from the other eggs.

PEARL REMOVED

Why We Say--

. . . From the Greeks

As nations of the world enter another set of Olympic games this year, it is interesting to note that these games were started by the ancient Greeks. NOTTINGHAM, England (CP)—While summing up the day's cases at a juvenile court, an official estimated it cost more to send a delinquent to a special school than it would to send him to college.

MIDDLESBROUGH, Eng (CP)—A big black granite cross in a cemetery here took on a golden hue each night in the reflected glow of sodium street lights. To discourage grave-trampling sightseers, the cross now has been dimmed with soot.

LONDON (CP)—British fireworks manufacturers are hastening to meet early demands for Guy Fawkes day Nov. 5 and the coronation next year. Orders for the coronation are reaching firms from all parts of the world. One "set piece" among illuminations will be a profile of the Queen.

LONDON (CP)—An empty bottle aroused the suspicion of a customs officer at London airport. Kenneth Johnson of Los Angeles told the officer he was taking back some London fog "to help fight against smog."

LONDON (CP)—Red swordtails, zebras and other tropical fish are reported to be making convalescence less trying for children in a hospital here. The fish have a soothing effect and "have worked wonders with the children," said an official.

BROMLEY, Kent, England (CP) Ten dirty, ill-fed, ill-shod children were sent to a welfare centre by a judge here after they were found temporarily abandoned while their mother played darts in a pub. But, insisted the mother, "you won't find a healthier lot in all England."

CRANWELL, Lincoln, England (CP)—The air ministry is to issue berets in replacement of the field service cap worn by Royal Air Force officers. Students of the Cranwell R.A.F. college will be the only persons allowed to wear the cap, first worn by the Royal Flying Corps in the First World War.

LONDON (CP)—To help cut television interference British railways has fitted 11,000 of its freight-cars with supressors at a cost of £3,000.

SUNBURY, Middlesex (CP)—The parish council here started to build St. Saviour's Church 42 years ago but sealed off the choir, sanctuary and half the nave in 1913 because of a shortage of materials. Now the parish has grown in size and plans have been approved to complete the church.

THE WASH, Lincoln, England (CP)—The agriculture ministry has announced more land is to be reclaimed from the Wash—the 350 square miles of shallow water between Norfolk and Lincolnshire. More than 4,500 acres have been reclaimed in the last three years.

A Stranger—With a Six-Gun

(From The Winnipeg Tribune.)

It was nearly half a century ago that a tall, lean man rode down the main street of the typical little cowtown of Maple Creek on the Saskatchewan prairie. He rode a working cow pony. A big, stained sombrero shielded his lined face, deeply tanned by the sun of 39 summers.

The Montana man rode cautiously and his big six-gun was very obvious as he eyed the raw, rough buildings and the Canadian cowhands and farmers who lounged in their shade, cautiously, too, and curiously eyeing him.

Something about the town and its people must have pleased the tall stranger, for he never left. He made friends, many of them, and with the passing years he became a beloved, respected, almost legendary figure.

The finest stockman in the country, his friends came to call him, and the wide-eyed youngsters of Maple Creek didn't have to resort to the screen, television or comic books for their wild west fare as long as old Tom Whitney was about to regale them with yarns of the days when the longhorns pounded and bellowed through the dust at round-up time.

For though Tom Whitney rode down out of the Montana hills that day in 1905, he could have been riding out of the pages of Zane Grey. He was born, you see, when the West, Montana at least, was very young, away back in '66. He was the first white baby to be born in Madison County, and he grew up in a saddle, and the lariat and the six-gun were the tools of his trade.

The law was mighty vague those days in Montana. Professional gun-slingers, veterans of the bloody range wars of the Southwest, were drifting or fleeing Northward, seeking fresh employment. There were, too, the renegade Indians and the rustlers to plague the legitimate cattlemen, and Tom and his fellow-vigilantes often had to ride out to deal swift, rough justice.

Stories? Why, man, Tom could tell them by the hour, and when he did the old West with all its colorful trappings, its heroes and its renegades, would live again in Maple Creek.

* * *

But the phantom cavalcade conjured up by the old cowboy has passed Maple Creek for the last time. For Tom Whitney died the other day. And he must have died content, for unlike those of many of the men he rode, fought and worked for in the far-off days, his was to be no lonely, unmarked grave on the prairie.

The whole town, hushed and still, mourned as he was carried to the Maple Creek Cemetery, to lie beside many of the friends he made that day back in '05 when he rode into town, a stranger with a six-gun.

Canadian Vets Go to Brighton For Service

LONDON (CP)—Some 200 Canadian army veterans of the Second World War will go to Brighton Sunday to honor comrades killed in the Dieppe raid 10 years ago.

The Canadian contingent will be joined by 700 British legion members in paying tribute to the men of the Dieppe raid. Some Canadian veterans will be men who actually took part in the savage battle which took some 3,000 Canadian lives.

The parade, organized by the Brighton and Hove branch of the Canadian Veterans' Association of the United Kingdom, will assemble near the palace pier. Canada's colors, led by massed bands, will lead the way to the peace statue.

Services will be held here and wreaths placed. A march-past will follow and the salute will be taken by the mayors of Brighton and Hove, officials of the veterans association, representatives of Canada House and the Canadian Department of Veterans Affairs.

Four Sabre jet fighters of the R.C.A.F.'s 439 fighter squadron, based at North Luffenham, will fly past in tribute about the time the Last Post will be sounded.

Tuesday, the actual anniversary of the 1942 raid by Canada's 2nd Infantry division, the town of Dieppe will close down in remembrance.

Special services will be held on the beaches and at the cemeteries.

Some Canadian officers and men are expected to fly from Canada to Dieppe via Paris for the occasion.

Underneath The Bough

By Edna G. Robins

Louise hated the thoughts that flashed through her mind, belittling the man with whom her life was joined. "It's because he knows I'm clever that he keeps me down," she told herself.

And yet that was only partly true. It was an inherited impulse that led him to hold authority over his wife. That was the way his father had treated his mother. It didn't do a woman any good to have money of her own. It only encouraged her to start gadding about. Look at that silly Sadie Gibson. She never seemed to stay at home. Of course Louise wasn't a light woman, but you never could tell what might happen if she was given too much freedom. A woman's place was in the home, Louise could almost hear Harry's voice proclaiming it! And the best way to keep a woman at home was to make it impossible for her to get away from it.

At first Louise had thought that Harry had to be careful of his money. She had been so eager to co-operate with him and practice little economies. She had wanted desperately to help him, she had loved him so much. But she learned that it had all been so unnecessary—all her little sacrifices. Harry had always had enough for all their needs. Although she had tried for years to yield gracefully to him in all matters, she had not been able to crush the rebellious feeling in her heart.

Even worship on Sunday had been spoiled. "Let your light so shine" was the signal for Harry Weston to take the dime from his pocket and solemnly hand it to his wife. He himself put a quarter in the plate. On Easter he gave her 50 cents. Louise scolded herself for being supersensitive. She could see that all over the church other wives were gravely receiving bits of money for the offering. Sometimes the situation appealed to Louise's sense of humor. It must seem so pitiful to the Almighty.

One day there came a letter from Agnes Simpson, corresponding secretary of the Mother's Club of the school:

My Dear Mrs. Weston:

As your two children attend Public School No. 21, perhaps you would be interested in joining the Mothers' Club. We meet on the first Tuesday of each month in Room 2 on the first floor. The dues are $1 a year. We should be most happy to have you become a member of the club.

Louise flushed with pleasure as she read this note. Anything that affected the children was of supreme interest to her. She was sure that a mothers' club would help the school and children to some extent. Besides, she would be glad of the opportunity to enlarge her circle of acquaintances. She was becoming desperately tired of Josie and Sadie with their narrow range of interests. Of course there was the annual church social and an occasional sewing bee. Although Harry didn't care much about going out, he did so regularly to Lodge on Monday nights, and once a year he took her to Ladies" Night. Yes, she'd be very glad to join the Mothers' Club. There were dues, to be sure, but Harry could hardly refuse her $1 a year if he saw how much pleasure it would give her.

She approached Harry about the matter that evening when they had finished dinner. The children had been excused. Harry sat and smoked a cigar in apparent contentment. He read the letter that Louise silently handed him and grunted as he gave it back.

"Waste of time. Just a bunch of silly women who ought to be home looking after their families."

"But, Harry, it's only once a month. And they must do a lot for the children. And it's only a dollar a year."

She was furious with herself to find her lips trembling. She was actually pleading with her husband for a dollar.

"No," said Harry loudly, "it's all bosh. Just an excuse to get out of doing their proper work. It only leads to gadding about. A woman's place is in the home. Women's clubs? Bah!"

Louise took her trembling lips and despairing heart out to the kitchen. A tear or two might fall in the dishpan unobserved, but she wouldn't give Harry the satisfaction of seeing her cry:

"Maybe lots of women do get more harm than good out of their clubs. I don't like the way Aunt Ella goes on. But I want a little freedom," Louise thought resentfully. "I'm no better than a servant here."

She wiped her eyes on her apron.

"I can't bear to quarrel with him."

"Look, mama! See what papa gave me." Ted interrupted her musings to show her a bright nickel.

"Ted, how nice! What is it for?"

"It's my 'lowance. Because I'm going to school, papa's going to give me a 'lowance. Every week a nickel!"

"An allowance," Louise said slowly. "Oh, yes, that's very nice.

Ted ran off happily. Louise resumed her dish washing thoughtfully.

"An allowance for Ted because he's a boy. But not a cent for me because I'm only a woman, only a wife, only a household slave."

A blind fury seized her. Cups and plates crashed to the floor with a refreshing racket.

"I'll never forgive him,'" Louise cried as she viciously swept up the fragments. "There's nothing I can do about it; there's nothing I can say to him."

(To Be Continued.)

Ding Dong Daddy Takes 15th Bride,

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Ding Dong Daddy of the "D" Line has taken his 15th bride, but he's in the dog house. She locked him out of their apartment Wednesday night, nine days after their marriage.

He is Francis H. Van Wie, 66, former San Francisco street car conductor, lion tamer and boxer. His disillusioned bride is 73-year-old Amelia Pritchard, Los Angeles widow.

"Why, he led me to believe he was a bachelor," she told a reporter from behind the barred door of her apartment.

Van Wie served a San Quentin prison term for bigamy. He wooed his women on the San Francisco "D" line but neglected the legal formalities in divorcing them. When the law caught up with him and he was tried, he testified that he had been wed 12 or 13 times. He received three 10-year terms but was paroled in 1947 after serving two years.

IMMIGRANTS DELAYED

SCAPA FLOW, Scotland (Reuters)—Some 150 German immigrants headed for Canada were among 640 passengers stranded aboard the Swedish ship Anna Salen anchored two miles off here last night for repairs. The vessel, bound for Halifax, collided with a Norwegian whale factory ship Wednesday.

New Locations Prisoner Camps Given the U.N.

TOKYO (AP)—United Nations command headquarters said today the Communists have yielded to Allied demands for maps showing the new locations of three Red prisoner-of-war camps in North Korea.

Maj.-Gen. William Harrison, senior U.N. armistice negotiator, received the information from North Korean Gen. Nam Il, chief Red negotiator. It also included maps showing the boundaries of two other camps holding allied prisoners which had been expanded.

The Allies complained Wednesday that the Reds were endangering the lives of captives by failing to pinpoint the camp sites. It demanded the information "without delay."

The truce talks at Panmunjom, Korea, are in a seven-day recess and Nam Il's letter was delivered by liaison officers. The full delegations meet again next Tuesday to try resolving the major obstacle to a truce — repatriation of prisoners.

Reliable Sources Says Bulgarians Fired on Greeks

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP)—A reliable source said yesterday troops of Communist Bulgaria fired on a Greek blockhouse near the border village of Kula Wednesday, killing two Greek soldiers

The new border incident was reported amid rumors of possible joint Greek-Turkish army manoeuvres in Greek Thrace next month. Greek and Turkish destroyers are engaging in joint manoeuvres in the Aegean Sea beginning tomorrow.

Last week Greek troops fired with machine-guns and mortars in tiny Gamma Island in the Evros River to force Bulgarian patrol from the border island, claimed by both countries.

Last Casualty List Reports Two Killed

OTTAWA, (CP) — The Army yesterday issued its 126th casualty list of the Korean war, reporting two men killed in action, one missing and three others wounded.

The last casualty list was issued August 13.

The list included Capt. Joseph Liston of Ottawa, and Shilo, Man., who parachuted from his damaged artillery spotter plane behind Red lines and is believed to have been captured. He is officially listed as missing in action.

The latest list brings to 932 the number of casualties suffered so far by Canadian troops in Korea, including 164 dead, 694 wounded, 64 injured, nine missing and one reported a prisoner of war.

Hottest Spot in the World as Sailors Tell It

(From The New York Times "Topics")

During one of the recent and prolonged heat waves which New Yorkers were fending off ineffectively, with ice cubes and electric fans, we fell to wondering just where in the whole wide world is the hottest place. And who could tell us better than a seaman who has travelled all over the globe? So we journeyed on the super-heated subway down to the Seamen's Church Institute on South Street, where as many as six thousand mariners cross the threshold daily. In the busy lobby we posed the question.

A leathery-skinned bosun spoke up. "I made a trip to the Dead Sea once and I saw the thermometer register 120 degrees." A deck hand with a Down East twang volunteered the information that if we meant the hottest all-year-round temperature he knew it to be Venezuela, which, he said, has an average of 90 degrees Fahrenheit. A smart young Kings Point graduate told us that on his last trip aboard a tanker to the Persian Gulf he had actually seen the mercury at the 128-degree mark.

A soft-drink machine in the Institute's lobby became the focal point for our discussion. Sipping the cold beverage, a Grace Line captain expressed the opinion that Salaberry, Peru, about eight degrees South of the Equator, was the hottest place he had ever visited, and he knew for a fact that the thermometer had soared to 130 degrees.

A tall, lanky fellow with a Southern drawl said: "Hoboken, N.J., is the hottest place, and I've been in every seaport in the world. I saw a thermometer read 120 degrees in Singapore, once, but over in Hoboken, I saw it go to 131 degrees, and that's no tall tale."

An elderly sailor wearing a gray cap and blue dungarees rolled up his sleeve and held out a tattooed arm for inspection. "See that?" he said. "I had this tattooed on me fifty years ago when I was aboard a ship in Alexandria, Egypt. We saw the thermometer in the customs shed, and a bunch of us went ashore to a tattooing parlor and had it put on with the needle. I bet you can't top this!"

The other seamen gathered around to read the lettering on the old salt's arm. Just above two entwined hearts, and just beneath a faded drawing of a Charles Dana Gibson girl, was the place, the date and the temperature, which was 145 degrees. After this demonstration it seemed a bit of an anti-climax when a chief mate said, "In Balboa, once, walking along the street, I saw a thermometer reading 126 degrees."

The discussion veered along a new tack when an oiler claimed that down in the engine room was the hottest place.

A quartermaster stoutly maintained that once while crossing the Suez Canal he was on duty on the bridge and the temperature was 130 degrees, whereupon the oiler won his point by saying, "Yes, and I was on that same ship, down below, where the temperature was 132 degrees." Then followed on argument as to whether the extra two degrees was artificial heat—from the fire-room—or natural heat from the sun—and if the latter, how could the oiler feel it below the decks? "Why, through the air shafts and ventilators, of course," replied the oiler. "Then why didn't you shut the ventilators and be two degrees cooler?" retorted the quartermaster, with a wink.

By now the soft-drink machine was empty, and the discussion continued on a new tack when the seafarers were asked what methods they used to keep cool during such heat as they had described. The majority offered the usual iced-drink-cold-shower remedy, but a fellow who had been chief cook on the Byrd Expeditions to both the North and South Poles said:

"I've lived in the Arctic and Antarctic with the temperature 72 degrees below zero, so when it goes to 97 degrees above in New York I've learned that warm baths are better than cold showers, and I stay away from iced drinks."

The experts rest their case. In the light of their experience New York even in a hot wave is "cooler than lots of places." This may provide some slight degree of consolation during the August doldrums that lie ahead.

Headquarters For Seaway Authority To Be in Montreal

TORONTO (CP)—The Telegram said yesterday in an Ottawa dispatch that headquarters for the St. Lawrence seaway authority is to be located in Montreal.

A special project branch of the department of transport now is getting ready for the move to Montreal, the story said.

The branch, headed by Guy Lindsay, had been devoted almost wholly to the seaway project and probably would be absorbed in the authority as soon as it was set up.

"R.C. Henry of Montreal is likely to be a member of the authority, while Mr. Lindsay is also scheduled to have an important place either with or as a member of, the authority."

Cruise Ships Offered for Sale

MONTREAL (CP)—The West Indies cruise ships Lady Rodney and Lady Nelson have been put up for sale by Canadian National steamships, it was learned yesterday.

The C.N.S. annual report disclosed last March that the 8,000-ton ships would be withdrawn from the Montreal-West Indies service next October.

The ships, while still serviceable, are said to have become too expensive to operate on the West Indies run.

The service will be carried on by three C.N.S. passenger-cargo ships, the Canadian Challenger, Canadian Constructor and Canadian Cruiser, and five C. N. S. freighters.

The two Lady vessels are expected to be kept in operation after their sale because of their good condition.

C. N. S. put the Lady Nelson on the route in 1928. The Lady Rodney joined her the next year.

Both ships saw service during the Second World War as troop carriers.

Gambling King Begins Serving First Prison Term

NEW YORK (AP)—Frank Costello, underworld gambling kingpin, surrendered yesterday to begin serving his first prison term in 37 years.

Costello, who had been free in $5,000 bail, was convicted of contempt of the United States Senate for refusing to answer questions concerning his finances before the Senate crime committee at a televised hearing in New York in March, 1951.

Dapper as always, the 62-year-old gambler wore a blue flannel pencil-striped suit and blue tie as he entered the federal court house to begin an 18-month sentence.

POLICE CONSTABLE CHARGED WITH ROBBERY

Robber-Slayer Of Maxville Man Sought by Posse

Victim Found Slumped In Taxi on Lonely Road

MAXVILLE (CP)—The robber-slayer of a 41-year-old Maxville business man is sought today across eastern Ontario by provincial police.

His victim was Leonard Z. Hurd, 41, owner of a garage, taxi, bus and trucking business, whose body, with five bullet wounds, was found late Saturday night slumped in the front seat of a taxi on a lonely marsh-bordered road one mile south of here.

Police said he was robbed of between $800 and $1,700.

Hundreds of farmers and residents of this town some 50 miles east of Ottawa joined police in the search yesterday for the slayer, who may still be armed with the 22-calibre rifle used in the shooting.

Seek Suspect

Police said they are seeking Henri Seguin, 27-year-old resident of this area. His description, and his car's licence, have been circulated by police.

Three bullets were fired into Hurd's head and two more into his right side below his armpit. An empty .22 calibre rifle shell casing was found beneath the taxi's front seat.

An important clue is a black club bag containing some clothing found in the back seat of the taxi. Hurd's family said it did not belong to him.

A post-mortem revealed a large bruise on the skull above the right ear and police believe Hurd was slugged and robbed before being shot. Absence of powder burns indicated that the murder weapon was fired at least three feet from him.

Tire marks on the road indicated the taxi went off the pavement and veered into a marshy spot.

The body was found about half an hour after Hurd left a Maxville restaurant for home. Police believe he got home before being called out by a taxi customer. His body when found was without socks—they were found in the hallway of his home.

Robbery Motive

Provincial Police Inspector Robert Wannell, called from Toronto, said robbery was almost certainly the motive for the slaying. He predicted the case will be quickly solved.

Hurd's wife, took a group of women in a taxi to Cornwall, Ont., Saturday evening and learned of the slaying when she returned three hours after the body was found.

Their only son died four months ago in a motorcycle accident only a short distance from the scene of Saturday's murder. There are also two daughters.

Hurd, one of Maxville's more prosperous citizens, arrived here from Western Ontario some 20 years ago with only a few tools to start in business. He was a council member in 1949 and manager and coach of the Maxville Millionaires hockey club since 1941.

Sixty-four-year-old Mrs. Anna Maydan of Toronto is seen with Det. Summoned to the Maydans' home by the accused, police found victim in bed with his skull crushed by a two-foot wrecking bar lying beside him. Following an argument, in which the victim supposedly threatened the life of his wife, Mrs. Maydan is alleged to have got up out of bed after her husband was asleep and attacked him with the tool. — Central Press Canadian.

He was driving a "payloader," a four-wheeled vehicle with a bucket loader, whe nthe accident occurred. Apparently he was entering the quarry down an incline when the vehicle left the road, and plunged into the quarry with its driver.

Bennett had been employed at the Cement Company for three years.

Dr. Russell Scott and Dr. Thomas Woodley attended the victim.

HENRY J. KAISER CALLS SABOTAGE ATTEMPT ON LIFE

Claims Two Speedboats Tampered With at Races

TAHOE CITY, Calif. (AP) — Industrialist Henry J. Kaiser accused unknown saboteurs who tampered with two speedboats he had entered in races here of "a murderous attempt on my life."

Damage to the powerboats was discovered a half - hour before race time yesterday.

"I'm sure it was an attempt on my life, one of the most diabolical thing I've ever seen," the 69-year-old steel-aluminum-automobile magnate declared.

Harry Johnson, Tahoe City constable said the sabotage was crude and might have been the work of a crank, or of lakeside residents who have complained that Kaiser's boats are too noisy.

Kaiser said he suspected the tampering was the work of "the same people who have tried to destroy everything I've tried to build." He did not elaborate.

The damage was discovered by Kaiser's mechanic and driver, Max Collins, after he noticed a hacksaw blade in the bottom of the 23-foot Gold Cup racer Hot Metal. The boat's main drive shaft had been sawed half way through and the carburetor blower had been stuffed with rags, nuts and bolts. The bilge and hull of a 24-foot runabout had been soaked with gasoline, which could have ignited at a spark.

"Either sabotage could have killed somebody," Kaiser said. The sawed shaft would have "broken and ripped boat and driver to shreds" and the stuffed blower on the Gold Cup boat and the gasoline poured into the runabout would have made fire almost certain."

The constable declined to say whether he thought the damage was aimed at Kaiser's life. But he said it was doubtful anyone was trying to influence the outcome of the race. The participants, like Kaiser, are wealthy sportsmen with nearby summer homes and there was no betting.

Kaiser was not deterred from racing. He finished second to shipping heir Stanley Dollar in the feature race, using a 16-foot boat he obtained. The industrialist also toko home a perpetual trophy for total points.

Police Probe Man's Death

HAMILTON (CP)—Police are continuing their investigation today into the death of Harry Woitka, of 38 Spring Street, Brantford. Mr. Woitka was found dead on a bed at 470 MacNab St. north, early Sunday morning.

The man was apparently visiting friends at that address with his wife. Detectives MacRae and MacFarlane were called to the house when the man could not be aroused.

Police are awaiting results of a post-mortem being conducted by Dr. W. J. Deadman, city pathologist.

Fergus Police Officer Kills Self Few Hours Before His Marriage

GUELPH (CP)—A Fergus police officer who was to have been married today died in hospital Sunday two hours after a bullet pierced his brain.

Police said William R. Allen, 27, killed himself with his police revolver.

The shooting occurred in the home of Allen's betrothed, Miss Beatrice Kurp, 364 York Road. Three shots were fired from the revolver, according to police reports and at least one of the shots is said to have narrowly missed the girl's father, T.A. Kurp.

Miss Kurp, 25-year-old office worker, told police Allen has threatened to do something desperate after she called off their wedding plans.

After arguing with him an hour she left him on the verandah and, she, her parents, her brother, Max, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Daisy Kurp, locked themselves in the dining room.

A bullet crashed through a window and narrowly missed the girl's father.

Then Allen shot the lock on the door and as he stood waving his gun, Mr. Kurp hurried his daughter upstairs.; Mrs. Kurp hid behind a chesterfield and Max Kurp ran out the front door, thinking the family would follow.

Then Mrs. Daisy Kurp confronted Allen and pleaded with him to "be a man and put the gun away."

Allen then went to the kitchen where he shot himself through the head, police said.

Allen, a former Windsor policeman, and for some time a member of the physical training staff at the Guelph reformatory, joined the Fergus force in July. He was on the staff of the reformatory here at the time of the July 5 riots and was prominent in subduing the prisoners. He is the son of Mrs. A. Brisco, Windsor. Crown Attorney J.M. Kearns said there would be no inquest.

T.L.C. Convention Expected To Emphasize Discussions On Work, Social Securiiy

WINNIPEG (CP) — Discussions emphasizing problems of social security and working conditions are expected to highlight the annual convention of the 522,000-member Trades and Labor Congress of Canada opening here today.

Emphasis at recent conventions fell on efforts to oust Communists.

President Percy R. Bengough will set the tone of the meet in his keynote address to be delivered today after welcoming speeches by provincial and civic officials. Business sessions begin this afternoon.

Despite the expected emphasis on labor problems, Communism has not been forgotten.

Leftist Writer Barred

The representative of the leftist Canadian Tribune was refused press credentials yesterday. Officials checked member credentials to sift Communist delegates and bar them from joining the 600 delegates attending.

Two resolutions were submitted aimed at reversing constitutional amendments barring Communists from union offices. These resolutions are not expected to gain much support from the convention floor.

N. B. Government Hit

In a pre-convention meeting, delegates approved a constitution for a new wing of the T.L.C. to be known as the Union Label Trades Department.

Objectives will be promotion of union-made products by a greater use of union labels on goods and increased use of union shop cards and buttons in soliciting patronage for union establishments.

The Executive Council issued a statement condemning the New Brunswick government for making recognition of a union in the Provincial Power Commission an election issue.

The T.L.C. said the government refused to recognize the union and that Premier McNair had called an election on the issue.

9 Bodies Recovered, 30 Still Missing in Lynmouth, Town Almost Washed Into Sea

LYNMOUTH, England (AP) — Army engineers blasted and bulldozed their way today through the debris of a flood believed to have drowned 39 persons in England's southwest resort coast.

Today nine bodies had been recovered from among the rain-washed boulders and house wreckage along a 15-mile stretch of the Devon coast. Still missing and presumed dead were 30 more villagers and vacationers.

Later information brought a revision of a casualty estimate of 22 dead and 12 missing.

This picturesque vacation town was almost washed into the sea by water which poured over the banks of the Lyn river at the height of the flood early Saturday morning.

The Army engineers were racing against newly threatening skies in an attempt to put the Lyn back into its course. More rains might spread the waters over a still larger area.

Gales Forecast

Threatening gales and more rain were forecast for late today.

First estimates put the property damage in the whole flooded area at more than £7,000,000.

The catastrophe's full force fell on Lynmouth, a picture postcard little holiday resort which turned into a boulder-strewn shambles when cloudbursts Friday changed the placid little Lyn into a torrent boiling through the main steret.

The flood damage here alone was estimated at more than £2,000,000. Twenty houses and 20 hotels disappeared. At least 40 other houses were damaged.

Police sealed off the town to prevent looting. More than 2,500 villagers and holidayers were evacuated from the ghost village to inland ballrooms and halls hastily converted into refugee centres.

Five vacationists, including three Boy Scouts, were listed among the dead and nine vacationists among those missing and presumed dead.

Tell of Horror

Survivors from Lynmouth gave a graphic description of the terror that suddenly burst on them in the night.

Comedian Al Raie, appearing at the local music hall, told how the audience hurried out as the noise of the flood drowned a soprano's voice.

'I saw a chain of women walking hand in hand towards their hotel," Raie said. "Then the sidewalk disappeared, and the girl on the end of the chain was swept out to sea."

At one hotel, Phyllis Biggs, the manager, shepherded the scared guests through an upstairs window onto the roof. There, while the Lyn roared past beneath them and the hotel shuddered from boulders crashing against its walls, they huddled together and sang the hymn, "Oh God, Our Help in Ages Past."

Finds Father Floating

Mrs. Ellen Jenkins, 36, was clambering inland when she saw a man, almost submerged by the flood, floating towards her. "I recognized him as my father and grabbed him by the shirt and managed to get him to dry land," she said.

Tom Floyd, 63, lost his wife, their son and daughter, the daughter's husband, and the young couple's two sons when their cottage was swept away.

Hamilton Mayor Calls Dr. Berry For Advice

HAMILTON (CP)—Mayor Lloyd Jackson, worried by health and epidemic dangers in uncontrolled building south of the city limits on the mountain, has called in Dr. A.E. Berry, director of the sanitary engineering for the provincial department of health, to advise on future action.

Although he was hesitant to suggest annexation of the remainder of Barton Township as a solution to "controlled development," the Mayor quoted Hon. George Dunbar, minister of municipal affairs, as stating that municipalities in Hamilton's position should "control" outside areas who needed sewer and water services.

TRIES SUICIDE

WICHITA, Kas. (CP)—Police yesterday reported they had in custody a man who twice tried to drown himself by sticking his head in a toilet bowl. Police said William D. Davis, 28, made the suicide attempts in jail.

Ontario Soldier Suffers Electrical Burns in Germany

HANNOVER, Germany (Reuters) —Pte. A.W. Smith of Ontario is on the dangerously ill list at the Military hospital here today after suffering severe burns when climbing up a high tension pole.

The accident occurred near Luenburg Saturday. Why the 4-year-old soldier, who is married, clambered up the pole is not known.

A court of inquiry will be held.

Smith was struck by 15,000 volts of electric current and it was almost a miracle that he survived, the spokesman said.

He was serving with the 79th Field Regiment Royal Canadian Artillery, stationed at Hohne, in the British zone.

RUBBER WORKERS CALL WALKOUT AT NINE PLANTS

Negotiations Continue With Goodrich Co.

AKRON, O. (AP)—The United Rubber Workers (C.I.O.) today went on strike against the B. F. Goodrich Co. but continued contract negotiations with the firm.

The walkout—ordered by the union last night—was first felt in Akron where 13,000 of the 30,000

Affected by the strike order were nine of the company's 30 plants—those engaged in processing rubber. Goodrich also has chemical and aircraft plants covered by other unions.

Negotiations, scheduled to resume later today, have been going on for 10 weeks.

Offer Ten Cents

Goodrich has offered 10-cent hourly pay increases, the same as granted earlier by Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., U.S. Rubber Co., General Tire and Rubber Co. and Sieberling Ruber Co.

The union says the average Goodrich pay now is about $1.80 an hour.

In dispute are fringe issues in the Goodrich pact. After failing to reach agreement on those, the union called out its members. Strike action was authorized by production workers July 15 when the old contract expired but the actual call was left to the negotiating committee and the union's executive board.

The union said the fringe issues involve holiday pay, grievance procedure, reporting for work, vacations and other matters. A union publication here claimed the company had offered the 10-cent increase only "if we agree to the impossible contract terms dictated by the company."

L. S. Buckmaster, union president, declared the wage-increase offer "was tied into contract proposals which are not comparable to other agreements in existence with most other rubber companies."

Deny Union Claim

A spokesman for the firm said it was not true that it had proposed "contract provisions which are less liberal than those in our old contract."

Besides the plants here, the strike was ordered for factories at Cadillac, Mich.; Tuscaloosa, Ala.; Miami, Okla.; Clarksville, Tenn.; Oaks, Pa.; Marion, O.; Riverside, N.J., and Los Angeles.

The convention of the women's social service organization, attended by delegates from 23 countries, urged that the word "illegitimate" be avoided in all legislation and court decisions.

Detroit Resident Connects Sister Of Hon. Paul Martin With Visa Deal

WINDSOR (CP)—The Windsor Daily Star says today a Detroit resident told of paying $75 to Mrs. Nicholas Steigerwald of Windsor for a false bank statement in connection with his application for a United States visa.

Mrs. Steigerwald is the sister of Paul Martin, Minister of National Health and Welfare.

The Star's newspage story says Lawrence McKinnon, 39, a former Windsor resident, told U.S. immigration officials that Mrs. Steigerwald told him to make a small deposit at the Windsor branch of the Provincial Bank of Canada. Manager of the bank was Roy H.F. McBride, who was dismissed July 31.

McKinnon said shortly afterward he was given a statement declaring he had "several thousand dollars" on deposit. McKinnon said he submitted this statement in connection with his visa application, and eventually received a visa with which he entered the U.S.

McKinnon said he paid Mrs. Steigerwald $110 for her services —$35 for work done and $75 for obtaining a false bank statement.

The Star says Mr. Martin "for some time. . has been aware" that Mrs. Steigerwald was doing paper work in connection with visa applications but "has understood" she did the same work as many Windsor lawyers do.

The newspaper says that in 1948, because of rumors that Mrs. Steigerwald was using his name as an inducement to prospective clients, Mr. Martin wrote Bernard Gotlieg, then U.S. consul in Windsor, a letter "which placed him on record as knowing of his sister's actions and expressing personal disapproval of them."

He wrote again in 1951, The Star says, to Mr. Gotlieg's successor, asking that "strong measures" be taken to prevent the use of his (Mr. Martin's) name in connection with his sister's activities.

Queried on McKinnon's story, Mr. Martin said:

"I am deeply distressed to learn of stories in connection with my sister. I hope they are not true. Every family has its problems, I suppose. At any rate, I feel that I have done my best to prevent this situation from arising."

McBride told a U.S. immigration hearing in Detroit Wednesday that he provided false bank-asset statements in connection with "about 100" visa applications.

Officer And Three Men Take Police Car At Gunpoint

Const. Whittaker Member Of Long Branch Police Dept.

TORONTO (CP)—A suburban police officer was charged with armed robbery today and three other men were taken into custody after armed men forced two other policemen from their patrol car and drove away in it.

Constable Ed Whittaker, with the Long Branch police department for the last three years, was charged with armed robbery in the taking of the Toronto township cruiser. The other men, all from suburban New Toronto, were not charged immediately.

Quick Arrest

Const. Whittaker was arrested at gunpoint as he left his home to "buy a paper" less than two hours after the cruiser theft. The others were later routed from their beds.

Toronto police said they will question the four in connection with other robberies in the district.

Consts. Jack Marshall and Bill Snarr of Toronto township said they followed a car after they noticed the rear licence plate turned down.

Later the car stopped and the two officers approached it to question the occupants.

Const. Marshall had started to draw his gun when a man in the back seat drew a gun on Snarr and Snarr warned Marshall not to fire.

Ordered to Leave Car

Then the men piled out of the car and ordered the township officers to walk into the nearby bushes.

They said: 'Don't turn around or you'll get it," the township officers said later.

"We just crossed a small stream when we heard our cruiser and the other car both pulling away fast," Snarr said.

Const. Herbert Farr of the Ontario provincial police said he earlier had stopped to talk with a man he saw "tinkering with his car's rear licence plate."

He said he spotted Const. Whittaker in the back seat of the car.

"I knew him so we talked about generalities for a minute and I drove away."

Farr reported the incident after the cruiser was stolen.

The cruiser was found abandoned on Dixie road near the Toronto Golf Club, a few miles from the robbery scene, after patrol cars from nine police departments in the suburban districts west of Toronto joined the search.

George Whittaker, father of the accused man, was told by police bail for his son would be high. He was told he could apply after the accused is transferred to Brampton jail later today.

Constables Snarr and Marshall, both of whom recently joined the township force, said that about 4 a.m. they were making a routine check of a car with four "tough looking occupants" when they were held up. Const. Marshall later described what happened:

"Bill (Snarr) asked the driver of the car to get out. Next thing I knew the men had a gun in Bill's stomach and one of the others in the car was shouting at me to drop my gun.

"I ducked! Bill shouted: 'don't shoot, Jack,' but I took aim and started to back up. Then my foot caught on the sidewalk, I fell, my gun and flashlight fell out of my hands and my cap flew off. Someone shouted: 'don't reach for your gun.' Then I was grabbed."

Peterborough Man Guilty Of Tax Evasion

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Special Crown Prosecutor George Bagwell asked for a $5,000 fine today when Charles S. Levine pleaded guilty to two charges of evading income and excess profit taxes.

Levine, proprietor of a ladies dress shop, is charged with evading $16,738.70 in income and excess profits taxes between 1943 and 1948 by making false statements in income tax returns.

He was first arraigned on 10 charges when he appeared before Magistrate W.R. Philp. Six of them alleged he had made or acquiesced in the making of false statements in his tax returns and four charged him with wilfully attempting to evade complying with the income war tax act.

Mr. Bagwell first said he would be offering no evidence on the four charges dealing with attempting to evade the requirements of the act. Levine, represented by T.J. Carley, then pleaded guilty to two of the counts, involving a total of $5,130.12 in taxes which the crown alleged he had evaded in 1944 and 1946.

Mr. Bagwell introduced an itemized statement, showing that Levine had evaded $16,738.70 in income tax between 1941 and 1948. The charges cover the period between 1943 and 1948.

Mr. Bagwell told the magistrate that Levine had forwarded a cheque to the receiver general for $21,000, covering the amount of the alleged evasion, plus $4,318.75 in interest. Only an adjustment of $57.45 would be required to wipe out the entire amount of interest and evaded tax.

After Mr. Bagwell asked for a fine of "at least $5,000 as a lesson in morality to the business men of the community and the province." Magistrate Philp adjourned the two charges one week for sentence. Disposition of the other charges will follow.

BCI Students Approach Last Year's Record in Examination Passes

The results of the June Upper School examinations for the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School published last Monday reveal that out of 607 papers written 560 were successful and there were 47 failures. This represents 92.3 per cent pass which approaches very closely to last year's all-time high record for this school of 92.8 per cent. Furthermore, when one considers that there were only 389 papers written last year as compared to 607 this year, the current year's record appears still more favorable.

The record for June 1950 was 90.6% pass which means that this school has had over 90 per cent pass in its senior matriculation examinations over the last three years. The records of previous years are as follows:

June 1946 77 per cent pass
June 1947 80.9 per cent pass
June 1948 81.3 per cent pass
June 1949 82.9 per cent pass

All 47 candidates who wrote Upper School History were successful, representing 100 per cent pass. In English Composition, out of 69 papers there was only one failure representing 98.6 per cent pass. Two students of B.C.I. Upper School class wrote eleven papers each on the June Upper School examinations and both were successful.

Barbara Goodman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Goodman, 111 West Bridge Street, achieved 7 firsts, 3 seconds and 1 third.

Doris Kerr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Kerr, 115 Chatham Street obtained 5 firsts, 4 seconds, 1 third and 1 credit.

Marlene J. Brant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Brant, Shannonville, obtained the highest proficiency standing. Out of nine papers written she obtained 8 firsts and 1 second.

Others with high standing were:

Ralph Cornish, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Edward Cornish, 394 Bleecker Ave., who wrote 8 papers and obtained 7 firsts and one credit.

Harriet Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Thompson, 193 Lingham Street, wrote 10 papers and obtained 6 firsts, 3 seconds and one third.

Of the top 14 students in the Upper School results this year there were 12 girls and only two boys.

Lawn Weeds Should Be Sprayed Now

TORONTO— This week the choice for Weed of the Week covers three weeds in place of the usual one. In giving his reasons for grouping them together, K. E. Fallis, Fieldman for the Crops Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture, points out that dandelion, plantain and chickweed are all commonly found growing together in lawns and the same control methods apply.

Fortunately, all three of these weeds are susceptible to 2,4-D which can be applied without injuring the rest of the lawn. Mr. Fallis states that the dandelion can be controlled by spraying in the spring, just before the blooms appear. However, these weeds are often inconspicuous at that time and little is done. Once they come into bloom they are more obvious but spraying at this time—the late bloom stage — gives disappointing results.

Second Chance

However, there is a second chance for those who did not spray and wish they had or who had poor results. Early autumn spraying of the lawn with 2,4-D gives as good control of dandelions as the spring application and is much better than mid-summer applications. This early autumn spraying also kills the chickweed and plantain.

Mr. Fallis suggests that a small hand-operated sprayer or a sprinkling can may be used. However the latter is wasteful and may damage the lawn. 2,4-D applied at the rate of one-third of an ounce per thousand square feet of lawn will give good results. He adds, however, that care should be taken to protect and other broadleaved plants from the spray drift.

Finally, he recommends that the bare spots caused by the killing of these weeds should be fertilized and sown with some grass seed. This will give the grass a start for the next year and so your lawn will look good at that time.

Decoration Day Observed By Veterans Assoc.

Members of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans Association of Branch 201 yesterday observed Decoration Day and paid tribute to the dead in two wars at separate ceremonies at the cemetery and at the Cenotaph on Station Street where wreaths were placed.

Mustering at the armories early in the afternoon, 160 veterans and members of the ladies' auxiliary followed the color party and the Salvation Army Band to the Belleville Cemetery. In the dedication ceremony, Archdeacon Arthur Smith, of St. Thomas' Church, paid tribute to those who died in battle in service to their country and lauded those who took part in the observance. It was fitting, he said, that Decoration Day should be observed at dates which marked approximately the termination of World War I and the beginning of World War II. He also paid tribute to Canadians who took part and died in the Dieppe raid.

Captain Brightwell, head of the Salvation Army, led the group in prayer.

Members of the Decoration Day committee included: Ray Denike, president; Ernest Grey, Cecil Cherry, Arthur Galbraith, Arthur Hobbs and Harry Byers. Members of the ladies' auxiliary supervised arrangement of the flowers.

Riot Ringleader Given Death Sentence by Court

KAFR EL DAWAR, Egypt (Reuters)—A military court today sentenced Mustafa Khamis, described as ringleader of the cotton mill riots here last week, to death by hanging.

It was the first sentence passed by the court following the riots which wrecked the Misr cotton spinning and weaving mills and took nine lives.

Khamis was the self-styled leader of the workers.

When the court resumed its trial of 29 other mill workers today, it asked Dr. Hafez Afifi, former chief of Farouk's royal cabinet, to explain his "secret visit" to Kafr el Dawar the day before the riots broke out there.

HOUSING 6B

HOUSING FOR THE PEOPLE

Political Jockeying Holds Up Home Building

The political speech made by R. E. G. Davis, Executive director of the Canadian Welfare Council in which he castigates the municipal civic councils for not endorsing and taking up the government's housing scheme was entirely out of order when made to the Couchiching conference August 13 last.

From the municipalities' viewpoint the scheme is not welcome. Undoubtedly if carried through it puts the government in a stronger position but at the expense of the municipalities concerned.

Welfare organizations generally start off with good intentions and a desire to contribute to the welfare of the people, but too often they degenerate into political camps or become beggars on the doorsteps of municipalities or governments.

Municipalities with only 11 cents of the tax dollar, and half of the 11 cents goes to education, must look to welfare organizations for help rather than as an additional load to carry.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Trading continued brisk in early afternoon stock market dealings today but prices slipped.

All sections weakened and industrials dropped more than a point in the first three hours. Golds slipped after reaching a two-year high and base metals also dipped after a firm opening. Western oils weakened.

Heavy trading in a few selected stocks boosted the volume and a fairly broad list moved. Volume for the first three hours totalled 1,883,000 shares.

Industrials slipped steadily after a Friday advance. Papers, utilities, steels, foods, liquors and banks weakened but agricultures and foods were firm. Most price changes were fractional.

Junior producers dipped but senior golds, prospects and holding companies held firm.

Selected base metals were also active. East-Rim advanced in a turnover of about 215,000 shares and Mayo traded 293,000 shares for penny losses.

New Moderator Of U.C. Will Be Selected in Sept.

HAMILTON—When the fifteenth biennial 10-day session of the General Council of the United Church of Canada opens at First United Church, Hamilton, on September 10, the presiding officer will be the Right Rev. Clarence Mackinnon Nicholson, Moderator, who will have just returned from a visit to the Canadian forces in Europe. He also attended the world conference on Faith and Order at Lund, Sweden.

The General Council of the United Church is the highest court of that church. Nearly 400 commissioners, half of them ministers and half lay representatives, have been appointed by 11 Conferences of the United Church of Canada to attend the General Council. Representatives will be present from all the missionary fields of the United Church of Canada, India, Japan, Korea, Trinidad and Africa. Thirty-five of the commissioners will be women.

One of the first orders of business will be the election of a new Moderator to succeed Dr. Nicholson. Presbyteries have nominated several leading churchmen for that high office. All nominations, however, must be made from the floor of General Council. There is nothing to prevent a layman or a woman being nominated for the Moderatorship.

Problems to be discussed include appointment of several new church officers, the church and international affairs, social services and evangelism, Christian education, pensions for retired ministers, shortage of ministers, the opening of new missionary projects, a report dealing with church policy, and another report dealing with conversations with the Church of England in Canada on union.

One of the key figures in the General Council deliberations will be Rev. Gordon A. Sisco, secretary of General Council, who is also a member of the executive committee of the World Council of Churches.

Leading the daily devotional services will be Professor Nels Ferre, of the Vanderbilt School of Religion, Nashville, Tenn.

Another highlight speaker will be Dr. Paul Hutchinson, Editor of The Christian Century.

Rev. E. M. Aitken is minister of First United Church where the General Council meets.

Out of Reach of the Long Arms of Law

Bank manager Roy H. McBride of Windsor, Ont., testified at a U.S. deportation hearing at Detroit, Mich, that he helped over 100 Canadian citizens to obtain U.S. visas by providing false bank asset statements in connection with their visas applications. (To obtain a U.S. visa an applicant must show a substantial bank balance or must be sponsored by an American citizen who is willing to guarantee that, for five years, he will not become a public charge.) McBride said he provided the statements for which he received $5 each on the referrals of Mrs. Marguerite Prest, a Windsor public accountant. Dismissed from his job, the former bank manager to date has managed to elude the long arms of the law as officers are as yet unable to find a law under which "accused" can be prosecuted. —Central Press Canadian.

Portsmouth Saints Win Congress Title at 'Pen'

By JACK BRETT

The boys whose theme song is, "When the Saints come Marching In," marched in, and over, two of the strongest teams the district has to offer at the Kingston Penitentiary Sunday. The day at the "pen", known as the Allan Softball Congress is to be an annual event with district teams pitting their softball prowess against the sturdy inmate team, the Saints.

The first game began at 10:00 a.m. as the Kingston All-Stars battled it out to a 3-1 score in favor of the Saints. It was good ball all the way. The Saints got three runs off six hits, and committed three errors. The All-Stars had one run off seven hits and they committed no errors.

The game between Bloomfield and the local Diesels was a "honey". It turned into an 11 inning contest as the Diesels tied it up at the end of the regulation seven innings. Belleville scored in the first frame. Bloomfield tied it up 1-1 in the fourth and went ahead as they scored another run in the sixth.

In the last frame, Belleville made it 2-2 forcing the game into extra innings. Hull scored the tying run on a fielder's error.

Belleville went ahead in the ninth to make it 3-2 and Bloomfield retaliated, tying it up in their half. Both teams were held scoreless until the 11th when Bloomfield, the two winning runs off two hits to win the game 5-3.

Farr Goes Route

Farr went the route for Bloomfield allowing three runs off seven hits. The winning team committed four errors.

Boyle started for the Diesels. He was relieved in the sixth by Adams and Green came in in the ninth. Between the three of them they allowed five runs off 11 hits. Green was charged with the loss.

After lunch, the Saints and Bloomfeld, the two winning teams, played off resulting in a 10-5 win for the Saints.

The Saints scored three runs in the first frame to take an early lead. They scored again in the 3rd to make it 4-0.

In the fifth the Saints scored two more runs to make it 6-0. Bloomfield scored one run in their half of the sixth. Both teams got three runs in the seventh inning. Hayden of Bloomfield lifted a hard one over the wall for the first home run of the game. Constantine for the Saints lifted the second home run over the wall for the final tally of the game in the ninth frame. Bloomfield scored in their half.

Blake started for the Saints. In an effort to stop a hard drive off the bat of Farr he suffered a sprained finger and was replaced by Stockman. Stasiuk replaced Stockman on the mound in the eighth. The winning team allowed five runs off nine hits.

Farr started for Bloomfield and Green relieved him in the fifth. Between them they gave up 10 runs off 14 hits

Typhoon Winds, Rains Bog Down Korean Fighting

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—Typhoon winds and rains bogged fighting and grounded planes in the Korea war today.

The centre of the storm, with winds up to 90 miles an hour, was expected to pass slightly south of Seoul tonight.

Counter-attacking Chinese won a hill outpost of the east-central front Sunday. It was the third time front Sunday. It was the third time the hill, east of the Pukhan river, had changed hands in four days.

The centre of the typhoon—with winds up to 100 miles an hour—hit Korea's west coast at Kunsan, 80 miles south of Seoul, and roared on across the peninsula toward the Sea of Japan.

There was no report of damage but the storm brought torrential rains to all of South Korea. Four to five inches of rain and winds of 50 to 60 miles-an-hour were predicted for the battlefront tonight.

Bay of Quinte Yacht Club Takes Top Honors in Airquatic Show

Boats from the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club scored a clean sweep for Division 1 boats at the third annual Airquatic Show held by the Airquatic Club of the RCAF main station at Trenton Sunday afternoon.

George K. Graham, sailing "Windrift 1" copped the Senator Fraser Trophy for sailing a six-mile course in 58:34 on corrected time to lead home 13 competing boats in the biggest field to sail in the bay all summer.

Elwood Wickerson, also of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, won the Commodore's' Trophy for the best time in a preliminary heat staged earlier in the year combined with yesterday's race at the air station.

Mrs. Ruth Jenkins, sailing "Question" won the Mikel Challenge Trophy.

J. J. Morch, Commodore of the local yacht club was out in front in the Division One race when he ran aground between Cronk's Island and Trenton harbor. He had to be towed off the bar by the air force crash and rescue boat and was disqualified.

Top finishers on corrected time in the division one race were George K. Graham in 58:34, Ruth Jenkins in 1.01:27 and Jack Sills in 1.01:44.

Senator William Fraser presented his trophy to Mr. Graham and complimented the sailors and the officials for the best meet held to date. Group Captain Hawtrey, Commodore of the Airquatic Club, presented the Com-Commodore's Trophy to Elwood Wickerson, while Commodore J. J. Morch presented Mrs. Jenkins with the Mikel Cup.

In class 2, Mr. McEwen of the Prequ'ile Yacht Club finished in front of two other club mates, Nancy Hanks, and Mr. S. Boyce.

Mr. Hycke won Division III finishing in front of Mr. Winters and FL. Ritchie.

Presentation of the awards and prizes was made in the RCAF Recreational Centre following racing.

Division I boats sailed a six-mile course from Baker's Island to Onderdonk's Cove, then to a buoy off the Murray Canal, back to the Trenton harbor, and back to Baker's Island.

Divisions II and III sailed twice around a course from Baker's Island to Onderdonk's Cove and then to a buoy in Trenton harbor and back to Baker's Island.

The wind, which was blowing at six miles per hour at the start of the race, was blowing 16 miles per hour for the last leg of the race for Division I boats.

Squadron Leader Sharpe was official timer for Division I and Squadron Leader Holt watched the clocks for Divisions II and III.

Investigation . . .

Every day we are called upon to make investigations of one kind or another, either in the ordinary course of business or as a special service. Here is what we mean . . .

Recently one of our Insurance Company friends told us his organization was considering buying additional shares of a company that we know pretty well. He requested that we give him an up-to-date report on how this company was doing. This turned out to be relatively easy . . . we had a report within half an hour, and he had the information on which to base a decision.

On the same day, in the mail, our Toronto Office received a request for a report on a new company and its management, rumoured to be just getting started. While this company was located on the west coast, Toronto was able to obtain some basic information which went out in the mail that night. At the same time over our wire, our Vancouver Office was requested to obtain additional specific details . . . these were received within three days and gave our friend the balance of the information he required.

We are not trying to leave the impression that we know all the answers, or can get the answers to everything, but . . . when it comes to accurate investment information on which decisions may be based, we can provide a great deal and are glad to do it. This is part of our service which we think is good business . . . good for us and good for our clients. If you have an investment problem or need information about your securities of a special or even of a general nature, we believe we can help you. This type of service is available if you call at any of our offices . . . or if it is more convenient, just drop us a line. There is no charge, and of course no obligation.

IN ROME DO AS ROMANS

Much ado has been made in recent headlines about the imprisoning of two British sailors by Japanese courts following their conviction on charges of theft. The United Kingdom government, arguing that the sailors are members of the armed forces and not subject to the civil law of Japan, is trying unsuccessfully to gain the release of the Britons.

It is likely that some Occidentals will resent the attitude of the Japanese in this instance, but during the war years in Canada when the United States built huge bases in Canada and staffed them with Americans who were not subject to Canada's civil law, the shoe was certainly on the other foot. Westerners in the Edmonton district recall that during the war, many Americans engaged in construction of the Alaskan Highway almost treated with contempt the laws of our land. At that time they got away with it, too, but it remained a sore spot which was later corrected.

True, when an army of occupation enters an enemy country, the military laws of the conqueror prevail. In the case of Americans in Canada during the war, they did not enter as an army of occupation, although some people in Edmonton thought they were. Now, members of the American armed forces stationed in Canada are subject to the laws of Canada.

Similarly, the United Nations forces now in Japan are not occupational forces. Japan, even though defeated in the war, has subsequently been elevated to the status of a free nation through treaty. Japanese are now authorized to boss Japan.

So when any nationals do not obey the laws of Japan, they should be subject to Japan's laws. If it were to be established that the British sailors have been unjustly treated, the complaint would be justified. However, that is not the bone of international contention. The United Kingdom believes that the sailors should be passed over to their own military for punishment.

A FINE FAIR

Although the balance sheet showing profit or loss in terms of dollars and cents may take some weeks to prepare, officers and directors of the Belleville Agricultural Society are to be commended for their efforts in staging the recent Belleville exhibition. It was a well-rounded show, appealing to youngsters and adults alike, and both exhibitors and spectators have been loud in expressing their approval of this season's fair.

So long as this area remains primarily an agricultural district, products of the farm will dominate interest at the annual fair. That is the way it should be and those in charge of the exhibition are to be congratulated for appealing to such a large cross-section of agriculture without in any way sacrificing the importance of industry to this growing industrial region.

Although the Belleville Exhibition ran only four days, those four days were the culmination of weeks and months of behind-the-scenes activity by numerous committees and individuals who did not spare themselves to produce the best exhibition yet.

Many factors contributed to make this year's fair a memorable exhibition. The coming of the Mounties to present their famed "Musical Ride" stirred popular interest to a pitch on opening day. Favored by ideal weather, this interest never lagged for the duration of the four-day show.

And so, to the Mounties, the weather man and the board of directors of the Belleville Agricultural Society, a grateful community says: "Thanks for a job well done."

SUSPECTED CLERICS

Toronto the Good is certainly changing. The latest evidence of this is a little story relating that Don Jail authorities have forbidden clergymen to visit a man being held there to face trial on a bank robbery charge. The reason given is that accomplices in clerical garb might attempt to smuggle in guns and saws.

Surely in Toronto they can tell the difference between a genuine cleric and a phoney one trying to play the Trojan Horse role. And if they can't surely there are X-rays and similar gadgets if attendants are to bashful to "frisk" the clerics. — (London Free Press.)

SHOCK IN A DINING CAR

I met him in a dining car,
Where side by side we sat.
As frequently some travellers are,
He seemed inclined to chat.
Naming the city I love best,
Because it's home to me,
And where I have my mail addressed,
"The town is dead!" said he.

At such an unexpected blow
I felt my heart stand still.
I'd left a few brief hours ago,
Not knowing it was ill.

"Yes, dead!" he calmly said again,
And this now troubles me,
I didn't think to ask him then:
When will the funeral be?

I sat in silence as I heard
The sad report he gave.
Rather than say to him a word,
I chose my breath to save.
How to such news be reconciled?
My city dead and gone!
Instead of shedding tears, I smiled
And let him babble on.

LIGHTKEEPER

A common sight to seashore vacationers is the familiar lighthouse, sending out is signal unfailing night after night to passing ships at sea. The two-century old tradition of our lightkeepers is, "The light must not fail." Not storm nor sickness nor danger, even in the most lonely and exposed light, prevents the keeper from carrying out this most important duty while it is humanly possible. Government records contain many instances of heroism and sacrifice on the part of keepers who have stood by their lights at the cost of their lives.

Behind this tradition of absolute and unfailing reliability is the keeper's knowledge that others are dependent on them. In the very worst weather, when to keep the light going may be most difficult and dangerous, unseen ships may be in the most desperate need to know their position. The light keeper can never assume that no one is depending on him.

The position of the Christian in his community is very much like that of the lightkeeper. No matter who he is, or how far down on the social scale he considers himself, someone looks up to him. His standards of conduct and ethics are a guide for others. Like the light house in the night, he is showing the true way—and how vital it is, to others as well as to himself, that his light fail not.

Russ Trade Union Complains That Workers Have Dull Vacations

By THOMAS HARRIS

STOCKHOLM (Reuters)—If overcrowding and poor food marred your 1952 vacation, take comfort in the plight of the Soviet vacationer, as described in "Trud," organ of the Soviet trades union which run the workers' holiday centres on the Black Sea.

Not only do vacationing comrades have to put up with crowding and second-rate food, but some of the resorts are dirty, the shops haven't much to sell, and cultural activities are at such a low ebb that, complains Trud, the poor vacationers have to resort to such activities as dancing.

Big complaint is overcrowding. As a typical example, the paper quotes the Makopse railway workers holiday home on the Caucasian coast.

Four berths in a room of eight square metres just over eight square yards are not unusual, Trud said. "There is no room to move about, much less to put a chair anywhere."

Unsuitable food is another of the Soviet vacationists' grouses.

Tasty winter fare like meat, fish and cereals is abundant, they say, but vegetables and fruit are scarce.

At Yalta, where top Russian and western statesmen met during the war to arrange a post-war settlement, conditions are equally bad. The "Volna" cafe in that resort has no lemonade, mineral water or, of course, fruit.

Visitors managing to make do without suitable food are also irritated by a shortage of everyple, buy socks or safety razors in the Crimea. Only expensive brands day goods. They cannot, for example of cigarets are available.

Trud said the food base at Yalta is "in a horrible condition." The base is housed in a building with 18 apartments in the upper storeys. The apartments all have balconies facing the courtyard. Housewives beat carpets on the balconies and the dust floats down into the courtyard where food is being packed and dispatched to the Crimea's 70 leading health resorts.

Managers of the vacation centres neglect serious things—like lectures on the Volga Don canal—and go in more for ballroom dancing, Trud said. Even chess, swimming, rowing, photography and handicraft lessons are neglected and many holiday-makers "would prefer these to dancing for which—at Makopse at least—only 40 to 50 people turn up each time."

But what pained Trud most of all was the low "cultural level" of the books in some of the centres. In the Makopse home, Trud's correspondent found a 12-volume work "News from Europe" published in 1890 standing side by side with a French work entitled "The Functions of the Human Body."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

On a map of Canada, there is a handsome blue splash of color across it, the Great Lakes, with the broadening expanse of the noble St. Lawrence leading off to the east, and the lesser great Lakes, Nipigon, Winnipeg, and on up and across to Great Bear, filling it westward with a joyous bracing expanse of the happiest of all colors, blue.

But if a perfectly true map of Canada were printed, there are immense areas that would be nearly all blue. Some surveyor has hazarded the guess that in northern Ontario and Quebec alone, there are four million lakes. Surveyors are notoriously cautious characters. It was my privilege a week ago to fly across a great expanse of northern Canada in an attempt to reach Hudson's Bay from the west side. We were driven back by a snow blizzard and freezing rain when within 80 miles of our goal in August.

What impressed me about the air trip across the wilderness was the tremendous proportion of the northern wilds which is water and not land. You can ride hundreds of miles across what might be called a lace of land laid on a groundwork of water. The lakes are countless. They range all the way from ponds to major lakes on which, in a canoe, you cannot see one shore from the other.

The forest of spruce, balsam, poplar and birch are woven and crocheted in amidst this immensity of water, and if you look down on the sunward side of the plane, you will see the shine of water glinting in amidst the trees. The swamps in which the spruce grows are filled with water, and even amid the birch and poplar, the glitter of water is close around their roots.

School children should be raised on a map of Canada which would show, in varying shades of blue, from palest to darkest, the extent of this enormous wealth of water. On it, only the prairies would be brown, and the mountains green. It would be a true map.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SPIRIT

Spirit in a person is something that is difficult to define, but people who have it are the leaders and doers. A sporting writer, trying to put his finger on the success of a great baseball team, in terms of description, could think of nothing else than to say that it had spirit.

What is this spirit, anyway? We can only aim at what it is—that it is the do or die spirit. It's that element in the mind and heart that sets one apart from another, making him a leader. In a very large measure it's the spirit that is housed in one that creates what success he enjoys.

When you break the spirit of a child, or a worker, you wound or kill the most valuable asset that is his. All the faith and confidence that one has is wrapped up within it. Nothing is more tragic than to break a person's spirit. You do something to him that may never be adequately created again. This spirit is one of the most delicate of qualities that any of us has. Break it and it is as though you removed a vital connection, like taking a spark plug from your car. Power is immediately lost.

All individuals, to a greater or less extent, have this spirit. So do a business organization, a club, a football or baseball team. It's that which lifts their morale and drives them to victories. Without it there is mere mediocrity. When a person loses his alive spirit he becomes a wanderer and an odd number.

People stop fighting when they lose their spirit. Genuine leaders help to create this spirit among those to whom they have been assigned for leadership. Great movements take place when a people's spirit is aroused. Without it, revolutions could never be consummated. Cities get this spirit, and everyone in that city is inspired and awakened to civic pride. It's a wonderful asset for either individual or group.

We are often asked to get into the spirit of a thing, that is, to put ourselves, thoughts, energy and enthusiasm into it. Then something worth while is sure to be achieved.

TWO DIE IN WELL

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—A farmer-father and his stepson died while cleaning out a well at their home near here Saturday. The stepson, Samuel F. Pitcher, 15, died of suffocation, mired head-first up to his knees in muck at the bottom of the shaft. The stepfather, Willard E. Reynolds, 36, died of gas poisoning, his legs locked around a cross-pipe six feet down from which he hung in a futile effort to reach the boy.

FATHER OF SIX ORDAINED

Personal Health Talks

TO TEACH MORE PEOPLE HOW TO LIVE

Dear Dr. Brady:

I was so glad to find your column in yesterday's News-Dispatch and learn that you are still alive, as for several months I have had a strong feeling that you had passed on and others were using your name...

That's the pernicious effect of the impropaganda carried on by near-doctors, queer-doctors, charlatans, trick specialists and others who wish I were out of this world and sometimes assure their gullible customers that I have been under the sod these many years. Indeed a statement to that effect appeared in the editorial columns of a newspaper in northern Minnesota. Come, come, fellows, don't rush me. When my time comes I'll turn up my toes and whoever takes over my column will use his or her own name, not mine. Moreover, please don't put me under the sod. I prefer more sanitary disposal.

....I have been an ardent Brady fan for so long that I can hardly tell the year I began reading your column. The clipping inclosed is one of many I saved . . . attended your lecture with my mother who lived to the age of 98 by your advice...

Yes, I advise everybody to live at least that long, but seldom does anybody take my advice seriously until he or she suddenly realizes he or she has begun to degenerate, to die.

...I am 84 and still going, thanks to your fine teachings. ...several times I have showed your column to my doctor to convince him you were right and he was wrong. The last time I did so he did not like it and gave me a prescription for ——— and on having it filled I learned it was just what you had often recommended....

Dear me, I do wish you would not needle the doctor like that. Most of the good doctors would like to kick me into the middle of next week just for their peace and comfort in everyday practice. But when you send me in to pitch against your doctor like that it is just too much to endure. Please let me make my own enemies.

....At any rate I can assure anybody who may not believe there is or was a Dr. William Brady that there is or was, for I saw him and heard him speak.....

Even without the use of mirrors, just with moving pictures, you might see and hear the old quack and still not be sure you saw and heard him in person, you know. And assuming you saw and heard him in person in 1938 you can hardly assure anybody he is still grinding out the old hokum.

....hope you live many more years and continue to teach people how to live. My daughter, granddaughter and her three babies....

I'm doing my best, Ma'am, by not taking life, myself or anyone else too seriously.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

It Isn't Truth Serum

Is truth serum available in pill form to the public? I'd like to know just what to buy to get the truth from an individual. Mrs. K. M.)

Answer—No. What was called "twi-light sleep" and "truth serum" is not serum, but a combination of morphine and copolamine. Except maybe in a novel or magazine story you can't get the truth from any one with these drugs.

Shrewd Diagnosis

From the dismal, mud-spattered December day you hung your shingle informing the Penn Yan public, in gold letters on a black board no larger than the panel of a circus wagon, that your services were available to any one with two bits in his jeans. You haven't learned a darn thing... (——, O. D. and (——, O. D.)

Answer—Probably a hundred thousand physicians and as many dentists, not to mention thousands of optometrists, are in accord with you, fellows. But I maintain I have learned one thing; namely, that I can't say anything at all without irking one or another group of doctors, near-doctors or queer-doctors. So I don't give a ——. I say what I believe the much exploited layman ought to know, and do. I don't care which group of exploiters may be irked.

Inked Sandwiches

Sandwiches I eat for lunch sometimes have black stuff on them (printer's ink from the paper). Is there anything harmful in this? (D. C.)

Answer—No, but why not wash your hands before you unwrap or handle food and use wax paper to wrap sandwiches?

Trucks and Damage To Our Highways

(Editorial From Saturday Night)

Tests conducted in Maryland have demonstrated that heavy trucks are the main destroyers of highways and that as the load increases the amount of damage multiplies. In not one province in Canada are licence fees charged trucks realistic; in not one province do they make up for damage the Maryland tests have shown they do.

Trucks have become the main competitors of railways and as long as they do not pay their fare share of highway costs the provinces are actually bonusing trucking. Provincial taxpayers are paying money to create a situation which as Dominion taxpayers they pay for in railroad deficits.

Trucking is here to stay but the provinces should see that it stands on its own feet.

TWO FISHERMEN DROWNED

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP)—Two fishermen were drowned Saturday in the Skeena River when they tumbled from a collecting boat 20 miles east of here. Dead are Pete McKay, 22, and Stephen Moore, 19.

THEY WON'T BE SAUCERS

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. navy sought yesterday to forestall a rash of flying-saucer reports by announcing plans to launch a series of cross-country balloon flights this week. The primary purpose of the flight is to "study atmospheric radio wave propagations characteristic by use of balloon-borne electronic equipment," the navy said in a news release.

LIGHTKEEPER

A common sight to seashore vacationers is the familiar lighthouse, sending out is signal unfailing night after night to passing ships at sea. The two-century old tradition of our lightkeepers is, "The light must not fail." Not storm nor sickness nor danger, even in the most lonely and exposed light, prevents the keeper from carrying out this most important duty while it is humanly possible. Government records contain many instances of heroism and sacrifice on the part of keepers who have stood by their lights at the cost of their lives.

Behind this tradition of absolute and unfailing reliability is the keeper's knowledge that others are dependent on them. In the very worst weather, when to keep the light going may be most difficult and dangerous, unseen ships may be in the most desperate need to know their position. The light keeper can never assume that no one is depending on him.

The position of the Christian in his community is very much like that of the lightkeeper. No matter who he is, or how far down on the social scale he considers himself, someone looks up to him. His standards of conduct and ethics are a guide for others. Like the light house in the night, he is showing the true way—and how vital it is, to others as well as to himself, that his light fail not.

Russ Trade Union Complains That Workers Have Dull Vacations

By THOMAS HARRIS

STOCKHOLM (Reuters)—If overcrowding and poor food marred your 1952 vacation, take comfort in the plight of the Soviet vacationer, as described in "Trud," organ of the Soviet trades union which run the workers' holiday centres on the Black Sea.

Not only do vacationing comrades have to put up with crowding and second-rate food, but some of the resorts are dirty, the shops haven't much to sell, and cultural activities are at such a low ebb that, complains Trud, the poor vacationers have to resort to such activities as dancing.

Big complaint is overcrowding. As a typical example, the paper quotes the Makopse railway workers holiday home on the Caucasian coast.

Four berths in a room of eight square metres just over eight square yards are not unusual, Trud said. "There is no room to move about, much less to put a chair anywhere."

Unsuitable food is another of the Soviet vacationists' grouses.

Tasty winter fare like meat, fish and cereals is abundant, they say, but vegetables and fruit are scarce.

At Yalta, where top Russian and western statesmen met during the war to arrange a post-war settlement, conditions are equally bad. The "Volna" cafe in that resort has no lemonade, mineral water or, of course, fruit.

Visitors managing to make do without suitable food are also irritated by a shortage of every-ple, buy socks or safety razors in the Crimea. Only expensive brands day goods. They cannot, for examof cigarets are available.

Trud said the food base at Yalta is "in a horrible condition." The base is housed in a building with 18 apartments in the upper storeys. The apartments all have balconies facing the courtyard. Housewives beat carpets on the balconies and the dust floats down into the courtyard where food is being packed and dispatched to the Crimea's 70 leading health resorts.

Managers of the vacation centres neglect serious things—like lectures on the Volga Don canal—and go in more for ballroom dancing, Trud said. Even chess, swimming, rowing, photography and handicraft lessons are neglected and many holiday-makers "would prefer these to dancing for which—at Makopse at least—only 40 to 50 people turn up each time."

But what pained Trud most of all was the low "cultural level" of the books in some of the centres. In the Makopse home, Trud's correspondent found a 12-volume work "News from Europe" published in 1890 standing side by side with a French work entitled "The Functions of the Human Body."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

On a map of Canada, there is a handsome blue splash of color across it, the Great Lakes, with the broadening expanse of the noble St. Lawrence leading off to the east, and the lesser great Lakes, Nipigon, Winnipeg, and on up and across to Great Bear, filling it westward with a joyous bracing expanse of the happiest of all colors, blue.

But if a perfectly true map of Canada were printed, there are immense areas that would be nearly all blue. Some surveyor has hazarded the guess that in northern Ontario and Quebec alone, there are four million lakes. Surveyors are notoriously cautious characters. It was my privilege a week ago to fly across a great expanse of northern Canada in an attempt to reach Hudson's Bay from the west side. We were driven back by a snow blizzard and freezing rain when within 80 miles of our goal in August.

What impressed me about the air trip across the wilderness was the tremendous proportion of the northern wilds which is water and not land. You can ride hundreds of miles across what might be called a lace of land laid on a groundwork of water. The lakes are countless. They range all the way from ponds to major lakes on which, in a canoe, you cannot see one shore from the other.

The forest of spruce, balsam, poplar and birch are woven and crocheted in amidst this immensity of water, and if you look down on the sunward side of the plane, you will see the shine of water glinting in amidst the trees. The swamps in which the spruce grows are filled with water, and even amid the birch and poplar, the glitter of water is close around their roots.

School children should be raised on a map of Canada which would show, in varying shades of blue, from palest to darkest, the extent of this enormous wealth of water. On it, only the prairies would be brown, and the mountains green. It would be a true map.

TODAY'S TALK

SPIRIT

Spirit in a person is something that is difficult to define, but people who have it are the leaders and doers. A sporting writer, trying to put his finger on the success of a great baseball team, in terms of description, could think of nothing else than to say that it had spirit.

What is this spirit, anyway? We can only aim at what it is—that it is the do or die spirit. It's that element in the mind and heart that sets one apart from another, making him a leader. In a very large measure it's the spirit that is housed in one that creates what success he enjoys.

When you break the spirit of a child, or a worker, you wound or kill the most valuable asset that is his. All the faith and confidence that one has is wrapped up within it. Nothing is more tragic than to break a person's spirit. You do something to him that may never be adequately created again. This spirit is one of the most delicate of qualities that any of us has. Break it and it is as though you removed a vital connection, like taking a spark plug from your car. Power is immediately lost.

All individuals, to a greater or less extent, have this spirit. So do a business organization, a club, a football or baseball team. It's that which lifts their morale and drives them to victories. Without it there is mere mediocrity. When a person loses his alive spirit he becomes a wanderer and an odd number.

People stop fighting when they lose their spirit. Genuine leaders help to create this spirit among those to whom they have been assigned for leadership. Great movements take place when a people's spirit is aroused. Without it, revolutions could never be consummated. Cities get this spirit, and everyone in that city is inspired and awakened to civic pride. It's a wonderful asset for either individual or group.

We are often asked to get into the spirit of a thing, that is, to put ourselves, thoughts, energy and enthusiasm into it. Then something worth while is sure to be achieved.

TWO DIE IN WELL

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—A farmer-father and his stepson died while cleaning out a well at their home near here Saturday. The stepson, Samuel F. Pitcher, 15, died of suffocation, mired head-first up to his knees in muck at the bottom of the shaft. The stepfather, Willard E. Reynolds, 36, died of gas poisoning, his legs locked around a cross-pipe six feet down from which he hung in a futile effort to reach the boy.

FATHER OF SIX ORDAINED

TRENTO, Italy (Reuters)—A family of six brothers and sisters sat in the church of St. Mary Major here yesterday and watched their father ordained as a Roman Catholic priest. The new priest, Bonfiglio Paolazzi, 78, began studying theology after his wife died 12 years ago.

Personal Health Talks

TO TEACH MORE PEOPLE HOW TO LIVE

Dear Dr. Brady:

I was so glad to find your column in yesterday's News-Dispatch and learn that you are still alive, as for several months I have had a strong feeling that you had passed on and others were using your name...

That's the pernicious effect of the impropaganda carried on by near-doctors, queer-doctors, charlatans, trick specialists and others who wish I were out of this world and sometimes assure their gullible customers that I have been under the sod these many years. Indeed a statement to that effect appeared in the editorial columns of a newspaper in northern Minnesota. Come, come, fellows, don't rush me. When my time comes I'll turn up my toes and whoever takes over my column will use his or her own name, not mine. Moreover, please don't put me under the sod. I prefer more sanitary disposal.

....I have been an ardent Brady fan for so long that I can hardly tell the year I began reading your column. The clipping inclosed is one of many I saved . . . attended your lecture with my mother who lived to the age of 98 by your advice...

Yes, I advise everybody to live at least that long, but seldom does anybody take my advice seriously until he or she suddenly realizes he or she has begun to degenerate, to die.

...I am 84 and still going, thanks to your fine teachings. ...several times I have showed your column to my doctor to convince him you were right and he was wrong. The last time I did so he did not like it and gave me a prescription for ——— and on having it filled I learned it was just what you had often recommended....

Dear me, I do wish you would not needle the doctor like that. Most of the good doctors would like to kick me into the middle of next week just for their peace and comfort in everyday practice. But when you send me in to pitch against your doctor like that it is just too much to endure. Please let me make my own enemies.

....At any rate I can assure anybody who may not believe there is or was a Dr. William Brady that there is or was, for I saw him and heard him speak.....

Even without the use of mirrors, just with moving pictures, you might see and hear the old quack and still not be sure you saw and heard him in person, you know. And assuming you saw and heard him in person in 1938 you can hardly assure anybody he is still grinding out the old hokum.

....hope you live many more years and continue to teach people how to live. My daughter, granddaughter and her three babies....

I'm doing my best, Ma'am, by not taking life, myself or anyone else too seriously.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

It Isn't Truth Serum

Is truth serum available in pill form to the public? I'd like to know just what to buy to get the truth from an individual. Mrs. K. M.)

Answer—No. What was called "twi-light sleep" and "truth serum" is not serum, but a combination of morphine and copolamine. Except maybe in a novel or magazine story you can't get the truth from any one with these drugs.

Shrewd Diagnosis

From the dismal, mud-spattered December day you hung your shingle informing the Penn Yan public, in gold letters on a black board no larger than the panel of a circus wagon, that your services were available to any one with two bits in his jeans. You haven't learned a darn thing... (——, O. D. and (——, O. D.)

Answer—Probably a hundred thousand physicians and as many dentists, not to mention thousands of optometrists, are in accord with you, fellows. But I maintain I have learned one thing; namely, that I can't say anything at all without irking one or another group of doctors, near-doctors or queer-doctors. So I don't give a ——. I say what I believe the much exploited layman ought to know, and do. I don't care which group of exploiters may be irked.

Inked Sandwiches

Sandwiches I eat for lunch sometimes have black stuff on them (printer's ink from the paper). Is there anything harmful in this? (D. C.)

Answer—No, but why not wash your hands before you unwrap or handle food and use wax paper to wrap sandwiches?

Trucks and Damage To Our Highways

(Editorial From Saturday Night)

Tests conducted in Maryland have demonstrated that heavy trucks are the main destroyers of highways and that as the load increases the amount of damage multiplies. In not one province in Canada are licence fees charged trucks realistic; in not one province do they make up for damage the Maryland tests have shown they do.

Trucks have become the main competitors of railways and as long as they do not pay their fare share of highway costs the provinces are actually bonusing trucking. Provincial taxpayers are paying money to create a situation which as Dominion taxpayers they pay for in railroad deficits.

Trucking is here to stay but the provinces should see that it stands on its own feet.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. navy sought yesterday to forestall a rash of flying-saucer reports by announcing plans to launch a series of cross-country balloon flights this week. Eight Members of Yugoslavia Olympic Rowing Team Not Returning to Red Homeland

RUESSELSHEIM, Germany (AP)—Eight young men of Yugosalia's Olympic rowing team said today they are not going to return to their Communist homeland.

The team's manager, Slavko Jankovic, said he and seven others want to go to Canada.

Seeking temporary asylum here with him are six members of the Yugoslav eight-oar crew, and the stroke oar from the two-man squad with coxswain which competed at Helsinki.

"We hear that there are also four other Yugoslav rowers now in Bochum, Germany, who are not going back, but we are not sure about that," Jankovic said.

The rowers, whose ages range range from 21 to 36 years, stopped here on their way from Helsinki to compete in a regatta. Jankovic said they wanted to quit Yugoslavia for political reasons and also because "life there is difficult and expensive."

"Canada is a land where one can work and live in freedom and earn enough to live as an honorable man," he added.

In Canada the rowers hope to join four other Yugoslav oarsmen who fled to the west from an international regatta in Milan, Italy, two years ago.

In Helsinki the eight-oar crew won its first heat against Australia, but lost its second to Great Britain and was eliminated in a third race.

Doctor Pulled Safely to Surface

LICQ-ATHERY, France (AP) — Dr. Andre Mairey was pulled safely to the surface today from the cave which claimed the life of French explorer Marcel Loubens.

The doctor was the last of four explorers who had spent anxious days and nights 1,153 feet below ground.

Mairey went down last Thursday in a vain attempt to save Loubens' life after he fell 120 feet to the rocks below.

A bronze cross and two photographs were lowered into the cave earlier today. Mairey placed them on the explorer's grave before he was hauled up.

Safe Crackers Destroy $700 Currency in Safe

Two Hamilton men weer arrested in Hamilton and turned over to Grimsby police for questioning. Two men had made a getaway from the building as Constable Angus Stewart, of the local police, fired five shots in an effort to stop them.

Police to Question Suspect About Toronto Slaying

HAILEYBURY (CP) — A man held as a suspect in a high-grading case is to be questioned by Toronto police in connection with the hatchet-slaying more than a year ago of Mrs. Gertrude Derkison, 41, in her hardware shop in downtown Toronto.

Bail of Douglas Reid of Sudbury was increased from $1,000 to $15,000 cash or $30,000 property when he appeared in court here Friday on a charge of illegally transporting high-grade silver. Reid was arrested with M. (Bud) Gilson of Cobalt. Gibson is on bail of $1,000.

Provincial police said Reid will be questioned about the Derkison killing because his description resembles that given by witnesses the day Mrs. Derkison was trussed with wire and hacked to death.

(In Toronto, a police official said today Toronto officers will be sent to Haileybury to question Reid.)

Provincial Constable G.S. Saunier, who arrested Reid at gunpoint, said he found 100 pounds of silver and three silver-plated iron nuggets in Reid's automobile. Reid gave his address as Sudbury but is reported to have been born in Montreal.

Zatopek Spurns Bids to Visit United States

VIENNA (AP)—Emil Zatopek, Czechoslovakia's triple gold medalist in the recent Olympics, spurned bids to visit the United States today, calling the offers "ridiculous, unsportsmanlike."

The world's marathon champion, broadcasting over the Prauge radio, said the offers were to run on "circus" track unsuitable for his long-distance running. He added:

"I only laughed when I received these ridiculous, unsportsmanlike offers."

Zatopek said the United States was indirectly responsible for his record-breaking feats at Helsinki.

"It was the brutal and harsh play of the United States ice hockey team in the winter Olympics which drove me to my most recent performances," he said.

Girl's Slayer Ordered Confined as Lunatic

NEW YORK (AP) — Bayard Peakes, the "eternal life" physicist who killed a pretty blonde secretary on the Columbia University campus, today was ordered confined as a lunatic.

Judge Edward J. McCullen committed him. Psychiatrists had found the 29-year-old Peakes so mentally deranged that he could not understand the murder charge against him.

Last July 14, Peakes walked into the offices of the American Physical Society, on the Columbia campus, and shot to death 18-year-old Eileen Fahey—a girl he had never seen before. He said later he was angry with the Society for not recognizing his theories on eternal life.

YOU CAN SMELL THE DIFFERENCE

SURF-CLEAN . . . SWEETER! (Right)

Even if dried indoors! Yes, even without rinsing, Surf gets clothes cleaner . . . removes every last trace of dirt, every hint of "dirty clothes" odour. Surf-clean clothes are whiter, brighter . . . and so wonderfully fresh and sweet to smell!

New scientific tests show why

Surf gets your washes SWEETER!

TRY THIS LATEST WASHDAY TRICK — IT'S SO EASY— IT'S SO QUICK!

1. Even without rinsing, Surf-clean clothes are the cleanest clothes. But, better still, try adding a little Surf to the rinse-water. This helps keep your clothes-sweeter longer.

2. This single light Surf-rinse is better than several clear-water rinsings. It's easier on your clothes, too. And, it leaves everything so wonderfully soft and easy to iron.

3. Surf-washed, Surf-rinsed, Surf-clean clothes are sunshiny-white, sunshiny-bright, fresh-air-sweet, even if dried indoors! Truly astonishing! There never was anything like it!

Tests show SURF gets out more dirt, grease and germs than any other leading washday suds! Gets clothes so clean you can actually smell the difference!

You can tell by the smell that your Surf-clean wash is deep-down sweet and clean. Not just whiter, not just brighter to look at—but sunshiny, fresh-air-sweet to smell, even if dried indoors.

Laboratory tests explain why this is so. They show that Surf—even without rinsing—actually gets out more dirt . . : the kind you can see and also "invisible dirt"—grease, germs and scum. Because it gets out this hidden dirt that other suds leave in your clothes, it gets out every trace of "dirty clothes" odour—far more than any other product tested.

Yet Surf is as gentle to hands and to fabrics as it is hard on dirt. It contains a wonderful purifying ingredient that gently floats out even deep-down soil and odour . . . that lets you safely cut down or eliminate rinsing.

Keep several boxes on hand for laundry, kitchen, bathroom. You'll find Surf's faster, gentler, sweeter action saves time, work, water—and washables. Gives you the cleanest, sweetest washes ever. Yes, your eyes and your nose will tell you: If it's Surf-clean, it's really clean! Sweeter!

WEDDINGS

BOWES—BOTTUM

Christ Church, Bobcaygeon, Ontario, was the quaint and beautiful setting for the marriage Wednesday, August 6th, of Wihla Lauramae, daughter of Mr. C. K. Bottum, Bobcaygeon, to Mr. John Merton Bowes, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Bowes, of Toronto. The Rev. George Ball officiated, and Mr. Charles Allen was organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in a Queen Anne period dress of white Chantilly lace over satin. Her headdress, a tiara of matching lace and seed pearls, held her shoulder-length veil of embroidered nylon net. She carried a horseshoe bouquet of white gardenias and mauve baby orchids. Miss Eloise McGee, Bobcaygeon, was maid of honor, and Miss Patricia Bowes, Toronto, was bridesmaid. They were gowned similarly in ballet-length dresses of coral and yellow lace over taffeta, and carried contrasting cascade bouquets of coral and yellow gladioli. Each wore a cluster of matching flowers in her hair.

Groomsman was Mr. David Bowes, brother of the groom, and the ushers were Gordon McIntyre and Wesley Jackson.

The bridal party left the church in a Leicester carriage drawn by a teams of prancing hackney horses.

At the reception which followed at "Rolling Acres", Mrs. C. K. Bottom received wearing a gown of champagne lace with matching hat and accessories, and a corsage of Johanna Hill roses. Mrs. W. M. Bowes, mother of the groom, also received wearing a gown of grey silk crepe, with a hat of pink rose buds, and a corsage of Talisman roses.

Later the bride and groom left for a trip to Manitoulin Island. For travelling the bride wore a heaven blue silk linen suit with white accessories and a corsage of white gardenias. On return they will live at Chemong Lake, Bridgenorth.

The bride is a grandniece of "Cap" Bottum, of Belleville. She also attended Ontario Business College, here.

BULPIT—CRAIG

Peach, pink, yellow and white gladioli formed a lovely background in Christ Church, Belleville, on Saturday, August 2nd, at 1.00 p.m. when Gladys Mona, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Craig, of Belleville, became the bride of Alfred Cluen Bulpit, of Trenton, son of Mrs. H. Bulpit, and the late Mr. Bulpit. The Reverend Everett Smith officiated.

Mrs. J. B. Leddingham provided the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Miss Marion Prindle, who sang before the ceremony, "Because", and during the signing of the register, "I'll Walk Beside You".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was radiant in her floor-length bridal gown of white Chantilly lace over satin, fashioned with fitted bodice featuring an off-the-shoulder yoke of nylon net having a high net collar caught by clusters of seed pearls, and long, sheath-like sleeves V-pointed over the wrists. The bouffant skirt fell in graceful folds. Her full length veil of silk tulle illusion was caught to a wreath of lily-of-the-valley and she carried a cascade bouquet of Bettertime red roses.

Mrs. Jean Derbyshire, of Belleville, was matron of honor, wearing a floor-length gown of pink silk marquisette over satin. She wore a shoulder-length veil caught by clusters of pink roses and carried a cascade bouquet of pink gladioli blooms.

Miss Shirley Haley, of Belleville, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid, attired in a floor-length gown of powder blue taffeta with full skirt and fitted bodice. She wore a headdress of lily-of-the-valley and carried a cascade bouquet of peach colored gladioli blooms.

Little Miss Arlene Burford, and Master Freddie Burford, of Picton, cousins of the bride, attended the bride, as veil bearers, Arlene demure in a pea green floor-length taffeta frock with lime green velvet sash, and matching crownless brim of pea green, with ties, and Freddie in grey flannels with navy blue jacket and white boutonniere.

Mr. Gordon Hoskins, of Belleville, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Donald Vance and Mr. Roy Chisholm, both of Belleville, were ushers.

The reception was held on the lawn at the bride's home for about seventy-five guests, where the bride's mother received, attired in a gown of mauve faille and lace with white accessories and corsage of yellow roses.

The bride's table was beautifully appointed with white linen centred by a three-tiered wedding cake topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom, and flanked by silver candelabra with pink tapers.

The toast to the bride was proposed by the Reverend Everett Smith to which the bridegroom responded.

Guests were present from Picton, Ameliasburg, Salem and Actinolite.

Belleville Arts, Crafts Group Display of Paintings at Ingersoll Receives Favorable Comment

An exhibit of paintings by the Belleville Arts and Crafts Group which is attracting much favorable comment is on display at the Ingersoll Public Library. This show is composed of landscapes, portraits and still life, all showing versatility, variety and good technique.

Among the more colorful paintings are three by Philippa Faulkner. These are lively canvases of vivid coloring coupled with clever use of the angular form. "Mexican Market Scene" is exceptionally gay with its brilliantly-hued dresses of the women and generally cheerful tones. The artist must have enjoyed and appreciated the original scene.

"Winter Breaks Through" is a good study in pattern as the snow and undergrowth form a design on the hillside down the warm red house in the foreground. "Spring Flood" has all the charm and primitive simplicity of a Quebec hooked rug. While not as well executed as her other two canvases it has a sincere freshness all its own, nevertheless.

Charles R. Bone contributed three paintings of wide variety and good technique. "Winter Solitude" is a splendid study of the Belleville skyline on an overcast day. His clever combination of cool and warm greys is most pleasing. In "The King's Plate", the artist has managed to capture and depict one of the most difficult things to portray in oils—the feeling of motion. The legs of the racing horses, straining neck-to-neck, almost flash in movement so well has the sensation been caught. "Weekend Retreat" presents yet a third mood by Bone. This is a sketch of a place of quiet summer solitude, an ideal weekend retreat.

"Sweet and Sour" a still life by Margaret Robbins gives evidence of a professional touch. The rich nasturtiums combined with the shiny apples and pottery have the aliveness which is so often lacking in a still life but which is captured admirably on this canvas.

In contrast to the vigorous style of Faulkner and Bone there are two scenes from very different locales but both giving out an air of peace and quiet loveliness. These are "Bit of Devon" by Mary Quinn and "Florida Palms" by Leona Riggs. Their colors are soft and composition is good.

"Summer Meadow" by Gladys Simpson has a technique all its own. The paint is laid heavily on the canvas. It is a true summer day with a tree shaded meadow and most inviting bank of sunny flowers in the foreground.

Mary Moult contributes "Street Scenes Nos. I and II" these are sketches of a typical, small town street; good studies in design and perspective.

Mildred Moorman has two paintings in the show. "Snider's Silo" makes use of strong shadows with dramatic effect. "Back Yard", shows a few bits of white washing flapping on a line plus a ramshackle woodshed giving a glimpse into a bygone era when woodsheds were in fashion although this type of old home is now a nostalgic oddity.

Three portraits are in exhibit. Two are southern location sketches by Leona Riggs. One is the head of a blonde, bearded man. This is entitled "St. Petersburg Model". The other by the same artist is "Southern Negro". This latter is a good study of the care-worn face of a weary old man. The third portrait is by Helen Keeler. It is a pleasing colorful portrayal of a young woman. The sultry eyes, petulant mouth and gypsy-like scarf about the head make it an arresting study of a face.

The entire show gives a fine and varied collection of oils of which the artists may well feel proud.

These paintings will be on display in the library for another week and the public is invited to came in and see this very interesting exhibit.

Famous French Chef Says Women Cook as Well as Men

By NADEANE WALKER

PARIS (AP)—One of the most famous chefs of France admits that women can cook just as well as men.

Paul Bellon is chef of the Cafe de Paris, one of only two Paris restaurants which rate three stars in this year's Guide Michelin, the gourmet's bible

"Women make wonderful cooks," says Bellon. "The only reason all the noted chefs are men is that the trade is just too hard for women. There's a lot of heavy physical labor in a restaurant kitchen, and the hours are long."

At 66, Bellon works about 14 hours a day, six days a week, supervising and advising 18 cooks—all men.

He doesn't seem impressed with the highest accolade in the culinary world. "After all," he shrugs, "I came here as a kitchen boy in 1904."

Since he became chef in 1920, Bellon has garnered enough Michelin stars for the Cafe de Paris to create a minor firmament. But his own favorite cook is his wife.

"At home, Madame Bellon is the chef," he says. "I only cook a meal about once a week to give her a rest."

Cooking is no longer the proud profession it used to be, says Bellon. "The boys don't want to go in for it any more. It used to be a very well paid trade, but nowadays a skilled cook in a good restaurant only gets about 40,000 francs ($115) a month, plus his meals."

Take a roasting chicken to serve four (about three pounds); after cleaning and emptying it, roast with a water glass of dry champagne and a piece of butter for about 45 minutes. When it is done, reduce the resulting bouillon and mix in four egg yellows and a pint of cream. Heat this sauce on the fire, but do not boil it. Then pour it over the roast chicken, and decorate with several slices of truffle.

Bride-To-Be Honored With Many Gifts

A delightful miscellaneous shower was held recently by about forty co-workers and wives of the Loblaw store, Front Street, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Kane, Holloway Street, in honor one of their number, Miss Dorothy Cretney, bride-to-be of next month. Miss Cretney has been on the staff for a period of ten years as cashier and at the present time as head cashier.

The home was most attractively decorted for the occasion with pink and white streamers, and a profusion of summer flowers adorned the spacious rooms.

Mrs. Kane, the hostess, read the address to Dorothy, who was seated in the chair of honor, bedecked with pink and white, wishing her much happiness in her new avocation. Following the address two prettily decorated baskets, overflowing with lovely and useful gifts, were presented to the bride-to-be for which she most graciously expressed her appreciation and thanks.

The evening was spent in games and contests and a social get-together.

The serving of refreshments by Dorothy's co-workers brought a most enjoyable evening to a close.

British Manufactures Cut Price of Elegant Clothes Due to Shortage of Money

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—An encouraging forecast for winter clothing prices is given by Britain's leading manufacturer.

"A smart woollen dress that last year cost 17 guineas will sell this season for about half that," said a leading dress manufacturer. "We have cut the price of elegant clothes due to the shortage of money."

An added incentive for price-cutting may be the fact that the latest fall fashions, just appearing in shop windows, are not so different from those of last year and the year before.

It seems that all types and grades of stores will have to sharpen their sales promotion. Last year's classic suit and redingote-styled coat are still up-to-the-minute fashion choices.

There will, however, be a wide variety of attractive designs at competitive prices to help boost sales. A predicted autumn best-seller is a range of inexpensive velour coats with stand collars of beaver lamb, loose-shouldered narrow-wristed sleeves, straight skirts and hip-pocket interest.

Fine barathea, the smooth dressy material that became a post-war winner until its place was usurped by harder-wearing worsteds, is back in the front line. Simple, classic suits with a Mayfair look will sell from £10 to £11.

Another dressy winter woolly, priced under £10, is a shirt-waisted frock in grey vigoreux, a new hard-wearing material resembling a cross between a flannel and a worsted. Dresses in this material sold by one London wholesale house are styled by the well-known French designer, Pierre Balmain.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Is her husband really out of love with her, or just teasing?

One of the problems with which a great many wives have to cope is the one presented by an undemonstrative husband. There may be nothing else whatever in her marriage with which the wife can find fault. She may have a comfortable home, no money worries, and her husband may never give her cause to suspect him of being attentive to other women. Yet in spite of all this, the wife may be acutely unhappy, as is the case described as follows by one such woman:

"I'm 25, have been married nearly three years and have a year old son.

"For over a year now my husband hasn't kissed me on the lips, nor told me he loves me. When I ask him if he loves me, all he does is to say, 'Sometimes.' Last week we had a slight argument, and I told him if he was tired of me to say so and I'd take the baby and leave. He just grinned and said, 'Where would you go? No one would take you in.' All this makes me feel that he doesnt' want me any longer, but he won't say so.

"I love my husband and I hate to think of leaving him, but I have feelings and I need affection so badly. I try to kiss him and show him how much I love him, but he won't let me be loving to him. He is ten years older than I am, but I don't see why this should make any difference.

"Will you please tell me what to do? Something has to happen, and soon, as I cannot go on like this. I know I could leave home and get a job doing housework some place where they would let me keep my child with me, but I can't bear to think of breaking up my home."

Now it's very hard for women who are demonstrative themselves, and to whom frequent little gestures of affection and words of love mean so much, to understand why their husbands are not the same way. Frequently such women say to me: "When he was courting me, it wasn't like this. It's only been since we've been married that my husband doesn't show me affection."

Adjust Emotions

I think this troubled young wife is probably quite mistaken in feeling that her husband doesn't want her around any longer. What I do think is that, like so many other men, he expects a wife to take his love for granted, and it would seem to me sensible for her to assume that this is the whole trouble and to try and adjust to it, unless and until she finds real reason to believe something else is wrong. I'm not belittling the importance of this particular problem to any wife, for it is certainly frustrating to a woman to be brushed off when she longs to express and receive affection. But I think her best plan right now is to put up with the situation for a while and throw all her energies into making her home as happy a place as possible. Instead of brooding over her yearning for the tangible expressions of love that her husband withholds, and instead of offering to him her own expressions of love which he does not seem to appreciate, she might try showing her devotion by always being bright and cheerful, keeping the house neat and comfortable to come home to and doing lots of little thoughtful things for her husband. It's entirely possible that she has shown her unhappiness over his undemonstrativeness so cnstantly that, rightly or wrongly, he feels aggrieved and wishes she would keep still about it. So, let her keep still for awhile, and see what happens. She can work off a lot of emotional energy devoting herself to the baby, and to her husband in these unobtrusive ways I have suggested.

As for those remarks of his which she quoted, it sounds to me as though he was just teasing. Why not let it go at that?

It's not at all impossible that if she will adopt the kind of attitude I have been talking about her husband may gradually notice it and, that in time, it might bring about a change in him. Anyhow, I think it would be a big mistake for her to break up her home before trying it out.

Food for Thought

Refrigerator Housekeeping

By Mary Moore

Without being disloyal or treading on anyone's toes I have an opportunity at long last to air my gripe to housekeepers who do not treat their food with respect.

Food is a very expensive essential (I'm telling you!) and it is one of the major duties of homemakers to take precious care of it.

I have been visiting my friend Garny near Lake Michigan and as you know she is one of the world's most meticulous housekeepers.

On the first morning after Marianne and I arrived Garny and I were doing the breakfast dishes in a leisurely and talkative manner. She asked me if I had to spend much time at the typewriter while I was there. Except for some special assignments my work was caught up. But she had an idea. She and Joe had been visiting in Florida this spring and had visited with a mutual friend of ours from college days. This girl is the food offender.

She does not wash her food when she stores it in the refrigerator. For instance, she tossed a couple of bunches of carrots, tops on, on the floor of her refrigerator. She leaves the meat and butter and mayonnaise and cream uncovered. Even a jar of egg whites was uncovered and had formed a hard film on top. A leftover half of roast turkey was shoved into the refrigerator on the silver patter on which it had been served, and left uncovered.

Garny was distressed at such careless waste and thought good refrigerator housekeeping would be a good topic for a column of mine.

My friends, you know I'm no martinet, for I believe in enjoying every minute of the day, praising where praise is due, and playing down the criticism—but if I could give some of you a lift on this serious business of storing and conserving food, and making the optimum use of your handsome refrigerator I would feel this little refresher course was justified.

BRINGING HOME THE GROCERIES

When the groceries are brought into the kitchen put away the dry and canned foods first to reduce the confusion.

Pop a tin of fruit juice into the refrigerator to have on tap and cold for quick beverages in this weather.

Do not wash bananas but store them in a dark cupboard in double paper bags to prevent bruising. They should not be refrigerated.

Wash lettuce, cabbage, celery, cucumbers, peppers, tomatoes, radishes and carrots (trims tops from latter two). Store these in plastic bags of size and shape to hold them even when they are placed in crispers.

Do not wash berries but keep them covered in refrigerator. At mealtime wash enough berries for your current meal in a sieve under cold running water.

Wash and dry tops and bottoms of milk bottles before standing them in refrigerator.

To keep egg yolks soft barely cover them with cold water and keep in covered jar.

Plastic bags and foilwrap are the dream of all fastidious food handlers and save their cost in food conserved a hundred times over.

DEFROSTING

Food need not warm up to room temperature when you defrost. I am sure I have told you before to defrost quickly by filling the ice trays with almost boiling water while power is turned off. (This does not apply to self-defrosting refrigerators.) This quickly melts off the frost on the coils before the internal temperature of milk and meat and butter and such perishables can be lowered. With this method I can defrost and have refrigerator shelves, walls and crispers cleaned, left overs assembled into a made dish, water pan emptied, door closed and power turned on again in one and one-half hours.

That timing may not break any Olympic records but it certainly cuts food and time waste down to a minimum.

If some of you bosom friends of mine have some refrigerator tips to pass on to me to pass on to the rest of this audience I'd be glad to receive them in the mail.

Fashion Flashes

PRESENT in practically every millinery showing is the important little casual, softly handled to make it right for wear with town tweeds. A neat little casual worn to one side, is in deep cinnamon velour with a crown band and softly dropping red and green feather quills.

A NATURAL for town or country evening wear is the linen dress sparkling with beaded embroidery. A mid-season design is of old rose linen with gored skirt and a deep neckline with a halter. Both the bodice top and the little matching bolero are thickly embroidered with glistening white and crystal beads.

WORKING IN to the fall color card is green, in various shades from light chartreuse to deep olive, with emphasis on bronzey greens for tweeds. Fresh and beautiful for mid-season wear are dresses of white silk chiffon with trailing leaf and stem designs or just leaf prints. These look very fresh and new. White and green is a favorite too, for mid-season cottons.

AT ALL LEVELS, in all types, and at all price tags, there'll be scads of the beloved "little black dresses." Dull silk crepe for a pretty little number made with a button-trimmed corselet waistline in faille. The deep neckline which extends in a V to the top of the midriff corselet, is faille edged and the batwing sleeves are finished with faille edged cuffs.

BIG AND SPLASHY jewelry designed for beach wear is a late import from Paris. The line is mostly made of seashells combined with smooth and branch coral mounted on raffia.

GOOD MANNERS

Young man's mother should give direct invitation to girl

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our daughter has been invited by a young man who has been a good friend of hers and ours for a year or so, to visit his family during her vacation the first two weeks in September. They live several hundred miles from here, and although she and this young man are not engaged, he would like to have his family meet her and to have her meet his family. My husband insists that we should not let her go until the young man's mother has personally invited her, so that she is sure about the convenience of the visit and the welcome from the family. (1) Is his mother's invitation a 'must'? (2) Also, could she accept the young man's offer to give her a round-trip ticket to his home?—Mother

(1) Your husband is right. . . yes, it is a 'must' that the young man's mother, hostess of his home, give your daughter a direct invitation. She may write to your daughter, or she may telephone to her. If the invitation isn't forthcoming, your daughter should say to her friend, "Mother and Father would feel better if they were sure that your mother would like to have me come at this time, if it's convenient. Would you ask her, please, if she will personally assure me that she'd like to have me come? (2) No. It would not be proper for her to accept her travelling expenses, or any part of them.

Even close relatives usually pay for wedding photographs they order

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

There is such a discussion in our household, and in our group of friends—will you help us, please, by answering this question? My sister-in-law was married about two months ago, and left for a Southern state where her husband is stationed. Yesterday my mother-in-law received the book of wedding photographs from the photographer, and told us that they have still to order the individual photographs. Her inference was that if we wanted any of the photographs we were to pay for them. I had assumed that all the members of the immediate families received a wedding photograph as a matter of course. Am I correct in this matter? Did you ever hear of a member of the family having to pay for a wedding photograph?—L. K. E.

Yes, indeed I have heard of a member of the family being expected to pay for any wedding photograph he or she may order from the photographer. This is the usual procedure, and necessarily has to be when the bride and her family have the customary limited budget to consider. Wedding photographs are quite an item of expense, and if the bride and her family allowed sisters and brothers of the bride and groom to choose whatever photographs they wish and charge these to the bride's family, this of course would be a real strain on the budget.

The engagement broken. . .she should return hope chest to ex-fiance

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We have a family problem. . . please help us! My sister's engagement was announced last June, and at that time her fiance gave her a hope chest (at her suggestion, I may say!). Last week their engagement was broken, and although she has returned the engagement ring to him, she has not returned any other of his presents to him, insists she is not going to return anything but the ring. . .not even the hope chest. Mother and I think she is wrong about this, that she should return all the gifts he gave her . . . even the hope chest. Please advise us.—Dorothy.

You and your mother are right . . . your sister should return (and should wish to return!) all the presents her ex-fiance gave her. And, yes, she should indeed return such a significant present as a hope chest. . .that hope chest is a symbol of a situation that no longer exists.

BEAUTY

Voice of beauty.

Distributed by King Features Syndicate

Ladies don't shout.

American girls the world over are credited with good taste in dress, pretty feet, good complexions, smart coiffures. However, there is a "but" that follows this acknowledgment of their visual charms—"but many of them have terrible voices."

When you travel in Europe you will hear that criticism time and again. Coming in contact with fellow tourists you will have to confess that it is at least a half-truth.

Listen to the voices you hear around you, analyze your response to them. There is friendliness in a low, sweet voice and it is an expression of poise. The girl who shrills is usually of a nervous temperament. It is no fun to be with her. You can't tell her to soft pedal without being rude, so you make a get-away as soon as possible.

The girl who has a clear, intelligent-sounding voice has a much better chance of getting and holding down a good job than one who speaks with a certain harshness, who does not enunciate clearly or whose telephone voice is difficult to understand. A pleasing voice is an asset in business as well as social life.

There are two common causes of this charm liability: too high a pitch and too much volume. Both these defects can be corrected. It is a matter of keeping tab on your tones, modulating your voice.

The flat, dispirited voice is a handicap. It is half-sister to the whine which is nothing less than infantile. Often it is just habit, doesn't mean that the speaker is depressed or unhappy.

If you are inclined to feel that your voice is not as pleasing as it should be, you can take a speech course in the adult-education program at some high school, or you can attend a school for vocal training. A record will be made of your speaking voice. The result may surprise you.

A common defect is slurring words and dropping g's—like comin', goin', walkin'. The one-key voice is tiresome; it is continuous droning, without warmth or expression. The loud speaker is lacking in manners. Ladies don't shout.

Voices are likely to reveal the character of the speakers. Hear the voice of a stranger over the telephone and you can almost know what kind of a person he or she may be.

STEP-CHILD NO RELATIVE

MONTREAL (CP)—Step-children are the same as strangers as far as rental regulations go, a three-man Quebec rentals board has ruled. Quebec law does not recognize a man's step-daughter as one of his relatives and a Montreal landlord failed in an attempt to evict a tenant in order to provide a home for his wife's daughter in a recent case that came before the board.

LOST WOMAN RESCUED

MONTREAL (CP)—A 32-year-old woman who spent at least three days in the woods some 25 miles east of here near Epiphani is in a Montreal hospital recovering from hunger and exposure. Police said the woman, whom they did not identify, was found sobbing hysterically on a tree stump.

No Radical Changes Noted In This Year's Fashions

LONDON (Reuters)—Smart women will look top-heavy in daytime this winter.

But they will not have to scrap the whole of their existing wardrobes. The big fashion collections setting the styles which will be worn this winter, show no radical changes.

Added width to the shoulders, achieved by the addition of a wide, shaped stole or cape, and a slimming, by flat-pleating or just plain cutting, of billowing skirts, will bring existing suits and day ensembles approximately up-to-date.

Longer Skirts

Skirts will have to be lengthened an inch or two to the new length of 13 inches off the ground. But shoulders remain sloping and the waist, though it wanders slightly here and there in front remains in general, as last season, in its natural position.

Winter coats are more cosy than ever, with tall luxurious-looking fur collars, deep fur cuffs and, often, fur lining which edges the front opening from collar to hem.

Black persian lamb, beaver and fox are the most popular furs, but seal and mink are also used.

Suits, in the majority, are cut on classic lines, with pencil slim skirts and jackets with low-cut collars, nipped in waists and longish stiffened basques which give a full, rounded hip-line. In many sui stiff stand-out pockets emphasi this line.

WATER HEATER EXPLODES

ast German Communists triving to Build Socialism tamp Out National Unity

By TOM REEDY

RLIN (AP) — Has Moscow oed German unity, finally and ever?

he Soviet zone is starting to that way.

he Communist press, mirror of ngs to come, seldom talks of ace and unity anymore. Instead feverish theme now is "built cialism."

he cry was sounded early in y by Walter Ulbricht, party secary general. Promptly and with ulous speed, the East started ning itself into a Soviet state. amples:

—The minor collaborating pars were whipped into statements ling Ulbricht's Socialist Unity ommunist) doctrine as necesy for the welfare of the people, ereby discarding their own platms.

—The governments of the five tes in the East zone were abolled, and replaced with 14 discts. Allied experts in West Berlin, noting the heightened tempo of Communizing in the East zone, have the impression now that the Russians are trying to make an East-West rapprochement almost impossible.

They point out that the measures in the East constitute a far higher wall than any armed sentries, ditches, steel barriers or border "danger zones."

In another six months, these quarters say the Communists will probably have uprooted all German traditions. In any unity talks, West and East would be travelling such widely divergent paths of thinking that they never could see eye to eye on such questions as the rights of free enterprise, the responsibility of the citizens, and protection of the individual.

Collective Farms

The surrender of the East zone's minor parties to full Socialism has been abject. As soon as Uubricht rang the bell for the campaign, the Christian Democrat and Liberal Democrats, National Democrats and Farmers' Party joined in the chorus.

The drive against the private farmer has been reflected in the stream of refugees coming into West Berlin daily. One out of every five now is a farmer who has felt the squeeze of the "co-operative" movement.

In East Germany the government has ruled that collective farmers now get free technical aid, top priority for machines, exemption from special taxes for two years, a ten-per-cent cut in the 1952 delivery quotas and a twenty-five per-cent reduction in general taxes. The farmer who refused to join gets nothing.

About 75 per-cent of East Germany's farmland now is "collectivized."- xpert Challenges Govt. o Bipartisan Policy or British Agriculture

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Lord Boyd Orr, cognized as a leading authority agriculture and food producon, has challenged the farmers Britain to step up the target home-produced food to meet 80 r cent of the nation's needs. The gure now is estimated at 60 per nt.

Speaking before the House of rds rose for its summer recess, e said that unless bold, deterined action is taken to increase roduction not only Britain but any other countries might be aunted by the spectre of hunger.

It was not only a question of e farmers producing more food. dustrialists had to gear up their lants to meet increased competion, and other elements of the opulation must be ready to exnd all-out co-operation.

"We are the most vulnerable ountry of all in a world food hortage because we are so dependnt on imports, Lord Boyd Orr aid. "But if you have a permannt national policy, on which all arties are agreed, to put before e nation, then you will have a ery good chance of meeting this hallenge in the same spirit that vas shown at the time of Dunerque."

He suggested that if leaders repesenting all political parties would be willing to get at the facts and agree on what should be the United national policy for the next 20 years—subject to changes dictated by the times—they could do a great deal towards solving the problem.

Such a body, setting aside all political differences, could decide whether subsidies were right or wrong, what better methods could be devised and how the cost distribution could be reduced.

There were also many problems of production to be tackled, through which Britain might make important contributions to the increased total of the world's supplies of food.

"We are a politically-mature nation, with a great Commonwealth and Empire which, with all its faults, is the best the world has ever seen," Lord Boyd Orr said.

World-Wide Policy

"We could offer a policy to the world and I think we would be surprised at the extent to which it would be accepted. If other countries will not accept it through the United Nations, let us have a Commonwealth and Empire policy within ourselves."

Lord Hungarton, former chairman of the National Farmers' Union, said Canada, Australia and New Zealand could do a great deal for the mother country and everything should be done to encourage their co-operation.

But more than that was needed. If the Commonwealth countries were to produce the food Britain required, they would have to be assured of a long-term policy—one of not less than 10 or 15 years.

He hoped some such arrangement could be worked out at the Commonwealth economic conference to be held in London next November.-

EVA'S BODY PERMANENTLY PRESERVED

Here is a view of the impressive scene in Buenos Aires as the body of Eva Peron was drawn through the streets high atop a gun carriage. The body was taken to the General Labor Confederation building, where it will remain for a year. Prime Minister Churchill Shows No Signs of Retiring Despite Strenuous Routine

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Recent speculation that Prime Minister Winston Churchill may be nearing the close of his career of effective leadership is not shared by the men of the Parliamentary Press Gallery who have him under scrutiny almost daily during the session.

No other man attacks life with the gusto of the "fabulous parliamentarian," as he is affectionately called, and there is no outward evidence he is contemplating retirement, says Graham Cawthorne, veteran member of the gallery staff in his book, "Mr. Speaker, Sir," just published. (Cleveaver-Hume Press).

If ever a man was entitled to retire after the European war was won, it was Churchill, says the author. Behind him were five years of glorious leadership, with their ceaseless, wearing strains of big decisions and the agonizing uncertainties of war.

But important things remained to be done and with his tremendous zest for living, he took up a new life rallying a party shattered in the 1945 general election. Six years later he was back in power.

"Today at 77, he is as vigorous and sparkling as ever," says Mr. Cawthorne.

"Don't-Tell Me"

The writer declares the real secret of Churchill's success lies in his refusal to waste a minute of his time. His rest—real sleep, undressed and between the sheets—after lunch, has for 40 years given him the energy and abounding interest to go on working until the small hours.

"His motto still is: 'If you do something do it with all your might. If there is a problem to be solved, solve it. Don't tell me the difficulties—they will argue for themselves.' He is still that Churchill," says Cawthorne.

During the succession of all-night sittings and tense debates, the restless outpouring of Churchillian energy caused many to worry about his health. But he remained on top of his form, revelling in the embattled atmosphere, drawing strength from the house itself.

Lady Astor found Winston cold towards her when she became the first woman member of parliament. Years later he explained that when she entered the Commons chamber he felt she had intruded on his privacy.

"It was," he said, "as if you had caught me in my bath, without even the protection of a sponge."

'Child Of Commons'

Churchill has very definite views on language and the uses of words and insists the old, short variety are best of all. Yet it was he who introduced to the House the phrase "terminological inexactitude," to express an "untruth."

Cawthorne says the prime minister's deafness seems to have grown with the years, but parliamentarians suspect that he hears very well when he wants to.

"Old in years but young in heart and vigor, Churchill has always described himself as the child of the House of Commons," the author writes. "His greatest speeches are made down there on the floor of the House, in the cockpit of politics, doing the thing and breathing the air he loves."

Cawthorne contends that Anthony Eden is without contender as the next Conservative prime minister after Churchill.-

Ministry of Agriculture Launches Drive to Weed Out Britain's Inefficient Farmers

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—The British ministry of agriculture has launched an all-out drive to purge the country of its inefficient farmers.

The action is part of the government's plant to increase food production by some 16 per cent in four years by speeding up dispossession of those failing to make full use of the land.

A ministry memorandum has already been circulated calling for an end to "kid-glove handling" of nad, or unco-operative farmers. Under a new method of grading, farm surveys will be conducted every three years and those who fail to meet required standards will be weeded out to make room for keener men.

The drive was initiated as Stanley N. Evans, Labor member for Wednesbury, fired another broadside against the government for "feather-bedding" the nation's agricultural industry. Former parliamentary secretary to the ministry of food, he resigned from the office in 1950 after criticizing the size of farm subsidies.

Favored Child

British agriculture, he said, was the favored child of a national economy which had treated it handsomely within recent years. Since 1948 its income had averaged £290,000,000 annually, compared with less than £60,000,000 in 1938—five times the income against 40 per cent increase in production.

'I take the view that giving the farmer more money is like drinking sea water to quench a thirst," Mr. Evans said.

Of Britain's agriculture population, he rated about 20 per cent the best in the world. Some 60 per cent were in a prevailing climate of dull mediocrity, while 20 per cent were the world's worst.

Government subsidies, guaranteed prices and other "molly-coddling" measures, he added, enabled people to go on farming who in the ordinary way would go bankrupt.

Quoting from government reports, Mr. Evans showed that farm production last year had fallen sharply. The wheat yield had been down about 12 per cent, rye 25 per cent, oats 16 per cent, potatoes by more than 150,000 tons while production of mutton and lamb had dropped by 8,000 tons.

Fewer Eggs

During the same period 261,000,000 fewer eggs had been placed at the disposal of the British housewife and of the nation's requirements of 265,000 tons of butter, only 6,000 tons had been forthcoming from the country's dairy industry.

Despite this drop in production, which he described as "catastrophic," farmers had enjoyed a substantial increase in profits.

He contended there was no incentive to efficiency of indolent farmers who were protected against the economic consequences of their apathy and inertia in advance and at public expense.

"The farmers not only have a feather bed, they are tucked up in it every year," Mr. Evans said.-

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP)—The United States veterans' tennis team swept the four doubles engagements Saturday while defending the Gordon cup from Canadian challengers, seven matches to one. The American veterans have held the international trophy since it was put into competition four years ago. The only Canadian victor was Edward Kemble of Vancouver, who defeated Mel Branga of Seattle, 3-6, 6-4, 6-1 in one of Friday's four singles matches.

Sport in Brief

MONTREAL (CP)—Yvon Guillou, a native of France now living in Quebec city, yesterday pedalled the 167 miles from Quebec to Montreal in seven hours, 59 minutes to win the 19th annual cycling race between the two cities.

Second was Victor Hauben, a native of Liege, Belgium, now riding out of Quebec, who came in five lengths behind Guillou.

The race, organized by the National Quillicot Club, a French-language youth organization, was sanctioned by the Canadian Wheelmen's Association

Sixty-eight riders from Canada and the United States lined up at Quebec but only 21 finished within the required time limit—one hour after the winner crossed the finishing line.

Guillou and Hauben pulled away from the field some 13 miles out of Quebec, and at one time were 23 minutes ahead of their nearest rival.

Dulles Doubts Two-Party Unity Can be Maintained

NEW YORK (AP)—John Foster Dulles expressed doubt yesterday that two-party unity can be maintained in the United States delegation to the United Nations if Republicans are attacked for "mistakes" after following instructions of a Democratic president.

Dulles, one of the Republican party's foremost foreign-policy experts, cited himself as a victim of such Democratic attacks.

He asserted that only the "fair play" policies of a Republican administration could preserve the U.N. delegation's bipartisan unity if the Democrats persist in such practices.

Dulles' views were contained in a letter to Senator Paul H. Douglas, Illinois Democrat. In an address to the Democratic national convention, Douglas had criticized Dulles' work as a U.N. delegate.

United States, Canada Puck Moguls Bar European Exhibition Tours

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian and American hockey authorities last night banned exhibition tours of Europe by their teams. They are willing to take part in world championships held overseas but want expense guarantees.

This may mean the end of Canadian and U.S. participation in the world title tournament, previously financed by extended exhibition tours.

'Incidents' Blamed

In a joint statement the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States said that "In view of the apparently innumerable incidents of the past few years" during hockey tours they "do not look with much enthusiasm upon future European tours."

Neither country will participate in the world event "unless both bodies are invited under the same conditions."

The statement was signed by W. B. George of Kemptville, newly-elected president of the C.A.H.A., and Tommy Lockhart of New York, president of the American body.

The 1953 world championships is scheduled for Zurich, Switzerland, in April. No Canadian team has been named but it is known that two or three intermediate clubs have applied for permission to represent Canada.

Ahearne Break Linked

While the "incidents" were given as the reason for the exhibition ban, it is believed also to be linked to a break with John F. Ahearne, London hockey bigwig, who has operated tours for both associations for many years.

Ahearne resigned as European representative of the C.A.H.A. last June, sequel to a squabble with the C.A.H.A. during the winter Olympic Games at Oslo, Norway, last March. Canadian hockey officials objected to Ahearne's financial control of Canadian tours since the mid '30s.

European hockey crowds have objected to the vigorous body-checking game by North American teams over the years. At the Oslo Olympics they called Americans "Chicago gangsters" and booed tactics that are normal in North American play.

HO-HUM!

Back from the annual vacation to the crack-o'-dawn rising. No more lingering in the sheets, getting sunburned and turning a disdainful nasal organ at the sleep-breaking, bell-ringing clock. That gadget gets early morning respect, daily except Sunday, for the next 11½ months.

Before picking up the loose ends we wish to thank our Boyd Upper for a swell job on the column during the two weeks in absentia. Too bad the medical profession has first call on the lad. We could use his columnar ability next winter after a long trip to Peterborough, Kingston or wherever the hockey wars take us.

Now let's see what happened during the north country ramble and following the Musical Ride.

We see by the papers that the Redmen have not been doing so well in the Central Ontario Baseball League set-up. Seems that they have dropped from grace and now adorn the second rung of the three-step ladder with the Peterborough Petes, of all things, nestling on the top perch. Says here the Petes have won 11 and dropped seven. What's Jim MacNamara discovered? An elixir of youth or a baseball ability up around the Kawarthas, or did that TV show awaken the spark in the manly bosoms of the Liftlock crew? Our side, it says, are in second place with nine wins and ten setbacks while the Scrutioneers from Kingston are looking upwards and onwards with seven victories and 10 defeats. All of which proves the saying that anything can happen in a baseball game or league and the winner is not declared until the final out is called. Looks like a dog-eat-dog battle from here in, with some of these postponed games proving positional pastimes, after all. Then the playoffs.

Speaking of baseball, The Redmen are at home in their own wigwam tonight with the Kingston Monarchs providing the opposition. And lookit, a Stewart Warner television set will go to a lucky ticket holder. The admission ticket carries the draw number, while season tickets holders will be given ducats with numbers to enable them to test their luck. Children will not participate in the main draw but there will be special prizes for them. Don't forget, you buy no extra tickets for the draw. Your admission stub entitles you to a chance. Game starts at 8.30.

SWINGIN' IN THE RAIN

They dunked for divots and used everything but outboard motors and water-wings at the Seventh Annual Golf Field Day at the Bay of Quinte Country Club on Saturday. But apparently these golfers are a hardy lot. It took more than all Jupiter Pluvius had to dampen the lads' feelings with the result than an all-time record entry of Ontario's best linksmen was on hand to vie for the E. E. Follwell Trophy and other valuable prizes.

But pro Charlie Pidutti's disappointment at anearly morning sullen-skies threat and the subsequent near-deluge was more or less nullified at the fine justifiable tributes paid him by visiting golfers on the excellent condition of the greens despite the fact some of them were practically under water.You just can't keep a good green down, and such well-known tournament players as Weston's Ernie Bentley, Cliff Maundrell, Cobourg, and others paid fine verbal tribute to the Quinte Club's popular pro.

In fact, Charlie had two reasons to smile. For didn't Henry Puotenin, the new 1952 Field Day champion, who carded a soaking wet 77 to win the title and silverware, learn his golf under Charlie when the latter was pro-ing at Kapuskasing?

Officials of the Country Club are justifiably proud of the success of Saturday's tournament. for despite the inclemency of the weather it gave ample proof of the growing popularity of an event that was originated back in 1945 by Dr. George Faulkner, Pidutti, T. A. Carruthers, Harry Ridley and Ken Reid then associated with the Department of Inland Revenue here and an ardent golfer.

Saturday's entry of 138 of the cream of Ontario's amateur golfers in the face of atmospheric opposition of the worst kind as far as golfers are concerned, is evidence enough that the annual Field Day tournament of the club is rapidly becoming one of the most popular of its kind in this part of the province. And one or two ardent members predict that within a short time the entry list will equal or better that of the Peterborough Kawartha Club tournament, considered one of the largest in Ontario.

The tournament was admirably conducted, thanks to Pidutti Ted Parker, club games captain and his committee of John Funnell, Roland Pryke, Norman Armstrong and T. A. Carruthers. Scores were good considering the deluge, since the top card was Puotenin's 77. T. A. Carruthers won the trophy under much better weather conditions last year with a 72. T. A. carded an 81 on Saturday. Credit, too, is given R. Brettingham and John Grant for the operation of the public address system both in Saturday's show and the ladies' field day.

MANY POSTPONEMENTS

The rain converted baseball and softball diamonds, tennis courts and stocks car tracks to near-quagmires, forcing a number of postponements. The Peterborough-Kingston COBL game was laid over as was the fifth and deciding game between Belleville Motor Car and Northern Electric for the Commercial Softball League "AA" playdown title. The game is being played tonight.

Also postponed were the Glen Roy Juniors, Brockville OASA junior first round playdown opener and the Belleville-Brooklin peewee softball tilt.

Dick Burrows will bring his stock car racing hellions to the Exhibition Grounds Wednesday night where the first flood-lit auto races in the park's history will be held. Twill be an opportunity for a number of city dwellers to get their first view of this spine-chilling sport and Burrows promises an all-thrill program.

George Polmanter, Belleville welterweight, who is staging a fine comeback, we hear, will meet Mike Zaduk in a return bout at Trenton Bayside Park on Wednesday. Polmenter and Zaduk fought to a draw in the pair's first bout and the Wednesday night clash should be a good one.

Sweep Pair from White Sox As Leaders Nip Boston 3-2; Giants Creep Closer to 'Bums'

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Cleveland Indians and New York Giants continued to apply the pressure on the league leaders but the spotlight was lifted off the pennant race and shifted to the two St. Louis clubs yesterday.

In St. Louis, rookie Stu Martin was deprived of a chance to join seven other rookies who have hurled a pair of shutouts in their first two major league starts when shortstop Solly Hemus made a double error in the ninth inning to let in the lone Cincinnati run in the Cardinals' 2-1 victory. The Columbia grad had pitched a 1-0 shutout over Chicago Cubs in his first start last week.

In Detroit the Tigers and Browns got a standoff in their big "waiver" swap of a week ago when Ned Garver pitched Detroit to a 4-2 victory over his old Brownie mates after outfielder Vic Wertz had whipped his ex-Tiger mates with a two-run homer for a 4-2 St. Louis first-game decision. Wertz also homered and hit two singles in the second game.

Indians Close Up

Cleveland closed within a game and a half of the American League-leading New York Yankees, sweeping a pair from Chicago White Sox 6-2 and 2-1 while the Yankees were edging out the Red Sox in Boston, 3-2.

New York Giants missed a fine opportunity to cut deep into Brooklyn's long first-place lead in the National but settled for a half-game advance by splitting with Boston Braves while Philadelphia Phillies were shading the Dodgers 2-1. Dave Koslo outpitched Warren Spahn 4-2 in the nightcap after the Braves had won the opener 7-3 to help the Giants move to within 7½ games of the Dodgers.

Washington clung to fourth place in the American, dividing a pair with Philadelphia. Bob Porterfield won his 10th with a 7-2 first-game triumph for the Nats but the Athletics overcame a 5-0 deficit to win the second 12-15.

Ralph Kiner helped Pittsburgh gain a split in the double bill with the Cubs, hitting his 26th homer of the year and his first in Wrigley Field to lead the Pirates to a 5-2 nightcap win. That was the score of the Cubs' first-game triumph as Bob Rush helped win his 12th by driving in three runs.

Hemus Boots Game

Miller had a 2-0 lead with only one more out needed to register his second straight shutout. Cincinnati had runners on first and second when Roy McMillan hit an easy grounder to Hemus. The shortstop fumbled and then threw wild trying for a force play at second and Joe Adcock scored from second.

Cleveland got good pitching from Bob Feller and Mike Garcia in their double win. Each had won only one game in the last five weeks. It was No. 9 for Feller and No. 15 for Garcia.

A ninth-inning double by Yogie Berra and a single by Gene Woodling broke up the 2-2 tie in Boston and gave rookie Tom Gorman his fourth Yankee win. Gorman replaced Ed Lopat, making his first start in a month, and pitched three scoreless frames. Mel Parnell was the Boston loser.

Karl Drews gained his 11th victory and his fourth over Brooklyn with a four-hitter. The Phils overcame a 1-0 deficit with two tallies in the sixth off loser Carl Erskine.

Remember When

By THE CANADIAN PERSS

Joe Louis, driving for the world's heavyweight championship, flattened Jack Sharkey, old Boston sailor, 16 years ago tonight in three rounds at New York. The Brown Bomber later reached the top June 22, 1937, with an eight-round knockout over champion Jimmy Braddock.

Jacobs Sparks Bombers to Win Over Argonauts

TORONTO (CP)—Indian Jack Jacobs has redeemed himself in the eyes of critical Eastern Canada football fans.

The nifty triple-threat Winnipeg Blue Bomber quarter, dubbed a goat of the 1950 Grey Cup when Toronto Argonauts whipped the Bombers 13-0 in the mud and slush of Varsity Stadium, returned to the scene Saturday and sparked the Western Canada club to a 11-7 decision over the Big Four club. Jacobs' educated toe and deadly passing arm turned the trick.

Riding the bench most of the first quarter in Bombers' final eastern exhibition tour, Indian Jack showed 12,000 rain-soaked fans that he can handle a wet ball. He tossed two over-the-line touchdown passed to end Bud Kirchak, out-kicked Argos' Jeo Krol, out-generalled the Double Blue's Nobby Wirkowski and generally stood out like a beacon.

Conditions were something similar to Grey Cup day two years ago. An all-day rain made footing tough but there weren't the puddles of deep water and mud of that memorable afternoon.

Major D. Burke, Veteran Shot Wins Prize Trophy

SOUTH MARCH (CP)—A 47-year-old Toronto doctor Saturday put the crowning touches to a top-notch career of marksmanship at the 84th annual Dominion of Canada Rifle Association shoot.

Maj. Desmond T. Burke, a veteran Bisley shot, captured the Governor-General's gold medal match at the final day of the week-long meet to end a long hunt for the coveted medal.

The victory gave the short, stocky radiologist the distinction of being the only rifleman ever to win the King's Prize at Bisley, England, and the Governor-General's medal. In addition, he is the record holder of the King's Medal on the Connaught Rifle Ranges near Ottawa, having won it eight times.

Posts Record Score

Burke posted a record score of 174 of a possible 175, firing at distances of 300, 600, and 900 yards in a drizzling rain that changed to a downpour as the victor was chaired and carried from the firing ranges to the presentation stand.

Burke scored a 99—one off the possible from the 300- and 600-yard ranges—and despite the poor visibility, pumped in 15 bulls-eyes for a perfect 75 from the 900-yard range.

Maj. H. C. Frick of Ottawa also scored 15 straight bulls from the longer range but dropped to four inners on the shorter ranges for a score of 171 to tie with Maj. A. J. F. Roberts, Montreal, and S.S.gt G. B. Kay of Hamilton. Because of their placings on the target, Frick was awarded second place, Roberts third and Kay fourth. Tpr. Don Morter of Calgary and Capt. M. M. Morgan of Winnipeg and Kingston, Ont., finished with 170s.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Batting: Vic Wertz, Browns—slammed his 18th homer and his first for the Browns, with a man on base, to help St. Louis defeat his ex-Detroit teammates 4-2 in the opener of the doubleheader. He also homered, hit two singles, walked and scored both, St. Louis runs in the second game which went to the Tigers, 4-2.

Pitching: Stu Martin, Cardinals—only a double error by shortstop Solly Hemus with two out in the ninth prevented the rookie right-hander from pitching his second straight shutout in his first two major league starts. As it was he settled for a 2-1 victory over Cincinnati following his 1-0 debut victory over the Cubs last week.

"COOL CONTROL"
RUNNING THE BASES

1 Start quickly, think swiftly! After hitting the ball, always take your first step towards first base with your front foot. Avoid leaping at the bag; practise touching the base squarely on top with either foot. This gives control and saves ankles.

2 Always make the full turn at first when running out a base hit or fly ball. On your run, cut in to the right of the base line, then turn sharply toward second, preferably using the left foot for the pivoting motion.

3 Always watch the ball when taking a lead. To steal, start running with the pitch. Study different pitchers for "give-away" gestures or habits when ready to pitch. On lead, stand in stride position, weight evenly distributed, and be ready to run in either direction. When stealing, pivot on right foot, take first step with left—then watch the baseman, not the ball.
Yes, it's control that counts, in baseball as in every sport — control which brings the extra-ordinary quality that sets one performer above the other. In the ability to approach things coolly, to control every move and moment, lies the answer to better results.

Record Entry Battles Over Quinte's Rain-Swept Course; Puotenin Wins Follwell Cup

Rain-soaked gladiators of the links hurled defiance at Ole Jupe Pluvius on Saturday and as sportdom in the main bowed to the deluge, 138 golfers from all parts of Ontario turned the Seventh Annual Field Day of the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club into a history-making tournament.

A steady downfall of rain that nearly submerged some of the greens made all golfers equal but despite that a new tournament champion was born. The Bay of Quinte host linksmen with others were brothers under a wet skin but they managed to take the majority of the major prizes.

The Weston Golf and Country Club with that of Cobourg were strong runners-up in the prize-sharing honors, turning in scores that saw one hole the difference between a flight winner and second money.

Wins With 77

Henry Puotenin of the Bay of Quinte Club is the new champion carding the low gross score in "A" flight with a neat 77. Ernie Bentley, Weston Golf and Country club links ace and a consistent winner in Ontario tournaments, was runner-up with a 78. Puotenin took over the title and the E. E. Follwell Trophy from T. A. Carruthers, Quinte Club's last year's champion.

Quinte golfers took the low net prizes in this flight with Doctor George Faulkner and Ernie Pugh tying with a 72. Best low gross for the first nine holes was won by Bill Irving, Trenton with a 37 while Bill Wonnacott, Quinte, took the low gross for the incoming nine with a similar score.

Bill Hill, Cobourg won the low gross prize in "B" flight edging Don McGee, of Weston by one stroke. Hill carded an 81 and McGee an 82.

Hockey Star Wins

Cliff Maundrell, Cobourg, former hockey star, nosed out Roland Pryke by two strokes in the low net in this flight carding a 67 against Pryke's 69. Low gross for nine holes was taken by Doug Jacobs, Weston, with a 37.

John Rywack, Belleville and Cecil Cordoza, Weston, shared major honors in the "C" flight, each scoring a 91 low gross to divide the top prize. Also battling on equal footing were Dr. Ralph Vandevoort, Stirling and Les Lennox, Belleville who turned in 67 scores to split the low net honors. Ralph Ashly, Kingston, turned in the best nine-hole low gross score in this flight with a 43.

The Bay of Quinte Club took team honors and the J. J. Morch Trophy. Participating players were Dr. Faulkner, Ernie Pugh, T. A. Carruthers and Spence Wonnacott.

Praised Greens Condition

Several visiting players who took part in the record-breaking tournament for the first time were loud in their praises of the greens despite their water-soaked condition. All paid tribute to the excellent job done by Quinte Club professional Charlie Pidutti and his assistants.

Following the conclusion of the tournament the prizes were presented to the various winners by Bay of Quinte Club president Clare B. Morgan. The E. E. Follwell Trophy emblematic of the title was presented personally by its donor to the new champion Henry Puotenin, as was a miniature of the cup. The first prize list valued at some $400 was considered by club officials to be the most valuable in the seven-year history of the field day.

Golfers taking part in the tournament came from all parts of Ontario, including Belleville, Toronto, Peterborough, Kingston, Cobourg, Renfrew, Trenton, Stirling, Napanee, Picton, Port Hope, Weston and others.

Watertown Golfers Here

Yesterday the Bay of Quinte Club entertained 25 golfers from the Watertown, N.Y., Golf and Country Club in the second annual inter-club tournament. The American linksmen entertained their Canadian counterparts at a tournament on their home course a short time ago. These tournaments are more or less social and links get-togethers with prizes being awarded to sweepstakes winners.

'Ole Satch' to Enter Hall of Fame, Ageless Negro Has Amazing Record

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—A movement is afoot to vote Satchel Paige, the ageless Negro pitcher, into baseball's Hall of Fame. After considerable thought we decided it is the thing to do.

If you want to go by Paige's rather brief record in the big leagues, then he does not, of course, belong among the statuary at Cooperstown, N.Y. But when all the factors of his amazing career are considered, there can exist little doubt that the master of control deserves to be the first of his race to win the game's highest honor.

Here is one of the great pitchers, who almost certainly would have ranked with the Mathewsons and Alexanders and Johnsons but for the fact that he came along too soon, before Jackie Robinson broke down the racial barrier in 1946 with Montreal.

No one can say what Paige's record would have been if he had come to the big show in his prime, but it is possible to make a good guess. Fifteen and 20 years ago, big leaguers who had run afoul of his fast ball on some winter tour would talk about him in the dugouts, and sometimes you felt they might be exaggerating.

Good as "Dizzy"

They said he was a good as Dizzy Dean or Lefty Grove and would tell remarkable tales of duels between him and reigning big league aces out in the barnstorming country.

But for all that, Satchmo remained a sort of living fable, a dusky Paul Bunyan of the baseball world, until Bill Veeck ran him down between one-night stands in 1948 and signed him to a Cleveland contract. The most amazing thing of all is that Paige, though by then almost certainly in his high 40s, still retained enough of his ability to make men marvel at what he must have been in his prime.

Italian Wins Car Race Title

Leading all the way in the approximately 235-mile race, Ascari lapped all the other 17 drivers in the race except his teammates, Giuseppe Farina and Luigi Villoresi, who finished second and third, respectively. All three Italians drove Ferraris.

Ascari earlier had won the German, French, Belgian and English Grand Prix races.

WALCOTT METS ROCKY

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — World heavyweight champion Jersey Joe Walcott will defend his title in a 15-round bout against Rocky Marciano Tuesday, Sept. 23, in Philadelphia's Municipal Stadium, co-promoter Herman Taylor announced yesterday. The terms of the fight are 40 per cent of the net gate for Walcott and 20 for challenger Marciano.

Royals Score 13 in Sixth To Nip Wings

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

One good reason why Montreal Royals are coasting along toward another International League pennant is that they are apt to explode any time.

Trailing 9-2 in the second game of a doubleheader against Rochester yesterday, you wouldn't have given a plugged nickel for their chances to pull it out. But they scored 13 runs in the sixth inning and went on to win 15-10 after Rochester had won the first game 6-5.

17 at Bat

Seventeen players batted in the big inning which was helped along by a passed ball, two errors and two walks. Jim Romano got credit for his fourth victory while Ed Ludwig, who faced only two batters, was charged with the defeat.

Ellis Deal was the victor in the opener, but he needed help from Freddie Mann. Gills Mills lost it.

In another action, Ottawa Athletics stopped Toronto Maple Leafs 2-0, Baltimore Orioles defeated Buffalo Bisons 4-3 and Syracuse Chiefs won a doubleheader from Springfield Cubs 4-3 and 4-0.

Marion Fricano tossed the shutout for the As, and if they had another hurler like him they wouldn't be in seventh place. He held the losers to only two hits in racking up his 14th decision. Johnny Hetki was charged with the defeat.

Al Lakeman hit a home run with one on in the sixth to decide the Baltimore - Buffalo contest.

Syracuse used both their top pitchers—Bobo Holloman and Bob Keegan—to subdue the Cubs. Claude Corbett scratched an infield hit with the bases loaded in the sixth inning of the first game to knock in the winning run. The afterpiece was close until the final inning when the winners scored three times.

Jockey Wins Four of Eight

SALEM, N.H. (AP)—Anthony Dispirito, who swapped an uncertain future in a textile mill for the glamor of thoroughbred racing, ranks today as the winningest jockey of 1952 in the United States.

The 17-year-old Lawrence, Mass., apprentice booted home four winners in eight races at Rockingham Park Saturday to boost his total to 189 for the year.

This puts him five up on Howard Craig, now riding at Detroit, and nine ahead of Harold Keene, the Lowell, Mass., veteran campaigning at Rockingham.

WIN LONG CANOE RACE

SHAWINIGAN FALLS, Que. (CP) Henri Goyette and Ovila Denomme of the northern St. Maurice River region of La Tuque yesterday captured the annual 100-mile canoe race between La Tuque and Shawinigan Falls, covering the distance in 10 hours, 31 minutes and 16 seconds.

Some 25,000 persons crowded along the banks of the St. Maurice River to see the annual classic and the leaders beat out Rene and Rosaire Denommee, representing the city of La Tuque, who finished second.

Eight Canadians Enter US Amateur Golf Tournament

SEATTLE (CP)—The 52nd annual U.S. amateur golf show begins today and by the end of the week a new champion is likely to emerge from the cast of 200 selected performers—eight of them Canadians.

Few veteran observers expect defending champion Billy Maxwell of Odessa, Tex., to hang on to the crown he won at Bethlehem, Pa., a year ago.

But the prediction is hardly a bold one since no champion in the U.S. amateur blue ribbon fixture has scored twice in succession since Lawson Little won in 1934 and 1935.

Two of the Canadians—Pete Kelly of Fredericton and Phil Farley of Toronto—got in in the first round.

The six Canadians with first-round matches are Douglas Bajus of Vancouver vs. Dale Hardison, Glendale, Calif.; Gerry Kesselring, Kitchener, Ont., vs. Jerry Fehr, seattle; Bill Mawhinney, Vancouver, vs. Verne Perry, Jr., Portland, Ore.; Percy Clogg, Vancouver, vs. David McBeath, Bellingham, Wash., and Nick Weslock, Windsor, Ont.; vs. P. T. Taylor, Huntington, W. Va.

The amateur is being held at the Seattle Country Club whose rolling acres offer a quality test of golf that measures 6,632 yards and par of 35-36—71.

Two Canucks Get Byes

Ordinarily, club members play to par 73. But the U.S. Golf Association trimmed a stroke off the par 5 ninth and 16th holes.
